Allen's Votes for L.B. Use of Oil Bared

of View Is Recent

By MALCOLM EPLEY

A couple of old votes came out of the past to haunt Assemblyman Bruce Allen Saturday, when the record was cited to show that he twice had balloted to approve Long Beach use of tidelands oil money away from the tidelands. Both votes were on legislative ratification of city charter amendments.

Assemblyman W. S. Grant of Long Beach pointed out the record on Allen's votes at the tidelands interim committee hearing here. He later explained that it showed that Allen, as late as January, 1955, believed Long Beach had the right to spend half its tidelands oil money away from the tidelands under authorization of a 1951 legislative act.

Long Beach contends the legislature intended the act to provide that authority, but the Supreme Court in the Mallon case later ruled that the 1951 law, instead, gives the 50 per cent of tidelands revenues to the state. Allen has introduced a bill to seize all of the revenues, and relies on the Mallon case in pressing his proposal.

BEFORE THE Supreme Court had ruled in the Mallon case, Allen last March, introduced his bill and frequently has criticized the city's handling of the funds. Grant cited the record on Allen's vote while questioning City Auditor John Mansell, a principal witness before the committee Saturday. He brought out

Fog Stalls Hunt for 2 Boats, Grounds Air Liners, Slows Cars

Heavy fog rolling in Saturday night slowed traffic to a crawl, sent the Coast Guard searching for two vessels, grounded flights at the Municipal Airport and caused several auto accidents.

The fog is expected to clear

Woman Hurt as Car Smashes Store Front

A woman driver suffered back and right shoulder injuries when her car careened off another one and smashed into a large plate-glass window at 4th St. and Locust Ave., late Saturday.

Helen Videbeck, 37, of 1745 E. Ocean Blvd., was treated at Sea-side Hospital after her car and one driven by Melvin Braxton, 20, of 607 Cerritos Ave., collided. The Videbeck vehicle went out of control, over the curb, smashed the 15x20-foot store window and ended up with the right front wheel inside the building.

Workers Who Quit Smoking Get $50 Each From Boss

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (AP)—Pay-off time came Saturday night for a Wichita Falls oil man and rancher who offered his employees $50 each to quit smoking.

J. S. Bridwell made the offer last March to the 255 employees of the Bridwell Oil Co.

A total of $12,625 was paid to late this morning. However, the weather bureau predicts more fog tonight.

The Coast Guard was working against the odds of darkness and zero visibility fog to rescue four persons, including a child, from a 40-foot cabin cruiser from Alamos Bay reported lost in the rocky waters south of Newport Harbor.

The Coast Guard also launched a search for a 16-foot skiff carrying two San Clemente youths.

The fog began rolling in late Saturday afternoon. A "double zero" fog ceiling at the Municipal Airport was reported at 6:15 p.m. by the CAA communication office. Commercial flights were re-routed to the Burbank Airport.

The fog stretched as far inland as Artesia and Norwalk.

THE MISSING CRUISER was identified as the Sea Toy. The Coast Guard said names of the occupants were not known. The vessel left Alamos Bay at about

1 p.m. and was reported lost in the fog an hour later.

The night-time search for the cruiser was hampered by the darkness and the fog. The searchers said those aboard the boat apparently were unfamiliar with operation of the vessel's radio.

Some messages were audible, however, and a Coast Guard patrol boat was trying to make a "fix" on the Sea Toy's radio signal.

The Coast Guard said the search was narrowing to the rocky seacoast between Newport and Huntington Beach.

THE TWO YOUTHS aboard the skiff, lost in the fog off San Clemente, were identified as Don Wright, 19, and Don Liske, 19, both of San Clemente. They were reported missing about 3 p.m. by San Clemente police.

The fog brought highway traffic to a snail's pace.

In one accident, Larry W. McLean, 28, of Huntington Park, was injured when his car rolled over several times. Riding in the car with him was Sallor Tommie H. Hollingsworth, 30, of the USS Jarvis.

PORTUGUESE BEND — One serviceman was killed and another seriously injured when their car crashed head-on into a truck one-half mile east of Portuguese Bend Club Saturday.

Highway patrolmen identified the dead man as Army Sgt. Allyn Bruce, 23, stationed at Ft. MacArthur.

In serious condition at Harbor General Hospital is Cpl. Stanley C. Rhyne, 21, also of Ft. MacArthur.

Bruce was driving at the time of the accident, investigators said.

Officers said Bruce's car was traveling west on Palos Verdes Dr. South at a high rate of speed when it crossed the dividing line and hit the oncoming truck head-on.

The truck driver, Jose Herrera, 49, of 370 W. 3rd St., San Pedro, was released from Hillside Emergency Clinic in Lomita.

Soviets Free East Berlin GI Captives

Red Zone Republic's
'Authority' Ignored
by U.S. and Russia

BERLIN (UP)—The Soviets Saturday night released two American soldiers whose case had become a major issue in a mounting controversy over Communist East German claims to sovereignty.

East German propagandists, claiming that recently announced agreements with Russia superseded four-power control over the divided city of Berlin, had demanded that the two Americans be tried in an East Berlin court to prove the sovereignty of East Germany.

The U. S. Army identified the GIs as Pvt. Will J. Holden, 19, of Poplarville, Mo. and Pvt. Richard L. Calbert, 22, of Kansas City, Mo.

THE COMMUNISTS announced the arrests last Wednesday on charges of attacking a cabaret actor in East Berlin.

The Soviets released the Americans Saturday after U. S. authorities handed the Communists a written demand for their immediate release.

Col. O. M. Barsanti, Army chief of staff in Berlin, followed up the written demand with a visit to Soviet headquarters to see Col. Ivan A. Kotsuba, Berlin's deputy Soviet commandant. Shortly thereafter, the American soldiers were handed over to Lt. Col. Vernon Hammond, Army provost marshal here.

"THE MEN appeared to be in good physical condition, but they were admitted to the U. S. Army hospital for a routine physical examination," an Army announcement said.

American officials sent the written note after the Reds hinted they might try the soldiers in an East Germany court. Such a trial would be a violation of four-power agreements in Berlin.

Apartment Thief Gets $1,715 Gems

Eileen C. Mills, 1827 E. Ocean Blvd., reported to police that four diamond rings valued at $1,715 were stolen from her apartment Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Mills told officers a man in his late 20s had called at the house about renting rooms and that later on she discovered the rings were missing from the top of a dresser.

Mrs. Mills is manager of the apartments at that address. She said she had seen the man in the vicinity two weeks ago.

THE PRESIDENT . . . Fatigued on Many Occasions

Ike Aides Lay Wide Health Surety Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Eisenhower administration was reported about ready Saturday with "improved" plans for expanding health insurance to cover more Americans and more major illnesses.

Sources close to Marion Folsom, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, said it is "pretty obvious" the new program will be sent to Congress within 60 days or so after it meets in January.

These sources said the reinsurance program that has been before Congress for two years may be dropped for lack of enough encouragement from insurance companies and because it has been before Congress so long.

If this program is tossed overboard, a spokesman said, another plan to accomplish the same goal, of expanding health insurance, will be offered. Folsom has said the reinsurance plan is getting a working over, at least, to ease some of the objections raised against it.

"THE REINSURANCE plan would allow insurance companies to buy insurance from the government to protect them against heavy losses in programs they might undertake to improve health coverage. The first time it was proposed to Congress, it was beaten in the House. Last year, it never reached the floor of the House or the Senate.

Regardless of how the details are worked out, the new program is certain to emphasize broadened insurance coverage in three general fields where the administration considers there now are "gaps in protection." Also, it will stress expansion of voluntary health insurance programs, as opposed to a compulsory plan of government insurance.

The administration program will emphasize a need for more insurance to:

1. Cover the major "catastrophic" illnesses, requiring long hospitalization or expensive medical treatments that may run up to $7,500 or $10,000.
2. Cover people in rural areas or in small businesses not now eligible for "group" insurance.
3. More and cheaper health insurance for people over 60 years of age.

Car-Theft Suspect Shot in Compton

Compton police shot a car theft suspect Saturday night and then had to chase him through the Victory Park area before they finally captured him.

Lee Smith, 36, of 948 W. 151st St., Compton, was treated at Community Medical Center and transferred to the jail ward of Los Angeles County General Hospital.

Compton officers Donald A. French and Stanley Kay said they chased Smith in a car for several blocks and fired a number of shots at the vehicle before he drove it over the curb at Shearer Pl. and Compton Blvd. Smith jumped from the car and started to run as both officers fired at him.

Five other police cars were called to the area and about a dozen officers closed in on the suspect.

Advice Casts Fresh Doubts on '56 Race

President Gets Checkup, Urged
to Lighten Work

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower's physician disclosed Saturday night that he has urged the chief executive to lighten his work burden and "slow down" while recovering from his heart attack.

The doctor, Maj. Gen. Howard M. Snyder, also said that if he were in Eisenhower's position he wouldn't feel that he would be able to make "a satisfactory decision" until mid-February as to whether to run again.

A medical bulletin issued after the President had a complete checkup Saturday pronounced his condition good and declared "he continues to look well and feel well."

But it said his work load has put a "heavier tax" on him than could ideally be desired. And Dr. Snyder added at a news conference that the President has experienced "fatigue" on many occasions after long conferences, although his recovery is continuing normally from the "acute" heart attack he suffered in Denver.

THIS NEWS FROM the White House was laden with implications of possible major import for the 1956 presidential campaign. For one thing, the "slowdown" advice cast fresh doubt on whether he will run again, as many supporters have been hoping he will.

It did not, however, rule out the possibility that he might be a candidate. Those Republicans fervently desiring him to head the ticket could find comfort in the doctors' emphasis that the President's progress toward recovery has been good.

Dr. Snyder's stand that the President probably won't be able to make a satisfactory decision for another two months was taken as a reply to some Republicans urging that the decision be announced in January.

U.S. Steps Up Efforts on New Missiles

WASHINGTON (UP)—Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson Saturday night announced the United States is stepping up its efforts to beat Russia in the development of long-range ballistic missiles—known as the "ultimate weapon" of hydrogen bomb warfare.

Wilson, at an unusual evening news conference, said that expansion of efforts toward the fantastic intercontinental weapon is a result "more of our own technological developments and realization of possibilities" than Russian advances in the field.

Wilson declined to say whether the United States is ahead of Russia in the deadly race. But he denied that the new U. S. step-up has anything to do with Russia's recent H-bomb explosion.

Wilson said he did not think Russia has made any unforeseen advance in the development of a ballistic missile. "Their progress has been what could be expected," he told newsmen.

Reds Arrest Bishop, Stir Vatican Ire

LONDON (UP)—Radio Moscow reported Saturday that Kung Pin-Mei, Catholic bishop of Communist-held Shanghai, and his "principal accomplices" were arrested two months ago as spies and subversive plotters.

The broadcast, quoting press reports from Red Peiping, said secret police who arrested the bishop and his aides captured radio equipment and papers proving they were working for Free China and "certain foreign powers."

VATICAN CITY (UP)—Vatican sources said Saturday night that the arrest of the bishop of Shanghai indicated that the anti-church drive in Red China is back at full pressure.

One high source said "It can be pointed out that the easing of anti-church pressure in China that accompanied the summit conference at Geneva is now ended."

What Does Man Cost?

It is doubtful is one in 50 families has ever tried to estimate what it would cost the family to live—without the father. Just what does it cost to keep a man clothed, fed and housed? It would be easy to estimate the cost for a single man. But the percentage of total family expenses is something else. Actually the man's cost is a small percentage of the average family expense. His going away cuts a small part of the family expense. But few families have any idea of how their expenses would be paid if the man's pay check were eliminated.

The average man and wife seem to feel it is indecate or morbid to discuss such an eventuality. The natural tendency is for people to avoid unpleasant subjects. There is a natural tendency to feel—it can't happen to us—or—there is plenty of time. People who are careful to keep social appointments and to keep their credit

Negro Beauty, 17, Chosen 'Queen of Queens' at University of Iowa

DORA LEE MARTIN . . . Choice of Iowa 'U' Men

IOWA CITY, Iowa (UP)—Dora Lee Martin, 17-year-old Negro beauty from Houston, Tex., was chosen "queen of queens" of the University of Iowa campus Saturday night.

It was the first time the state university's male students, who choose the queen, had ever selected a Negro girl for the honor.

Miss Martin said she was "thrilled" and "surprised" at being named sweetheart of the Iowa state campus.

The pretty, light-skinned girl, about five feet, six inches tall, was the only Negro of 29 candidates. She was among seven girls entered by Currier Hall, a woman's dormitory. About 50 of the 900 girls in the dorm are Negroes.

Miss Martin is a dramatic arts major attending Iowa on a scholarship. The "Queen of Queens" winter formal dance is one of the university's top social affairs.

Miss Martin said she was interested in an acting career. She said this was more a "popularity contest" than a beauty contest, which makes the honor even more wonderful.

good seem to have a blank spot when it comes to keeping the family's future safe if the family producer is suddenly taken in death.

Take for example an average family of four. If the father is taken away, does he expect the wife and mother to go to work? If so, what provision is there for looking after the two young children? Just how much less money will the family need when there are only three instead of four? It is not a pleasant subject for family discussion. But it is the most important discussion a man and wife can have.

Actually the man's presence in the family is a minor part of the family expense. He eats some food. The average family food bill is only about 20 per cent of its income, so on that basis one-fourth, or 5 per cent, would be saved if the man were not fed. The average man's clothing bill is a small part of the family budget. The wife and children make up most of it. There would be no saving on rent if the wife and children were to continue living on the same standard.

When you put down all the family expenses for four and figure out how much would be saved if the man's cost were eliminated you find his cost is very small. The only way a large saving would be accomplished would be by greatly reducing the standard of living for the wife and children surviving. And that is exactly what happens in the great majority of cases.

It is tragic that so few men are realistic enough to plan for their loved ones should the husbands be taken away. Most men are completely selfish in that they look ahead to the good things they will do with their families—but ignore what they will do if the fathers are not with them. We say it is completely selfish, because there are things he can do to protect the family from drastic curtailments should his income be cut off.

An example of this selfishness is the carelessness men show in neglecting to make a will so they may know who will be guardians of their children should both father and mother be taken. Another example is the way men delay taking out adequate insurance policies with annual monthly payments to the family provided. Very few men know how insurance policies they now have would be paid in event of their death. The husband and wife rarely sit down and try to plan what would be done if one of them were taken away. Result is when tragedy strikes it is more tragic because the surviving one must plan alone.

Planning for the future is something most people put off until tomorrow. For many of them when tomorrow comes it is too late. The plan of saving a little each month and establishing an insurance estate is put off because seemingly today's necessities are more important. But the people of today who have economic security are the people who planned long ago to provide it.

There is no more important factor in a family's life than analyzing and planning for what would happen should the father's income be taken away. It would be illuminating to most families to realize how little it takes to keep a man in the family and how much it would take to keep the family if he were taken away.—L.A.C.

Viennese Girl Seeks Rich Texan for Mate

DALLAS, Tex. (UP)—Anna Maria Springer of Vienna, Austria, whose picture indicates she has plenty of old world charm, asked a Dallas editor Saturday to find her a rich and lonely Texan to whom she can offer "a hot heart."

Miss Springer wrote Editor Bill Ruggles of the Dallas Morning News that she wants a husband from Texas who can afford to buy her a 1956 Chevrolet for a wedding present. She promised Ruggles a mess of Viennese schnitzel if he delivers.

Her letter said: "I should be very grateful to you, if you would publish this heart's desire of mine in your largely circulating newspaper. Should my desire realize owing to your help, I shall be very glad to serve you with original Viennese-Schnitzel at my wedding party."

Rock Strike Negotiators Mark Time

Negotiators in the costly strike against 29 Southern California rock products firms took a week-end rest Saturday.

Representatives of industry and the striking teamsters' union met jointly Friday for the first time in five days. A similar session is planned for early this week, federal conciliator Earl J. Ruddy said.

Ruddy announced that he had added two more persons to his panel—mediators Arthur G. Viat and Oliver E. Goodwin.

An industry spokesman said employers were standing pat on their Nov. 28 offer to make a locally administered pension plan available to the teamsters. The union wants an all-state pension fund administered by the western conference of teamsters in Seattle.

publican nomination if Eisenhower doesn't make his intentions public next month. Knowland, who is Republican leader of the Senate but has bucked the administration on some major foreign policy issues, had no comment Saturday night on the news from the White House.

Sen. Bridges (NH), Chairman of the Senate Republican policy committee, said before Eisenhower's check up Saturday: "I think the President should make his intentions known as early as possible and I am hopeful that we can know them shortly after Jan. 1."

Bridges declared the present uncertainty puts New Hampshire's political situation in a "twilight zone." The state's presidential primary comes March 13, and the filing period for national convention delegates is Jan. 13-Feb. 11.

Some Republicans are known to be restive because of a feeling that the "Eisenhower wing" of the party is seeking to immobilize potential candidates outside that wing by prevailing on the President to delay his announcement as long as possible.

Eisenhower motored here Saturday from Gettysburg and underwent a lengthy examination at the Army's Walter Reed hospital.

SNYDER, COL. THOMAS W. Mattingly, Walter Reed Hospital heart specialist; and Maj. Gen. Leonard D. Heaton, the hospital's commanding officer, agreed on a medical bulletin asserting:

"Executive responsibilities have imposed a heavier tax upon the President than an ideal convalescence program would incorporate. "Then, too, the weather (at Gettysburg) has not always been the best.

"Participation in office and farm activities has been carefully supervised so that no harm has resulted.

"The President's condition, when examined today, was good."

The press conference came after the President underwent a complete medical checkup at Walter Reed hospital lasting a little more than an hour and a half.

THE MEDICAL bulletin referred to the 65-year-old President's Sept. 24 coronary thrombosis as "acute" for the first time, but the doctors said that referred to the suddenness of the attack which previously has been described as "moderate."

Gen. Snyder told the newsmen that "we expect his work to be lightened" when the President goes back to Gettysburg Tuesday after conferences here with congressional leaders.

Snyder said that if he were in the President's position he wouldn't feel that he would be able to make "a satisfactory decision" on whether he would be able to run again for "another two months."

He said that the President's activities for the next several weeks will be carefully controlled with emphasis on keeping the middle of the day—from noon until 2:30 p. m.—free of any activity. That period, he said, will be set aside for lunch and rest.

SNYDER PREFACED the reading of the medical bulletin by saying "the news continues to be good."

The bulletin asserted, the President has "felt well and looked well." It said he "sleeps well, rests well and relaxes easily during the day" and that he had used a very mild sedative only once since he left the hospital in Denver Nov. 11.

The bulletin went on: "His general circulation is excellent, including the circulation in his legs and feet. Although there was an area of soreness in the President's chest during the first 48 hours of his illness, his breathing has been entirely comfortable during his entire illness."

"The blood-clotting time has remained at a controlled level. The blood sedimentation rate has steadily declined and is now in the upper normal range for this altitude. The white blood count has remained at a normal figure since the early days following the acute attack. The serum cholesterol varies slightly but continues within the normal range."

THE BULLETIN went on to say that the electrocardiograms "show residual abnormalities as a result of the scar in the heart muscle" and added: "These abnormalities remain stable as is expected at this stage in the healing process. This stability is a desirable finding. The scar in the heart muscle wall appears to be firm and of moderate size. Fluoroscopic examination indicates that the heart-beat is good and that the muscle action is satisfactory.

"The heart shadow, compared with films that were made in prior years and with those that have been made since the acute attack developed, shows no significant evidence of enlargement."

The chief executive had arrived in midafternoon for the physical checkup, the first complete one he has had in a month.

Snyder said that the President probably will not move back into the White House until Congress reconvenes.

Under questioning the doctors said that the size of the area injured by the President's heart attack was approximately four fifths of an inch, which is about average, they said.

SNYDER ALSO said, he thought it would be inadvisable for the President to deliver his "state of the union" message to Congress in person. He would not say flatly whether he thought the President would ever play golf again, saying that heart specialists differed on the advisability of heart patients playing that game.

He said he would defer that question to the opinion of heart specialists he has consulted. Dr. Paul Dudley White, the Boston heart expert, who will examine the President again at Gettysburg, Dec. 17, has said previously that it is quite possible the President ultimately can resume playing golf if his progress continues to be satisfactory. On the question of the heart enlargement, Col. Mattingly said that in such cases there is almost always some moderate enlargement and that in the President's case it was "minimal."

The main burden of Dr. Snyder's view was that he would like to give the President as much time as is humanly possible to continue his convalescence with a minimum of official burdens.

ASKED BY A REPORTER if he had suggested to the President that he "slow down" the pace of his activities, Snyder replied that he had done so in recent days.

A case in point, brought up by White House News Secretary James C. Hagerty, was the National Security Council session at Camp David, the President's retreat in the Catoctin Mountains on Thursday. On that occasion the President worked with his top defense planning group for approximately two hours and 20 minutes in the morning and about that length of time in an afternoon session.

There were other occasions, Hagerty added, when the President has worked at his Gettysburg office until past noon and resumed work before two o'clock. Because of this, he said, he has not been able to get the needed 2½ hours in the middle of the day for lunch and prescribed rest.

"Everything possible is being done to lighten the President's burdens," Hagerty said adding that "we expect that in the future they will be made even lighter."

Allen's Votes for L.B. Bared

that in January, 1953, and again in January, 1955, Allen voted with other legislators to approve amendments involving local oil funds. One authorized expenditure of tidelands money away from the tidelands and the other authorized specific purposes for which certain tidelands money could be used, including upland projects.

MEMBERS OF THE legislative committee chuckled when Grant recited the record. Allen remarked that he voted for the Long Beach charter amendments after Grant had represented they didn't involve oil money.

There were more chuckles and then Grant came back. He pointed out that when the first amendment came before the Assembly, in 1953, he was not a member of that body.

The matter was dropped there, but it had provided a high light of a session devoted principally to financial records of the Long Beach tidelands oil operations and the city's auditing practices. The committee recessed at noon and will reconvene in Los Angeles Jan. 13 when Allen will begin presentation of his side.

Auditor Mansell submitted a complete financial record of the 44 years of harbor operations and 17 years of tidelands oil operations. Mansell's report showed net revenue to the city from the Richfield and LBOD contracts up to June 30, 1955, was $233,547,154.63.

HIS FIGURES showed a total of $158,511,202 on hand on June 30 in the four city funds which receive tidelands oil revenue. All moneys in the reserves, he said, are invested in U.S. government bonds, and cash on hand is kept in long-term interest-bearing bank accounts.

Before the interim committee is the question of permitting Long Beach to keep all or part of its tidelands oil revenues to spend under terms of its grants from the state. The Mallon decision awarded half to the state but the legislature could restore that half. Allen has proposed that the state take it all and allocate money back to Long Beach for harbor operations.

MANSELL'S REPORT showed that, excluding oil revenues, the harbor has had a net loss before depreciation during its 44 years of operation of $1,117,040.25. Total depreciation is $8,053,318.83, bringing the net loss for 44 years, after charges for depreciation to $9,170,359.08.

The city presented figures to show a comparison between its lucrative tidelands oil operations and those of the state. The state has received about 26 percent of the gross revenue from its tidelands. Long Beach has received 53.96 percent from the LBOD contract and 70.19 percent from the Richfield contract. These are the only contractors operating the city's tidelands oil field.

ASSEMBLYMAN ALLEN questioned at length about accounting methods and particularly asked about cases where Mansell had protested Harbor Department expenditures. One such case, Mansell said, was expenses for a dinner. He said there had been about five such incidents, and that in three cases he was sustained, two overruled. Allen also quizzed Mansell and Port Petroleum Engineer Frank Hardesty closely about the city's methods of metering oil and gas coming from the tidelands wells. Hardesty said that to the best of his knowledge, all oil and gas but waste goes through the meters.

Japan GI's Worries End, Cops Find His Car's Junk

The Spirit of Christmas shows itself in many ways.

For a U.S. soldier in Tokyo, the Yuletide greetings include notice that a car he once owned has been reduced to junk—and that for two years will be lifted.

The soldier, Harry Pugh Jr., lived in Long Beach before going overseas early this year and owned a 1947 sedan. After he left, his wife decided to sell the car. She took a down payment on it but through a misunderstanding allowed the purchaser to take the pink slip immediately. The change in ownership apparently never was recorded.

For the past two years Pugh has been receiving a mass of correspondence fromirate gasoline station owners, policemen and court officials requesting that he pay bills and summonses. He worried about these things and finally last week wrote a three-page letter to the Clerk of Municipal Court here out-

CHILDREN WANT SINCERITY, AUTHORS SAY

Two Writers Here for Book Fair Explain 'Magic Key' to Tots' Hearts

By BEN ZINSER

When you write for children, you have to be "terribly honest."

And you write just as if you were communicating with adults—only you leave out the sophistication.

That's on the authority of two successful children's authors—Leo Politi and Taro Yashima. Both were in town Saturday afternoon to attend the Association for Childhood Education's first annual Book Fair at State College.

Yashima, 47, of Los Angeles, got into the story-telling business accidentally. Home from the war and duty with the OSS, he found himself embittered, and victim of an ulcer.

His young daughter, Momo, he recalls, put her cheek to his. "I didn't realize that a young child was capable of such sympathy," he said. "Suddenly I wanted to make a story for my daughter—one with deep meaning."

He started writing and illustrating.

Wife Dead, Gun Wielder in Life Fight

A Buena Park man who fatally wounded his estranged wife and attempted to shoot a 4-year-old daughter remained in critical condition Saturday night from a self-inflicted bullet wound.

Frank Earl Ward, 30, shot Mrs. Josephine Sanchez Ward, 26, at 6501 Knott Ave., Buena Park, Friday afternoon, reportedly tried to shoot the girl, Linda, and then turned the gun on himself, officers said.

MRS. WARD died at 6:10 a.m. Saturday in Orange County General Hospital. Ward also was hospitalized there.

Linda escaped injury when Ward's gun jammed, a witness told police. The girl ran screaming from the room.

Ward reportedly fired three bullets point-blank into his wife after she rejected his attempts at a reconciliation. Officers said the weapon was a .32-caliber revolver.

The couple has two other children, Maria, 3, and Warner, 8 months.

FTC Reveals Firm Modifies TV Ads

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Federal Trade Commission announced Saturday that Admiral Corporation, Chicago, has agreed to stop advertising that its 21-inch television set provides 20 percent more screen area than the 21-inch sets of other TV manufacturers.

The commission approved a consent settlement of a false advertising complaint filed against Admiral last March 23.

PIONEER PROGRAM

I, P-T Pension Plan Sets Coast Standard

The West Coast's first newspaper publisher-union negotiated pension plan brought checks Friday for two veteran employees of the Independent, Press-Telegram.

Publisher H. H. Ridder, in informal office ceremonies, presented the first of their monthly checks to A. F. Hahn, 2638 Van Buren St., and Ernest A. Harding, 439 Chestnut Ave.

Hahn retired after 34 years of service. Harding worked for the newspapers 32 years. Both are members of Long Beach Typographical Union No. 650.

They are the first to accrue benefits from the negotiated plan.

THE PLAN, marking significant strides in labor-management relationships, was agreed upon this year. It covers Printing Pressmen and Assistants Union No. 285, Paper Handlers Union No. 3, Stereotypers Union No. 161, Malters Union No. 9 and the Typographical Union.

Administration of the plan is handled by a board comprised of 12 union-management representatives.

Publisher Ridder credited Sam Cameron, general manager for the newspapers, with laying the groundwork for the successful negotiations.

'Place Closed,' Bandits Say as They Rob Store

DOWNEY — Armed bandits early Saturday "took over" a liquor store at 8035 Imperial Hwy. and turned customers away while they robbed the establishment of $170 in cash.

Clerk Dewey W. Young, 59, told sheriff's deputies he was alone when gunmen walked into the store. They jerked the telephone from the wall and ordered him into a back room. The bandits forced him to lie face down on the floor and tied his hands behind him.

Customers attempting to enter the store while the robbery was taking place were told by the thugs that the store was closed.

FBI Arrests Fugitive in Murder Case

CHICAGO (UP)—The FBI Saturday night announced the arrest of Lewis Statler, 68, wanted for the slaying of his 18-year-old housekeeper last October.

FBI agents closed in on Statler in Chicago's Loop. He was unarmed and offered no resistance, they said. He had been using the name of Robert Est.

Statler had been sought since Oct. 9, when the body of Gloria Anne Ferry was found strangled in Brookside Park, Cleveland.

Cleveland police had asked the assistance of the FBI when they learned that Statler had left their city on Oct. 20.

The FBI said Miss Ferry had resided with Statler in his home in Altoona, Pa., where she had performed the services of housekeeper for several weeks.

Shortly after she took up residence, Statler was arrested and charged with statutory rape and contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

Investigators learned that Statler and Miss Ferry had fled to Cleveland and lived together for about two weeks before her slaying.

Sex Maniac Hunted in Coed Slaying

OMAHA, Neb. (UP)—A coed beauty queen's body, ripped by four bullets, was found on the University of Omaha campus early Saturday and police searched for a sadistic sex killer.

The body of pretty brunette Carolyn Marie Nevins, a 20-year-old senior honor student, was found behind a clump of bushes amid evidence of a struggle.

She was fully-clothed but her garments were disarranged. Her shoes were found 40 feet away, side by side and later her panties discovered buried in snow some 30 feet distant.

Police branded the killer "sadistic" and said sex appeared to be the motive. A preliminary autopsy report, however, said she was not raped.

Investigators, working feverishly on the case, theorized that she was probably killed in an auto and her body dumped later on the campus.

CAPITAL CAPERS

WASHINGTON — We don't know who is the most nervous these days, Bulganin, Krushchev, or Georgel Malenkov, but the boys must certainly be eyeing each other somewhat fishily. In the revolving door which is the Kremlin, pudgy Georgel appears to be forcing his way back into the position from which he was only recently ousted.

According to accepted political practices over there, the top men usually take swift action against any swift-rising subordinate. On the other hand, they can never be sure he isn't taking swift action against them. All of which must make for a nice easy give-and-take conversation when the boys get together. After all, they must all remember that Malenkov eliminated Beria precisely two days before Beria planned to eliminate Malenkov. Chummy, eh what?

Speaking of dictators, purges and the like, Juan Peron may have made some political miscalculations down in Argentina, but he did make one brilliantly correct prediction. After he had been ousted, he was asked what he thought of the government of Gen. Lonardi which had succeeded him. Replied Peron: "Lonardi reminds me of the man who jumped from the roof of an 18-story building and as he passed the fourth floor yelled: 'I'm doing fine.'" Several days later those who decide such things in Argentina decided Lonardi wouldn't do and he went out quite suddenly. He's now on his way to the U.S. for what may or may not be euphemistically called "medical reasons."

Quiz 2 Mystery Suspects in Florida Hatchet Killings

MELBOURNE, Fla. (UP)—Police questioned two mystery suspects Saturday night in the hatchet murders of a respected laundryman's red-haired wife and their 7-year-old daughter and predicted a solution may be near. Police Chief John Thomas confirmed that two more persons were being grilled in the brutal slayings, but would not identify them.

"I don't know what this will amount to, maybe only a hill of beans," Thomas said.

But he was confident of investigators' progress in the case and said a solution "isn't too far off, although I don't expect we'll wrap it up tonight or tomorrow."

The bereaved laundry operator, Philip van Eeghen, was questioned for more than 11 hours Friday, but no charges had been placed against him. Van Eeghen is a former Canadian soldier and son of a late oil company executive.

The bodies of his wife, Patricia, 30, and 7-year-old daughter, Phyllis, were found viciously slashed in a car parked across the street from a funeral parlor and police believed they were slain with a hatchet.

Van Eeghen was still being held in custody after the long questioning session. Thomas said he was transferred to the Brevard County jail at Titusville at

Number of Large Farms Doubled

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Census Bureau reported today that the number of farms of 1,000 acres or more has more than doubled in the past 30 years.

It said that in 1925 there were 63,328 farms more than 1,000 acres in size. On the basis of the 1954 census, it said, the number has grown to 130,463.

Report Panama Chief Slain in Dope Plot

FORT WORTH, Texas (UP)—The Fort Worth Star-Telegram said Saturday night in a copy-righted story that the late Leroy (Tigey) Eggleston, notorious Fort Worth gangster, might have been the trigger man who assassinated President Jose A. Remon Cantera of Panama with machinegun fire last January.

Star-Telegram reporter Ira Cain said that a private investigator, Col. Gaspar Bilo Mendez, says there is enough evidence "to give credence to the accusation that Eggleston manned one of the machineguns that blasted President Remon to death."

A key clue is a German burp gun (sub-machine gun) found in a wrecked and abandoned automobile near Hurst, a Fort Worth suburb, last August.

The Star-Telegram story says that Mendez believes Remon was slain because he cracked down on the narcotics traffic and that Eggleston was slain because he failed to divide part of the payoff for slaying the Panamanian president.

Eggleston's body was found Aug. 24, thrown into an abandoned well near Saginaw, Texas, in this vicinity. He had been slain by a shotgun.

Some time before, Eggleston and Cecil Green, a gangland companion, had been charged with murder in what officers called a killing - for - pay of wealthy Fort Worth Oilman William P. Clark. Green was killed shortly thereafter. Clark's estranged wife recently was found innocent on charges of hiring Green, Eggleston and Harry Huggins to slay her husband. Huggins is in jail.

The slayers of Green and Eggleston have not been found.

Mendez added later the Star-Telegram said, that his information was that the payoff of $50,000 was made in Los Angeles.

The man who paid off gave Eggleston his cut of $20,000 and that Mendez believes Remon was forced to flee town by Los Angeles officers, gave Eggleston the $15,000 cut due another gangster.

The newspaper further quoted Mendez as saying that Eggleston gambled away his $20,000, plus the $15,000 cut of his partner, and that the loss of the money

CAA Chief Resigns at Weeks' Request

WASHINGTON (UP)—Frederick B. Lee resigned Saturday as Civil Aeronautics Administrator. He said he was asked to quit by Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks because of a "lack of satisfactory working relations" with Weeks' office.

Berserk, Kills His Mother, Wife, Child

BALTIMORE (UP)—Police said Saturday night a 50-year-old Baltimore man ran amuck with a gun and an ax, slaying his wife, his six-year-old daughter and his mother, and wounding a policeman.

He ended his own life with a gun Saturday night as his brother-in-law, a policeman, and another officer tried to enter the small tavern and living quarters occupied by the crazed man, Eugene McNeal.

Officers said McNeal went to the home of his brother-in-law Saturday morning about 11 o'clock and told the latter's wife he had "done a horrible thing."

The brother-in-law still was sleeping, and his wife did not disturb him. When he went to McNeal's home with Police Sgt. Joseph A. Heming they were fired upon as they used a flashlight on a window. Heming was struck in the chest.

McNeal then took his own life. Two dolls were nestled close to the dead child.

There were many Christmas presents for the child—unopened—in the room.

GI Gets 5-Year Term for $2.39 Stickup of Cabby

FRANKFURT, Germany (UP)—Priv. Irving H. Goeke, 20, of Milwaukee, Wis., was sentenced to five years in prison here Friday after a general court-martial found him guilty of robbing a taxi driver of $2.39.

Goeke, who was charged with committing the crime in near-by Hanau on Oct. 31, also was sentenced to a dishonorable discharge and forfeiture of all pay and allowances.

President Eisenhower accepted Lee's resignation and appointed Charles J. Lowen Jr., of Denver, to succeed him. Lowen had been deputy CAA administrator. Lee was appointed administrator two and a half years ago by Eisenhower.

Lee, in a letter to the President, said that Weeks had asked him to resign because of a "lack of satisfactory working relations between his office and me."

Lee told the President that Weeks "did not advise me of any particular instance of this nor did he indicate any instance when I failed to administer the CAA in a sound, competent and efficient manner."

Lee told the United Press that published reports that he had been under pressure to quit "probably weren't too far off."

"I don't want to be questioning the President's decision," he said. "I certainly accept it. What's back of it is sort of past history."

Aviation industry sources have said that Undersecretary of Commerce Louis S. Rothschild, who paved the way for Lowen to become deputy CAA administrator, was seeking to have Lee replaced by Lowen. They protested the move to Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams.

Lee told a reporter that he had asked Weeks, without success, for further reasons for his requested resignation.

Chairman Warren Magnuson (D-Wash.) of the Senate Commerce Committee, already has urged a Senate investigation of the pressure to oust Lee. A Commerce Department spokesman said Weeks would have no comment on the resignation.

NEW YORK (UP)—The largest prize in the annals of radio and television giveaway shows — $100,000—went to a 72-year-old woman Saturday night.

Mrs. Ethel Park Richardson, of Los Angeles, won the prize by answering a six-part question about folk songs.

"I'm going to give a tenth of it to him," Mrs. Richardson said, gesturing heavenward, after the fanfare and applause had died down.

Mrs. Richardson was the first contestant to reach the $100,000 end of the trail on the NBC television program, "The Big Surprise."

Two persons have won $64,000 on another television quiz show, CBS' "The $64,000 Question." Until now, that was the largest such prize ever given away.

Mrs. Richardson missed the $100,000 question two weeks ago, but got another chance at it Saturday night.

For the big prize she correctly identified the Erie Canal as the "Highway to the West" built in 1825. She identified the Shenandoah of the folk song as an Indian chief. She named the Wabash River as the one mentioned in a song called "Elanoy."

THE FOURTH part of the question caused Mrs. Richardson to stumble. After identifying the tune of "The Streets of Laredo," she made several false starts in an effort to sing the first verse. She returned to the question later and got it.

For the fifth part she named Laura as the girl of the Colorado Trail with eyes of a morning star and cheeks like a rose. And she sang the verse and chorus of a California gold rush song that has the same tune as "Camptown Races."

"Now I'm scared," she confessed to master of ceremonies Jack Barry after she won the prize.

Barry announced that the $100,000 question was prepared by California's Gov. Goodwin J. Knight.

MARTIN'S MECHANIC

Pioneer Plane Builder Never Took Ride

(Editor's Note: Death of Glenn Martin last week ended the career of the aviation pioneer credited with the first flight in a self-propelled airplane (the Wright Brothers plane was launched with a catapult). His Newport-to-Catalina flight was the "first distance flight" over water. In the following article, Vera Williams interviews the mechanic who built the historic first Martin plane.)

By VERA WILLIAMS

When Glenn Martin was laid to rest Friday in Santa Ana, heading the list of pallbearers was Roy Beall, 70, mechanic who drew the plans for and built Martin's first plane, or more exactly his first eight or nine planes.

And the strange thing is that although Beall used to go up in hot air balloons and take aerial photographs, he never has gone up in a plane with Martin or anybody else. And when he was building planes he didn't even believe in them.

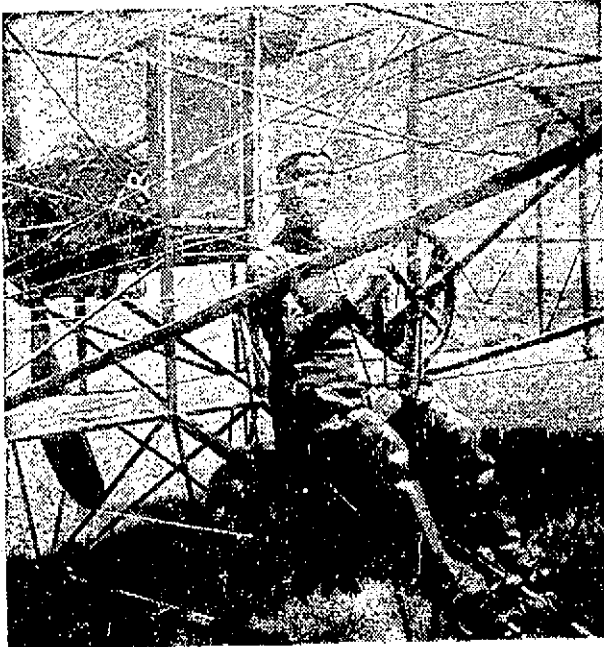

"I figured," he recalls, "like the fellow who told the boy to let go of the tiger before it clawed him up... I thought rich people wouldn't have anything to do with airplanes because they didn't want to get killed, and poor folks wouldn't have anything to do with them because they cost too much."

BEALL, for 18 years a Colorado cowboy, moved to Santa Ana in 1902, returned to Greeley in 1903, came back to Santa Ana in 1904 and has lived there ever since. He remembers when Glenn Martin came to Santa Ana and built the first garage in town.

At the time, Beall was working at a bicycle shop, which also sold Maxwell cars. He was repairing cars and bicycles.

Glenn Martin asked him to go to work for him, so he did. Then one day the two of them went to the Dominguez air meet.

"Glenn asked me to sketch a Curtiss plane there. There were so many people around I couldn't get close. But I did the best I could. We brought the sketch back and started building a plane in Glenn's garage. Of course we changed the plans as we went along. We worked on that plane about a year. We made it out of spruce and we cut the propeller out of a solid original plans—we never did have any other plans. The original design was in ink, we put in the pencil changes we wanted. And we took parts of one plane to build another.

"About that time, Glenn began flying at the mesa of the San Joaquin Rancho over at the south end of Main St. And he flew at Dominguez and Bravoley."

"When we had it done, we dismantled it and took it out the back door to the pasture land over there south of McFadden St. It only got off the ground a few inches. As it bounced, the long spruce arms broke. We got bamboo arms and we wired the thing together."

"Then we got an Ellbridge three-cylinder engine and the airplane got off the ground eight or 10 feet. Then an Ellbridge four-cylinder engine and it got up 50 to 100 feet."

"All of a sudden one day when Glenn was flying around in it, there was a fence in front of him. He got it over the fence, and that's the day we figure he first flew."

"That first successful flight was Aug. 1, 1909."

Flushed with success, Martin then leased the abandoned Southern Methodist Church, 2nd and Main, Santa Ana, and started building his second plane. Others followed.

"It's kinda hard to tell just how many airplanes we did build," says Beall, "probably it was eight or nine. We used the tin never mentioned it again. "Then," he says, "I don't remember the year, maybe it was 1912 or so, Martin moved his airplane plant to Los Angeles. He asked me to go along, but I told him I was sick of airplanes and I'd stay on with automobiles and bicycles."

Martin's garage was taken over by his father, C. Y. Martin, and Beall worked for him some years before starting his own garage.

"I pioneered in airplanes and automobiles and radios," he says. "I worked on the two, four and six-cylinder early day Fords. I worked on the one-cylinder Olds, on the two-cylinder Haynes Apperson and the old Duryea."

He built crystal sets when radio was new, but when they went to AC and got fancy he quit them.

BEALL LIVES ALONE at 601 E. 3rd St., Santa Ana, in a yellow seven-room frame house that he says he "stole" for $1,000 about 1912.

His wife, Geraldine, died in 1951. He has three sons, a daughter, five grandchildren, and will have a great-grandchild next

TV Assailed for Parental Delinquency

LOS ANGELES (UP)—A Los Angeles psychologist charges television is causing parental delinquency.

Reported Mason Rose Saturday:

A breakdown shows that children of pre-school and school ages spend 28 per cent of their recreational time viewing TV.

In the 14-16-year age bracket, the average hours per week comes to 10.8. In the 5-10 age group, the average is 33.8 hours per week.

"THE LITTLE ONES seem to be plunked down in front of the TV screen as though it were a mechanical baby sitter," commented Rose.

"It's not their fault if they see things that baffle or bewilder them."

"It is the fault, rather of 'delinquent parents' and by that I mean parents either lazy, too much immersed in their own activities, or not well enough informed."

ROSE MADE his statements after studies of 4,384 answers in the first statistical report on a TV survey now being conducted throughout the Beverly Hills school system under the auspices of the National Audience Board.

FBI Chief Rejects Bid for Presidency

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Jenner (R-Ind.) said Saturday that FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover has turned down a proposal that he become a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

Jenner said that, acting on a request from an Indiana Republican leader he did not name, he personally sounded out Hoover on whether he would be willing to run. Hoover told him he couldn't do it, Jenner added in an interview.

"He said he didn't want to jeopardize the position he has built up for the FBI by getting into politics," the Indiana Senator reported. Jenner added that Hoover would be "highly acceptable" to many people in Indiana.

Top Demo Sees Tax Cut in '56

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. George (D-GA.) predicted Saturday the Democratic controlled House will move immediately toward a reduction in individual income taxes when Congress reconvenes next month. But he said it may be some time before the Senate gets around to considering the issue.

George, a veteran member of the Senate Finance committee, said in a telephone interview from Vienna, Ga., that he feels sentiment for tax cuts will be so strong among returning legislators that the House ways and means committee will act quickly. That is where all tax bills must originate.

While there have been indications that President Eisenhower might point the way to a future tax cut in his January state of the union message, administration officials generally have indicated they want to hold off on any specific recommendations until there are clearer indications that the budget will be balanced.

GEORGE, WHO has said budget balancing is at hand, indicated that he expects the Democrats to get the jump on the administration in tax cutting. "I am under the impression there will be an immediate move in the House and that action will be taken there rather promptly," George said. He added he thinks the move will have the full approval of House Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas.

Because of the time lag involved in hearings and floor action, George said the Senate may not get around to considering the tax issue for some time. He said this lapse of time will provide more information on whether the budget is going to be balanced.

"I hope we can increase the individual income tax exemption from $600 to at least $700," George said. "That will benefit the low income group most but it will help everybody. Also, I think there should be some adjustment in the rates on middle income brackets."

THE MIDDLE BRACKETS generally are regarded as those ranging from $8,000 up to about $30,000 a year. It has been George's contention that many small businessmen in this bracket have been hard hit and need tax relief.

George has opposed any reduction in overall corporation rates, which now range in maximum of 52 per cent. His proposed $100 increase in personal exemptions has been estimated by treasury officials to cost about 2 1/2 billion dollars in revenue.

Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey has predicted the budget will be balanced this spring, despite previous Budget Bureau estimates of a $1,700,000,000 deficit on June 30, 1956. Humphrey has indicated he may favor a tax cut. He said he expects Eisenhower to speak out on the question in his state of the union message.

quarters as indicating that Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.) may not be able to count on all the support his friends thought would be behind the Californian if he seeks the party nomination.

Sen. Mundt (R-SD), another of those who has worked closely with Knowland, has been talking about Hoover as a possible candidate if President Eisenhower doesn't run.

Knowland, the Senate minority leader, has indicated he will get in the race for the nomination if Eisenhower doesn't make known his second term intentions in January. He has said he will support the President if he runs.

The prospective Knowland candidacy apparently would be aimed at gathering midwestern support and linking it with California backing to present a formidable voting strength at the San Francisco convention next August.

BUT THE PROSPECT that Knowland will get in the race thus far seems to have provoked no great surge of sentiment for him, at least from the middle-western area.

Private reports to Republican leaders have indicated the party is in trouble in that section because of falling farm prices. Much of the farm complaint has been directed toward the flexible price support program of the Eisenhower administration.

Knowland told the National Association of Manufacturers in New York Friday night that "we will not solve our agricultural problems by re-enacting the 90 per cent fixed parity legislation for basic crops under which more than seven billion dollars of agricultural products were accumulated."

Parity is a price said by law to offer farmers a fair return for their crops in terms of things they buy.

Knowland said the support program "should give encouragement to quality production of basic and nonbasic crops, rather than quantity alone."

He called also for a review of the administration's foreign aid programs by which he said "taxes upon the American farmer, businessman and worker go to help finance similar crops or products at lower production costs across our borders..."

The SPINAL COLUMN

By DR. J. C. KEYS
D.C., Ph.C.

We all know what happens when an electric power station, generating and transmitting power through lines to various receivers, when one of the receivers blows out, the lines are shorted out and the whole system is of little or no effectiveness, until repairs are made on the faulty receiver.

An example of this was the old style Christmas tree lights. When one light on the string went out, the whole string went out.

It is almost exactly the same with the human body. The brain generates the power and transmits it down the spinal column, from which it is distributed to the various parts of the body, by means of the nervous system.

HEALTH DECREASED

When one part of the body is afflicted with sickness or disease, the effectiveness of the entire human system is decreased seriously, until the afflicted area, whether a gland, muscle or organ, is restored to health.

Chiropractors, such as Dr. J. C. Keys, have proven that the spine is the key to the nervous system and therefore to good health. The spine must be in adjustment, else nerves will be limited in function, leading to lowered resistance and impaired health in one of its many forms.

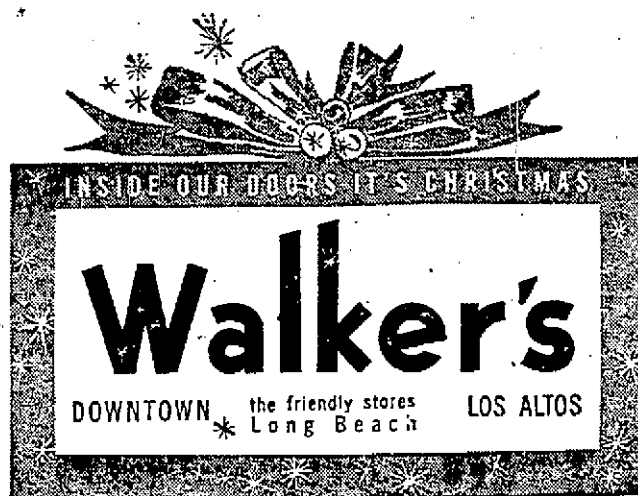

TIME TELLS

In your daily life, you are subject to falls and accidents, many apparently minor at the time, yet they may strain the spine and slip a vertebra or disc out of normal position so that nerves are interfered with. In time your health is undermined and you are at a loss to know why.

The wise thing to do is to consult Dr. J. C. Keys, and to thus take advantage of his 30 years' of successfully treating the sick and ailing of this area.

When trouble is found, have the cause corrected so that good health and a more abundant life may be yours.

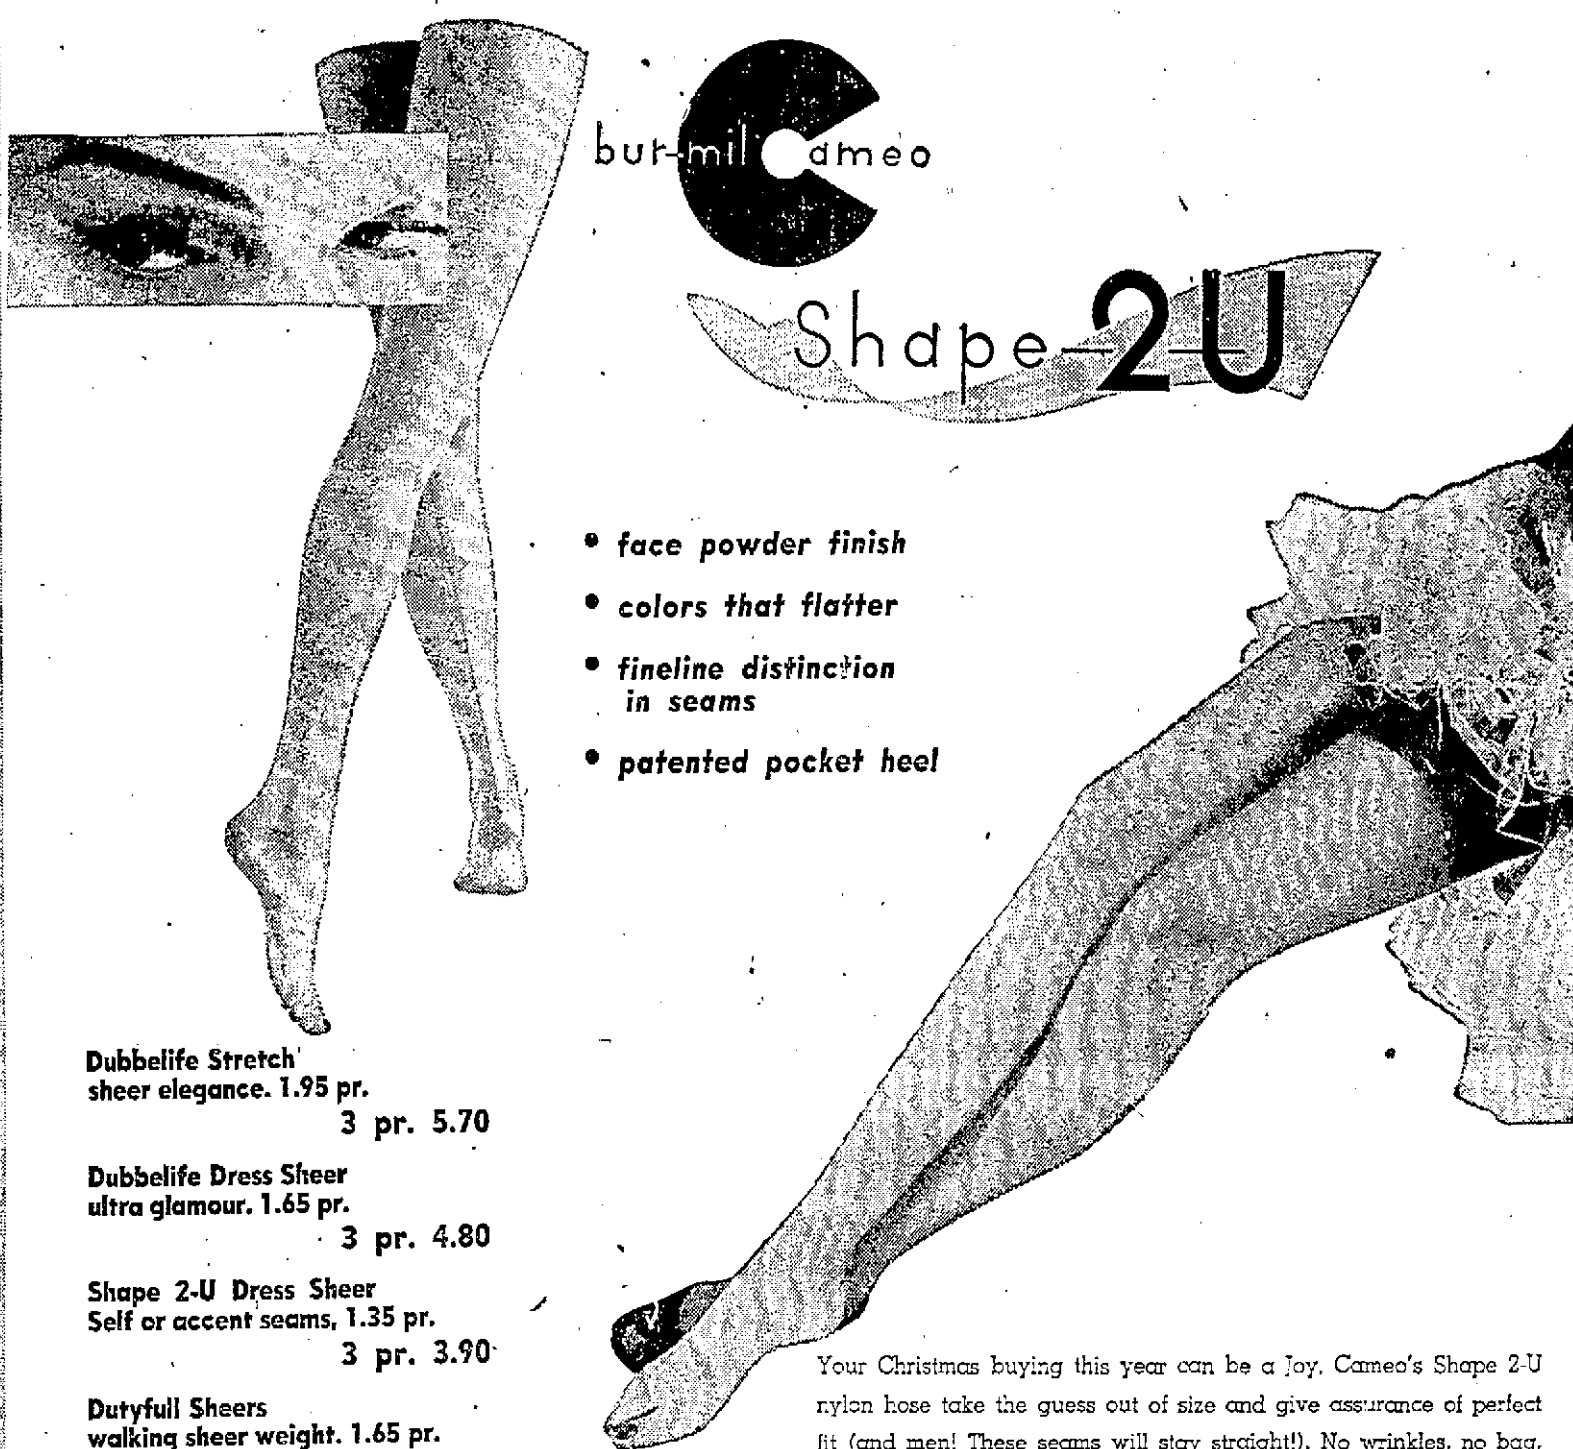

For further information, contact Dr. J. C. Keys, D.C. at 1075 Atlantic, or phone him at HE-6777.

Blast McKay for Opening Game Refuge

WASHINGTON (AP)—The National Wildlife Federation charged Saturday that Interior Secretary Douglas McKay's new policy to regulate oil leasing and mineral exploration on national wildlife refuges "is the nearest thing to an outright give-away yet perpetrated."

McKay last week announced that the new policy was to protect wild life. He said extra precaution would be taken in areas where it was necessary to protect nearly extinct species such as the whooping crane. He also said it would be necessary for prospectors to get approval of the U. S. Fish and Wild Life Service in some cases.

Ernest Swift, executive director of the federation and until a few months ago assistant director of the Fish and Wild Life Service, said McKay's new policy and regulations protect only "unique natural areas" and near-extinct species.

IN ADDITION to Okfenokee Swamp in Georgia and the Texas wintering grounds of the whooping cranes, Swift said, McKay's regulations listed only eight other areas.

Swift said the regulations open the way for constant pressures for mineral development.

Brewing Dean Dies

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Joseph Goldie, 81, retired president of Rainier Brewing Co., and dean of California brewers, died in a hospital here Saturday.

UNLESS HELP COMES

1,500 Families Face Bleak Christmastide

More than 1,500 families in this area will have very little Christmas unless money, canned food, usable clothing and good toys pour into the Christmas Cheer Clearinghouse at 854 E. 7th St. from now until Dec. 23.

Dr. Godfrey Parnell, chairman of the Christmas Cheer drive, said Saturday that contributions so far will take care of approximately 300 of the needy families in this area.

The rock strike, increased population and the changing economic conditions are major factors which tend to make this the year of greatest need since the Cheer program started.

Trained workers from Salvation Army, Volunteers of America, Catholic Welfare, Bureau of Public Assistance, Juvenile Bureau and other agencies are in the field daily surveying the needs. The outlook at this point is not a happy one.

"WE ALSO NEED volunteer workers to help us in the clearinghouse and the warehouse from now until Dec. 23," Dr. Parnell said. "We will remain open at 854 E. 7th St. from 8:30 a.m. until 9 p.m. daily beginning Dec. 12. Any group or individual interested in helping should call HE 2-1434."

Veterans of WW I Mark Anniversary

Long Beach Barracks 154, Veterans of World War I, will celebrate its first anniversary with a ham dinner, dance and entertainment at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday in the banquet room of Veterans Memorial Bldg., Broadway and Cedar Ave. Comdr. Jim Butler and Auxiliary President Edna Wendt will preside. All veterans of World War I and their wives are invited.

Japan-Korea Tension High, Fear Clash

TOKYO (AP)—A bitter cold war between the Republic of Korea and Japan is threatening to break out into violence that would be embarrassing to the United States.

U. S. entry into the dispute as a mediator appeared inevitable. The dispute centers on a 60-mile-wide buffer zone thrown around both South and Communist North Korea by President Syngman Rhee Jan. 18, 1952. Within this maritime domain, the Republic of Korea refuses at gunpoint to allow Japanese fishing boats to operate.

It was the same zone marked off by Gen. Douglas MacArthur during the Japanese occupation. Japanese fishing boats were ordered not to go into the zone. During the Korean War, the United States, in 1952, drew approximately the same line around Korea as a defense zone. Rhee refers to American actions as precedents for his decision.

Seizure of Japanese boats and crewmen by ROK coast guard ships has continued with varying intensity since 1947.

THE ROK JOINT chiefs of staff threatened Nov. 17 to shoot and sink Japanese vessels violating the line. This has brought the two nations into heated verbal exchanges.

It is the culmination of always bad ROK-Japan relations that slid even farther downhill this summer. The Korean government threw up trade restrictions and hurled angry charges that Japan was betraying the West by her negotiations with Communist nations.

Observers believe the Japanese government, which remained calm on the festering fishery problem, pounced on the threat to disturb Far Eastern peace to bring its case to the attention of the world.

The possibility of a midge sea battle remains a constant possibility. Japanese boats are still fishing in the "forbidden" area because, according to the Japanese foreign office, "the fishermen must eat."

Both nations last week officially welcomed U. S. mediation but did not request it formally.

U.N. Council Gets Soviet Ultimatum

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Russia handed the Security Council an all-or-nothing ultimatum Saturday on the proposed admission of 18 countries to the U. N. The Russians also threatened to block the whole scheme, with a veto if the council did not vote on new members according to procedure dictated by Moscow.

Amazed delegates, confronted with unyielding stands by the Soviet Union, assailed "suspicious Russians." The bitter procedural wrangle at two extraordinary Saturday sessions was not settled as the delegates adjourned at 5:43 p.m. The council will meet again next Tuesday.

Arkady A. Sobolev, Soviet delegate, unleashed his twin threats during five hours of debate. First, he said the Russians were willing to accept all 18 applicants "without exception," and would take no other plan. This had been expected but his notice was the formal warning.

Next, he opposed a plan by Sir Leslie Munro, New Zealand, and Cyro De Freitas Valle, of Brazil, for the voting procedure. They wanted to have the council vote separately on each country in order of application and then vote as a whole on all of those passing the voting by each country.

This would give the Soviet Union or any other country able to use a veto the chance to cast a final veto on the whole package if one of the countries it favored was cancelled out in the individual voting.

Sobolev said he would vote against priority for this plan and against the plan itself. This would veto the 18 in one ballot. Nationalist China, which has threatened outside the council to veto Outer Mongolia if necessary, stood aside for the most part as the Russians slugged it out with others on procedure. The Russians have said a veto of Outer Mongolia would kill the deal.

Russ Agents Start India Trade Talks

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Soviet Russia's top-ranking visitors continued to woo India with sugar-coated speeches Saturday, but their aides got down to hard economic bargaining.

Premier Nikolai A. Bulganin and Communist Party Chief Nikita S. Khrushchev would up a two-day visit to the Himalayan state of Kashmir, which is in dispute between India and Pakistan.

In their speeches, the visitors have asserted that Kashmir unquestionably belongs to India. They also have denounced Great Britain for separating the Indian sub-continent so as to separate Muslim Pakistan from Hindu India.

Reaction in Pakistan was angry. A Foreign Office spokesman in Karachi, the capital, said the mere fact of the visit to the disputed area was "not friendly"—even aside from the pro-Indian speeches.

IN NEW DELHI, three members of the big Soviet delegation started brass-tacks business talks with the key Indian officials.

Andrei A. Gromyko, deputy foreign minister; Pavelov Lumykin, deputy minister of foreign trade, and V. B. Khechikov, deputy minister for the steel industry, were the Soviet negotiators.

They discussed a proposed deal for 700,000 tons of Russian steel, the construction of a big steel plant, the setting up of Indian plants for the separation of manganese and chrome ore, and aid by Soviet experts in Indian diamond mining.

Purged Red Boss of French Auto Workers Suicide

PARIS (AP)—The death of a recently purged Communist automobile workers' union boss was listed as suicide Saturday by the French police.

A relative found the body of Marcel Lacaze, 42, in bed in his small apartment near the Montparnasse section of Paris. The jets of a gas stove had been turned on.

Lacaze was fired a few days earlier from his post as secretary of the big Renault auto-plant branch of the Communist-led General Confederation of Labor (CGT).

Lacaze fell from grace for having failed to block the American-type "New Deal" labor contract the management of the nationalized 40,000-worker auto plant concluded with the free labor unions.

An appeal for volunteers in the Muscular Dystrophy Fund campaign was issued Saturday.

According to Mrs. Robert G. Ryerson, executive secretary for Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America in this area, "Too many people are following the old Navy admonition that smart people don't volunteer for anything."

"This is an opportunity for people to give a bit of themselves during this Christmas season to lessen the suffering of helpless children."

Mrs. Ryerson asks volunteers to call the regional chairman and offer to help. Their names and telephone numbers are:

U.S. Prepares TV Film for Use Abroad

WASHINGTON (AP)—A televised "living picture of the United States" is being prepared for worldwide distribution by the U. S. Information Agency.

The first in a series of half-hour filmed television shows will be ready in January, the agency announced Saturday.

Back of the program is the belief that by 1956 the potential foreign television audience will total 40 million. More than 100 TV stations already are operating abroad.

"The purpose of this new program," said Acting Director Abbott Washburn, "is to present a living picture of the United States, its people, and its customs, together with a description of our policies—both national and international—as part of the world scene."

The new program will be available in English and in French, German, Italian, Spanish, Portuguese, Arabic and Japanese. Joseph Harsch, National Broadcasting Co. commentator, will narrate the English version.

The first of these "Report from America" programs deals with roads and traffic in the United States. The second has to do with a newspaper editor's life in a small U. S. town.

Other programs will cover student life, farm families, teenagers, suburban living, presidential nominating conventions, oil and cattle in the southwest, racial integration, water conservation, city life, and the American Indian.

The programs are being produced in cooperation with the British Broadcasting Corp. They are being filmed by NBC.

MIT to Use 'Electronic Brain' Giant

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI)—A new giant "electronic brain," which can perform 40,000 additions of 10-digit numbers in one second, will be installed at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, it was announced today.

The computer, first of a new high-speed type developed by International Business Machines Corp., for education and basic research, will be the principal tool in a new MIT electronic data processing center. It will be installed early in 1957 in the Karl Compton Memorial Laboratories, which MIT is now building here at a cost of $4 million.

AVAILABILITY of the 704, as it is known officially, was announced jointly today by Dr. James R. Killian Jr., MIT president, and Thomas J. Watson Jr., IBM president.

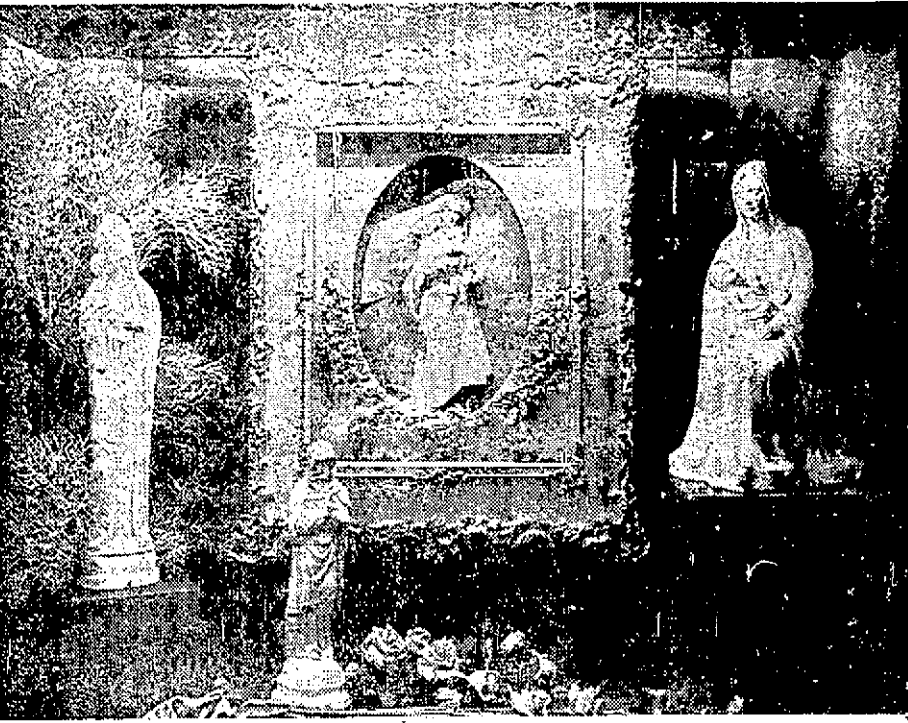

Watson said the "brain" was designed for solving mathematical problems in engineering, science, social science and management studies. Its speed is so great, he said, it can perform 40,000 additions or subtractions or 5,000 multiplications or division of 10-digit numbers in one second.

Watson also disclosed IBM expects to produce next year some 80 computers of the 704 type, and its commercial version, the 705.

OTHER COLLEGES and universities in New England have been invited to share in the use of the machine for research and education of students in computing techniques, Killian said. He added that an advisory committee, made up of representatives of New England colleges participating in the program, will be formed to advise on the priorities for problems to be submitted to the machine and the suitability of programs.

42-Day-Snowfall 'Marathon' Ends

INTERNATIONAL FALLS, Minn. (AP)—Residents at this Canadian border community stared out of their frosted windows in disbelief Saturday. For the second straight day no snow was falling.

The city Friday reached the end of a marathon 42 consecutive days of snowfall. During that period, the snowfall totaled more than 35 inches.

Commissioner Brookhaven National Laboratory, will be director of the Compton computation center. He is a native of Shreveport, La., and currently resides in Winchester.

Treasures Displayed in Santa Ana Exhibit

By BOB GEIVET

SANTA ANA — Treasures to be seen for the first time here will feature the opening today of the seventh annual Madonna Festival at Charles W. Bowers Memorial Museum. More than 300 art pieces trace the history of religion over the centuries.

Grouped in artistically arranged displays, the prized collections of dozens of Californians are in place; they are expressions of the Christ and the Virgin Mother as interpreted by 26 nationalities in 22 mediums. Priceless pieces in rare porcelains, marbles and wax are there; bas-relief in tile, wood, paintings, paintings on leather, 18th century Bique, needlepoint, leaded glass, crystal, rare Belleek, bronze, ivory, solid silver, parchments on which delicate and finely-woven cloth is superimposed are among a few.

OF THE 300 pieces in what is perhaps the most outstanding collection ever shown by Mrs. P. E. Coulter, the curator, about one-third are modern-day creations; the rest date to 16th, 17th and 18th centuries. With a program at 3 p.m., the Madonna Festival will open officially, although doors of the museum at 20th and Main Sts. open at 1 p.m. closing at 4 p.m. Daily the exhibit will be on from 10 a.m. until 4:30 p.m., and on Thursday evenings from 7 until 9 o'clock. It continues through Jan. 10.

Collectors from as far north as San Francisco and Oakland, and from Carmel, Santa Cruz, Santa Barbara, Santa Monica, Beverly Hills and many other Southland cities lent their pieces for display.

MOST OF THEM, SOME RUSSIAN icons and other pieces owned by Anthony Pietinck of Santa Ana are believed to date prior to the 16th century.

A Long Beach woman, Mrs. Anita Zambrano, lent what is perhaps the most valuable single piece on display; it is a 17th century Spanish-Moroccan madonna, gold-encrusted and elaborately and delicately colored. And Mrs. Vinita Miller of Santa Ana is displaying her Belleek madonna, an Irish creation said to be one of only four such ever made.

Girl, 14, Dies Too Much, Dies

OLDHAM, England (AP)—Dorothy Butterworth, a chubby 14-year-old, thought people were laughing at her for being fat.

During September she ate nothing but eggs and apples and lost two pounds a week. After four weeks she contracted pneumonia and just "wasted away" in a hospital, Coroner John Watson was told. She died Wednesday.

Watson ruled she died from pneumonia "caused by her poor condition due to not eating."

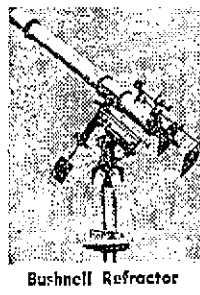

DOMINATING DISPLAY is 17th Century Spanish-Moroccan gold-encrusted Madonna owned by Mrs. Anita Zambrano of Long Beach. Beneath it is Carrara marble treasure owned by Mrs. Carl J. Klatt of Santa Ana. More than 300 priceless pieces will be on display.

Indict Suspect in Stunt Slaying

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—Police said Baker was killed James Oscar Bowerman, 40, who when Bowerman attempted to been indicted for murder in the shoot a pepper box off the victim's "William Tell" slaying of Ray-tin's head during a drinking party.

State Balloting Snags City-Federal Pension

By GEORGE WEEKS

Integration of the state-administered retirement system for city employees with the federal Old Age and Survivors Insurance program may be delayed for many months as a result of an adverse vote by state employees.

This opinion was expressed Saturday by Director of Finance Samuel M. Roberts. He said he is seeking further information from the state retirement board as to the effect of the vote and also as to whether new legislation will be required.

State employees recently voted 43,202 against and 12,859 for integrating their own system with Social Security, according to a report by Walter C. Stutler, deputy secretary of state, who supervised the ballot counting.

For this reason it was considered doubtful that the state board would undertake to set up an integration plan for Long Beach employees only.

added cost both to the city and the employees, officials agreed. Roberts said he is exploring other possibilities under the existing state legislation. If necessary, an attempt will be made to obtain additional legislation, he added.

The integration program is permitted here under a charter amendment adopted in 1954 following the liberalization of the federal Social Security laws. It has been delayed by the state employees' poll, which was preceded by months of intensive campaigning.

red flannel
suit

December 11th, 1955

Dear Southern California:

At this season, it is proper and fitting that we pay special tribute to the man in the red flannel suit. Who is he? Well, all year round he's just the man in the gray flannel suit or the blue overalls or the slacks and sports shirt — busily trying to make a better life for wife and family. But in this magic holiday period, Father becomes as popular as Santa Claus. Mother fixes his favorite desserts, Sis tells him he's handsomer than Gregory Peck, Junior sacrifices the T-V set, and Fido brings him his slippers.

And whether he dons the red flannel suit in fact or not, he feels as jolly and bountiful and welcome as St. Nick. Even though he gives all year — Father knows this is a different kind of giving. It's giving surprises ... it's granting desires ... it's wrapping up love in a shining package.

If you ever doubted that there is a Santa Claus, take a look around you. You'll see him everywhere ... arms filled with parcels, a smile on his face ... hurrying home. He's really the man in the red flannel suit, and we hope he'll be well remembered by those he loves this Christmas.

Sincerely,
Buffums'

Beach Combing

With MALCOLM EPLEY

LONG BEACH has at last gotten a big break in the dispute over its tidelands revenues. Assemblyman Bruce Allen will start his anti-Long Beach presentation before the tidelands interim committee on Friday, the 13th.

That'll be in January, and the meetings will be held in the State Bldg. in Los Angeles.

THE shift to the site in the nearby village was made, perhaps, to compensate to Allen for scheduling his testimony take-off on the traditionally unlucky day.

Chairman John McFall, explaining the change, said that it was felt that it might be fairer to Allen's witnesses if they didn't have to testify in a presumably unfriendly atmosphere.

"We'll just move over to a neutral corner for a while," said McFall, a Manteca attorney who has conducted the hearings so far in a spirit of determined fairness to all concerned.

Assemblyman Bill Grant of Long Beach had no comment on the shift to Los Angeles but he was pleased at the choice of Friday, the 13th.

Kidding Allen, he said: "I've heard of people falling flat on their faces on Friday, the 13th. Maybe just a story, but a fellow can hope, can't he?"

THE visiting Assemblymen had dinner together in a second floor suite of the Lafayette Hotel Friday eve after the long, hard day's session.

When the check came they had quite a time figuring up the contribution each should make, the amount of the gratuity and so on. After about five minutes of good-natured negotiations, somebody said:

"And this is the same outfit that has to figure out what should be done with $160,000,000."

ATTENDANCE hasn't been exactly heavy at the tidelands committee hearings held in Long Beach the last couple of months.

There have been no more than 30 or 40 people in the audience at any time, and many of them have been city officials or others directly interested. Considering all that is involved, this seemed a little strange to some observers.

One said to this writer: "Where else but in Long Beach, under such circumstances, would you find so few local people in the audience?"

My answer may have been wrong but here it was: Just about anywhere. There isn't much difference in the people of various American communities. They will tell you they're interested in public affairs, but they're not interested enough to sit in on discussions of the big, weighty matters.

BUT give them something with a little special or unusual flavor to it, even though it's not too important, and you'll find the spectators' section crowded.

For years I covered council meetings in a medium-sized city. That Council of course often discussed and acted on matters of extreme importance to the local citizenry, involving relatively huge sums of money and decisions affecting everybody in town.

Though the Council sometimes urgently invited people to attend its sessions, hardly anybody ever did.

Then there occurred a neighborhood ruckus over a big glassy-eyed dog that had frightened somebody, who proposed that the dog be banished from the city. A hearing was held in the Council chamber to hear from the dog's friends and its enemies.

You couldn't find a square inch of vacant space in the room!

WELL, anyway, if you want to attend any of the Long Beach tidelands hearings from here on out, you'll have to do it in Los Angeles.

The committee plans four days of meetings there—Jan. 13 and 14, and Jan. 27 and 28.

It might come back here next fall, but that's uncertain. It may meet in Sacramento to wind up its work. The present outlook is for a progress report, only, at the March session of the Legislature. In that case, it won't make its final recommendations until the session of the Legislature starting in January, 1957.

Meanwhile, in addition to the legislative issues, there is a lot of complicated legal action pending.

This is beginning to look like something that could drag on forever.

Homemaking Exam's No Cinch, When You're a Hefty 6 Foot, 3

(Editor's Note: What happens when a reporter standing 6 feet 3 inches and weighing 210 pounds takes a homemaking exam? Here's the answer from Reporter Lee Craig.)

By LEE CRAIG

Who will be the All-American Homemaker of Tomorrow?

One thing is sure — it won't be this reporter. During the past week, 765 Long Beach high school girls—and one Independent Press-Telegram reporter—vied with 255,769 graduating girls from other American high schools in aptitude tests for homemaking, with a $100,000 scholarship program established by General Mills awaiting the winners.

Thanks mostly to a height and weight advantage over the Sunday editor, this reporter's score will not be divulged.

The test, men, was a dilly. It was a 50-minute exam consisting of multiple choice and objective questions over which any red-blooded American male, from Ike on down, would fracture himself.

MOST OF THE EXAM concerned itself with an imaginary couple named Ann and Bob, who, during the course of the test, have enough problems to shatter any marriage.

Things got off to a fine start with a beef between Ann and her mother over whether to have a small or large wedding.

Of the four choices, the approved answer obviously is this: "Ann should point out to her mother why she wants a small wedding and try to reach a compromise."

To accomplish this diplomatic task without bloodshed would tax John Foster Dulles. The probable result would be to fix it so nobody wins and everybody's unhappy.

Any man would know that the best solution is for the couple to elope, which would at least make Bob happy. He'd have the satisfaction—however brief—of showing his mother-in-law who's boss.

NEXT TO BE CONSIDERED is Bob's $5,000 salary, and how it is to be apportioned percentagewise to cover the new family's expenses.

The only way we could come up with a solution that totalled less than 150 per cent was to leave out food, which might not be a bad idea, anyway. Brides are notoriously bad cooks.

This is only the beginning. Here are a few of the other problems on which this unhappy couple run to you for advice:

How Ann should comport herself at a meeting with Bob's prospective boss, how to arrange their living room furniture, how to wash walls before redecorating their living room, how to cope with neighbors who have more money; whether to open charge accounts, what to say when a neighbor asks an opinion on a hideous new sofa, what to remember when buying meat, how to choose draperies and room colors and many more.

About now is the time to go back and revise that budget. These kids need a psychiatrist, if it isn't already too late.

HOWEVER, SUCH household problems seem trifling when you come to the section of the exam where Ann and Bob become parents.

This brings up a new set of complications.

How to handle a temper tantrum, what to tell a child about where babies come from, how to do if the child stutters, how to bathe a baby... the list goes on and on.

Amazingly, Ann and Bob don't wind up hovering over a gas jet. And if, as it appears, today's high school cuties are learning in advance the answer to tomorrow's problems, the men of the nation have only one worry—how to retain the pants in the family.

Back to school, men.

THE ACTION was in line with a demand for local representation on the float voiced recently at City Council meetings and expressed in numerous letters to the editors of the Independent and Press-Telegram.

Judy is strictly a local product. She was born in Long Beach, attended Horace Mann Elementary School, Jefferson Junior High, Wilson High and is now a freshman at Long Beach State College.

She will share the scented throne with Hillevi Rombin, Miss Universe, and Carlene King Johnson, Miss USA.

FURTHERMORE, the official announcement concedes, "It is planned that the Long Beach girl winning the title of Miss Welcome to Long Beach will appear annually on the Long Beach float, along with the winner of the title Miss Universe and the winner of the title Miss USA."

Pretty Judy Will Grace City's Float

Critics of the Long Beach policy of allowing only the world's most beautiful women to grace the city's float in the Pasadena Tournament of Roses won a victory Saturday.

An announcement from Miss Universe Beauty Pageant headquarters revealed that beautiful Judy Ware, Miss Welcome to Long Beach, would join the reigning Miss Universe and Miss United States of America in floating down Colorado Ave. in a mobile bower of posies.

THE ACTION was in line with a demand for local representation on the float voiced recently at City Council meetings and expressed in numerous letters to the editors of the Independent and Press-Telegram.

Judges Back Jury System Against Raps

By BOB SWANSON

Planting of hidden microphones on unsuspecting jurors in Wichita, Kans., by a university study group has touched off comment from New York to Long Beach on the country's jury system.

A University of Chicago research team concealed the microphones and recorders in the jury rooms with the consent of judges and attorneys for both sides. Object: find out how to improve the jury system—which some experts think needs to be changed.

Although the system has strong critics, it has strong defenders. Among those who commented last week were Municipal Judge Frank C. Charvat and Superior Court Judge Joe Rayercraft, both in Long Beach, and Court of Appeals Judge Harold R. Medina in New York.

Judge Charvat said:

"The jury system is as old as any of our present institutions. It has been subjected to criticism from time to time but an alternative has never been proposed that has found very wide acceptance."

"I am aware of no alternative and it is likely that none will ever be found that would be acceptable."

"The composite judgment of 12 jurors can as a general rule be relied upon more than that of a single individual," said Judge Charvat.

JUDGE RAYERCRAFT also defends the jury system, but said it needs to be modernized in some instances.

"Although the modern jury system as practiced in Long Beach still has several imperfections, it is much improved over the system of a hundred years ago and it is still a basic right which free men must continue to enjoy."

Judge Rayercraft said one weakness is that the judge's instructions cannot be taken into the jury room in civil cases.

And, while he is opposed to anything like a professional jury, Judge Rayercraft says he favors a "well trained and educated jury panel." Two jurors who recently completed their service told the judge they wished they could have sat in on a number of trials before going on the panel.

Principally, said Judge Rayercraft, "we need people of common sense willing to apply their common experience and knowledge in determining what is true or false."

IN NEW YORK, Judge Medina said the jury system "has not been a perfect instrumentality for justice, but no more so is the administration of the government of the country."

The solution, he said, is improved techniques in selecting jury panels and bettering methods of training and instructing jurors.

One New York state supreme court judge commented: "There's nothing wrong with the jury system that a better attitude by our citizens about jury service wouldn't cure up instantly. You don't need concealed microphones and tape recorders to figure that one out."

15 Key Trade Groups Await Bigger Boom

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fifteen key industry groups Saturday forecast rising business next year, almost unanimously. If their guesses are good, 1956 will be easily the biggest sales and production year in history.

Officials of national trade associations, covering manufacturing, building, food, trade and transport, presented their findings at a symposium arranged by United States Chamber of Commerce.

Most foresaw a rising price trend. All forecast high-level employment. Some expected lower profits because of rising wage and other costs.

Summing up their reports, Emerson P. Schmidt, the chamber's director of economic research, offered his own opinion that the industry forecasts of auto production and home building were "a little too optimistic." He concluded:

"Next year may very well be the best year for total economic activity."

"BUT WE now have an economy operating at very nearly full capacity. The rate of growth in 1956 can not be as great as in 1955."

New car dealers may not sell as many cars next year as the industry is producing this year, according to James F. Cousins, comptroller of the National Automobile Dealers Association (NADA). Output this year is estimated at nearly eight million, and Cousins figured there may be a 5 per cent decline next year.

Sales may be between 7½ and 8 million, Cousins said, but: "If we use sound credit and advertising policies, which the NADA is trying to encourage, we don't believe we can dispose of as many cars in 1956 as this year."

Schmidt foresaw lower auto sales and housing starts largely because, he said, both industries have been buoyed on a wave of credit expansion "which can not be maintained."

HE MET some disagreement from the National Association of Home Builders represented by John M. Dickerman, executive director. Dickerman forecast 1,200,000 to 1,250,000 housing starts, whereas Schmidt foresaw about 1,100,000. This year's total will be about 1,300,000.

Several of the industry reports supported Schmidt's view that the consumer will meet slightly higher prices—"perhaps one or two percentage points at the most," the chamber economist predicted.

Schmidt expressed assurance that "prices will not skyrocket," but pointed to shortages of metals, building materials, and in some areas, skilled labor. He said:

"It would be surprising, indeed, if these scarcities did not reflect themselves in higher prices."

Ike Asks Early Mailing of Yule Parcels, Cards

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower Saturday appealed to Americans to mail their Christmas packages and greeting cards early.

In a special message, he said this year's Christmas mail will be "the heaviest in the history of the post office."

TAX REDUCTION

In Austria Divorce Can Cut Expense

VIENNA (AP) — More than 40,000 Viennese men and women are living as unwedded mates in "wild marriages" to escape heavy taxes, city authorities said Saturday.

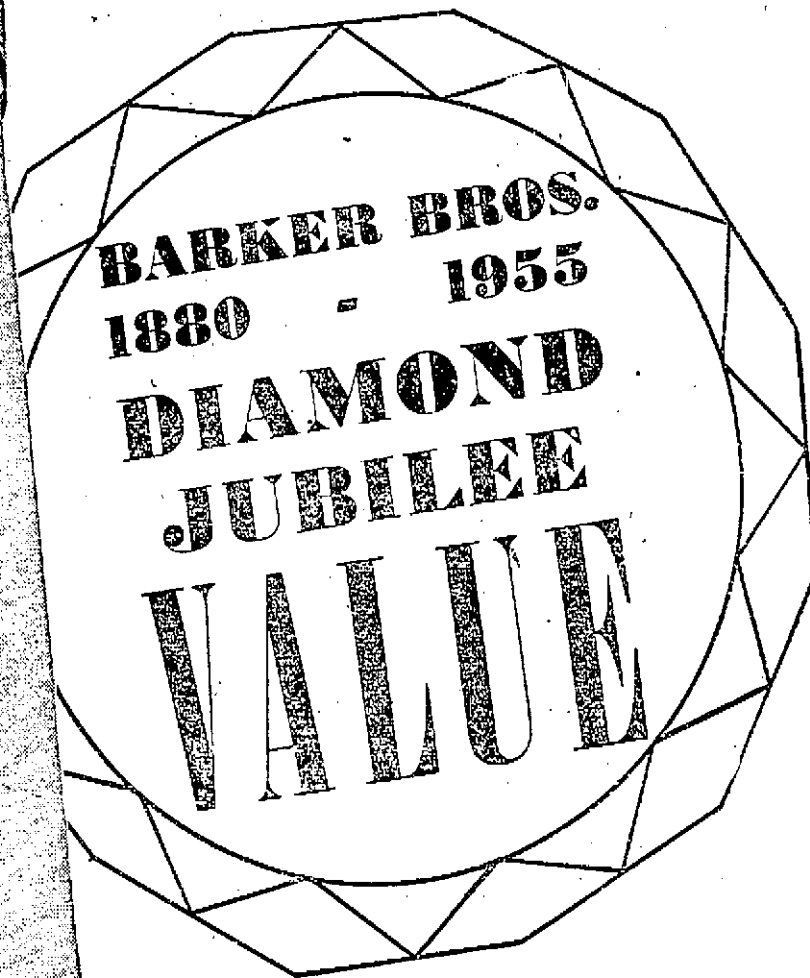

The so-called wild marriages, or "life-companionships," are legal, and so desirable financially that some married couples get divorced and continue their union as life companions.

The relationships are non-church and unlicensed, but officially recognized. They have brought such loud complaints from the clergy, and couples who want to remain married but claim they are overtaxed, that the government is considering a reduction in family taxes.

If a Viennese widow remarries, she loses her government pension and free rent. On the other hand, if she enters a so-called wild marriage she can keep the pension, since officially she is not married.

Austrian taxes run very high for a married couple when the husband and wife have separate incomes and one of them owns a business. But a man and woman can live together as life companions, keep their jobs and business, and still pay the lower tax rate as legal bachelor and spinster.

Ex-Port Bank Teller Cited as Navy Hero

SAN DIEGO (UP)—A former San Pedro bank teller, now a chief yeoman at the Naval Training Center, Saturday received a letter of commendation from the center's Naval Administration Command for exemplary action at the time of the sinking of a 35-foot motor launch off the Coronado Islands, Nov. 11.

The letter said Harry F. Bonner broke out life jackets, maintained good order, and rendered assistance to those in distress when the motor launch Dee Jay sank. Ten passengers and two crewmen aboard the Dee Jay were rescued by another launch. Bonner was one of the passengers.

Prior to entering the Navy 12 years ago, Bonner was a teller at the Security-First National Bank in San Pedro. His daughter, Carol Jean Bonner, lives in Los Angeles.

Waitress Dares L.A. Bandit, Gets Bullet in Thigh

LOS ANGELES (UP)—A waitress who said, "Go ahead and shoot" was shot Saturday by a two-gun bandit who robbed a tavern cash register of $370. Thelma Foster, 40, hurled the challenge after two men entered the cafe and told the bartender and five customers:

"This is a stickup. Line up against the wall."

Miss Foster started walking toward the rear of the room and made her comment as one of the gunmen ordered her to stop. She was shot in the thigh.

He was taken to Seaside Hospital. His companion in the auto, Tommie H. Hollingsworth (left), 30, of the USS Jarvis, suffered a head gash. (Staff Photo)

Postal Crew Fetes Arnold, Now Retired

Cecil D. Arnold, who began service 41 years ago in the Long Beach post office when a handful of mail carriers could cover the entire city, was honored Saturday night by fellow employees at a party marking his retirement.

Arnold is believed to be the oldest postal employee here in point of service. He ended duty Friday as superintendent of the post office's East Long Beach branch.

Two Southland Gas Firms to Build Pipeline

LOS ANGELES (UP)—An amended application for more natural gas in California was on file Saturday with the State Public Utilities Commission.

The Southern California Gas Co. and the Southern Counties Gas Co. want to construct a 236-mile pipeline from Topock, Ariz., on the Colorado River to Newhall, Calif.

Gas delivered at Newhall would come into the Los Angeles metropolitan area in a 41-mile pipe to Alhambra which is not part of this application. Lines and auxiliary facilities will cost as estimated $30,750,000.

Vandals Damage Car With Sledge

Richard Steele reported to police that the windshield of his car had been broken, the top ripped and the right front fender dented by vandals using a sledge hammer while it was parked in front of his home at 110 Via Di Roma Wk., in the Naples area, Friday night.

Police found a 12-pound sledge hammer with a 30-inch handle lying on the ground near the vehicle.

The car had been driven only 14 miles, Steele said.

VORONEZH, USSR (UP)—Plans were announced Saturday to erect a 10-foot bronze statue of Czar Peter the Great in this river port where he founded the Russian navy more than 200 years ago. It is believed the statue will be the first memorial of a Czar put up in Russia since the 1917 revolution.

Truck Kills Young Wife, Hint Suicide

A 32-year-old Paramount woman was killed Saturday when she apparently threw herself under the wheel of a truck.

California Highway Patrol investigators identified the woman as Mrs. Dorothy Peasley, 13618 Downey Ave. They said she was narrowly missed by three other cars as she darted through the busy intersection of Downey Ave. and Quimby St., Paramount.

The truck driver, Charles Jennings, 23, of 8101 1st St., Paramount, was treated in Rio Hondo Memorial Hospital for shock. Jennings said he purchased the truck only several hours before the incident.

OFFICERS SAID Mrs. Peasley made attempts to kill herself in her home shortly before the accident.

They reported she set fire to her home, took an overdose of aspirin, and slashed her wrists and throat.

A friend of Mrs. Peasley's, Marvin Conrad, 23, who lived at the same address, was booked on a drunk charge. Officers said the pair had been drinking together before Mrs. Peasley was killed.

Italy Unearths Cultural Treasures of 100-Centuries-Old Civilization

By ANDREW NAHAS

PAESTUM, Italy (AP)—A treasure trove of antiquities, possibly spanning 100 centuries, is being uncovered here by Italian archeologists.

On a grassy meadow a mile from the Gulf of Salerno, a panorama of history is unfolding that ranges from Roman times back to the Greek culture of 2,500 years ago and perhaps as far as prehistoric times. Flint weapons, believed to have been brought into Europe 10,000 years ago by invaders from the East, have been found in a necropolis—an ancient cemetery uncovered by an American bulldozer crew building an air field during World War II.

Excavators have been at work off and on since then. Prof. P. Claudio Sestieri, 40-year-old superintendent of the antiquities department of Salerno and Potenza, tells about the most important recent find:

"It was a temple buried in the ground. It was partly hewn into rock at ground level. The temple was dedicated to Hera, the Greek goddess of marriage and fertility.

"Its gable-shaped roof was covered with tiles, and it had no openings. We went through the roof to have a look inside and found eight beautiful vases containing honey, which was in a perfect state of preservation."

The bodies, says Prof. Sestieri, were buried in "a curled-up position," in some 200 tombs, with flint daggers and arrows.

"Close by," he went on, "was a marvellously preserved terra cotta vase on which were painted in black the apotheosis of Hercules ascending to Olympus and, on the opposite side, a ballet of satyrs in the presence of Hermes and Dionysus."

THREE MAJESTIC Greek temples, patterned after the beautiful Parthenon on Athens' Acropolis, rise from the meadow against a background of snow-capped mountains. While lacking the incomparable beauty of the Parthenon, archeologists say the temples are precious examples of Greek architecture.

Two of the three temples, plus 11 minor places of worship, were dedicated to Hera. The third, the so-called temple of Ceres, first named after the Roman goddess of agriculture, has been proved by later digging to be dedicated to Athena, the Greek goddess of intellect and beauty. This was established by the discovery of clay figurines showing Athena wearing her helmet and shield.

"Recent discoveries," says Prof. Sestieri, "consist of objects of gold, silver and bronze and ivory carvings, Greek and Lucanian vases and offerings by young brides. They confirm that the cult of the goddess Hera was the basis of the local worship. Her name is inscribed on many pots and dishes, especially on a silver disc weighing more than a pound."

Several statues and carvings show Hera with pomegranates, a symbol of fertility, and with young babies. There are also many statues of other Greek gods and goddesses, including so many of Venus and Cupid that Sestieri believes archeologists will some day find still another temple dedicated to Aphrodite, the Greek goddess of love, whose Roman counterpart was Venus.

ALTHOUGH THE NECROPOLIS indicates that the site had been inhabited long before, the founding of the Greek town of Paestum dates to the sixth century B. C. Pleasure-loving Greek sybarites, who had previously established a colony at Sybaris on the Gulf of Taranto, came to the mouth of the River Sele, then the only good landing place on this part of the coast.

The central section of the city was bounded by a three-mile wall, which was 22 feet thick in some places. The richness and fertility of the soil brought prosperity, as the grandeur of its ruins still attests. But it also brought trouble. The Lucanians, an Italic people living in the mountains, couldn't resist the luxury and conquered the town about 400 B. C. Still later, about 273 B. C., the Romans took over. They treated the Posidons more kindly than had the fierce Lucanians, and the Greeks responded by providing ships loaded with wheat for Romans trapped in Taranto by Hannibal. The Romans rewarded this fidelity by letting the Posidons continue to mint their own coins.

The Romans renamed the town, but the soil, however, and built their own buildings—sometimes on top of Greek structures. Roman baths, a forum, an amphitheater and a temple have been found, within a Roman wall which reduced the size of the Greek city.

The forum, extending from one of four Roman gateways, divides the city, and at one time led down to the sea. The deserted city was hidden by forest and swamps until the middle of the 18th century, when it was rediscovered and some explorations made. But the most intensive excavations waited until the postwar Italian government appropriated considerable sums in 1952. Paestum, a village located on the Reggio-Naples-Rome highway, now has about 200 inhabitants, but attracts 5,000 visitors each summer to view the treasures of ancient cultures.

'Actors' Muff Lines, TV Trial Smash Hit

By JIM BOWMAN

WACO, Tex. (AP)—The day while," he said. "This thing gets laborer in a honky-tonk bar you."

"This 'thing' was a week-long drama of a man on trial for his life. Thousands in the vicinity of this central Texas city spent hours daily watching the proceedings on a snail's pace over TV.

For many—youth and old—it was their initial introduction to the courtroom routine. Much of the time microphones picked up little but mumblings in the background, but the picture was clear.

"They (the principals to the trial) all look so natural, a woman wrote to the TV station. More interesting than the principals were faces of the courtroom audience—front row courthouse hangers-on, college kids, friends of somebody or just plain people."

Another side to the story was the tremendous interest aroused in the trial by the use of TV. Other trials have been filmed and the proceedings shown later on TV. But KWTX-TV here was the first to provide a live television broadcast direct from the courtroom.

THERE WERE SOME dissensions, mainly from member of the legal profession. A veteran Texas lawyer visiting the courtroom was mildly worried over the TV prospects.

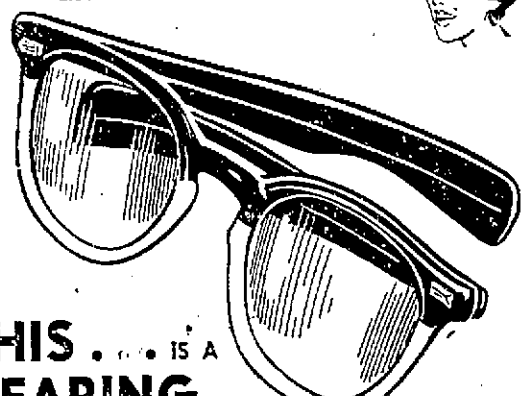

"A witness is nervous enough when he sits down in the stand," he said. "Then he looks up there and sees that TV camera looming down at him."

A neatly-dressed spectator wandered into the courtroom and took a back seat. "I've been watching this thing on TV and just had to come down for a look at it."

HOW DID THE CAST stack up? Not so hot by TV mystery standards. Lines were fumbled and cues were missed, as in any trial. Stories told by most of the 60 witnesses were dull individually. Very few were even mildly sensational. But daily, crowds in the small courtroom grew larger. At the end of testimony, even standing room was no longer available. "We just had to come and see it," many said.

Does the judge think a trend has been established? "Yes, I think in six months or a year there will be TV in courts all over the country."

Benson Calls for Survey of Food Profits

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson said Saturday that President Eisenhower has agreed the administration must find out definitely if food middlemen are getting "improper" profits from the consumer's food dollar at the farmer's expense.

Benson ordered department economists to step up their continuing studies of marketing margins and farm production costs in an effort to pinpoint distribution of the food dollar.

The farmer's share of the dollar has shrunk from a high of 53 cents in 1946 to 40 cents now. Since the Korean War, the drop has been rapid. At the same time, retail prices have been rising and farm income has been falling, widening the price spread.

ECONOMISTS HAVE attributed the widening spread to marketing charges.

"I have discussed this vital problem with the President," Benson said in a statement. "We are agreed that we must definitely determine whether or not prices paid by consumers contain improper or excessive marketing charges and profits."

"Farmers are entitled to receive the very maximum for their products through efficient marketing service."

BENSON HAS been the target of sharp criticism because of declining farm income. Some have come from members of his own party. The problems of huge surpluses, overproduction, and declining incomes are certain to be major issues in next year's presidential campaign.

The order was regarded by some as an attempt to head off election-year criticism.

"The failure of retail food prices as a whole to reflect the decline in farm food products during the past year is recognized by the department as a real obstacle to a solution of the farm surplus problem," Benson said.

U.S. to Send Surpluses of Grain Abroad

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government is preparing to release thousands of tons of surplus grain to church agencies for overseas relief, officials disclosed Saturday.

Barring an unforeseen obstacle, Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson probably will announce the action during the coming week.

Agriculture Department officials said Benson is taking a keen personal interest in the project as a result of urgent appeals from religious leaders to "share our surplus" with less fortunate people abroad.

Benson has discretionary authority, under Public Law 480 which Congress passed last year, to release all types of government-owned farm surpluses to voluntary relief agencies for free distribution to the needy overseas. So far, however, the Agriculture Department has released only commodities which were in danger of spoiling in storage, mainly dairy products and cottonseed oil.

A DELEGATION representing Protestant, Catholic and Jewish relief agencies urged Benson at a meeting here last month to release 250,000 tons of wheat, 100,000 tons of corn products, and 80,000 tons of rice to fight the threat of "actual starvation" in many countries.

Agriculture Department officials had said previously that Benson was "sympathetic" to the request, but was not sure it could be granted under department policies forbidding any use of surplus commodities that would tend to displace normal commercial sales.

Officials said Saturday it now appears that all problems in connection with the project can be worked out, and that a favorable decision can be announced within a few days.

Some Japan GIs Immoral, Solon Says

TOKYO (AP)—Rep. Clement J. Zablocki (D-Wis.) said Saturday he fears some American soldiers are turning to illicit sex because the Army "evidently" lacks proper recreational programs.

The congressman said he could not understand why soldiers are allowed to remain away from their posts all night.

"I hope to look into this thing," Zablocki said in an interview. "I've asked for some figures on the number of children born out of wedlock."

The congressman said he will devote part of his stay in Japan to checking a report that a high number of American soldiers are living illicitly with Japanese women.

Meany Raps Archaic Ideas of Labor Foes

NEW YORK (AP)—George Meany, president of the new AFL-CIO, said Saturday unions still are confronted by foes with the "archaic" idea that management and labor exist in a "master-slave relationship."

The merger of the two big labor organizations into one 16,000,000-member union this week still leaves much to be done, Meany said.

"We are still not over the hill by any means," he said.

"We are still up against people with archaic ideas—who think that management and labor exist in a master-servant relationship."

Meany spoke at a La Guardia Memorial Association lunch at which the annual award in memory of the late Mayor Fiorello La Guardia was given posthumously to Albert L. Patterson, who was murdered in 1954 while fighting crime and corruption in Phenix City, La.

The award is given for outstanding achievement in municipal affairs.

Meany said the AFL-CIO merger had set up a "better instru-mentality" by which labor can make it possible for the American people to "live better and to buy the things that labor produces."

Automation of industry will present a problem during the "transition period," he said, but labor is not afraid of it.

Meany said the U. S. will not be able to fight communism successfully until Southern Negroes are assured their constitutional rights.

"No one can call himself a Christian or a member of any other religion of any standing and deny civil rights to people because of the color of their skin, as is being done in the South," he said.

"We can't carry on our fight against communism successfully if we in the United States are complacent in the face of the stark naked fact that hundreds of thousands of persons are denied basic constitutional rights because they are Negroes. This is a shame everyone in this country bears, and part of our defense against communism is to see that this shame is wiped out."

100,000 to See Chandler Sworn

FRANKFORT, Ky., (UP)—A. B. Chandler will be inaugurated governor of Kentucky next Tuesday in a spectacle expected to rival the Kentucky Derby.

This picturesque little capital city of 11,000 population has made what preparations it could to handle the throng of more than 100,000 expected to see the 57-year-old former baseball commissioner sworn in as chief executive of the commonwealth for the second time in his life.

The oath of office will be administered at high noon, when Chandler—as required by Kentucky's constitution—will raise his right hand and swear, among other things, that he has never fought in, accepted a challenge to, or acted as a second in a duel.

The oath will take only a moment, but the day's festivities will require all the moments that can be crowded into a colorful 24 hours.

His day of triumph will start for Chandler at his home in Versailles with a quiet family breakfast, after which a cavalcade of Cadillac will take the Chandlers 15 miles to the capital. There they and the lieutenant governor-elect, Harry Lee Waterfield, will attend special services at the Episcopal Church of the Ascension.

Loans for Fishers

OTTAWA (UP)—Starting Monday, fishermen may borrow up to $4,000 in government-guaranteed loans to finance purchase, construction and repair of boats and gear. The new law applies to both coastal and inland fishermen.

he will alight from the carriage and hurry to the reviewing stand to watch 50,000 well-wishers parade past.

Parade officials expect marching units from each of Kentucky's 120 counties, including National Guard troops and units from Ft. Knox, and at least 60 bands.

The ceremonies on the inaugural platform will open with a prayer, followed by the singing of the Lord's Prayer and My Old Kentucky Home by the Versailles chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America.

Outgoing Gov. Lawrence W. Wetherby—who fought Chandler bitterly in the Democratic primary last August—will make a 10-minute address, and Chandler will deliver his 15-minute inaugural address.

This will end precisely at noon with Chandler taking the oath of office.

White House Pickets Ask Amnesty for Objectors

WASHINGTON (AP)—A score of men and women picketed the White House Saturday with banners urging President Eisenhower to grant a "Christmas amnesty" to conscientious objectors imprisoned during World War II.

"World War II Objectors Still Being Punished 10 Years After War's End," said one placard. Another said: "Amnesty Granted in Many Lands, Why Not Us?" They gathered about the time Eisenhower arrived in town from Gettysburg for a medical check-up at Walter Reed Hospital.

Leading the procession of the group, which called itself the Amnesty Demonstration Committee, was a man dressed as Uncle Sam. He was handing a Christmas package marked "Amnesty" to another man attired in prison stripes. The group came from Philadelphia and New York.

Rhee Calls Halt on Anti-Reds at Request of U.S.

SEOUL (AP)—President Syngman Rhee said Saturday he had ordered a halt to Korean demonstrations against Communist truce inspectors at the request of the United States.

"The United States," Rhee said in a statement, "requests us to interfere with the people's right to express themselves through demonstrations."

The ROK president reported that a solution to the controversial Korean truce inspection system "will be made easier" if the public demonstrations were stopped.

DO-IT-YOURSELF—FOR $1,100

Raymond K. Baird, Long Beach chemical engineer, proudly takes the wheel of his handmade, fiberglass roadster, the Meteor. Baird and a friend, Dick Jones of Denver, built the car in Baird's garage for $1,100. The 150-m.p.h. job won an award for design in the 1955 National Automobile Review.—(Staff Photo)

Dad Returns 'From Grave'

SAN DIEGO (AP)—A daughter reunited after 26 years with the father she had long thought dead, now hopes to spend Christmas with him and his present family.

Mrs. Gerald Schilling, 38, said she plans to take her three sons along to the home of her father, Ernest Wooten, 63, at Modesto, for the Christmas visit.

The daughter was two years old when her mother and father separated in Illinois and she grew up in the belief he was dead.

She learned only a year ago that he might be alive. Then, with the aid of Quincy, Ill., authorities, she located him in Modesto.

No '55 Ford Parts in It, but It's Still a Ford

It's a F-o-o-d! Or is it? Raymond K. Baird's bright purple sports roadster is registered with the Dept. of Motor Vehicles as a 1955 Ford. "But it doesn't have a single '55 Ford part in it," he declares.

Baird, 31, a chemical engineer at the Union Oil Co.'s Wilmington refinery, built the car in his garage with the help of a friend, Dick Jones of Denver.

It's made of laminated fiberglass and cost $1,100, plus 10 months of spare-time work by Baird and Jones. The two men started out with a 1939 Ford chassis, suspension system, transmission and differential. All told, this much of the car cost $30. They decided on a 1955 Chevrolet V-8 engine for the power.

Swedes Jail U.S. Marines

MALMOE, Sweden (AP)—Two U. S. Marine sergeants from the U. S. embassy in Copenhagen were charged here Saturday with violence and resisting arrest following an alleged fight with Swedish police.

The charges were filed by the Malmoe city prosecutor against John Kadlecik, 22, of Johnson City, N. Y., and Herbert Castleberry, 26, of Broadus, Mont.

Authorities said both Marines were arrested at Malmoe last Tuesday and will remain in custody until the trial, expected Monday.

The two men have produced eight such cars and have sold all but Baird's personal model for from $2,400 to $2,700.

Baird's car was awarded a trophy for design when he exhibited it at the 1955 National Motor Review at the Pan Pacific Auditorium, Los Angeles.

Threats Told by Negroes

ORANGEBURG, S. C. (AP)—Threatening letters are being received by Negroes here in a tussle between white merchants and Negro customers arising out of the school integration ruling, an NAACP official said Saturday.

Mrs. H. F. Pierce, widowed housewife and vice president of the Orangeburg branch of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, said she has turned a threatening letter over to local police.

"This wasn't the only one," she said officers told her, "received by Negroes here. The Federal Bureau of Investigation has it, and they told me they have others and are comparing them."

'Pay-as-You-Go' U.S. Services Under Study

SIoux FALLS, S. D. (UP) — The Eisenhower administration is giving serious thought to putting special government services on a "cafeteria style" or "pay-for-what-you-use" basis, the Sioux Falls (S.D.) Argus-Leader said Saturday.

In a copyrighted dispatch from Washington, John A. Kennedy, publisher and editor-in-chief of the newspaper, said the program under consideration would call for the payment of fees for all federal licenses and inspections and for other government services, including stocking private ponds with fish and issuance of steamboat licenses.

Fees for use of federal parks would be increased and there would be charges for government pamphlets and charts, now issued free, Kennedy said.

"This new project to help cut the deficit has been under consideration by the Budget Bureau for the past several months and now is receiving attention at cabinet level," he reported.

"Revenue variously estimated from $70,000,000 to several times that figure is involved—a tidy amount that could aid in balancing the budget and making possible tax cutting by Congress."

Kennedy said a proposal has been made to form a central organization with a staff executive in charge to get cooperation from various governmental agencies.

Because Congress has placed a ceiling on some fees charged for departmental and agency services, new legislation probably would be needed, he said.

Many bureaus and divisions of government could be made self-supporting by such a program, Kennedy said. As much as $30,000,000 would flow into the Treasury in the field of federal licensing and regulation alone, he said.

Among his recommendations were increased fees for use of federal parks, admission fees for the Washington Zoo, increased charges for copyrights, trademarks and patents and fees for civil service examinations.

Yalta Paper Editor Gets His Job Back

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Civil Service Commission Saturday ordered Donald M. Dozer, ousted State Department historian, put back in his job.

A commission letter to Dozer, which he made public without comment, said the State Department had failed to be specific enough in all its charges against him. Also the letter found Dozer never had been told adequately the reasons for his dismissal last Oct. 5.

Dozer said in October he was fired from his $11,000-a-year job because of clashes with holdover Democrats in the department. He said these clashes occurred over publishing records of secret World War II meetings such as those of Yalta, Cairo and Tehran.

DOZER, 50, SAID the letter he received from the commission indicated the State Department has seven days in which to appeal from the commission's ruling.

He said he intends to show up for work at the department on Monday morning.

The letter to Dozer was signed by E. A. Dunton, chief of the appeals examining office, bureau of departmental operations, Civil Service Commission.

Dunton's letter, in response to Dozer's appeal of his firing, did not go into the merits of the case. It dealt purely with Dozer's contention of procedural defects and upheld him on that point.

Dozer was working on the Cairo-Tehran conference papers when he was dismissed. Bryton Barron, who had helped put together the recently released Yalta conference papers while sharing an office with Dozer, was allowed to retire on pension as of the end of this year. Barron is on leave until Jan. 1.

Nobel Prizes Awarded in 2 Ceremonies

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—Nobel prizes were presented Saturday to three Americans, a Swede crippled by polio and an Icelandic for their work in physics, chemistry, medicine and literature.

At a companion ceremony in Oslo, the Norwegian capital, the Dutch chief of the U. N. High Commission for Refugees, received, for the commission, the 1954 Nobel peace prize—a check for $35,066.90, a gold medal and diploma. The recipient, Dr. G. J. Van Heuven Goedhart, announced it would be used to remove 125 destitute Rumanian and Hungarian refugee families from their squalid camp on the Greek island of Tinos to new homes.

King Gustaf VI of Sweden handed out the four prizes, leftmost in the academic world, in the ceremony in Concert Hall here.

CHECKS, TOTALING nearly $147,000, solid gold medals each weighing two pounds, and diplomas went to the four scientists and the Icelandic writer here. Each prize was worth $36,720 in cash.

The four scientists were:

Dr. Willis E. Lamb, 42, of Stanford University, and Dr. Polykarp Kusch, 44, of Columbia University, who shared the physics prize for their independent calculations in 1947 which enabled scientists to correct their information on what goes on inside the atom.

Dr. Vincent du Vigneaud, 54, of Cornell Medical College, New York, who received the chemistry prize for his lifetime work on sulphur compounds and two hormones which help in childbirth and keep a check on vital organs such as the kidneys.

Dr. A. Hugo Thorell, 52, crippled Swedish biochemist, who won the award in medicine for discoveries on the nature and action of enzymes which help living cells use oxygen.

THE AUTHOR was 52-year-old Halldor Laxness, a leftist novelist whose book "Independent People" was a best seller in 1946.

Chairmen of Swedish academies which picked the winners told why each won and extolled their works.

Their learned scientific dissertations were understood by few people in the audience.

In the opening address, Swedish Grand Marshal Birger Ekberg commended Alfred B. Nobel, Swedish dynamite inventor, whose prizes have now been awarded to 289 scientists, authors and statesmen. The United States leads other countries with 62 winners, followed by Germany with 48, England 46 and France 32.

At least half the people wept as they watched Dr. Thorell, who was crippled in both legs by polio, struggle step by step from the platform to receive his prize. The Nobel foundation had provided a stairway with a special rail from the platform to the hall floor for him. But only once did he falter and find it necessary to seize the rail. The king stepped forward to meet him at the base of the stairway, but Thorell signalled him to move back.

San Diego Urged to Bid for Ocean Air-Lines' Trade

SAN DIEGO (AP)—This city should replace Los Angeles as a transpacific air terminal because it does not have a smog problem, an airport consultant said Saturday.

Leigh Fisher, of South Bend, Ind., said San Diego should build a large international airport that could handle flights to the east, transpacific flights and flights for Mexico that now leave from Tijuana.

He was hired by the city to make a survey of flights for a new municipal airport. His report will be ready by Feb. 1, Fisher said.

Now You Can Build Your Own Christmas Tree

DO-IT-YOURSELF CRAZE has notched another triumph in the form of a plastic Christmas tree, which you can build in a few minutes. Barbara Colby shows how it works. You take home a neatly wrapped package. Then you assemble the tree, twig by twig and branch by branch. At the end of the tinsel season, you take the tree apart, toss the parts in the wash, then pack them away for the next holiday.—(Staff photos by Dick Tolbert.)

BYRD ANSWERS QUESTION

Why Go to South Pole?

On the eve of his departure for the Antarctic on the icebreaker Glacier, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd wrote this dispatch on the significance of the American expedition. This is Byrd's fifth expedition to the South Polar area. He was the first man to fly over the North Pole and first over the South Pole. He has now been designated director of the U.S. Antarctic program.

ADMIRAL BYRD
Antarctic Has a Future

By R. ADM. RICHARD BYRD
Written for United Press

PORT LYTTLETON, New Zealand—As you read this, I am about to leave for the bottom of the world, on my fifth venture to the Antarctic continent.

Not too many years ago the Antarctic was looked upon as an area whose chief purpose was to provide scope for the restless instincts of explorers like myself. Its cruel inhospitality—its temperatures ranging to 80 degrees below zero and lower, its mighty mountain ranges, its eternal crust of ice and snow blizzards—made many people wonder what practical purpose our explorations could serve. But the further study of the Antarctic region has vast and many-sided possibilities.

The new United States Antarctic scientific undertaking will have two purposes. First it will serve to implement the Antarctic phase of the U.S. program for the International Geophysical Year (1957-58)—a world-wide endeavor in which some 40 nations will be cooperating. But simultaneously it will serve our national interest by carrying forward the work of exploration and mapping initiated by previous expeditions.

IN HIS "ATOMS FOR PEACE" PLAN, in his proposal for assistance to underdeveloped Asian countries and in other matters, President Eisenhower has consistently emphasized the willingness of America to share its scientific knowledge and technical know-how with other peoples.

It is in this spirit that our IGY plans for the Antarctic have been conceived; and it is our hope that through our efforts we will be able to make some small contribution in support of the President's policy and of his difficult quest for peace.

As a key part of the IGY program, the United States and 11 other countries have planned operations in the Antarctic extending from the end of 1956 into early 1959—which will make this the most concerted scientific attack ever undertaken on the south polar continent.

The United States plans call for the establishment of six observation stations, five of them around the perimeter of the continent (McMurdo Sound, Little America, Marie Byrd Land, Knox Coast and Cape Adare), and a central one at the South Pole.

The chairman of the U.S. national committee for IGY is the distinguished physicist, Dr. Joseph Kaplan; and the chairman of the Antarctic subcommittee is my old expedition colleague, Dr. Lawrence Gould. The commander of Naval Task Force 43, assigned to the project, is Rear Admiral George Dufek, a veteran Antarctic sailor who was with me on two previous expeditions.

THE BASE at the South Pole is noteworthy because this will be the first time since the Amundsen and Scott expeditions of 1911-12 that men will have set foot on the Pole; and it will be the first attempt in history to establish a station there and maintain it through the winter night. The two pioneering flights over the South Pole which my colleagues and I made on previous expeditions will have paved the way for the 100-flight airlift that will be necessary to establish the base. Other participating nations will establish approximately 20 stations at various points on the continent and these will cooperate in making simultaneous observations of the weather and other scientific phenomena.

In the case of the weather, all the information will be funneled into a "central" at the main American base, so that for the first time we will be able to construct weather maps covering most of the Antarctic continent, and tie them in with weather maps of the rest of the world.

The comprehensive scientific studies will also include glaciology, ionospheric physics, geology, magnetic surveys, cosmic rays, aurora, airglow, seismology and gravity measurements. The scientific discoveries are to be shared by all the participating nations in the best scientific tradition. Scientific studies of a general nature, not specifically related to the IGY, will also be conducted. The work of topographical and geological exploration, for example, is something that each nation will frankly be undertaking in its own interest.

THERE HAVE BEEN many expeditions to the Antarctic continent since the year 1820 when Captain Nat Palmer of Stonington, Conn., first sighted the peninsula that bears his name. After Palmer, the next American was Lt. Charles Wilkes of the U.S. Navy who delineated the first parts of the Antarctic coastline in 1838-42. Then there was nothing for 90 years until our 1928-30 expedition—the first American expedition, incidentally, to set foot on the mainland. The four Antarctic expeditions it has been my privilege to lead since that year were instrumental in discovering over 1,000,000 square miles of the Antarctic continent—which is more than has been discovered by the expeditions of any other three nations combined. The expeditions under the leadership of Lincoln Ellsworth, Capt. Finn Ronne, and Capt. Gerald Ketchum also did good work and added to the total of American exploration.

Through explorations such as our country and other nations are now planning, the great Antarctic continent will ultimately yield its secrets. It is my hope and belief that, in yielding them, it will bring manifold benefits to mankind. Let me list a few of these potential benefits from the project.

It has implications for the future of commercial aviation because, in many cases, the shortest route between two points in the Southern Hemisphere will lie across the polar regions.

It is essential to the progress of meteorological science because the wind and weather that are produced in the icy vastnesses of Antarctica play an important role in the modification of weather conditions in the more temperate regions. It is important, too, because it will increase our understanding of the long-range climatic changes that are taking place in the world.

Preliminary geological explorations have revealed deposits of coal and there are indications of other minerals. These deposits may take on increasing importance as the resources of the temperature climates are worn thin, and as the further development of packaged atomic energy makes possible the limited habitation of the polar regions.

ALTHOUGH THERE IS still very much to be learned about the ionosphere (a layer of ionized air, beyond the stratosphere, which reflects radio waves and other radiations) it has been estimated that the studies thus far carried out in both polar regions have already been worth billions of dollars to the development of radio. The knowledge of the upper atmosphere that will be gleaned by our scientists in the Antarctic will, it is believed, result in comparable benefits to the rocket and space satellite programs. The military implications of these programs have received much publicity—but their peaceful scientific implications are infinitely greater. Developments of the postwar years have also borne out the prophecies of some of us, that, within our own lifetime, the polar regions would play an increasingly important strategic role in the world we live in.

It is my belief that, when the projected program terminates in 1959, a series of more or less permanent bases will have been established on the Antarctic mainland as a prelude to human habitation on a limited scale.

In this development the United States is bound to play a pre-eminent role.

FAVORED BY 6½ OVER PACKERS IN FINALE

Win or Tie Today Will Net Rams Title

It's blue chip day in the Coliseum today as the Los Angeles Rams attempt to wrap up the Western Division title of the National Football League with either a win or a tie against the Green Bay Packers.

The Rams, who have never lost a home game finale, since moving to Los Angeles in 1946, are favored by 6½ points to keep the streak intact today and thus qualify to meet the Cleveland Browns for the NFL championship in the Coliseum Dec. 26.

A win or a tie today will assure the Rams of the Western crown regardless of what the Chicago Bears do against the Philadelphia Eagles in their finale. The Rams lead the division by a half game with a 7-3-1 record. The Bears are 7-4-0.

The one and only time the Packers whipped the Rams in Los Angeles was back in 1947, 30-10, and from 1948 until late in 1953 the Packers fell 11 times to the Rams.

Things are different this season, however. Coach Al Blackbourn's Packers, with quarterback Tobin Rote the field marshal, hold one of the three wins over Los Angeles.

THIS WAS A come-from-behind 30-28 decision in mid-October, which included three touchdown passes by Rote and a last minute field goal by Fred Cone.

If the weather is clear as predicted, some 60,000 fans are expected to see if the Rams can win their fifth division title since 1949. Kickoff time is 2:05 p. m.

Coach Sid Gillman, in his freshman year as a pilot in the big pro league, again is confronted with problems of injury-hampered players.

The main question marks are two dangerous pass receivers, Bob Boyd and Elroy (Crazy Legs) Hirsch. Gillman said he would have to wait until game time before deciding whether either or both will play. Both were held out of last week's 20-14 win over Baltimore.

OTHERWISE, THE Rams are in sound shape, including their passing star, Norm Van Brocklin; linebacker-placer kicker Les Richter, and two hard-running backs, Tank Younger and rookie Ron Waller.

The Packers will rely on Rote's running and passing, and his backfield mates, Joe Johnson, Al Carmichael and Howie Ferguson, all named to start the game.

"Obviously, this is the big one for us," Gillman said. "And I'd rather be playing almost anyone than this Packer team. They're equipped with outstanding talent in several key positions and over-all are more explosive than most teams in the league."

"Take that Rote, for instance. Not only is he a great passer, but he's the finest running quar-

Vote Renewal of Cherberg's Pact

SEATTLE (AP)—Coach "Cow" player rebellion began. The dis-
"boy" Johnny Cherberg, accused of grunting players said it was an by his football players of rough effort to blame him for the up-riding, is tall in the saddle again rising.

Everest said Cherberg had been having trouble with "one of the assistant coaches" as long ago as last spring. He said the head coach was empowered to hire and fire his assistants and had the full backing of the administration in the Sutherland matter.

The regents Saturday capped a five-hour closed-door session with a brief open meeting in which they voted unanimously to retain the coach for 1956. Cherberg, who succeeded Howie Odell in 1953, has been hired on a year-to-year basis.

Cherberg thanked the regents "for the opportunity to coach the Huskies" and added: "I'm looking forward, not backward. I've learned a lot in the last two weeks."

He said he was confident he could patch up his troubles with the players who revolted at the close of the 1955 season. About 15 of the 35 involved were seniors. Most of the players in his starting eleven remained aloof from the controversy.

THE REBELS, taking their discontent to athletic director Harvey Cassill, accused Cherberg of tyranny and asked that he be fired. Later the board of control of the associated students urged that the regents dismiss the coach.

Vice President H. P. (Dick) Everest conducted an investigation and reported to the regents. He said the players had presented a "myriad of instances" to back their objections to Cherberg. In their motion on retention of Cherberg the regents included a note that there should be no censure of the rebellious faction.

Everest disclosed that the school administration backed Cherberg in his dismissal of Jim Sutherland as backfield coach. Sutherland, who came here last winter from an assistantship at California, was fired when the

3rd JRB Win for Tartars

By DICK ZEHMS

ROSE BOWL, PASADENA—Compton College's Tartars shook off the unkind cuts of misfortune here Saturday afternoon to outscore the Jones County Bobcats of Ellisville, Miss., 22-13, before a record throng of 57,132 spectators in the 10th edition of the Junior Rose Bowl.

Triumph was achieved the hard way, but deservedly so. Disheartening penalties, an injury to the biggest Tartar of them all, Jim Waddell, on the fifth play of the game and the stubborn resistance of the Bobcats, who were virtually disowned by their own because they were playing against a team which has a more liberal approach to life, multiplied the task.

This third Tartar victory in as many JRB appearances of the Hub City team, coached by Raymond C. (Ray) Brown, can be traced to supreme desire even in the face of bad breaks coming upon bad break—a whole parade of them. The Tartars had what it took when they needed it the most. Bugs in their secondary complicated matters the more and twice enabled the Bobcats to buzz the electric scoreboard in this huge saucer where football's mightiest have made history down through the passing decades.

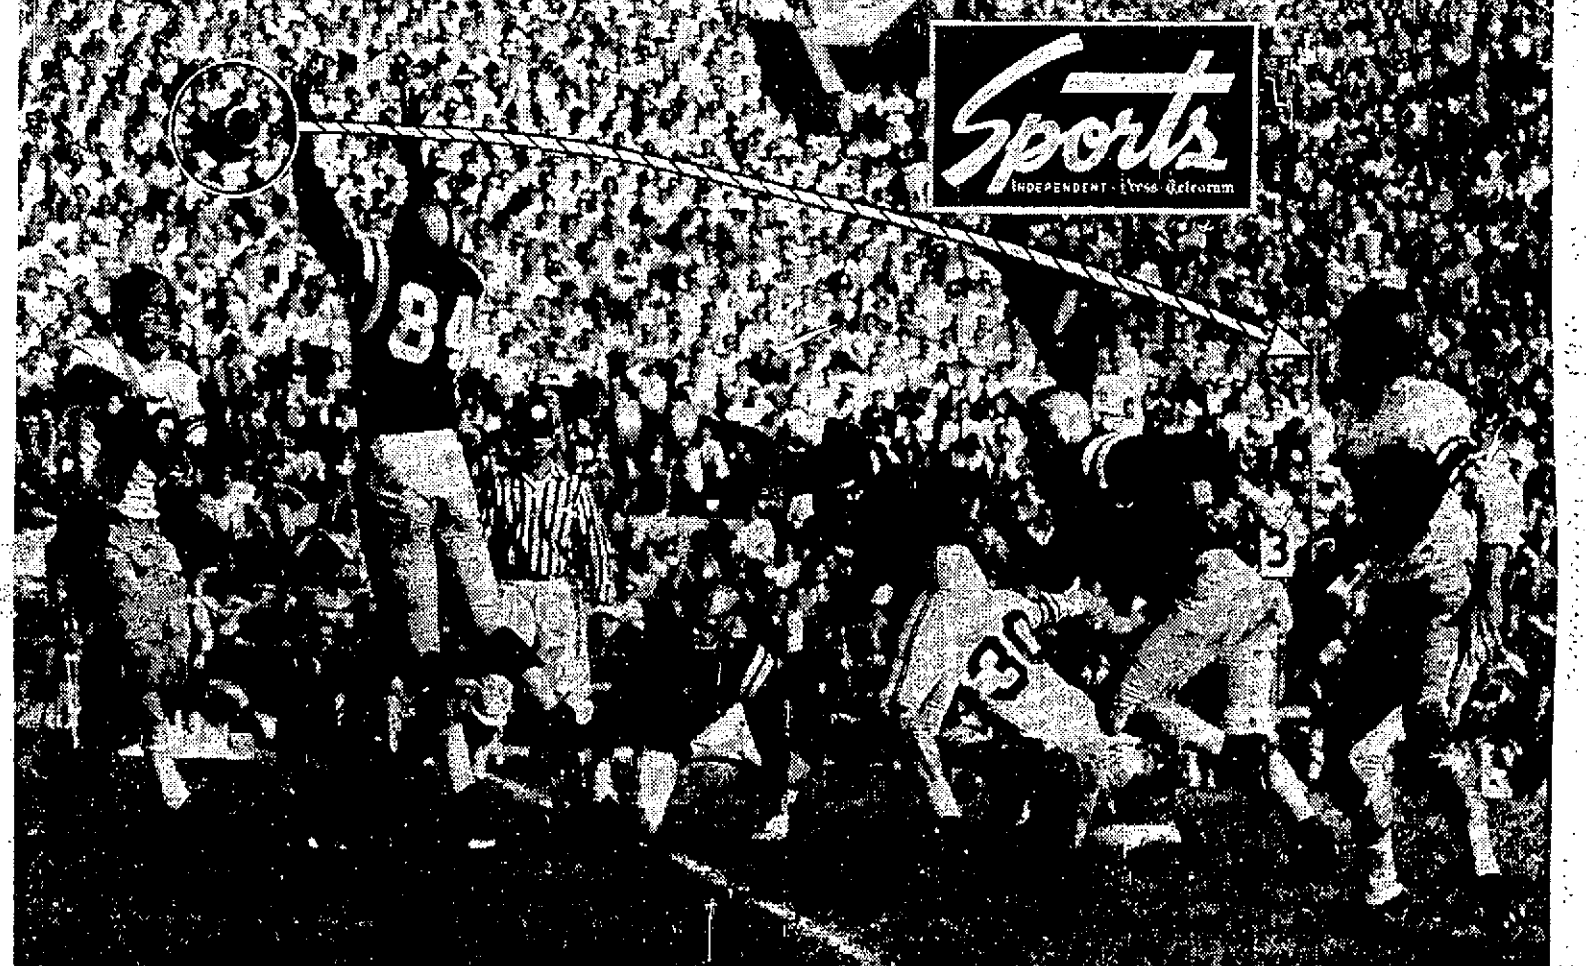

WHEN TOUCHDOWNS came in this battle for the national junior college championship between the No. 1 and 2 ranked teams in the land, they struck with electric suddenness. They were spectacular in their execution, strategically devised and perfection in execution. For instance:

Compton's quarterback, Bunny Aldrich, called an end around in the fading minutes of the first period. Charles McNeil, a giant on the field, came rolling out around right end from his left wing spot behind a horde of red-shirted blockers and raced 76 yards down the west sideline—past the Jones bench—unmolested to the game's first touchdown. Lights on the electric clock winked 13:59 at the time. Al White blew the conversion, so the Tartars were 6-0 in front when the first quarter ended.

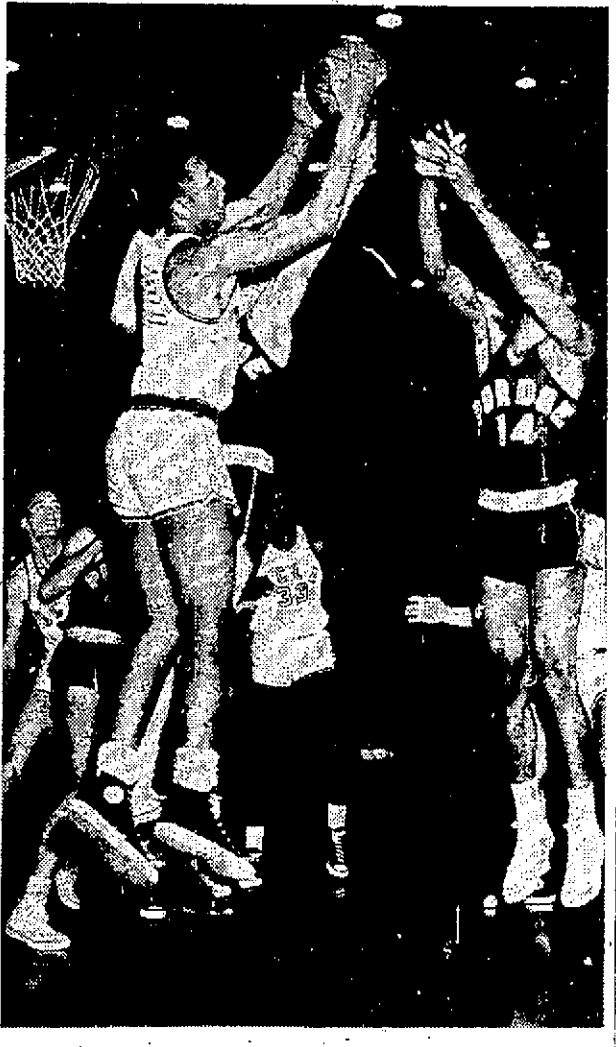

By this time, however, they had experienced enough tough luck to curdle the milk of human kindness in any upright citizen of the Hub City. They had been subjected to four misfortunes in penalties which eventually stopped their first offensive gesture—after Waddell had been hurt.

EACH TIME they came forth with a 15 or 20-yard play a red handkerchief would be found on the field to cost them not only the yardage but to send them reeling in reverse for 15 yards. This in itself would try the best of souls, but a hardy lot these Tartars kept coming back for more—and the more was McNeil's sensational jaunt into

NAULLS SCORES 22 FOR UCLA

Bruins Wallop Boilermakers; Trojans Roll Over Denver

By DAVE LEWIS
Sports Editor

Purdue's Boilermakers, who came surging from behind to nip SC's Trojans in the final nine seconds of play Friday night, had the tables turned on them Saturday night when they fell victims to a smashing second half UCLA comeback that carried the Bruins to a rousing 76-60 triumph in their intercollegiate cage battle before 3,000 fans in the LBCC gym.

In the first game of the doubleheader, the Trojans trounced Denver U, 71-48, for their first win in three starts.

Purdue appeared to have its struggle with the Bruins safely locked in the "icebox" at half-time with a 38-30 lead. But the visitors from the Big Ten were unable to stem the second half UCLA attack spearheaded by jump-shot artist Morris Taft and Willie Naulls, who finally came to life in the closing minutes of action when the "handcuffs" were taken off him.

Naulls led the Bruin scoring with 22 points while Taft wound up with 15.

UCLA flourished in the first half without Naulls' usual scoring punch. "Willie the Whale" was handcuffed in the opening half by the brilliant play of Purdue's great 6-6 center, Lamar Lundy, an all-conference end in football and a hot prospect for all-conference honors in basketball, too.

Naulls was up against a lot of man and basketball player in Lundy, who held Willie to four free throws in the first half and didn't yield a field goal to the Bruin pivot star until three minutes into the second half. Naulls made only four goals from the field out of 19 shots, but picked up 14 points on free throws.

It wasn't until Lundy was pulled temporarily at the five-minute mark in the second half after committing his fourth foul that Naulls began to function effectively.

Purdue was leading by five points when Lundy left the game... and trailing by four points when he came back in with 10 minutes remaining to play.

It was still anybody's ball game until Lundy had to leave the fray for good with 3½ minutes to go after having a fifth called on him.

UCLA QUICKLY pulled out to its 16-point margin as the Purdue defense disintegrated.

It was a thrilling ball game, right up to the final five minutes of play when Purdue fell apart.

After jockeying for "position" in the first two minutes of play, the Bruins forged into a 6-4 lead which they grimly held until Purdue tied it up at 18-18 midway through the first half on two successive fast breaks spearheaded by Joe Campbell and Joe Sexson.

Purdue moved out in front a minute and a half later on Lundy's two free throws after being fouled by Naulls. Ron Jecha followed with a layin 30-

Once Over Lightly

by DAVE LEWIS

The fullback on the 1955 all-pro team is Howie Ferguson of the Green Bay Packers. . . one of the three or four players in the NFL who didn't play college ball.

In fact, Howie didn't even finish high school!

And what's more, he has climbed to success after being discarded by the Los Angeles Rams against whom he will play today in the Coliseum.

No. 2 fullback on the all-pro team, as selected by the 386 NFL players themselves for NEA and which was published Saturday in The Independent, is Alan Ameche of the Baltimore Colts.

However, many of Ameche's own teammates rank both Ferguson and the Rams' Tank Younger ahead of their own rookie fullback ace.

Some of the Colts, including Buddy Young, go so far as to call Younger "the best fullback in the business when he's right!" The Tanker, of course, was "right" against Baltimore last Sunday and almost single-handedly wrecked the Colt team.

However, the majority of Baltimore players warned that "you haven't seen nothing yet. Wait'll you see this Ferguson in action."

Southland fans get that opportunity this afternoon. In fact, within a space of eight days they will have seen the three top-ranked offensive fullbacks in the league.

Last Sunday they saw Younger vs. Ameche. . . with Younger coming out of their duel with the best of it as he barreled through the Baltimore defense for 132 yards in supplying the impetus that carried the Rams to victory in the crucial struggle.

YOUNGER AND Ferguson will be key figures in today's vital game, on which hinges the '55 Western Division title race.

Strangely enough, the presence of Younger in the Ram backfield is one of the reasons the Rams discarded Ferguson in 1952.

Three years later, with the Rams in dire need of more big, hard-running backs like Younger, Ferguson is rated the finest fullback in professional ball as a member of the Green Bay Packers.

Ferguson was an all-around athlete at New Iberia, Louisiana, High School. . . but quit school after his junior year to join the Navy.

He played service ball for four years and it was while he was performing for the San Diego Naval Training Center club that a Ram scout spotted him.

Following his discharge in '52, Ferguson reported to the Rams, who at that time ruled the NFL after winning the league championship by beating the Cleveland Browns, 30-28, in the 1951 title playoff.

Howie played with the Rams against the College All-Stars in Chicago as well as in several exhibitions and turned in a creditable job.

But when it came time to trim the squad to the 33-man player limit, Ferguson was cut loose.

After all, the Rams had two of the top-rated fullbacks in the business — Younger and Deacon Dan Towler. That left no place for Ferguson.

Joe Stydahar, coach of the Rams at the time, was reluctant to cut Ferguson, but there was nothing else for him to do. Feeling that the kid had a brilliant future ahead of him, Joe tipped off the Packers about Howie.

The Packers already were set at fullback and like the Rams, they already had cut their squad.

So Howie put in a year working in the oil fields around New Iberia before reporting to the Packers in 1953.

He barely hung on with the Packers that season, though. He saw little action as Fred Cone's understudy, carrying the ball only 52 times in 12 games and gaining 134 yards.

THE 1954 SEASON was different. While starting out as a second-stringer, he finally beat out Cone about midseason. . . although his 276 yards in 83 carries last year was far from being outstanding.

However, as a pass catcher he made 41 receptions. . . surpassed on the Packer squad only by Bill Howton, one of the league's finest ends.

Prior to the start of the current season, many critics in the Midwest were saying that what the Packers needed most was a real fullback — another Clarke Hinkle or Ted Fritsch. . . someone who can go get those two or three yards and who can tear up the other team's line.

Captain Lisle Blackburn just smiled at those observations and replied. . . "I've got a fullback, one of the best in the league."

Pre-season games bore out his contention. . . and early league contests clinched the argument. Ferguson needed only the first three regular season games to exceed his yardage total for the entire '54 campaign. . . gaining 294 yards in 53 carries.

Ferguson, 25, married and seconds later to give the Boiler-makers a four-point advantage.

UCLA played it close for the next couple of minutes while hanging in there at 27-26. . . but the Bruins were cracked wide open in the last five minutes of the half as a furious

Purdue rush gave the Boiler-makers a commanding 10-point lead at 38-28.

CONRAD BURKE cut it to 38-30 for the Bruins as time ran out in the half.

With Lundy handling Naulls

so effectively and with the Boiler-makers hitting consistently from the field, it appeared at intermission time that UCLA was headed for its third defeat in four games.

However, Taft and Naulls, aided by Lundy's absence down the stretch, were able to level off the Bruins' win-loss record for the young season at 2-2.

Purdue still led, 49-44, when Lundy was pulled out after five minutes of the second half.

With the backbone of the Boiler-makers defense on the bench, the Bruins went to work with a vengeance. Naulls dumped in three free throws. Taft raced the length of the court for a layin and Al Herring squared the count at 49-44 with a pair of free throws after seven minutes of play.

PURDUE REGAINED the lead momentarily at 51-49 before Taft and Naulls dropped in successive field goals from 20 feet out to put the Bruins in front to stay.

UCLA was leading 59-55 when Lundy came back in. . . but he didn't stick around long when he was called for charging as he drove in for a basket.

With Lundy out, the Bruins had a clear path into the basket

. . . and they made the most of it with 12 points in the final five minutes.

With the regulars playing slightly less than half the time, the Bruins easily whipped Denver in the opener with their highest point-production of the young season.

DENVER JUMPED off to a

2-0 advantage in the first 15 seconds, but it took the Trojans less than a minute to tie the score on Jack Dume's push shot from 20 feet out and then forge into a lead they never relinquished on a pair of free throws from Dick Nagai.

From that point, the Trojans gradually lengthened their lead to 41-27 at halftime despite liberal use of their reserves. It was all downhill in the second half as well.

Coach Forest Twogood may have found the answer to his problem at center in the contest when Ken Pearson, 6-4½ junior college transfer from Pasadena, led the scoring with 14 points.

Dumme and Bob Raine both hit for 12.

CHICAGO (CP)—Ohio State's victory over Loyola, of Chicago before 7,634 fans.

Freeman hit on 55.9 per cent

Freeman's total gave him 107 points in three games this season.

at intermission but moved back into contention early in the second half. With Penn leading 46-

44, Navy put on a spurt which

IN THIS CORNER

with DICK ZEHRM

Civic pride prompts me to report that Bob Davenport humbly stood before the microphone in the Beverly Hills Hotel Thursday night and very graciously accepted the UCLA most valuable player and best blocker and tackler awards at the Bruin Bench annual football dinner-dance.

His response to the plaudits of 550 Bruin partisans and to the words of praise from his coach, Henry R. Sanders, are worth preserving for posterity.

"My greatest reward is to have been a member of the UCLA team," the grateful Jordan High alumnus began. "I never expected anything in life. I never expected these honors tonight. I never played on a winning team before. I've played on nothing else since I came to UCLA."

"In all our games, when I looked across the line I saw players as big or bigger than myself. I saw players as agile and as fast. But when the game was over, we had won. There could only be one reason—the coaching we received and the desire to win that had been planted in us."

Here are the moral and physical basics of life, so neatly phrased by a muscular, robust fullback who, according to some concepts of living, is supposed to be long on brute strength and short on the mental approach. Simply, Bob said the coaches taught the boys how to play the game with a purpose:

As simply, these concepts will be carried out into life by all the Bruins who were members of this 1955 championship UCLA team. In the future they will pursue the same pattern... we have been taught and now we must apply these teachings objectively. Life!

Bob was the only Bruin who was awarded two honors. When Sanders made the presentation of the Paul I. Wellman Trophy for the best blocker and tackler to Davenport, he said:

"Davenport is not only the best blocker and tackler on the UCLA team, he is the best blocker and tackler I have ever seen on any team."

At precisely this instant, or paragraph, I should remind you that these words carry the weight of years upon them. Sanders has seen quite a few blockers and tacklers in his days. In 13 years as a college head coach, six at Vanderbilt and seven at UCLA, he has seen at least 124 games—from the bench. How many others the master of the single wing has oiled as a spectator or scout I won't venture to say.

An All-American off the field as well as on, Davenport is the first Long Beach high school product to receive most valuable player recognition at Westwood. He joins an impressive list of predecessors, among them Terry DeBay, Paul Cameron, Ernie Johnson, Tom Fears, Bob Waterfield, Milt Smith, Kenny Washington and others.

Keeping this pattern of desire, Sanders alluded to the Jan. 2, 1956, Rose Bowl game with Michigan State College in this manner:

"We have told our boys, and all of us believe it, that any team can be beaten."

In this post-season game, Davenport will conclude three years of greatness in the uniform of UCLA—the fruits of teachings, application and desire!

'Friction' Denied by Trimble

CHICAGO (AP)—Coach Jim Trimble of the Philadelphia Eagles said Saturday he was "completely surprised" by reports he may be ousted from his position because of a disappointing showing by the Eagles this season and alleged friction with some players.

The Eagles close their National Football League season against the Chicago Bears at Wrigley Field today carrying a 4-6-1 record.

Club officials have not commented on the report, but Trimble said "Monday I'll find out all about this."

"I ALWAYS THOUGHT I was doing a good job with the Eagles," said Trimble. "If we beat the Bears Sunday, it will be close to an even break. That's pretty good in this tough league in which I don't know how anybody can say this team, or that should be a pre-season favorite to win the championship."

Trimble vehemently denied rumors he has trouble with some of his stars, such as Pete Pihos, Chuck Bednarik and Bobby Wai-ston over coaching tactics. "That's a ridiculous statement," he said.

"A Philadelphia story said I was closeted with Eagle officials all week on this subject," he said. "The truth is I did not meet with any club officials any time this week."

UCLA Begins Drills for Rose Bowl Tilt

UCLA Saturday began 16 days of practice for its Jan. 2 game against Michigan State in the Rose Bowl.

Coach Henry (Red) Sanders sent the Bruins through a double drill, the morning session being devoted to fundamentals and individual work and the two-hour afternoon session to a drill on defense against Michigan State formations.

UCLA, the Pacific Coast Conference champion, will drill five days weekly for the next three weeks.

Meanwhile, team physician Dr. Edwin Ruth would not venture to say whether passing star Ronnie Knox will be able to play in the big game. Knox still is wearing a cast on the leg he broke against Washington.

Dr. Ruth said the cast probably would be removed in a week, but added that Knox most likely would not be able to run well for a week or two after that, even though the break may have healed.

Ronnie may have reinjured his leg in a tumble, his mellifluous father, Harvey, reported. Off crutches and in a walking cast for two weeks, he was ordered back on them by an orthopedic specialist the day of the fall.

CHICAGO (AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson, a brand new ring immortal wearing the middleweight crown for the third time, embarked Saturday upon a glorious "new phase" of life in which he hopes to become a dollar-a-fight man for charity.

Before entraining for New York with his entourage, the 35-year-old "miracle man" who knocked out Carl (Bobo) Olson at 2:51 of the second round Friday, told sports writers, "I'm not starting a new career—it's a new phase of my life, devoted to helping my people."

Confident that with added weight he is punching harder than ever before, he said he will have one "big money" fight with Olson as soon as the kayoed ex-champion is ready, in order to straighten out his tax differences with Uncle Sam.

AFTER THAT, he hopes to be in position to accept only one dollar for each fight and give the rest of his purses to Negro charities in cooperation with the National Advancement Association of Colored People. He indicated that he will retire in a year or two.

Co-managers Ernie Braca and Harold Johnson negotiated with U. S. Internal Revenue representatives about the new champion's purse of $46,439.

His purse from the gross gate of $139,725, paid by 12,441 spectators, and from the $75,000 TV-radio fee, has been tied up by the government, which claims he is $87,000 in arrears for the period from 1944 through 1953.

ROBINSON SAID he knew Olson "could be taken" at the end of the first round when he landed a stiff left hook to Olson's head. "That hurt him, although maybe just me and him knew it. Everybody says it was a right-

NO CHANGE Babe Up and About Soon

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP)—Dr. H. W. Paley said Saturday exhaustive checks "show no extension of the cancer process" in famed woman athlete Babe Didrikson Zaharias.

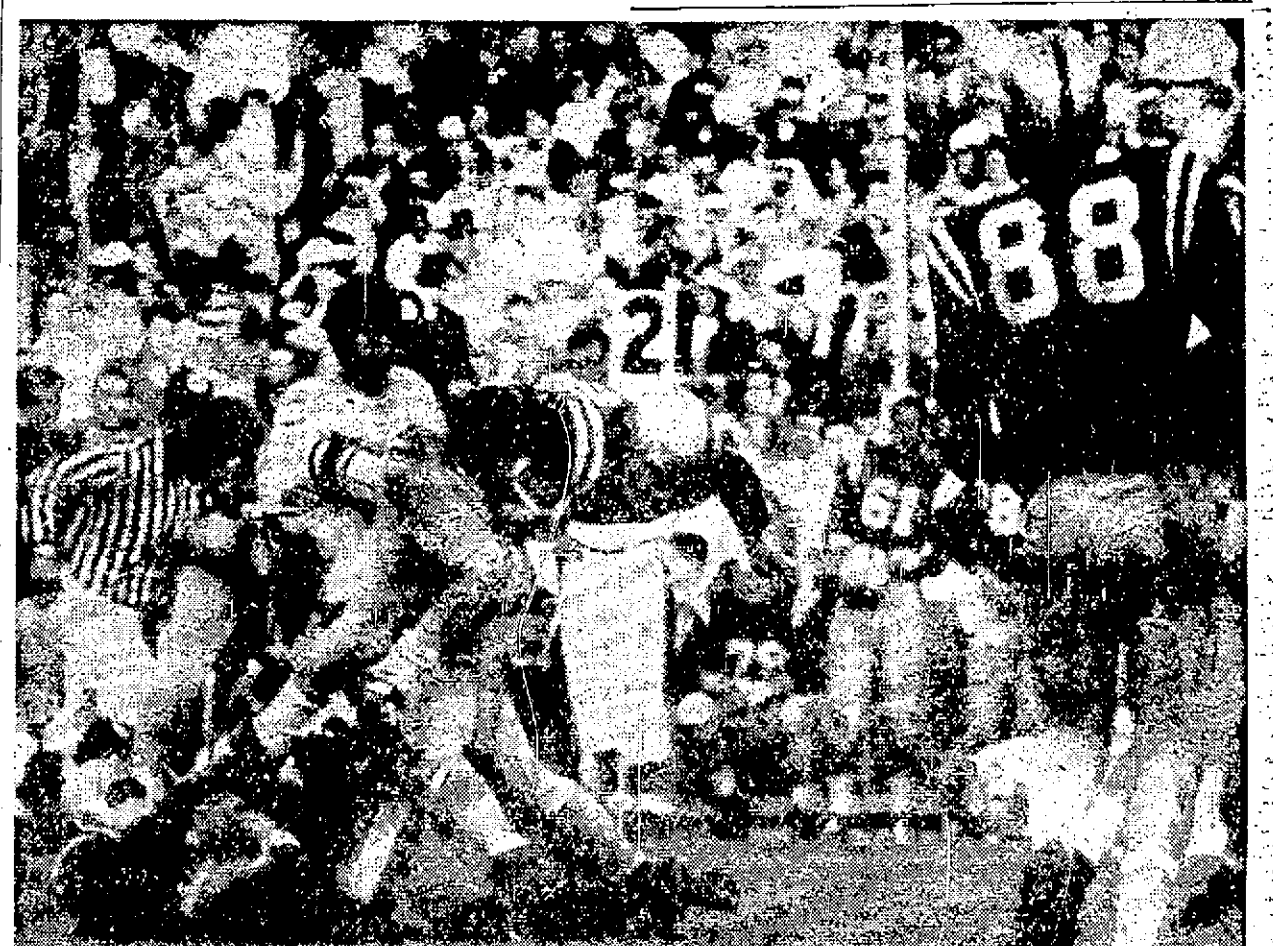

Dr. Paley said "I feel the Babe will be out of the hospital after the first of the year and will be able to get up and around within a reasonably short time after that."

He declined to answer, however, when asked about the woman golfer's prospects for eventual, full recovery.

COMPTON MISSED WADDELL

Injured Ace's Absence Cost Tartars Three TD's—Brown

By JERRY HALL

ROSE BOWL, PASADENA—Someone must have let the cat out of the bag, because the pocketful of tricks and surprises the Tartars took into the Rose Bowl Saturday came hurtling back into their faces and to a man they were happy to settle for the nine-point victory.

Jones JC of Mississippi did most of the things to Compton that Compton had planned to do to Jones. The only thing that went according to the script was the national jaycee championship. That went back to Compton after a few seasons of wandering. And it went back on the shoulders of end Charley McNeil and fullback Neal Wagerle.

JIM WADDELL, the Compton star who has rewritten the school's record books this year, was injured on the fifth-play from scrimmage and removed to a hospital with a possible concussion, a broken nose and face lacerations. He was kicked in the head. There was no evidence that it was intentional.

Cornered after the game, Compton Coach Tay Brown summed it up when he explained that the reason his three-touchdown victory prediction didn't hold up was "We didn't have Waddell." Brown estimated his crew would have added three TDs to the 22-point total. That's about right, because it appeared that Compton played the game with only half its offense.

But it was the Compton defense that was the surprise of the day. Jones tore it to tatters with its passing game. That was what the Tartars had planned to do to the Southerners. But when passes on the first two plays of the game went so terribly, the Tartars stashed them away and stayed with ground maneuvers. "We thought they had weaknesses and still do," commented Brown. Fortunately, they uncovered those weaknesses in time, but if Jones' ends had been able to hang onto passes right into their hands it might have upset things. "There's no doubt we never have dropped so many," said Jones Coach Jim Clark.

CLARK WAS all smiles after the game. He excused as an "honest mistake" the officials' decision on an intercepted pass in the end zone that was placed down on the one-yard line. About two-thirds of the huge crowd disagreed with the action which led to a safety for Compton on the next play. That completely sunk the Bobcats. It gave Compton its nine-point bulge.

"That safety didn't make much difference," said Clark. "We needed two touchdowns to win it anyway." But the man who intercepted the pass was not so forgiving. Halfback Ron Williams said he was sure he was behind the goal. But that Compton player who picked him up and tumbled him back onto the playing field "was a doggoned strong guy." A pass intercepted in the end zone is an automatic touchdown and goes to the intercepting team on the 20.

THERE WAS NO evidence of bitterness on either side. Nothing reflected the rabble-rousing campaign of some Southerners who threaten to push the school into bankruptcy for playing on the same field with Negro athletes. The Jones contingent the magic real estate 76 yards to the south. Ineffective offensively, the Bobcats struck with decisiveness on their own at 13:32 of the second period, quarterback Ken Schulte unravelling a 68-yard pass play to halfback Rommie Williams for the tying touchdown. His flip was a 25-yarder to Williams sweeping across the middle. Ron, in full flight, just kept prancing to the equalizer when an outfoxed Tartar defender was found insufficient to meet the crisis.

SAMMY STRIBLING'S try for the extra point was wide, so the Bobcats missed their only chance to take the lead.

Lightning struck again seconds later when the Bobcats kicked off to Neal Wagerle, Tartar fullback. Wagerle angled to the eastern sideline, cut back and didn't stop huffing and puffing until he had carried the pigskin 86 yards to Compton's second touchdown. The clock said 13:58 when he crossed the last white stripe. This time Aldrich obliged with the conversion and the Tartars were out in front—to stay.

More drama was yet to come, for on the next kickoff Compton recovered on the Bobcat 29. In five plays and at 14:59, Aldrich scooted off his own right tackle three yards—and, presto—Compton was in front, 20-6, when the cagey Tartar q. b. booted another conversion between the uprights.

JONES COUNTY, obviously heading home to a cold reception for playing in an "integrated game" which of a sudden became a controversial issue below the Mason-Dixon line, made a contest out of it with a sudden 59-yard pass play at 14:29 of the third period. This time Schulte fired to Williams through the middle, and he didn't stop running until six more points were added to the Bobcat total. Stribling added the seventh.

Compton's fortunes finally took a turn for the better at 6:40 of the final period. Constantly threatening, the Tartars finally moved to the Bobcat seven, where, on second down, Aldrich fired to the goal line. Williams intercepted with one foot in the end zone, but the officials ruled he was cut down by Tartar tacklers on the Bobcat one-foot line. So the Bobcats moved from there—to their own demise. On the first play, Williams was trapped by Bob Gudath in the end zone for a safety—two points.

THAT ENDED the scoring on a controversial note. Still, the Bobcats fired away with Schulte throwing passes all over the field. Few connected as the Tartar line gave him the constant rush. Otherwise, the results might have been costly to the Tartars, who for some reason displayed a leaky roof in the secondary.

At the outset, Compton's luck was all bad—four 15-yard penalties in five plays the first time they took to the attack. All told, Compton was assessed 10 penalties amounting to 120 yards.

McNEIL, who had the honor of reeling off the game's first touchdown, was voted the Helms-Trophy as the game's outstanding player.

Compton's victory wound up in this statistical setting—a 335-224 advantage in net yards gained, and 11.9 in first downs. So the Hub City team—today rules the nation's jaycee football teams—as they should. They're the greatest!

MIKE SOUCHAR Fires Sparkling 65

Two-Stroke Miami Lead to Souchak

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Massive Mike Souchak, former Duke end who chose golf over the gridiron as a profession, pulverized par with a sparkling 65 Saturday and grabbed a two-stroke lead after two rounds of the $12,500 Miami Open.

Souchak tacked his 5-under to an opening 68 for a 133 total with one round to go.

Par for the 6,620-yard Miami Springs course is a comparatively easy 35-35-70. Twenty-two players broke par and 13 others matched it.

SOUCHAR, who registers out of Grossinger, N. Y., carded his fine round despite a bogey on No. 17, where his drive landed beside a tree and he was forced to putt the ball lefthanded onto the fairway. He canned birdie putts of 20, 15, 7, 7, 5 and 4 feet.

Bud Holscher, who carded a 68, put together two of the most remarkable shots of the event for a par four on the 18th hole, which tied him with five others at 136.

On the final hole, Holscher banged his second shot five inches from a tree. After trolley officials ordered an automobile moved so he could swing, the lanky shotmaker pitched the ball out lefthanded with the back of his putter, then calmly chipped the ball 25 feet into the cup.

The third-seeded Mrs. Todd eliminated Miss Hard, 6-1, 6-0, in a semi-final match.

Fourth-seeded Mimi Arnold of Burlingame toppled Nancy (Chaffee) Kiner, Palm Springs, who held the No. 2 spot, 8-6, 6-3. Fourth-seeded Herb Flam of Beverly Hills advanced to the men's final with a 5-7, 6-2, 6-1, 6-2 victory over Hugh Stewart. He will meet Mike Franks, Beverly Hills, who eliminated his fellow townsman, John Lesch, 5-7, 6-2, 6-4, 6-3.

Standard Oil, Navy Deal Up to Solons

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of the Navy Charles S. Thomas said Saturday he will take no action on an Elk Hills naval oil reserve "trade out" proposal by Standard Oil Co. of California "without specific approval of Congress."

This may be difficult to obtain. Elk Hills, in which California Standard holds a one-third interest, is the Navy's richest petroleum reserve. Congress wants it kept on a stand-by basis for national emergencies.

The company put 8,541 acres into the Taft, Calif., reserve in 1942 under a "unit" contract with the Navy which entitles it to one-third of the underground oil—about $1,600,000,000 worth. This was done because its properties checkerboarded the 37,000-acre Navy reserve which President Taft established by executive order in 1912.

The company, since 1951, has been trying to negotiate an arrangement whereby it would take its share of oil from a so-called shallow reserve and leave the Navy in sole possession of deeper pools. This would be carried out over a period of 20 years or longer.

Nab Suspect Attacker of Injured Girl

ONEIDA, N. Y. (AP)—A man who posed as a sheriff to halt an automobile was charged Saturday with raping a nurse after she broke her leg in a desperate attempt to escape.

Walter Marshall, 32, Canastota, N. Y., was arrested in East Syracuse, N. Y., and was identified by his alleged victim, 24-year-old Miss Rosemary Sorrentino, police said.

Police said Miss Sorrentino told them she was returning from night school classes at Syracuse University, Thursday, when Marshall halted her car. She said he represented himself as a deputy sheriff and told her the car she was driving had been reported stolen.

Marshall ordered her to get out, she said, and she drove toward Canastota in his car. She became suspicious while crossing a bridge, she said, and leaped from the moving car.

Miss Sorrentino said that despite her leg injury, Marshall carried her to his car and assaulted her. Later he returned her to her own automobile and fled, she said.

Great Matador Dies

LIMA, Peru (AP)—Francisco Bonard, dean of bullfighters who fought under the name of Bonarillo, died here Friday night. He was 84 years old. He was one of the great figures of Spain's bull rings when he performed late in the last century.

secretary Thomas S. Gates told the United Press in separate interviews that they must await congressional approval. Thomas said that Degoyrol and McNaughton, Texas oil engineers, had surveyed Standard's proposition and that the Navy "passed the report right over to the House and Senate Armed Services Committees."

He said the Degoyrol-McNaughton report made no recommendations but did cite problems such as how much petroleum the government would need in an unpredictable emergency. The Navy itself has taken no position, Gates said.

CHIEF OPPOSITION has come from Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House Armed Services Committee which keeps a sharp eye on Navy oil reserves. The Washington Post and Times Herald quoted him recently as saying California Standard "wants to get too much oil."

JACKIE RIDES THE RANGE

NEW YORK—We used to kidlaw west of Pecos." He's played by Edgar Buchanan, and Jackie's his niece, Jack Beutel and Russell Hayden help the Brooklyn cowgirl mess up the western landscape with bodies and things.

Miss Jackie Loughery made the jump from subway-riding to range-riding. But long ago, Jackie was a model, toting her hatbox as she swung swivel-hipped through wild and woolly Manhattan shooting down wolves and fresh guys with a fiery glance or sharp word.

No Flatbush Floozie, Jackie'd gone to the St. Francis Xavier Academy for Young Ladies, and everywhere she and her 21-inch waist and pretty legs were highly spoken of.

"I'd never ridden a horse in my life," says Jackie. "After all, we don't have a lot of broncos back where I came from in Brooklyn."

Then Jackie happened to win the "Miss United States" title for '58 at Long Beach.

There came a picture contract and a husband, Guy Mitchell, the singer—and Jackie eventually gave up both—and then she was asked to play a cowgirl in a filmed TV series, called "Judge Roy Bean."

"THE FIRST DAY I took a lesson in riding I fell right on my head," Jackie says.

"I have a double for the tough parts," adds Jackie. "She fell on her head, too, and went to the hospital."

Maybe the horses resented cowgirls from Brooklyn.

Jackie's an 1870s cowgirl living in Texas in the series. That was before cowboys did their cowpunching by Cadillac.

"I wear a pistol down at the bottom of my pantaloons in a holster," Jackie relates. "The pantaloons stretch all the way to my instep. Of course, in time of an emergency I pull my whole dress up and fire!"

And with the ballooning pantaloons showing, of course, that's a sexy sight.

JACKIE WAS back in Brooklyn recently telling her Flatbush friends about "Judge Roy Bean." He was a storekeeper in Langtry, Texas, who set himself up as a one-man court, as "the

REALTOR OF THE WEEK

Bess Lyne Once Paid for Reading Mail

A native of Nebraska who followed the advice of men in her history books and came West is the Realtor of the Week, honored by the Long Beach Board.

Bess K. Lyne, whose office is at 2918 E. Broadway, came to Long Beach in 1938 for a visit and like so many others, decided "I had found heaven."

Bess finished high school in Nebraska with the highest honors and then had 3 years at Kearney State Teachers. During the summer she would succumb to her venturesome spirit and work in Yellowstone Park as a "savage" and at a dude ranch near Cody, Wyo.

BESS K. LYNE
Japs Awakened Her Dec. 7

World War II found her in Honolulu and she says she will never forget the morning of Dec. 7 when the Japs awakened her. And she'll always recall the days that followed. Volunteering for the war effort she went to work in the censorship department of the Postoffice and received five promotions in less than four months, achieving the distinction of being one of 6 censors out of 300 to be placed in the registered air mail department.

"I thought reading the mail was interesting, but that was before I got into realty," says Mrs. Lyne.

"In the process of my work I had the thrill of holding $1 million in my hands. I also was able to assist the Army in locating 2 men sought as spies, by examining a large suitcase full of old letters sent to New Jersey from the Philippines. I also was called on to translate an occasional letter from the Czech language to English."

Her hobby for 26 years has been collecting antiques. Among her objects of art is one of the finest collections in the city of Dresden, Meissen, and rare Chantilly French Biscuit.

Mrs. Lyne has been selling realty for 10 years and a member of the board since 1947, serving on various committees. She is vice president of the Wire Club, a group of women in real estate.

Mrs. Lyne and her husband, Elmer, have been married 27 years. He is a civil engineer with the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Their home is at 2525 Pine Ave.

MARTHA LAND
Her Means Realty

MARTHA LAND, the saleswoman of the week honored by the Long Beach board, has been greeting members at their weekly breakfast meeting for some time. Her warm handshake has made a hit.

With the name of "Land" Martha says she just had to go into the real estate business. And she has sold a half million dollars worth of properties.

After hearing that there is one Real Estate person for every 95 people in California, she wonders how she did it. It might be the result of finding 700 four leaf clovers during her life. P. J. Lumsden, 186 Glendora Ave., her "boss," says "She is on the ball." Last week she sold two pieces of property in one day.

Martha Land was born in Colorado. She went to the University of Washington. She has a "Five-Year Pin" from the Seattle Times, where she worked in the advertising department. She has been President of Alumnae organizations for Alpha Delta Pi

Whaley's New Terms Spur Sales in Los Altos Units

A sharp increase in the number of new home sales at Los Altos 23rd and 25th Units was noted during the past week, according to Lloyd D. Whaley of the L. S. Whaley Co., developers of the Los Altos community home additions.

The marked rise in sales, Whaley said, was due to the new low terms for veterans which were recently put into effect. The terms call for down payments as low as $800, plus costs and impounds, with monthly principal and interest payments of $76.01. Non-veteran terms include FHA loans as well as the unusual

"Customized Financing" plan, Whaley stated. "From all indication this brisk sales pace means that we will experience an early sellout in both units," said Whaley. "When a sellout does occur, there will no longer be any new home developments left in Los Altos."

Junior executive type 2 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes are featured in both the 23rd and 25th units. The homes offer color harmonized interiors, forced air heating to all rooms, fire alarm system by Minneapolis-Honeywell, natural birch hardwood cabinets and acoustical type plaster in every room.

Sliding doors of glass to patio areas also serve to bring an air of indoor-outdoor living to these contemporary styled homes which are situated on extra large lots.

WITH 12 DIFFERENT elevations and a variety of floor plans from which home buyers may make a selection, the Los Altos 23rd and 25th Units include such exterior features as 2-car garages with concrete driveways, large aluminum sash, genuine lath and plaster construction and colored aggregate rock roofs.

In addition, both units are located within the city of Long Beach and incorporated in them are all utilities. Curb, gutters, sidewalks and street lighting as well as tree-lined parkways are all in and paid for at each of the developments.

Model homes are on display at both locations from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. daily and Sundays. The 23rd Unit may be visited by driving east on Spring St. to Woodruff Ave. Directional signs posted along Spring lead to the model home site.

The 25th Unit is located just east of the Long Beach State College campus and may be reached from either Atherton or Stearns St. by turning south on Palo Verde Ave.

Cudahy Changes Remove Packing Firm From 'Red'

OMAHA (AP)—Cudahy Packing Co. announced the results of sweeping changes it has made in its business during the last two years—return "to a profitable basis with net income amounting to $2,702,755" for the fiscal year ended Oct. 29.

Cudahy reported a net loss of $7,162,254 for the 1954 fiscal year.

The return of operations to the profit side of the ledger was traced by the company to "major adjustments" of the last two years. During this time Cudahy closed a number of unprofitable plants and branches and made other changes in its producing and distributing facilities.

The dollar sales volume in the 1955 fiscal year amounted to $308,142,000 compared to $454,794,000 in 1954, the report said.

The 32 per cent decrease in sales was attributed to "lower prices throughout this year."

The report said the sales tonnage of edible products was "only 26 per cent less than in 1954 despite the fact that the units closed at the end of that year produced 40 per cent of the total dollar volume and sales tonnage."

The ratio of current assets to current liabilities was 2.1 to 1 at the close of the 1955 fiscal year compared to 1.74 to 1 a year earlier.

IN EASTCHESTER PARK

This is one model offered in Eastchester Park, Fullerton, where veterans may move in on $145 down.

Rain Doesn't Slow Eastchester Sales

Exceptionally good sales activity in spite of rain last week indicated that veterans are taking advantage of the new liberal financing at Eastchester Park, Fullerton, development, according to Mel Mack sales agent.

"For a limited time veterans may move into Eastchester Park by paying only $145 down," Mack stated. "Non-veterans may purchase for as little as $750 down."

"Veterans moving in these homes may have their appliances added to their loan without paying any additional down," Mack added.

"Eastchester Park homes of 3 and 4 bedrooms and 2 baths were designed for the growing American family. Mack pointed out. "Large rooms, ample closet space, oversized lots, fireplace in the 'ski-view' living rooms, barbecue in patios are some of the features."

Efficiently planned kitchens, appointed with Columbia steel cabinets and appliances in pastel colors, and bathrooms with Zolatone walls, Thermador electric heaters, stall showers and American Standard colored plumbing fixtures, are offered. Quality construction features at Eastchester Park include lath and plaster, rockwool insulation, weatherstripping, redwood siding and heavy rock roofs in 5 decorator colors.

Also included are: forced air heat, TV jacks, gutters and downspouts, 2-car garages large enough for ample storage, landscaped front and side yards.

Model homes are at Orange-thorpe and Nicklett in Fullerton. From Los Angeles, take the Santa Ana Freeway and turn east on Orange-thorpe to Nicklett. From Long Beach, drive the "ski-view" living rooms, barbecue in patios are some of the features."

BRISK SALES

California Garden Homes such as this built in Orange County by Anthony Kuri are selling rapidly with half of the initial unit already purchased.

Kuri's Garden Home Sets Fast Sales Pace

Over 60 per cent sold, California Garden Homes subdivision by A. Anthony Kuri continues to set one of the fastest sales paces in Orange County, agents report.

Outstanding features and choice location are strong sales boosters, the developers point out.

The exterior design of the 3- and 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes is an innovation to the home building industry, Kuri said. The 21 different and distinct exteriors are richly embellished with redwood siding, hand-tooled shutters and colorful planters.

The homes come completely fenced and landscaped and feature built-in dishwasher, range and oven, range vent hood, built-in convertible, hardwood cabinets, wall of glass overlooking entertainment size patios, sliding door wardrobes, covered Formica sink tops, and pool size lots, according to Kuri.

The homes are of transitional ranch and contemporary stylings, and may be purchased by veterans under no down payment 30-year terms, it was stated by Kuri, and are priced from $13,200. The 158-home subdivision is within walking distance of schools, shopping and public transportation, it was stated.

The furnished models may be reached from Los Angeles via the Santa Ana Freeway to Grand Ave. (Hwy. 39), then south to Cerritos and left two miles to models. From Long Beach, drive straight east on Spring, which becomes Cerritos, and to the furnished model homes.

Low Price, Location Make Hazelwood Homes Popular

Virtually "city homes" yet located in rural Orange County, Hazelwood Freedom Homes are seeing heavy sales daily, the developers report.

Located minutes from Long Beach, just east of the city limits on 7th St., the big homes are selling for $10,750.

The homes are 4-bedroom with two baths and veterans may buy them for no down payment except closing costs. Monthly terms are $54.94 per month, principal and interest. Low FHA terms are offered non-veterans.

The homes are just east of Long Beach on 7th St., the closest major Orange County development to the city.

Containing 1-510 square feet under the roof, the homes have 4 bedrooms, colored American Standard plumbing fixtures, 2 bathrooms, tile stall shower, big outside storage room, electric heater in bath, Youngstown Steel Kitchen cabinets, flush slab doors, gas furnace, rockwool insulation, steel window sash, and there is a large carport.

Quality hardware is used throughout and an abundance of cabinets has been provided. A large, attractive carport blends into the designing of the home.

Wood-burning fireplaces are available in some models.

"When the developer launched Hazelwood Freedom Homes and said he would sell 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes for $10,750, everyone said it couldn't be done," declared Sharon Atkins, sales manager.

"But he has done it and the homes are selling rapidly."

The homes are approximately 3 miles east of the Long Beach city limits and may be reached by driving east on 7th St. to the model homes located midway between Los Alamitos Blvd. and Huntington Beach Blvd.

The model homes have been furnished by Aaron Schultz of Long Beach.

Gold Fish Loss Break for Him

GOODMAN, Miss. (U.P.)—Norman King changed his mind about being stung on the goldfish he ordered back in 1927.

Snakes and turtles ate the goldfish in King's pond, but the weeds sent along by the hatchery have thrived these many years, and he claims the Shady Rest Fisheries is the nation's biggest dealer in aquarium plants.

King harvests 11 different types of underwater plants. He has sold as high as $1,000 worth of the plants in a single month.

Luxury Homes Still Offer Vet. No Down

Luxury living at low cost is making the Garden Grove development of "Luxury Homes" a mecca for home hunters, salesmen report.

The moderately-priced 4-bedroom, 2-bath and 3-bedroom, 2-bath homes are located at Brookhurst Ave. and Ball Rd. in Orange County, close to the freeways and super-highways that lead to Long Beach, Los Angeles, and dozens of other Southern California communities. Luxury Homes are the new custom-built contemporary homes that offer more than 44 extra quality features to their residents.

Veterans can buy a "Luxury Home" for "no money down," except impounds and closing costs. Veteran's payments for these 3 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes are as low as $62.99 per month, principal and interest.

F.H.A. terms are available to everyone. Twenty-five-year government guaranteed loans at only 4 1/2 per cent mean non-vets can buy these Luxury Homes with a minimum down payment, yet monthly payments are only $81.72, principal and interest. To emphasize outdoor living, all "Luxury Homes" are provided with large backyards that are fully enclosed with redwood fencing. Redwood trim is also in evidence to add a distinctive style to the front of each residence. Front landscaping, including individualized plantings are also included with every home.

Housewives are particularly pleased with the convenient work-saver kitchen that features a built-in oven and modern table-top range. The garbage disposal, easy-to-clean formica drainboards, and abundance of imported mahogany cabinets and a cozy built-in breakfast nook are also a part of every Luxury Kitchen.

The spacious living area is especially appreciated by young veterans and their families. Unusually large closets have been included to meet the needs of growing families.

There are 15 distinctive exterior designs and a variety of custom floor plans to choose from.

Shamrock Park Reports Sales Continuing Strong

Shamrock Park sales continue good, reports Frank R. Hart, sales manager of Walker & Lee, Inc., agent for the Garden Grove development.

"We are gratified to see so many sales being made to 'call-backs,' Hart stated. "This means that Shamrock Park homes are being bought by discriminating buyers who have shopped the market and come to the conclusion that Shamrock Park homes are the best buy for the money."

New financing at Shamrock Park permits veterans to move in by paying only $145 and at the same time getting their needed major appliances without the necessity of additional down payments, Hart pointed out.

Monthly payments are from $58.66, principal and interest, with total prices ranging from $11,575. A limited group of Shamrock Park homes are available to non-veterans on the popular rent-with-option-to-buy plan.

Shamrock Park Homes, with 3 and 4 bedrooms, 1 and 2 baths feature contemporary architecture in a variety of floor plans and elevations. Living rooms with walls of glass and fireplaces adjoin patios with barbecues.

To reach Shamrock Park model homes from Los Angeles, visitors may take the Santa Ana Freeway to Harbor and turn south. From Long Beach take 7th to Garden Grove Blvd., and turn south on Harbor.

BLUE BELL LIVING ROOM

Paneled hardwood wall, natural log-burning fireplace with gas lighter, a sliding wall of glass leading to a paved patio, accoustical ceiling and many other deluxe features make the living rooms of Blue Bell Manor homes the answer to the homemaker's dream.

Blue Bell Manor First Unit Is Nearly Sold Out

Sales of the first unit of Blue Bell Manor are rapidly coming to a close, but there are still a few of the fine homes left and buyers can move in before Christmas, according to Al Strasser, an officer of the Monogram Home Builders, developers. Purchasers of the final homes may still receive the bonus offer of free 5-foot high redwood fencing for the entire backyard.

Strasser explained, "credit for responsible persons can be approved within 24 hours by the lender, whereupon the buyer can move right in."

Veterans can move in for no down payment except for the usual impounds, and still have advantage of 30-year loans. Non-veterans can move in for as little as $990 down. FHA loans are also obtainable with the advantage of 25 year loans.

Selections are still complete in the second unit of the tract. Located on estate sized lots, the 3 and 4 bedroom homes are centrally located between the city and the beaches making the perfect place for all-year enjoyable California living at its best.

Interiors are well-planned with the homemaker in mind. Central hall plans provide easy accessibility to all of the well-arranged rooms.

The builders have maintained the price for the quality homes at $14,750 and $13,950. Joe Furr and Associates with offices in both Long Beach and Garden Grove are the sales agents.

Vets Need Only Closing Costs in Walnut Manor

Walnut Manor homes in Anaheim are meeting wide approval of home buyers because of added features and high-type materials used in the construction, report officials of the company.

The traditionally styled 3- and 4-bedroom homes are priced at $12,500 with low monthly payments, including principal and interest.

Veterans may still pay nothing down except closing costs and impounds, but this policy cannot continue much longer, stated Louis Herson, builder.

With rising building costs, identical homes in the next unit, which will open in about 4 months, will be priced at least $1,200 to $1,500 more, builders warned, and present terms will be impossible under government rulings.

Walnut Manor has an advantage in being close to metropolitan Los Angeles, yet carefully planned for a carefree existence. To reach the project go east on Santa Ana Freeway to Walnut St. (1 mile west of Harbor Blvd.). Left on Walnut, 1 block to furnished models.

RICH WALL PANELS

Interiors of Walnut Manor Homes in Anaheim have many features including the walnut paneling shown here. They sell at $12,500 with vets needing none down.

IN EXCELSIOR VILLAGE

Beechwood Bel-Air cabinets, built-in range and oven and washer-dryer are included in the kitchens of the second unit at Excelsior Village. The second unit, which opened last weekend in Garden Grove, is offered to qualified veterans for a move-in price of $125.

Excelsior Village Draws Many Buyers at Opening

Second week of the opening of driving straight out Westminster to Brookhurst Ave. Unit 2 of Excelsior Village is under way with good response, according to Don Coleman, sales agent.

The second unit is offered for a move-in price of $125 to qualified veterans.

Built-in range and oven, washer-dryer, forced air heat, Beechwood Bel-Air cabinets and the new Fire-Belle alarm system are all included in the four bedrooms, two-bath homes.

Situated on "pool-size" lots, the homes are part of a completely planned community with a shopping center to be built within walking distance of the homes and a school is located across the street from Excelsior Village.

The first unit has been sold out, according to Coleman, in urging buyers to make their selection early of the second unit.

Within a few miles of the Long Beach area, Excelsior Village is in Garden Grove. Four beautifully furnished models are on display and may be seen by

New Spray Found for Pear Insects

GENEVA, N. Y., (UP) — New spray materials have proved effective against the pear growers' worst insect problem, the pear psylla.

According to entomologists at the experiment station here, dinitro sprays are especially toxic to the eggs and young of the psylla. Parathion and some other phosphorus insecticides are highly toxic to both the eggs and adults. Parathion also can be used without danger of injury to foliage or fruit.

"Failure to control psylla at a reasonable cost has been a chief cause for waning interest in pear growing in New York state," the entomologists say.

The pear psylla lives over winter as an adult and appears in orchards the first warm days in early spring. It is soon after this and during the so-called "late dormant" period when the bud scales loosen but before many green leaf tips appear, that the first psylla spray should be applied.

Hereford Ruling

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UP) — The board of directors of the American Hereford Association passed a resolution that artificially bred calves could become registered Herefords only if the sire were alive at the time of the insemination.

Non-Vets Still Offered New Wonderland Homes

Despite record breaking sales of both conventional and contemporary design homes at Wonderland Homes, non-vets still have a chance to purchase the 3 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath dwellings.

"A number of homes earmarked for buyers on FHA terms are now being offered due to credit rejects of early buyers," a spokesman said.

"Because they were picked some time ago, these homes represent an unusually fine selection from among the many stylings designed especially for Wonderland Homes by Architect William M. Bray," he added.

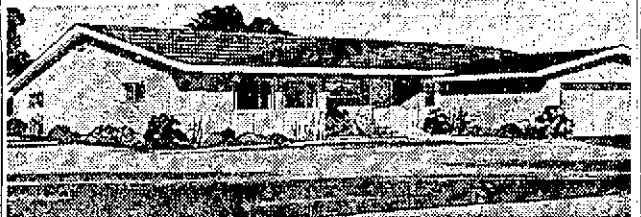

Located at the southwest corner of Ball Rd. and Walnut St. in Anaheim, the homes are available on long term FHA financing to both non-vets and to vets who have already used up their GI eligibility, it was explained.

Several homes are also now available to vets on terms of nothing down, except costs and impounds, with monthly payments from $64.43, including both principal and interest, it was noted.

Priced from $12,000 to $14,000, these homes feature 6 to 8 full-bearing mature orange trees on virtually every home site, the spokesman declared.

Available in 12 different floor plans, the homes incorporate living rooms with a complete wall of glass, with sliding glass doors and fixed floor-to-ceiling windows that overlook concrete terraces.

Wonderland Homes may be reached via the Santa Ana Freeway to Euclid Ave. in Anaheim, then south to Ball Rd. and east to Walnut St.

IN ANAHEIM

The above exterior exemplifies the many stylings in three and four-bedroom, two-bath homes rising in Wonderland Homes, Ball Rd. and Walnut St., Anaheim. Vets' and non-vets' terms are offered.

Barbecue in Kitchen Proves Skylark Hit

The new model introduced last week in Skylark Terrace's Town and Country Unit 2 which features the barbecue in the kitchen has been enthusiastically received by home buyers, according to Bill Tietz, president of Tietz Construction Co., developers of the Garden Grove subdivision.

"We put the barbecue in the kitchen because we know that today Southern California living demands a barbecue—while at the same time, outdoor barbecues have a limited use depending on the weather and the type of entertaining a hostess is doing. Now, the hostess can give barbecue parties in all kinds of weather. Many homemakers will use the barbecue in their daily cooking."

Skylark Terrace homes offer the "country estate" atmosphere along with the convenience of all city activities. Featured, and the subject of much enthusiastic comment are the all-electric kitchen equipped with built-in Hotpoint ranges and ovens, Hotpoint dishwashers, garbage disposals, exhaust fans, ceramic tile counter tops and natural birch cabinets.

The new Skylark homes are constructed on huge, estate sized lots averaging more than 80 feet in width and providing more than adequate space for barbecues, patios, badminton courts and even patios. Prices start from $16,330 and can be purchased with VA and FHA loans.

To reach model homes from Long Beach, just drive out Seaview St. (Garden Grove Blvd.) to Brookhurst and turn left. From Santa Ana, visitors are directed to drive out Memory Lane, which becomes Garden Grove Blvd., and turn north (right) on Brookhurst.

WALLS OF GLASS

This living room in one of the Skylark Terrace homes shows how builder Bill Tietz has used walls of glass for indoor-outdoor living.

Need of Community Won't Lure Industry

ORLAND (AP)—Gov. Knight has some advice for California communities desirous of attracting new industry.

"No industrialist worth his salt will build in a community simply for the purpose of reviving or improving the economic condition of that community," Knight told attracted only by what the community has to offer him."

Make sure your whole community is solidly behind the effort to get new industry, said the governor, and then get the facts about what your town or area has to offer.

PREVIEW BEGINS

Exemplified above are the three and four-bedroom, two-bath homes in the second unit of Homestead Gardens, which has its preview today on Verano St., about one-half mile south of Garden Grove Blvd.

Homestead Shows Homes in Another Unit

Preview showing of Homestead Gardens' second unit of 3 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes begins this weekend on Verano St., between Trask and Westminster Aves., in Orange County. It was announced by the builders who said terms and ease of qualification are certain to attract large crowds.

Active buying continues in Homestead Gardens' first unit on Trask Ave., between Wright and Cypress Sts., 2 blocks south of Garden Grove Blvd., where model homes with furnishings by Aaron Schultz are being displayed.

"Visitors to the model homes are greatly impressed, especially when they learn that terms for vets are nothing down, except costs and impounds, and non-vets are offered FHA terms with down payments from $950," a spokesman said.

Walker and Lee, sales agents, said: vets will pay from $56.49 a month and can qualify on earnings of $319 monthly. The development features landscaped lots of 7,200 square feet, thermostat controlled heating, 8-foot sliding glass wall, Modernized doors in many models, and snack bar in addition to the dining room.

Also featured are mahogany kitchen cabinets, Waste King garbage pulverator, steel case-

Auto Is Victim of Hit-Run Deer

IONIA, Mich. (AP)—Lawrence Niemeyer of Grand Rapids told police he was the victim of a hit-and-run deer. Niemeyer said the deer dashed from an underbrush and tried to leap over his car as he drove along the highway. The deer missed, hitting the rear of the car, and then got up from the highway and staggered into the woods. Damage to his car was estimated at $200.

in 1874, when the city of San Fernando was formed, town lots could be bought for as little as $10 each. Excursion trains brought throngs of people from Los Angeles to look at the new town, and those intending to become residents traveled at half fare.

Brookhurst Homes Setting Record in Sales

Record-breaking sales have been enjoyed at Brookhurst Plaza, Anaheim subdivision, according to Reno H. Sirrine, sales agent for the developers, R. & W. Construction Co.

"Non-veterans who have shopped the area for a new home have told us that the new 30-year FHA financing arranged at Brookhurst Plaza is definitely the most liberal that can be found," Sirrine stated.

"Under these terms non-veterans may purchase for as little as $1400 down, with monthly payments as low as $78 including everything — principal, interest, taxes and insurance. Veterans can still buy with nothing down, only impounds," he continued.

The 3-and-4 bedroom, 2-bath homes are priced from $12,900, 000 BTU in the four-bedroom homes and incorporate all the excellent features today's home-seekers demand. Included are: built-in Western Holly oven and places in the living rooms.

Large Fairview Ranchos Still on Veterans' Terms

Noting that luxury features inside and out have attracted home buyers to the 3-bedroom, 2 bathrooms and a den, 2-bath homes at Fairview Ranchos in Santa Ana in steadily increasing numbers, Frank Chandler of Pioneer Land Co., sales agents, stated that veterans may still buy these homes for a few more days on no money down except low costs and impounds terms on the final 30-year maturity loans. Monthly payments range from $65.13 and include principal and interest, Chandler added.

D. & E. Corp., builder-developers of Fairview Ranchos, believe the quality material used is a factor in popularity. Features include garbage disposal, range hood with fan, oak floors, plastered walls and ceilings; natural wood cabinets in the kitchen, service porch with room for washer and dryer; semi-automatic dishwasher, convertible in generous size breakfast nook and sliding glass doors to patio in most models.

California's Garden Homes have complete landscaping in 5 separate areas. Front and rear lawns are in and have sprinklers. The patio has redwood divider with seat and ornamental light. The rear yard is also floodlighted and the entire rear area is enclosed in a "basket weave" redwood fence.

Fairview Ranchos may be reached from the north by driving out the Santa Ana Freeway to Harbor Blvd.; turn south on Harbor to Edinger, then left on Edinger to Bristol and left again to the property.

From Long Beach take 7th St. (Garden Grove Blvd.) to Bristol, turn right 2 1/2 miles on Bristol to the model homes.

Report Heavy Orangewood Manor Sales

In spite of the rainy weather last week, Orangewood Manor enjoyed exceptionally good sales over the weekend, according to Thomas Helt, spokesman for the McCarthy Co., sales agents for the Garden Grove development.

"We believe that in Orangewood Manor we have the best home buy in Orange County," Helt stated. "Nowhere else, to our knowledge, can a veteran carrying as little as $295 per month qualify and buy a $12,750 home with so many luxury features as here and still on 'no cash needed' financing."

Monthly payments at Orangewood Manor are as low as $62.95 including principal and interest.

Among the many popular features in Orangewood Manor are: Kitchens with Roper gas ranges in pastel colors that match the Columbia steel cabinets, real fireplaces, and living rooms with ski-view walls of glass offer popular indoor-outdoor living. Big patios feature built-in barbecue.

Other features include: baths with Zelatone walls and asphalt tile flooring. Thermador electric bath heaters, stall showers and Standard colored plumbing fixtures; forced air heating, heavy rock roofs in five decorator colors, and exteriors of California redwood siding.

From Long Beach, visitors may drive out 7th St. (Garden Grove Blvd.) and turn north on Magnolia. From Los Angeles, take the Santa Ana Freeway, turn south on Magnolia and continue for four miles to Orangewood Manor.

A trio of stars will appear on the Maurice Evans show at 1 p.m. on (4) as the famous actor produces "Dream Girl" starring Evelyn Blaine, Hal March and Evelyn Varden.

The story tells of a girl who runs a bookstore but spends far more time day-dreaming and dramatizing herself than she does selling books. In consequence she experiences great confusion in sorting out the men in her life.

Hal March is a down-to-earth newspaperman, Evelyn Varden is the girl's mother and also seen will be Edmon Ryan as a "wolfish" bookman, and Don Symington as the brother-in-law with whom "Dream Girl" fancies she is in love.

GUESTING—George Meany, first president of the combined AFL and CIO, will "Face the Nation" on (2) at 1 p.m. . . . Former President Herbert Hoover will "Meet the Press" on (4) at 6 p.m. . . . Judith Evelyn is featured on "Alfred Hitchcock Presents" over (2) at 9:30 p.m. Mystery centers around a quarreling family, the appearance of the wife who secures a big carton "for mailing toys," she says, and the total absence of her husband. A detective is called in but is unable to enter the mysterious apartment until he dons a disguise and reveals the fate of the husband. . . . The strange story of a beautiful and gracious English girl who became one of the most successful gamblers of the old west is told on "Frontier" starring Joan Vohs at 7:30 p.m. on (4). . . . Words and Music

By JOHN B. CALLAGHAN

All kinds of people, young and old, are bawling out the "Blue Danube" . . . or picking out a Christmas carol . . . on the piano. This is the most popular instrument of all, both with children and with adults who are just getting started in music. Some say that it is one of the easiest instruments to learn. Moreover, it provides harmony, melody and accompaniment at one and the same time.

A fine piano is the musical gift of a lifetime. It's a gift that will bring joy to the whole family . . . not just to the child or adult who plays. And it's one gift you'll never get tired of . . . for the appeal of music, so strong at Christmas, is something that transcends time and special occasions.

Perhaps you've dreamed for years of owning a fine piano. We'd like to help you make that dream come true this Christmas. A piano is an instrument that should be selected with care. You'll want one whose design and style will blend with the setting of your home. You'll want one with responsive action and fine tonal quality that you like. You want an instrument which will be a thing of beauty you'll be proud to have in your home . . . and which will create the beauty of superb music. You'll find these qualities in our selection of Steingway, Everett and Cable-Nichols pianos . . . available on convenient terms. PENNYOWSLEY MUSIC CO. League Silver Ball Bids Happy Holiday Welcome

Wilson, Mrs. Mark Kuffel and Mrs. Vernon Brickey. The Silver Ball is a tradition with the league, and each year is arranged by provisionals for the total membership, their husbands and guests. Completing the lovely decorations were twinkling stars extended from the ceiling in shimmering sway. Charles Hurtay and his orchestra provided the dance music.

Manifest Symbols of Christmas

By JOYCE KENT

A dash of silver stardust — the scent of pine wafted on a gentle breeze — carols resounding in the distance. These symbols of the most joyous of seasons were manifested last evening to enchant and delight members and guests of the Long Beach Assistance League who gathered in the Cavalier Room of Lafayette Hotel for the League's annual Silver Ball.

Silver trees resplendent with green baubles and evergreen boughs spread holiday cheer to the dinner tables, while mobile stars sparkled their welcome from the ceiling. Yet despite their loveliness, decorations were over shadowed by the elegant ball gowns worn by league members.

The evening's danceable and listenable music was provided by Charles Hurtay and his orchestra, with instrumental numbers interspersed with enjoyable vocal solos.

From the moment guests gathered at the hotel for pre-dinner cocktails, until the last group of weary revelers trekked home from a post-ball breakfast hostessed by Mrs. Ansel Olson, the night was one to be long remembered.

Spearheading arrangements, and doing a commendable job, were Mrs. Gordon Dougherty and Mrs. William Clemo, active, assisted by a committee of provisional league members.

Leading the parade of elegantly gowned women were Mrs. John Rowe, league president, who chose rose peau de sole in ballerina length with a brilliant clip and matching wrap, and Mrs. Francis Housel, president-elect, who wore a gown of imported white lace over nude nylon net in cocktail length, with a cape of white ermine.

The quiet charm of Mrs. Kenneth S. Wing, vice president, was enhanced through her selection of cranberry and silver peau de sole beaded with crystals and rhinestones, and set-off by a silver blue mink stole. Mrs. John Brooks, secretary, chose a Sophie Original of navy Chantilly lace with jewel encrusted cowl neckline and mink wrap, while Mrs. Patricia Collins Cameron, treasurer, was in turquoise blue nylon net, fashioned in bouffant waltz length, with rows of black lace in apron

EXPRESSIONS OF DELIGHT on the faces of Assistance League members were happy accompaniment to their lovely gowns Saturday evening as they radiated their joy over being a part of a successful party. Provisional members, led by active chairmen, Mrs. Gordon Dougherty and Mrs. William Clemo, were in charge of the annual Silver Ball which took place last night at the Lafayette Hotel Cavalier Room for league members, their husbands and guests. Mrs. Gilbert Karste is seen greeting Mrs. Gus Swanson, center, and Mrs. Dan Dunlap. The three are league provisionals and took active part in planning the delightful dinner-dance, one of the Christmas season's most fashionable affairs.

Longtime Friends to Gather

Logs blazing merrily in the fireplaces will add their warmth and cheer to that radiated by the gathering together of long-time friends, when Mr. and Mrs. Allan D. Scherer entertain 75 couples at an open house from 7 to 10 p. m. Dec. 18 in their 5560 Anaheim Rd. home.

The guests, many of them newlyweds during the past year, others home for the holidays from colleges and universities throughout the country, will enjoy an evening of being brought up to date on events here and away.

A theme of white and gold will be used in decor to enhance the modern feeling of the Scherer home. A smoke tree with gold ornaments and tapers will frame a beautiful madonna as table centerpiece.

Assisting the popular couple will be Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Purvine, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lintz, Miss Donna Decker, Miss Joanne Kerr, William A. Sampson, James Bogle, and Mr. and Mrs. Carl B. Shank, parents of the hostess.

Dance Will Reflect Joys of Season

The sparkling glitter and festive gaiety of the holiday season will reign supreme at Lakewood Country Club Friday when Ebells Juniors stage their annual semi-formal Christmas Dance.

Promising to be one of the special social events of the club year, members and friends are eagerly anticipating the delightful evening being prepared for them by dance chairman, Mrs. Philip Erdahl, and her committee.

The shimmering, shining gowns of the ladies as they dance to the music of Jimmy Seitzinger's orchestra, will complement the beautiful decorations being prepared by Mrs. B. J. Quinn and her committee. Tables will be graced with huge frosty white candles accompanied by painted magnolia leaves to resemble poinsettias. In contrast, jolly rollicking Santa Clauses aglitter with tinsel garlands will add to the gaiety of the occasion.

Proceeds from the dance will be used toward the two philanthropic projects chosen by the club for the current year, aid for the Exceptional Children's Foundation, and clothing and aid for needy Navajo children. The dance is open to the public and tickets will be available at the door.

BEAUTY RIVALS

Lavishly gowned women and equally beautiful holiday decor will lend a touch of elegance to proceedings Friday evening when Ebells Juniors entertain at Lakewood Country Club with their annual Christmas dance. The semi-formal event is open to the public and tickets may be purchased at the door. Proceeds will benefit the club's philanthropies, Exceptional Children's Foundation, and clothing for needy Navajo children. Surveying a sample of party decor as they complete plans for the evening are Mrs. Philip Erdahl (seated on floor), dance chairman, and left to right, Mrs. William Guyser, Ebells Junior president; Mrs. Charles Brantingham, junior past president, and Mrs. B. J. Quinn, decoration chairman.

Caribbean Visit

Mr. and Mrs. Frende Combs and daughter Carolyn, 4282 Pacific Ave., sailed from New Orleans last week aboard the SS Alcoa Cavalier, luxury liner of the Alcoa Steamship Co. They are traveling to Port of Spain, Trinidad, where they will spend several days vacationing. Before returning to Long Beach they also will tour some of the other islands in the Caribbean. They spent a day sightseeing in New Orleans prior to sailing.

Music Club Coffee Hour

Changing from the traditional formal Christmas tea following the afternoon program, the Woman's Music Club this year will entertain with a coffee hour at 11 a. m. Wednesday in Ebells patio. At 12:30 o'clock the Choral Section, under direction of Arne Zahl, will sing Christmas melodies and lead in community singing of familiar carols.

Harvey Wagner, concert baritone soloist, will appear on the afternoon program at 1:30 in Ebells auditorium in "An Operatic Cruise" replacing the program originally scheduled. Mrs. Paul Lowder will be accompanist. The organ prelude will be played by Mrs. Ruth Nichol.

Holiday Tea

All members and friends of the Young Women's Christian Association are invited to a Christmas tea Dec. 19 from 2 to 5 p. m. in the YWCA. The staff will be in charge.

'U' Club Dance to Explain 'Operation Big Switch'

In an effort to acquaint their wives and guests with what will be their new "home" by the first of the year, members of the University Club of Long Beach will entertain with an informal preview dance from 8 to 11 p. m. Monday at the Towne Club.

Prospective members and the wives of current members will be thoroughly acquainted with "Operation Big Switch" through the use of large posters showing proposed changes in the building's floor plan and facilities. In addition, University Club members, resplendent in host badges, will be on hand to answer questions concerning the proposed purchase of the building, and to sign up new members.

Under the proposed plan, the expanded facilities will afford more opportunity for family events than is now offered at club quarters atop the Lafayette Hotel. Membership is open to men with two years residential study in a 4-year higher education institution.

Entertain at Yule Party

True Christmas spirit prevailed Friday when Mrs. Josiah S. Mertz and Mrs. Robin L. Hadley entertained 125 friends at a holiday brunch and bridge at Lakewood Country Club.

The warmth of friendship coupled with the traditional joys of the season, made the day a delight from beginning to end. The red, white and green color theme stressed throughout the day had its beginning in invitations sent to the guests. The bids, white with red lettering, were addressed in green ink.

Center of interest in the decorations was a long table holding gaily wrapped bridge awards. Santa Claus and his sleigh made their way between a pair of revolving Christmas trees to serve as table centerpiece. Quartet tables were draped in green and bore red and white centerpieces.

Assisting the charming hostesses were Mrs. Wilbur Lee Candy and Mrs. Lewis Van Winkle.

Wild Waves

By IOLA MASTERSON

Donder and Blitzen, Dancer and Prancer, Dasher and Cupid—Halley's Comet? This is a mental exercise we go through every December. The year we get it right will probably be the same one we have our Christmas shopping done by New Years. By the way, how's yours coming? Two weeks from today. Or, computed another way, 12 shopping days left. Left? Right? Go to your left, your right, your left...

Enough of gloom. Merriment's in order. Among the most treasured invitations of the week were those received from Dell and Don Berry and Jessie Lee and Don Malcolm, who put the word "holidays" in big, red letters for 135 friends with bids to a cheerful and lovely party planned for Dec. 21 at the Berry home, 4110 Country Club Dr.

Assisting the hosts and hostesses with their evening's gay duties will be Flo and John Brooks, Lana Ruzic, Ed Berry, Mildred and Jack Dorsey, Julia and Robert Helms and Eleanor and Herb Carlson. While we can't let you in on all the details, can say that the two Dons, one Dell and one Jessie Lee hope to have the Roger Bacon trio wandering about playing troubadour style all evening and that Pat Bartell is painting a Christmas scene on the big windows overlooking the patio as impressive as the stained glass of Notre Dame.

Recipe for a wonderful party. One part host and hostess (the brand is important, so if you want the best make it Betty and Bix Bixby); one part Christmas season; 60 well-dressed friends; an equal number of filled cocktail glasses; one bountiful hors d'oeuvres buffet. Mix all together gently and in good humor, then let stand for a couple of hours. This concoction will be blended Wednesday evening from 6 to 8 p. m. at 45 Dana Pl. The results will be, as always, delectable.

They kissed the children, patted the cats, whistled at their birds, waved goodbye and headed for Palm Springs Wednesday. That's what Helen and Bill Eastman did to celebrate their 17th anniversary. Friday they came home, kissed the children, patted the cats, whistled at the birds and unpacked their suitcases.

Did you happen to notice how wonderful it was between 11:30 a. m. and 1:30 p. m. last Wednesday? If you did you must have been among the 80 young friends of Pat Bartell and Shirley Planting, who were bidden to the Planting home, 5419 E. Anaheim Rd. for their truly elegant Christmas smorgasbord. Assisting the two smart young hostesses were Pat Craig, Barbara Rowan, Joanne Christensen, Sharon Adamson, Carolyn Raney, Sylvia Sherwood Jr., Jean Dunlap and Ruby Bothwell.

Hot spiced cranberry punch started the festivities which continued on a high note. Lots of bright candles, pine boughs sprayed gold, holly and bright garlands of Christmas red and green.

You know what Bobbie Burns said: "The best laid schemes o' mice and men gang aft a-gley." Apparently it applies to women, too. Good example is Virginia Utecht, who has been counting on the arrival of her brother and sister-in-law, Henry and Peggy Mjellern and their eight months old baby daughter for weeks. Just before they arrived last weekend Virginia up and had an emergency appendectomy and had to greet them from a hospital bed! The Mjellerns are here from Coco Beach, Fla. and will make California their home. Smart people!

One of the gayest and most enjoyable parties Winnie and Leo Dreher ever attended was given last weekend in Pasadena at the home of the Harold Bissners. Reason for their particular enjoyment in this affair, which was a cocktail buffet and reception, was because it was the official en masse celebration for all the architects who have just received their prized licenses as full-fledged California architects. Leo was among the men being so honored. He hangs his hat alongside John Duffy's in their partnership office.

Like a bunch of kids with a new toy (or a gang of fathers with new boys) were University Club members at their annual Christmas cocktail and buffet Monday at Towne Club—the smart quarters overlooking the ocean which the University men will make their own private club upon completion of purchasing negotiations.

Among those on hand, members and guests, to inspect the new "toy" and revel in the informal and friendly atmosphere of the clubhouse were Dick Shelley, Kelly Williams, "Bix" Bixby, Walter Desmond, Ken Rudd, Vern Smith, Don Sullivan, Craig Hosmer, Dr. Burns Chaffee, Dr. John Cottrell, Hugh Gibbs, Werner Ruchti, Jim Pino, Earl Hershman, Milton Roberts, Bob Shoemaker, Bruce Mason, Russell Pray, V. DeMott Sedgwick, Bob Barmeyer, Paul Southgate and a couple of hundred others including the Kiwanis Barbershop Quartet composed of Brewster Gray, Jack Hammond, Norm Masterson and Harry Christensen, who sang a few of their bubbling rhythms.

That "little-boy-lost" look has miraculously disappeared from "Ex" Boyette's face since the arrival back home of wife, Dorothy, last week. Dorothy and her mother, Mrs. Laura Service, decided a pre-holiday visit with Dorothy's brother and therefore, naturally, Laura's son, who makes his home in Greenwich, Conn., would be just the plain ticket. So they bought plane tickets and traveled. Gone three weeks, they were, and managed fun visits in Washington, D. C., New York and Maryland as well as the town where they make the time fly.

Holding up the old saying, "If a thing's worth doing, it's worth doing right," we'll change it, for the benefit of Lawyers' Wives to, "If a thing's worth doing, it's worth doing twice!" You see, the women's first holiday open house for their husbands last year at Pauline and Al White's home was such a howling success they up and planned another one for this year. It took place Friday at Flo and John Brooks Orangewood Acres home in Anaheim. Sure enough. Terrific again. Helen and Bob Buck were in charge and assisting the Bucks and the Brooks were the Keanes—Ruby and Bart. Ruby is LW president.

Bitter and Sweet Dept.: Season's joy was diminished by the departure last weekend of Jean Hunter for home in Ashton, Idaho. She's been visiting her mother, Mrs. Roland C. Lewis, for several weeks but now it was time to get back to fireside and Ralph. Ralph, himself, was here briefly over Thanksgiving from his publishers duties on the Ashton Herald.

"And this is good, old Boston
The home of the bean and the cod
Where the Lovells talk to the Cabots
And the Cabots talk only to God."

If that's the case let's hope there are some good old Smiths and Joneses around Boston for Val and Marta Moore to talk to! They left Tuesday for a visit to the capital of Massachusetts.

We Welcome

Sergeant, 'Platoon' Thaw Here

By JEAN B. MOORE

Place a Floridian in Alaska and what does it do? Shivers, naturally. Transplant it to Southern California, and then what? It thrives! This is top secret information and none of it must get to Florida or Ola Van Deusen's name is mud.

When she married into the Army she realized her existence would be somewhat nomadic, but the temperature extremes were something else to reckon with.

Summers at Ft. Richardson up there near Anchorage were mild. The winters—brrr. Many winter days during the three years she and her sergeant husband and their two daughters spent in the cold country the temperature dipped to a nasty 20-some degree below zero. That sort of thing was a bit rough on both the Van Deusens. Del, or Van as he's called in the Army, was born in Fresno, so it was an experience to say the least, that Alaska venture.

Since September they have been thawing out in Southern California. Van was a chief personnel clerk at Ft. Richardson and is doing similar work in the adjutant general's section at Ft. MacArthur in San Pedro. They make their home at 798 W. 29th St. San Pedro. They lived in Richmond, Calif., for about two years before going to Alaska.

The Alaska venture made somewhat of a heroine out of the Van Deusens' elder daughter, Janice. Most of the pupils in her first grade at Ft. Permin School have never been out of the state. Golly, to listen to someone who has been to Alaska, that's something!

Ola grew up in Hamilton, N. Y., and before her marriage did clerical work in Columbus, Ga., just over the state line from her home. She likes to sew things for herself and her little girls in Alaska, as here, she and her husband attend the NCO Club and the Protestant Chapel at the fort.

Further hush-hush information is Ola's opinion of California vs. Florida. In small letters, so as to offend no one, she

LIVED IN ALASKA

Funny how popular dad becomes when he's about to whip up a batch of candy. Dad in this instance is Sgt. 1/C Delmer L. Van Deusen who is stationed at Fort MacArthur. His lady friends, sporting their most infectious smiles as if to speed him up, are his family, Janice, 6; Ola, his wife, and Joanie, 3. Previously they were stationed at Ft. Richardson, Alaska.—(Staff photo by Mary Neiswender.)

—shh—finds life in California more interesting.

Van has decided to make the Army his career. Before World War II called him, and for a two-year period when he was again a civilian, he clerked in an auto parts store in Fresno. Off duty, Van likes to play golf, even in Alaska. June was a good month for the sport up Anchorage way. Photography is another hobby of the first sergeant. The interest started in the northern country, and he has many color slides to remind his family of their life there.

Alaska had two television stations during the Van Deusens' stay, but reception was fairly poor. Now that almost every channel has a program to offer in their new home, all four are having a good time catching up.

And if his girls are very very good, all three of them, sometimes the sergeant will putter about in the kitchen while they're watching a show. Pretty soon a wonderful fragrance emanates from that vicinity, and not long after that there's a plate set before them filled with the creamiest fudge or lightest divinity as only the sergeant can make it.

Doctors' Wives Dance Will Honor Former Staff Member

Dr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Klaumann will be guests of honor at the annual Christmas dinner-dance sponsored by Wives of the Internes and residents of the VA Hospital at 8 p. m. Saturday at Meadowlark Country Club. Dr. Klaumann, who practices medicine in San Fernando Valley, was a staff physician at the VA Hospital here for many years.

The Honey Bee trio will play in the banquet room where decorations in the holiday tradition will be in abundance. Dance committee members are Mmes. Frederic MacDuffee, George Selby, James DeLozier, Rudolph Chaney, Irving Bloom and Frank Steele.

The hostesses and their husbands will head the guest list which also includes Dr. and Mmes. John Bolander, Eugene Cahill, Arthur Drickman, Richard Devereaux, Frank Hoffman, Douglas Holman, Leroy Hyde, Paul Johnson, John Morgan, Donald Lindsay, Stanley Mounce, Robert Nejd, Arthur Reiter, Coyt Payseur, Irving Rappaport, Lavane Sansum, Eugene Tomkin, John Wagner, William Wenke, Donald Leik, Lawrence Gilliam, Winston Whipple and Drs. Edward Bjerk and Bill Adamson.

Buffet Luncheon

Ladies' Auxiliary to the Painting and Decorating Contractors Association will gather for a Christmas party Dec. 15 at 12:30 p. m. in the home of Mrs. Clifford Culp, 1540 E. 63rd St. Hostesses for the buffet luncheon will be Mrs. Clifford Culp and Mrs. L. H. Spanhower. Gifts will be exchanged.

DAR Meeting

The Rev. James Shields will speak on "The Spiritual Meaning of Christmas" when the Long Beach Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution meets Dec. 13 at 12 noon in the Lafayette Hotel. Days of Forty-Niners

LONG BEACH STATE COLLEGE EVENTS
by PLACER MINER

A most distressing situation at Long Beach State College is about to be remedied. If you are familiar with the State campus, the following explanation is superfluous. But there are two roads that run from the lower campus on Anaheim Rd. to the upper campus on 7th St., and neither of these thoroughfares have a name.

A contest open to all students at LBSC has been set up to give these channels for autos a name. Entries for the "Name the Road" contest may be placed in a sealed box in the Activities Office, and then the winning entry will be submitted to the president's council for final approval. Somehow it gets to be a winning entry between the sealed box and the prexy's council. Winner or winners of the contest will receive a pen and box of stationery from the college book store, and a classified or display ad from the Forty-Niner. Depend on it, when the winning names are announced they will appear here. Think how handy it will be if you are driving in a dense fog and you look up and see _____ written on a sign board. Now you'll know where you are.

Last night the annual Christmas dance for LBSC was held at the Pacific Coast Club with the theme "Winter Wonderland." Two large white Christmas trees were covered with blue lights and baubles, and the tables arranged in the shape of a star with table decorations of silver and blue to complete the decor. The hard working committee which made this dance a success, deserve some mention: Committee chairman was Connie Markel; Nellie Bell handled the dance bids; Shirley Clem and Elynn Wilson worked on the dance decorations; Doug Strong and Lynn Richmond arranged for the orchestra, and John Munley worked on the publicity.

Holiday cheer is starting to fill the Long Beach State campus and overflow onto the unnamed roads, what with the annual Christmas dance, the starting of tradition with the decoration of the yule tree, and the Christmas assembly for 1955. The program is sponsored by the Associated Women Students, and on tap for next Wednesday will be selections from "Amahl and the Night Visitor," the LBSC Choir, a short musical program from the deans of LBSC (?) and a short talk on the Bill of Rights.

Ceylon, Cuba, Denmark, France, The Netherlands and Sweden are calling for American students. Graduate scholarships and fellowships are being offered by foreign governments and universities to citizens of the United States. Interested parties should contact, the U. S. Student Department, Institute of International Education, 1 E. 67th St., New York 21, N. Y.

Christmas Eve of 1951 NBC television produced a modern Christmas opera before an audience of millions. "Amahl and the Night Visitors" in four years has turned into a Christmas classic. One of the reasons so many organizations like to try "Amahl" is that it gives them a chance to try something new and it presents a challenge in production, stage setting, choreography and lighting. The Long Beach State College Opera Workshop has scheduled "Amahl and the Night Visitors" for two productions next Friday and Saturday in the Little Theatre at 8:30 p. m.

The "Who's Who" of Long Beach State College will hit the campus tomorrow in the form of a student directory put out by the Tau Kappa Epsilon Fraternity. The book lists all LBSC faculty, students, their addresses and phone numbers. Over 5,000 names are contained in the Student Directory. Last year it sold for 25 cents to defray the cost of printing. The fraternity planned the book as a public service to the college.

The Psi Kappa Alpha, business and commercial fraternity, sponsored a film about the future last Thursday night. The literary world has its 1984 and Big Brother, but the National Chamber of Commerce has its film 1975. Based on a survey of businesses and industries that are working on projects for the future, the film showed such items as driverless automobiles, and electronically controlled kitchens. Earlier in the week the Honorable Craig Hosmer, Representative of the 18th Congressional District of California, spoke on the "Feather River Project."

CHRISTMAS IS COMING!
Wives of Navy Doctors Club will meet Dec. 14 for their annual Christmas party at Allen Center. Aware of the needs of others at this holiday time, the club has adopted two Navy families, each with a large number of children, and will supply them with a bounteous Christmas. Shown here wrapping gifts for the project are (from left) Mmes. H. V. Packard, chairman; A. F. Gardner, S. A. Ferdinand and G. J. Gehring Jr.—(Staff photo.)

Little Club to Install at Jolly Noel Party

This year, as always, altruistic members of Little Club, one of the city's most honored philanthropic groups, will pause in the busy course of their lives to share the goodness and pleasure of a Christmas party together. A few minutes will be borrowed from the gaiety of the day for the serious purpose of installing the new slate of officers at which time Mrs. Karl Hawthorne will be seated as president.

The annual party will be given in the home of Mrs. William W. Jenney, 4236 Country Club Dr. Wednesday beginning at 12:30 p. m. The warmth and beauty of the season will be typified in the decorations which will be predominately the bright reds and clear greens of Christmas with profuse use of poinsettias, leaves and candles.

Assuming new duties with Mrs. Hawthorne will be Mmes. Russell Manrex, vice president; Fred B. Miller, treasurer; Sterling Pillsbury, secretary; and to the board, Mmes. Ruth Craig Merrell, public relations chairman; John Halbert, production chairman; A. J. Danstrom, distribution chairman; James Craig, social chairman; and Mrs. Milton McGrew, outgoing president, who will serve in the ensuing year as chairman of ways and means.

This Christmas party is one of but two social affairs of the year for Little Club members who devote their time to making layettes for the needy throughout the months. For any mother-to-be in need of a layette, a single call will bring the needed baby raiment.

Among those members expected at the annual affair are Mmes. Frances Able, C. B. Belows, Winchell F. Boice, Thomas M. Rowan, Sterling Pillsbury, H. B. Nicholson, John W. Buol, L. V. Cassaday, William P. Nestle, R. G. Swaffield, H. Gregory Smith Jr., E. C. Richardson, John G. Clock, Fred Miller, George L. Craig, James G. Craig, John Craig

II, Milton McGrew, Ruth Craig Merrell, A. J. Danstrom, Paul H. Dudley, Russell Manrex and William W. Jenney.

Other members of Little Club on the invitation list are Mmes. Henry Dunn, Keith Enloe, Greg Hoskins, L. E. Geary, John B. Halbert, Laurence Updike, Herbert Waite, Charles Paddock, J. R. Jimeron, W. K. Hosking, Percy Hight, George Waldvogel, Charles Walker, M. S. Walker and Carleton Wallace.

VCC Setting as Waltzers Dine, Dance

Tradition reigns at Christmastime. The fragrance of greens permeates rooms aglow with candlelight, and shiny baubles reflect the gaiety of partygoers as they dine and dance.

Yuletide's merry sounds ushered forth from Virginia Country Club last evening when Viennese Waltzers celebrated the joyous holidays with a dinner dance.

Garlands of redwood branches aspartle with ornaments formed a festive background for the formal gowns as guests gathered in the lounge. Cocktails preceded the dinner.

On the dinner tables were red cone trees also bright with baubles. Couples danced to the music of John Brownings Orchestra.

Spongberg-Black Names Linked

Her parents' 24th wedding anniversary was the date chosen by Dolores Jean Black for her wedding Nov. 25 to Gary L. Spongberg. Solemnized in Lakewood Community Methodist Church, the double ring ceremony was read by the Rev. Mayvin Johnson before a company of 300 guests.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Black of Garden Grove, formerly of Long Beach. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Virgil L. Spongberg of 495 Market St.

The church was beautifully decorated for the 8 p. m. service with baskets of white China chrysanthemums and yellow pompons. The bride was escorted by her father down a bridal aisle outlined with the same lovely flowers and the glow of tapers in flower bedecked candelabra was reflected in gleaming white satin bows.

For her wedding, the bride selected a gown of traditional white. The fitted bodice of Chantilly lace featured long sleeves and sequins accented the portrait neckline. Sequin-trimmed medallions were applied on the billowing skirt of nylon tulle which swept into a full train. Pearls and sequins adorned a tiny pill-box cap which caught a fingertip veil of illusion nylon net. She carried lilies of the valley surrounded by a cluster of gardenias, centered by a detachable white orchid.

The bride's cousin, Mrs. Donald G. Kineade served as matron of honor. She was attired in a gold-colored gown of crystallette, styled with a bouffant skirt and bolero jacket, and wore a matching tiara and white lace mitts. Her nosegay of tinted gold and green pompon chrysanthemums was tied with matching satin ribbon and nylon net.

Bridesmaids, Mmes. Robert E. Egan, Errol F. Greenleaf and Lois Phillips wore gowns of the same hue and carried nosegays of gold-tinted pompons tied with gold and green satin ribbon and net.

Flower girl Linda Young scattered pink rose petals in a white runner covering the bridal aisle. Mark Spongberg was ring bearer.

The bridegroom's brother, V. Jay Spongberg, stood with him as best man; ushers were William Black, Doug Hurlbert and Dave Child.

At a reception in the church following the ceremony, the newlyweds cut a five-tiered wedding cake which was surrounded by miniature nosegays repeating the colors of the bridal attendants' bouquets. Mrs. R. M. Seldana obtained signatures for the bride's book.

The bride attended Woodrow Wilson High School and Fullerton Junior College; her husband received his schooling at Jordan High School and Brigham Young University.

The couple returned from a honeymoon in Las Vegas to establish their home at 1353 Ximeno Ave. on Dec. 1.

Holiday Party

Members of Group JA of Ebell, with their husbands, enjoyed a Christmas party at Allen Center.

Attending were Messrs. and Mmes. J. T. Ellis, R. H. Fulton, J. W. Grundy, R. F. Hilliard, H. W. Jordan, William A. Kirk Jr., Robert Leininger, C. G. Lowen, R. F. Ludlum, Roderick McClain, R. E. Montgomery, F. J. Pard, Robert Peck, J. J. Smith, C. A. Stevens, E. Thompson, W. A. Vance, R. H. White, N. R. Whitmer, J. F. Lineberger and J. H. Jeffries.

Hendersons Open House

Old Santa Claus himself greeted guests from the front door plaque at the beautiful new home of Mr. and Mrs. John Henderson when they welcomed more than 100 friends at a Christmas open house.

Pink snow glittered on a tree adorned with bright ornaments, adding a festive note to the living room of the residence at 2310 Pine Ave. Red carnations and glowing tapers combined with holly decorated the buffet supper table.

Assisting the Hendersons were Messrs. and Mmes. Albert Bristol, Arthur Green, James Herley and Robert Ivey.

The guests will truly revel in a "white" Christmas, thanks to the capable hostess who annually decorates her home in a clever motif appropriate to the occasion, and this year is using snowy white accented by brilliant red, symbolic of the season.

Assisting Mrs. Wagner will be Mrs. John E. Bauernschmidt. Those who will assist in serving the luncheon will be Mmes. Sidney T. Finkley Sr., Frederick Kellogg, Eugene C. Jones, John Henry Bryson, Fred A. Koester, Llewellyn Bixby Jr., Gordon Dougherty, Robert Mills, Lewis D. Reese, William Jensen, Dorothy W. Scott and Horace T. Fay.

The festivities will take on added meaning at the close of the day with the singing of Christmas carols by all, accompanied by Mrs. Robert C. McKissock.

Toastmistresses

An interesting program is planned for the Ardis Toastmistress Club meeting Friday at 7:15 p. m. in Lorraine's Coffee Shop. Mrs. William Coreghino will be topic mistress, and a workshop session devoted to parliamentary law is being arranged by Mrs. Paul Dilts. Miss Amy Wick will take the part of president in the skit with other club members assisting. A true or false quiz will be conducted by Miss Hazel Burns. Mrs. Earline Payne will conduct the session.

ANOTHER 'FIRST' AT LBSC

Zeta Tau Alpha Establishes Precedent at State College

Zeta Tau Alpha sorority has been invited to colonize at Long Beach State College, after the sorority had given official expression of interest to the college administration, announces Dr. Lois J. Swanson, associate dean of student activities.

The invitation issued to the Zeta Tau Alpha is in keeping with the established policy of State College in inviting sororities to colonize on campus as the existing sororities become stabilized.

The Long Beach State Colony is the first Zeta Tau Alpha to be established in the California State College system. Other Zeta Tau Alpha chapters in California are located at the University of Southern California, University of California at Los Angeles, and the University of California.

Locally, the new colony will have the support of a strong Alumnae chapter. The Long Beach Chapter of Zeta Tau Alpha was organized in 1937 with a membership of 15. Since that time it has grown to 43 members who represent 21 colleges.

The chapter is a member of the Southern California Federation of Zeta Alpha, and a member of The Long Beach Pan Hellenic Activities which have received support from the local group are: Have-a-Heart Bazaar, National Society of Crippled Children and Adults Orthopedic Hospital, Exceptional Children's Foundation, Long Beach Osteopathic Hospital, and Tucker Clinic. The organization also has furnished secretarial services to the International Council for Exceptional Children.

Several members of the sorority are currently enrolled at Long Beach State College. Helping to organize the colony is Miss Claudia Lorenz, National Chapter counselor.

Service Set Gyrates Around Merry Social Plans for Jolliest of Christmas Holidays

By VIRGINIA NEWTON

The magic time of gay anticipation is here and with it many parties and sparkling events. Two important service set clubs have announced wonderful yuletide dates. The Coast Guard Officers Wives Club on Tuesday, Dec. 20, have a Christmas luncheon party at 12:30 p. m. at Allen Center with Mrs. W. E. Ireland and Mrs. E. V. Carlson as hostesses.

The Christmas luncheon party of the other popular club, the Nautical Club, will be on Dec. 15 at Allen Center. At noon members will be greeted by the senior hostess, Mrs. Philip Ruth, president, assisted by Mrs. H. Koons and E. O'Brien. Members are reminded to bring gifts for an exchange of gifts, and canned goods for their Christmas baskets for needy families.

Both clubs also are having evening parties. The Nautical Club will welcome husbands and guests on Dec. 14 at the cocktail hour at Allen Center. Then on Saturday, Dec. 17 all officers of the 11th Coast Guard District and those attached to ships in this area will join their wives and guests for the annual Christmas dinner dance of the group. It will be a gala affair and will be held at the Officers Club, Fort MacArthur.

New residents here from Japan in time for a wonderful Christmas in the United States are Comdr. and Mrs. William Kitch and family, who are now at home to their friends at 231 San Remo Dr., Naples.

Lt. (jg) and Mrs. Chester Tweedie are telling the world about their first arrival, pretty little Pamela Ann, who weighed in at 6 pounds 12 ozs.

Last night Lt. and Mrs. R. W. Banfield entertained in their home at the cocktail hour with a gay holiday event. Attending were officers attached to the USS Mathews and their wives.

Not to be forgotten in the exciting club plans for the yuletide is the attractive Christmas luncheon party planned by the Officers Wives Club of NAS, Los Alamitos for Thursday, Dec. 15 at the BOQ aboard the station.

Hostesses for the day will be Mmes. W. F. Proper, O. Skartland, and L. E. Ragan.

Reservations should be made as soon as possible with Mrs. J. F. Daly of 222 East First, Apt. 2. Members are reminded to bring food donations for the club's project—needy Navy families.

Then, with the holiday spirit riding high, the group has planned a buffet supper party to welcome husbands and guests on the evening of Dec. 18 at BOQ.

And speaking of popular and busy clubs, the Mine Force Officers Wives Club members will enjoy a pretty yuletide luncheon on Friday, Dec. 16 at Allen Center. Hostesses will be the newly elected officers. The event will honor their newest member, Mrs. M. E. Murphy, wife of Rear Admiral Murphy, Commander, Mine Forces, Pacific.

It'll be a white Christmas for Lt. Comdr. and Mrs. W. H. Auerswald and daughters Susan and Linda who are flying back next week to Bridgeport, Ill. to be the Christmas house guests of the naval officer's mother, Mrs. M. F. Auerswald.

Monday night was Capt. John Schwanger's birthday so Mrs. Schwanger went right ahead and baked a cake and planned a celebration; and sure enough Capt. Schwanger and his buddies flew in from Peru right on time. On hand to greet their husbands' return with Christmas wondrous from Peru were Mmes Edward Goodrich, Clyde Sikes, and Robert Peterson.

Looks like Harvey Way out in Lakewood is going to be known as the street of Admirals. Newest admiral to purchase a home there is Rear Admiral William Winter Jr., USN (ret) and Mrs. Winter, daughter Doreen and son William Malcolm Winter, who are now at home to their many friends at 5315 Harvey Way, right across the street from Rear Admiral George J. McMillin, USN, (ret) and charming Mrs. McMillin.

The Winters are delighted to be here for a Christmas in the United States, for they but recently came from Athens, Greece, the last duty station Winter held before retiring.

Another reason they are so pleased to be here is that when young Ensign Winter years ago reported for his duty aboard the old Oklahoma stationed in Long Beach, he brought his bride here and they vowed they'd return and retire to this wonderful city.

Last Thursday the wives of officers attached to Destroyer Squadron Nine enjoyed a delightful Christmas luncheon party at Allen Center. Wives of officers attached to the staff were hostesses. They were: Mmes R. L. Nolan Jr., who was assisted by Mmes J.S.C. Gabbert, M. W. Walton, J. R. Thorndyke, W. R. Howard, and G. D. Hale.

Mrs. Gustav Kraft entertained at a pretty dessert bridge party at her home last week in a farewell to her guest of honor Doris Wolfe who is leaving shortly for Japan.

And speaking of the Far East, Capt. Robert Oblinsky, who will go to Palm Beach, Fla., for two months temporary

Air Force Duty, will early in next year head for duty in Japan. Mrs. Oblinsky and the children are making exciting plans to follow.

The Fleet Officers' Wives Club members and their guests enjoyed a Christmas coffee last Thursday morning.

Lt. and Mrs. Dale Cress entertained last night at the cocktail hour for a group of friends who gathered at the BOQ, NAS, Los Alamitos.

Lt. and Mrs. Melvin Blixt have as their house guests Mrs. Blixt's mother and sister, Mrs. Lucille Titman and Pat from Aurora, Neb.

Going back east for a white Christmas are Lt. and Mrs. D. G. Sunberg who will go to Minnesota, and Lt. and Mrs. J. P. Hannigan who are heading for Missouri.

New members welcomed at the Christmas luncheon party of the Long Beach Air Force

Officers Wives Club were Mrs. Ronald Levy and Mrs. Vernon Peters.

Newlyweds Lt. and Mrs. F. Eickler of the Air Force set moved into their lovely new home in Westminster last Friday.

Comdr. and Mrs. B. A. Miles and family returned from a most exciting trip far down into Mexico.

Ensign and Mrs. Elton Curran of 42½ St. Joseph Ave., entertained at a buffet dinner party. Lt. (jg) H. G. Steckley, whom Ens. Curran relieved on the USS Summitt County, and Mrs. Steckley. The Steckleys have as their house guests, the Navy officer's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin E. Steckley from Nebraska.

Dr. E. C. Drews of NAS, Los Alamitos and Mrs. Drews are proudly telling everyone about their holiday gift, their new baby, pretty little Colleen Elizabeth.

Sparkling Luncheon

Silver, gold and white will set the color theme for luncheon tables at Virginia Country Club Wednesday when the auxiliary to the Children's Memorial Hospital enjoys its annual yuletide fun fest. Santa, resplendent in a white and gold suit, will ride a sleigh, drawn by prancing white reindeer, down the center of the table.

In charge of the event will be the hospitality committee, headed by Mrs. Leo McCreary. Her co-hostesses are Mmes. Romaine Akers, Paul Barnes, O. K. Hoffman, W. F. Myers, Kelly Kirkwood and Virgie Rothwell. Sally Cannon, vocal soloist, accompanied by Mrs. Fern Bonzer, will furnish Christmas music.

Medical Assistants, National Secretaries in Party Mood

By Anne Gilchrist

They will doff their white uniforms in favor of party dress and exchange the clean aura of antiseptics for the sweet odor of perfume. "They" are Medical Assistants who will gather en force tomorrow evening at the fashionable new Petroleum Club for their annual Christmas dinner party.

Hostesses of the evening planning festive party accoutrements are Marsha Smith, Mildren Carleton, Margaret Lorenzen, Ella Esposito Wilson and Anna McPhail. Virginia Mitchell will have charge of community carol singing.

There will be the usual exchange of gifts between the assistants and all will bring tree decorations, canned food and money contributions for Christmas remembrance for their "adopted" needy family at the holiday.

National Secretaries

Members and guests of Queen Beach chapter of National Secretaries officially opened their holiday season with the group's annual Christmas party Tuesday at Kennedy Center, U.S. Naval Station. White Christmas trees and glittering snow scenes were lavishly used throughout the clubrooms. Organist Ray Whitaker provided appropriate musical background to the evening.

President Marie Wells introduced three guests from the Los Angeles chapter including Miss Dorothy Devlin, president. Highlight of the party is always the revealing of the year's secret sisters which is accomplished with the distribution of gifts from the sister-member who has provided courtesies throughout the year.

Not forgetting others, each secretary brought foodstuff for the Christmas charity project to be distributed to patients of Long Beach General Hospital who are able to go home for the holidays. Vervyl Sumrall is in charge of the second part of the holiday project; buying toys from the chapter for the Children's Ward at General Hospital.

Quota Club

Ballerina Room of the Lafayette Hotel was setting Monday for the meeting of Quota Club. Rita Stanfield, vice president and chairman of the club's civic and community affairs committee, introduced guest speaker Judge Roberta Butzbach who recounted some of her experiences as a judge. Although they ranged from the sordid and tragic to the pathetic and to the ridiculous, it was evident this very feminine and attractive woman was able to maintain a true sense of balance and values despite the mental hazards of her occupation.

Program music was furnished by Beulah Sanders and her all-girl barbershop quartet.

Margaret Ives BPW

A full evening of business discussion and plan making occupied members of Margaret Ives Business and Professional Womens Club when they met at the YWCA Monday. With President Hazel Hamilton conducting the meeting, Mabel Crossley, chairman, gave the final reading of amended by-laws for consideration. Plans were completed for two holiday parties, both of which will take place at the home of Miss Lillie Lee, 2254 Cameron St. First will be a buffet dinner dance tonight to which 50 foreign students studying in Long Beach will be special guests. The international relations committee, of which Miss Lee is chairman, is sponsor of the affair.

The second party will be the club's annual Christmas affair for members and will take place Dec. 19 to be arranged by the recreation committee with Mrs. Marguerite Wood, chairman. Members will bring toys for the "Toys for Tots" Marine Corps project. Games, exchange of gifts and special refreshments will conclude this evening. Novel idea for the gift exchange this year: each person must wear the article she brings for another.

Zonta Club

When Vivian Showalter, president of Zonta Club, opened her home for recent board meeting, two considerations were uppermost . . . to decide how the club could make Christmas a little happier for those less fortunate and to add a few happy surprises to Myranna Coon's luggage. Mrs. Coon, after an absence of 29 years, left by plane last Sunday to spend Christmas with her family in London and Wales. A past president of Zonta, she plans to remain abroad until early in January.

Why Grow Old?

Here Are Important Facts to Know About Exercise

BY JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Everyone should know the following, well established facts about exercise:

1. Exercise is one of the factors which contributes greatly to physical fitness. But remember, capacity for exercise differs with the individual. Sometimes even young people do not react well to it.

2. Your ability to recuperate after exercise is a good gauge of how much you should take, whatever your age. If you are tired and weak following exercise, even after a rest period, you are doing too much. If your heart and breathing are still too fast after 10 minutes following exercise, you do not react well to it.

3. Hard competitive games should not be played after the age of 30 or 35 unless you have been playing them constantly and are accustomed to them.

4. If you are out of training you should not compete with those in training or with those much younger than you.

5. You should have your heart and blood pressure checked before beginning any course of exercise.

6. The improved circulation which exercise demands makes the heart stronger and more efficient. Prolonged inactivity does just the opposite.

7. If you are "soft" or out of condition you will need a conditioning period. By this I mean that you will have to begin exercise very slowly and build up the amount you do very gradually.

8. Swimming and golf are two sports you can profit by at any age if you are moderate.

AAUW Christmas Tea Today

The lovely home of Mrs. Ruth Craig Merrell, at 4201 Chestnut Ave., will be the setting for the American Association of University Women's Christmas tea today, from 2 to 5 p. m.

A huge spray of glittering silver balls will form a canopy over the tea table in the dining room, and beneath it a candelabra of balls with two flaming wassail bowls at each end. With the wassail will be served tiny Christmas wreath and holiday cookies with red and white frosting.

Santa Claus and his sleigh and reindeer on the railing of the staircase will add bright color to the entrance hall, while sprays of colored balls with greenery and clouds of angel hair will carry out the Christmas motif in the spacious living room. Tucked away amid the decorations will be a manger scene with tiny wax figures of the Madonna and Child, angels, wisemen and shepherds.

Arrangements for the tea have been made by Mrs.

Arthur Huey and her committee, and pouring at the wassail table will be Mmes. H. W. Funke, Franz B. Buerger, Frances N. Nielsen, George L. Geiger Jr., Robert Shoemaker, Frank Hardesty, Claire Becheraz and Miss N. Evelyn Davis.

Heading the receiving line, in gay formal, will be Miss Hazel Collins, president of the club, and some of the members of her board.

Chef of the Week

Sailor, Soldier---and Cook, That's Librarian Castagna

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
Independent Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

He champions life in most of its various aspects, and his range of interests is wide. An inquiring mind, and a versatile appreciation of things, events and people, have produced a well balanced, well informed and interesting person. Chef of the Week Edwin Castagna can enjoy a bull fight, a ballet or a political convocation with the same knowledge of each as on a par.

"The Egg and I" narration has a special meaning for Castagna, for he was born at Petaluma, Calif. . . . the land of the super egg supply. At the age of 17, upon completion of Petaluma High and Santa Rosa Jr. College, he went to sea; and as a deck hand, toured the South Pacific, the Fiji Islands, Samoa and Australia.

His decision to conclude his sea voyage and return to college was simultaneous with the big depression. But he won at all odds, and in due time received his library degree at U. C. Berkeley.

Somewhere in his busy life, World War II overtook him, and he volunteered for combat duty as a private. Three years and three campaigns later, he emerged with the bars of a captain. For his activities beyond the call of duty, he was the recipient of both the bronze star and the purple heart.

Castagna's first library assignment was at Ukiah, Calif. After that came Washoe Co., Nev., his headquarters being at Reno—then Glendale, Calif., as chief librarian, and finally Long Beach in 1950, as City Librarian, the position he now holds.

Were we to attempt an evaluation of his present hopes and aspirations, we'd say, "first—he wants a brand new library building and the best possible library system for Long Beach. Secondly, he is constantly keeping a keen and active desire at work in behalf of world peace. A member of the American Association for United Nations, he serves Long Beach as president of its local chapter.

Our "chef" has other propensities, too. He's a writer. Not only has he authored a book—"The History of the 771st Tank Battalion," but has had many of his articles published in professional magazines.

He has a way with seasonings, too, which he no doubt inherited from his French mother. He can whip up a breakfast with a gourmet's touch; and his sautéed chicken dish is a rare concoction. Today, he has combined his seasoning abilities into a dish which he calls Castagna Spaghetti. Here's how he does it:

CASTAGNA SPAGHETTI

4 tbsp. chopped parsley
4 onions, chopped
3 cloves garlic, minced
1/2 cup butter
2 tbsp. salad oil
2-8 oz. cans tomato sauce
2-8 oz. cans tomato paste
2 tsp. Worcestershire
1/2 tsp. oregano
1 lb. ground beef
1 lb. long spaghetti
Parmesan cheese

Cook parsley, onion and garlic in hot fats until soft. Add tomato sauce, tomato paste, Worcestershire sauce, oregano. Add browned meat. Cover and cook slowly 3 hours. Cook spaghetti in boiling, salted water; drain and rinse in hot water. Pour sauce over spaghetti; sprinkle with grated Parmesan.

Juried Show Opens at Reception Today

By VERA WILLIAMS
Independent Press-Telegram Art Editor

The 1935 Long Beach Juried Show opens with a reception for artists and their friends from 1 to 6 p.m. today in the Municipal Art Center, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd. The show, principally paintings with a few pieces of sculpture and some crafts, will remain in the Art Center through Jan. 15. Hours are Tuesday through Friday, 9-5; Sunday, 1-5.

Exhibitors are Olive Butterfield, Herbert Lyons, Ethel Christensen, Nels Nelson, S. Michaels, Robert Klassen, Evelyn Carpenter, George James, Elizabeth Zackheim, Pat Bartell, Fran Soldini, Mildred Beckstrand, Margriet Vermin Van Loon, Katherine Conover, Charles Faddock, Richard Wolford, Jim Knibb, Jay Meuser, Jan Neely, R. K. Gronendyke, Fred Meier, Alvin Beller, Robert Orlicb, C. B. DeVine, Lois Cytron, David Cytron, John Martin, Thomas Ferreira, Pamela MacDavid, Marilyn Prior, Janet Fuller, Kathryn Courson, Billie Hamill, Ann Wolverton, Doug MacFadden, Sarah Richardson, John Bassham, Robert Adams, Lucille Brown Greene, Vic Smith, Elaine Shears, Elizabeth Zill, Howard Clapp, Robert Houdek, Elsa Warner.

Judges' commendations were Lois Cytron, "California Coast"; Fran Soldini, "Pattern With Red Boat"; Howard Clapp, "Octane Power"; Elizabeth Zill, colored etching.

Studio-Workshop Art Gallery, 127 E. 1st St., announces its Christmas show, featuring the work of John Martin and Orval Dillingham, instructors at Long Beach State College. The show will open with a reception from 4 to 8 p.m. today. Critics praise Martin for his clear colors and sharp silhouettes, and Dillingham for the warmth of his paintings. The show will remain in the Studio-Workshop through Jan. 1.

Vic Smith, graduate of Long Beach State College with a master's degree in art, has his first one-man show in the county medical office, 8th St. and Pine Ave., where it may be seen this month 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. He is showing eight oil paintings and a drawing: "Aged Lovers," "Haleyon," "El Toro Blanco," "Self Portrait," "Portrait of My Father," "Tryst," "Crux," "Moon Scar" and "The Guitarist."

Smith has exhibited at the Long Beach Art Center's annual juried show where he received the judges' commendation award for design, expressive quality and technical competence. He exhibited in this year's California state fair.

John W. Olsen, coordinator of art at State College, says of him: "Vic Smith approaches paintings as a means of understanding as well as recording human experience. A certain emotional energy is revealed in his attempt to record, but his essential expression is tempered and clarified by a more formal yet equally urgent need to arrive at intellectual understanding and unification of experience."

While savoring a dinner featuring the famed ham and mushroom casserole dish of the hostess, Dr. Marela Sneden, the Long Beach Art Association board culminated its plans for the organization's annual Christmas dinner meeting at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 20, at Hoofly's Belmont Shore restaurant, 4911 E. 2nd St.

The dream fantasy, "Hansel and Gretel," will be dramatized in a marionette production by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kunkel.

Table decor in dark green holly, vivid red berries and satin bows, the frosty gleam of silver and the glitter of gold expressive of Christmas tradition will enhance the cuisine arranged by Mrs. Lee Ison, hospitality chairman, through whom dinner reservations may be made.

President James Lang, will welcome association members and their guests.

Hostesses will be Mrs. Lee Ison, Miss Gretchen Jones, Mrs. William Reid, Mrs. Katherine Hayes, Mrs. Robert Van Buskirk, Mrs. Idell Brooks and Mrs. C. D. Richardson assisted by King Hall.

Forty paintings of the Long Beach Art Association will comprise the January invitational show in the downtown store of Duncan, Vail Company, 637 S. Olive St., Los Angeles.

The show will be punctuated by a series of lectures and demonstrations at 1 p.m. each Saturday. On Jan. 7, Robert Klassen will demonstrate watercolor technique; Jan. 14, Mrs. Lucille Brown Greene, casein; Jan. 21, Mrs. Florence Gendron, crafts; Jan. 28, Ben Messick, oils.

Limit in size of show will necessitate submitting pictures to a selection committee.

Christian Gronfeldt will assist the special exhibit chairman, Mrs. Athena Hall and her committee, Mrs. O. S. Lindenberg, and William A. Fitzmorris, Jr. in assembling and transporting pictures.

settis and Cape Cod and a look at the wintery side of the Christmas season. They'll be back Tuesday or Wednesday. Actually, they don't worry about the Cabo, the Lowells—or even the Lodges—because they are very special guests of Val's cousin.

Virginia Dickie has been going around pinching Christmas trees. If she finds one so fresh it pinches back she'll buy it, content that it will last from now to Dec. 25. You see, she'd like to have one up for the holiday buffet she and Charles are having Thursday. Among the 24 guests, close personal friends, who will be present for the cozy party are Connie and Phil Putnam, Peggy and George Cain, Evelyn and "Kirk" Kirkeing and "Rick" and Lowell Bowton.

"Adios" said Helen and Bill Ward to house guests, Antonio and Sara Zorola last weekend as the charming pair from Mexico City, who visited here with the Wards for two weeks, left for their home south of the border.

The holiday got off in a blaze of glory for friends of Gwen and Deon Jones, 4520 Corritos Dr., last night when the cute pair entertained at a Christmas-flavored cocktail party that practically sent everyone on their way feeling like they had jingle bells on their toes!

LuVailean Poetry Club will meet Tuesday from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Municipal Art Center. Poetry workshop session and reading of Christmas poems will be featured. The meeting will be open to the public.

Key Your Gift Selection to Recipients' Interests

By ANGELO PATRI

Christmas is the day we honor children by giving them the things we hope they would like to have. Following the example of the Magi, one gift is for practical use, one for the soul, one for unadulterated pleasure. For these we search the shops, always keeping in mind the child for whom the gift is intended.

There is something here to think about: one is likely to select the gift one likes himself or one which he wants the child to like regardless of the tastes, ability or desire of the child. That sort of gift spoils Christmas, as the gift of piano lessons for a year ruined the Christmas of a boy who yearned for a sports outfit.

The gift of useful articles like clothing is usually acceptable if the child's tastes have been considered. When Auntie wants to give her beloved niece a sweater, she should make certain that it is in style of the right color and pattern. When grandmother wants to give his favorite grandson a watch, he had better consult the parents as to the lad's wants or needs. The boy's heart may be set on a stop watch, and what a grief to open the box and find a wrist style when he already has one! Checking along this line can be a great help.

The gift for the soul, and how important that is, should be a book. The selection of the book should be given a thorough period of research. It ought to be a book that accents an ideal. It must be a book that the child will read without tiring effort. That means his tastes are noted, that the book itself is well made as to paper, binding and type; that the story itself has been done by a top writer, an authority in his field. Select one just a shade easier to read than the youngster's grade in school or college would indicate. This book is to be read easily rather than used as a text.

Now comes the gift for pure pleasure, a bit of a luxury for the child, something he would not have ordinarily. The gift doll for the little girl should be as unusual as possible, have something about it that is not common to dolls. The toy for the runabout should be gay, allow him to do things with it such as building, hauling, riding—not just to hold or to look at. And, of course, it must be a safe article, without cutting edges, or point that might be harmful if a youngster licked it off.

NUPTIAL MASS

Making their home in Long Beach following their wedding in St. Columban Catholic Church, Garden Grove, are Mr. and Mrs. John W. Flannery. She is the former Alphonsine Louise Troch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alphons Troch of Garden Grove; her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Flannery of 420 Plenty St. The bride is a graduate of St. Anthony's High School; the bridegroom received his education at Hammond, Ind.

The pleasure gift for a boy is usually a sports article—balls, bats, gloves, racquettes, golf clubs—something just for fun. Again the gift must be related to the tastes and the abilities of the child.

That's the whole idea of Christmas. This feature appears daily in the Independent.

Look Who's Dancing

(These articles will appear regularly in Sunday's Independent, Press-Telegram to announce meetings of invitational dance groups at Fine Arts Center.)

Dancers currently assembling at Fine Arts Center will be greeted with a holiday decor aglow with all the colorful brilliance of our merriest season set to the tempo of swing time. The results of hours of exciting preparations for special party features keyed to the yuletide mood will be revealed when 13 of the groups attend scheduled meetings this week.

Can a Future Messiah Better Jesus' Teachings?

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Case Q-318: Martin L., aged 34, is a very successful Chicago business executive.

"Dr. Crane, I am a Jew," he announced after my Bible class recently. We happen to live near this church and I saw on the bulletin board that you are the teacher.

"Since I follow your column regularly in the Chicago paper, I wanted to hear you in person. My wife and I are both Jews. And we have two children. But we don't go to church regularly anywhere.

"I like the way you teach a Bible class, so what would you suggest I read to gain a better understanding of the Christian religion?"

Please remember that Christianity is a Jewish religion. It was launched by the King of the Jews, namely, Christ. And all 12 of his Apostles were Jews. Even to this day, many of the best Christian leaders.

Sunday school teachers and clergymen are Jews.

Remember, too, that Isaiah predicted with remarkable accuracy the crucifixion of Jesus over 700 years before it happened. That may be why the Three Wise Men were so well informed of the expected event, for Isaiah's prophecy was undoubtedly known all through the civilized world.

During World War II, Dr. Caver reports a convocation of Christians and Jews among the soldiers at an army camp. At the conclusion of the mass meeting, a thoughtful Jewish lad asked the Rabbi in the foyer: "Is this Jesus they've been talking about today, our expected Messiah, or must we look for another?"

The Rabbi replied that Christ was a great man but not the predicted Messiah.

Then the Jewish soldier asked this provocative query: "Rabbi, what would our expected Messiah have on Jesus? so what are we waiting for?"

"Read the four Gospels of Matthew, Mark, Luke and John," I thus suggested to Martin, "and see what you think. You are an educated man. See if you can suggest even one trait that a future Messiah should possess that hasn't already been demonstrated in the portrayal of Jesus by the four Gospel writers.

"Or try to find a fault attributed to Christ. Is there anything he did or said that doesn't fit into the concept of a Messiah?"

Don't you want your Messiah to abhor prejudice or bias, as Jesus so notably demonstrated and taught? Don't you wish your Messiah to heal the sick, feed the hungry, give hope to the downcast, and preach the unselfishness of the Golden Rule?

"By their fruits ye shall know them," said Jesus, so look at the "fruits" of Christ's appearance here on Earth. Don't they befit the Son of God?

Has Confucius or Buddha or the Shinto religion, Zoroastrianism or any other cult ever remotely compared with the social benefits of Christianity?

You be the jury: See if you can write a character sketch of any future Messiah who would be an improvement on Jesus. This feature appears daily in the Independent.

Child Care

Jealousy Cause of Trouble

By JEAN H. SELIGMANN and MILTON I. LEVINE, M.D.

(Q) "I hope you can help me straighten out my 6-year-old son. His teacher (1st grade) says she is at a loss as to how to handle him. He is a bright boy but will not pay attention or do his work unless someone is helping. When the teacher is instructing other children Paul sits with his books closed. I try to help him at home—on the teacher's suggestion—but he wants to give up if I merely point out a mistake. When I found out a year ago that he was jealous of his younger sister I paid more attention to him. Could these problems be connected. What should I do?"—Mrs. H. M.

(A) We definitely feel your son's school problem is related to the jealousy problem at home. The child wants all the attention focused on him and refuses to do what the teacher wants him to do unless he's getting personal attention.

The teacher, for many children during their first few years at school, is a mother substitute. In this case, your son is shifting his home situation to his school situation. While he is in school he may be worrying about what you and his little sister are doing together at home.

Rather than trying to help him with his school work, you should try to build up his self-confidence and self-importance. Some jealousy is natural and to be expected, but simply paying more attention will not necessarily help.

Roomer Oversteps Her Bounds

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD: We have a problem which, due to minor irritations, is assuming more importance than perhaps it should.

We rented a room to a business girl this winter. The room is large and beautifully furnished with easy chairs, desk, lamp, bookcase, etc. We assumed that she would spend her time in her room when she was not out with friends. But that is not the case.

She comes every night and on Sundays into our living room to look at TV. Now evenings and Sundays are the only times that husband and wife have any time together to discuss family problems or just to visit. We think she is imposing on our hospitality.

We would like to invite her occasionally to come in and look at the programs, but she doesn't wait for invitations! We are very hospitable people and invite her to dinner or "coffee," but she is building up a resentment in us.

WHAT TO DO?????

DEAR WHAT TO DO????? Actually, that is a ticklish question. You don't want to seem inhospitable, or rude, or selfish, and yet you do want your privacy—and have every right to it.

Let's face it—there is only one answer. Since the girl isn't sensitive enough to see the facts herself, she's going to have to be told. Maybe you can manage in the telling to soften the aspects. Maybe you can just hint at first. You know, about how sorry you are you can't "invite her in" for a while but you have private affairs to attend to, etc.

If she doesn't take the hint, there's nothing for you to do but speak plainly—even at the risk of losing one roomer and acquiring another.

Don't you think it actually boils down to this?—M. M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I am a very attractive girl, and could date almost any boy. I have one problem, however, and this is it: I have had an affair with this one boy in my school, and he says if I go out with anyone else he will spread it all over the school.

Our school is small, and it would be all over it in about five minutes. I don't love this boy, and don't enjoy going with him, but what can I do if I want to keep my reputation and have plenty of friends? I feel so trapped.

Do you think I am doing right in keeping on dating him? My closest girl friend is the only other person who knows and she believes I am doing wrong. She says he probably wouldn't tell, but do I dare take the chance?

WORRIED MISS

DEAR WORRIED MISS: Don't you date that boy another time, young lady. All you're doing is encouraging blackmail—which is an out-and-out crime.

You say that your school is small and that gossip gets around quickly. Well, don't you think you'd be believed as

Greed for Tricks Slams Back at Him

Seven diamonds is the best contract in today's hand. At this contract, South can cash the top hearts, ruff a heart with one of dummy's diamonds, get to his hand by overtaking a trump, ruff another heart, and then draw four rounds of trumps. He is then ready to take the rest of the tricks with high cards.

When the hand was actually played, South was in the quite reasonable contract of six no-trump. Moreover, it is important to note, South was playing in a bridge tournament, where extra tricks are very important.

West opened the jack of hearts, and South won with the king. Since the problem was to win at least four spade tricks, South took the ace of spades and next led a low spade towards dummy.

West innocently played the seven of spades on the second round of the suit, and South hesitated. At rubber bridge, the correct play would be to cover with dummy's eight of spades. If this won the trick, the slam would be assured. If East were able to win the trick, the spades would break no worse than four-two, in which case dummy would be able to win the next three spade tricks. Either way, the slam would be safe.

Since the hand was being played in a tournament, South hated to give up the chance that the spades were actually three-three. In this case he would be able to win all five spade tricks and thus make his contract with an overtrick.

Lured by this prospect, South put up the king of spades from the dummy. East discarded a club, and now the spade suit could not be brought in. South couldn't find any way to win 12 tricks from this point on, and his greed for the extra trick thus cost him his vulnerable slam!

Thundering Parade of Bulldozers Crumbles Old World in Venezuela

BY ROBERT E. LEE

CARACAS, Venezuela—In this oil-rich country of contrasts, television aerials bristle from the roofs of slum shacks that lack running water and modern skyscrapers cast their shadows on ancient Spanish churches.

But where the old and the new worlds meet—particularly in this fast-growing capital city—the old gradually crumbles before the inexorable bite of the bulldozers.

The changing face of Venezuela is thrown into sharp outline this month as the country winds up another year of whirlwind public works construction in a flurry of ribbon-cutting ceremonies.

The energetic government of Gen. Marcos Perez Jimenez has transformed more city slums into model low-rent housing developments and more country roads into four-lane highways.

Electric power lines and dial telephone service extend farther out from the big cities; modern schools have opened their doors to thousands of children; new tourist attractions have burgeoned.

SO MUCH HAS BEEN BUILT this year that dedication ceremonies for the 1955 total of 1,083 individual projects lasted from Dec. 2 until Dec. 11.

This year's tab for public works construction comes to some $331 million, bringing to over $1 billion the total that Perez Jimenez' government has poured into such projects in the last three years.

The oil boom, resulting largely from the investments of United States companies, has financed Venezuela's face-lifting. It shows no signs of bursting and still another great windfall is on the way.

Rich iron ore deposits worked by other U. S. firms soon will show more royalties into Venezuela's treasury.

For seven years the government—which started out as a three-man junta until one of the trio, Perez Jimenez, became constitutional president in 1952—has followed a policy of "sowing the oil" in public works and other activities designed to modernize the country.

At the same time new foreign investments in industry and agriculture have been encouraged, while local industry has been protected by high tariff walls in commodity areas where Venezuela has a chance of becoming self-sufficient.

THEORETICALLY THE POLICY will pay off all the way around. Venezuela will have to depend less on imports for her basic necessities, government pump-priming will produce more fields for both foreign and domestic capital to develop, and new domestic markets will consume more of the world's goods.

This correspondent a few days ago watched Perez Jimenez, a doughty little man in a simple but beribboned uniform, stand proudly before a battery of TV cameras to report to the nation on 1955 public works activity.

The next day the general-president went out and dedicated a new school in Caracas, hiked a half mile in a broiling tropical sun along a new highway, and inspected several buildings in the newest low-cost housing project.

He kept up the pace for several days as he cut ribbons to signalize the opening of other projects—a modern telephone exchange, a suspended cable car line that will lift tourists to an elegant hotel atop Mt. Avila, new buildings at the national university. Meanwhile, his lieutenants were doing more of the same in the provinces.

THE $14 MILLION housing project is perhaps the most ambitious in the whole public works program. Apartments for 2,316 families are contained in the 65 brightly-painted concrete buildings which dominate a man-made plateau in the center of Caracas. Thirteen are 15 stories high, the remainder, four,

Dye Injection Technique Aids Heart Artery X-Rays

A new dye-injection technique, which makes heart arteries visible in X-rays, has been reported from the School of Medicine of the University of California at Los Angeles.

The technique was developed in animal experiments by Dr. Jack Cannon and associates of the department of surgery. Results of the experiments were presented at the recent meeting of the American College of Surgeons in Chicago. It is hoped that continued research may develop the technique to a point that it will be of value in the study and diagnosis of human heart disease.

The dye procedure involves inserting a plastic tube through an artery into the heart. It is similar to heart catheterization, which is accomplished through a vein.

An opaque dye is injected through the tube into heart arteries. A small rubber bulb on the end of the tube is inflated to increase pressure in the arteries, thus insuring that the dye is forced throughout the heart arterial system.

In the animal experiments X-ray pictures clearly showed the dye-infiltrated heart arteries. Arteries were tied, creating an obstruction which simulated the human heart disease, coronary thrombosis (plugging of heart arteries.) This was also clearly visible in the X-ray pictures.

Traffic 'Battles' Take Heavy Toll

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Are men in uniform likely to be traffic problems? The following article presents sobering facts which might well be taken to heart by all drivers, particularly in the holiday season.)

By VERA WILLIAMS

Lucius Beebe's description of the roaring 20's included the observation that motor accidents were in fashion; colleges counted their dead and maimed on Monday mornings and it was considered a neat trick to reduce a car to such a tangle of debris that a community billed you for removing it from the highways.

The 20's, however, can't compare with the deadly 50's. Paraphrasing Lucius Beebe, it could be said that deadly motor accidents are much in evidence; military services count their dead and maimed on Monday morning, and it's considered a neat trick to travel 600 miles, spend a day and a half living it up, and arrive back at a military base ALIVE, all on a 72-hour pass.

A high percentage of shattering traffic crashes involve service men.

IN LONG BEACH, police say, three members of military personnel have been killed this year in traffic accidents. In 1954, one military man was killed and 67 were injured in traffic accidents. Records show that 11.5 per cent of all traffic accidents here in 1954 involved military personnel. This percentage is considered high in view of the fact that men in uniform are heavily outnumbered by civilians and have fewer chances to drive than non-military men.

Traffic records for 1953 followed the same pattern. Police said of the 275 persons injured in the 17-42 age bracket, 58 were service personnel—21 per cent. Of 570 drivers involved in accidents, 17-46 age bracket, 92 were service personnel—16.8 per cent. Of eight persons killed in traffic, 19-22 age bracket, five were service personnel—62.5 per cent.

The California Highway Patrol reveals that in the first nine months of this year 4 per cent of the drivers involved in accidents in the state were military men, but 6.7 per cent of the drivers in fatal accidents were military.

This corroborates the long-held conclusion that military men figure high in fatal accidents—when they are in an accident it is likely to be a bad one.

THE CHP co-operates with the armed forces by mailing copies of all citations issued to members of the armed forces to a central military dispatch point for dissemination to the command concerned.

Periodically, insurance companies publish their risk ratings of automobile drivers by profession. In every instance, the low man on the totem pole is the enlisted serviceman. Why? In dollars and cents values the insurance companies often lose or break even on policies in this category.

The insurance company which insures the majority of officers and enlisted men in the armed forces was questioned about the problem. Company officials came up with the same answer: "The enlisted man travels too far in too short a time, and the end result is a higher percentage of accidents."

The big picture shows clearly why insurance companies are reluctant to insure service personnel. In one year a total of 1,288,000 persons were injured or killed in automobile accidents in the nation. Of this total, 18,000 were in the armed forces.

A HIGH PERCENTAGE of motor vehicle accidents for both civilian and military is the result of drinking. The civilian population has the advantage over the military. Nine times out of 10, the civilian does his drinking in familiar territory. His subconscious mind remembers stop lights and traffic hazards.

But when a serviceman makes a wet liberty he's likely to be in a strange city where, even under normal conditions, it requires every facility to drive within the law.

Area Champs in Marbles to Be Named

District playoffs in the all-city playground marble championships will be held at seven municipal recreation areas Saturday, at 10 a. m.

Tourney play is held in three classes, by age. Both boys and girls are eligible. The district contests will determine who qualifies to play in the all-city championship finals Dec. 27 at Lincoln Park.

Areas where district playoffs will be held are Veterans, Silverado, Houghton, Somerset, Pan American, Atherton, MacArthur and Eixby Park playgrounds.

Sponsoring the tournament are the Recreation Department and Long Beach city schools.

Sea Boss 'Burns' Bridges Behind Him

(Editor's Note: The world's highest paid sailors are members of the AFL maritime unions run by 54-year-old Norwegian-born Harry Lundeborg—a man who has reached the top through tough talk and tough action. Here's a closeup of "Lunchbox Harry.")

By LEONARD MILLMAN

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Harry Lundeborg is the big tough boss of a big tough union.

The 190 pound, 6 foot 2½ head of the AFL sailors has been shot at, has had his jutting jaw splintered in an interunion fight, and had his nose "pushed around," as he puts it.

The 20-year rise of this Norwegian-born sailor to the top of AFL maritime unions has been marked by an abiding hatred of Communists. With Lundeborg, that's pretty sweeping. You're either for Lundeborg or you're a Commie—or Commie lover.

He has attacked, and been attacked by, almost every other maritime and waterfront leader. But his favorite and most consistent target is Harry Bridges, the man who started him on the rise to labor power and who now heads the Independent International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

As unvarying as his hatreds have been Lundeborg's broad Norwegian accent and his dress. He never wears a tie—except at funerals. He wears a cap, indoors and out.

His open shirt collar exposes a hairy, barrel chest. The sleeves are rolled up, revealing tattoo marks of his seafaring days.

Lundeborg dresses the same whether going out with his smartly tailored second wife, his first marriage ended in divorce in 1941, appearing before congressional committees in Washington, or sitting behind the huge mahogany desk in the two million dollar sailors hall here.

TO "LUNCHBOX HARRY" a name applied by his sailors, there's just one way of doing things—the sailor's way. And it can be rough—whether it's the bloody capture of another union or a strike that ties up the Pacific Coast waterfront.

But it has paid off. His West Coast sailors are the highest-paid seamen in the world.

At 54 Lundeborg, fiercely proud of the Americanism he acquired when he was naturalized in 1933, holds a handful of union titles. They range from secretary-treasurer of the Sailors Union of the Pacific (SUP), his key office, to head of the recently created AFL Maritime Department.

He first was skyrocketed to labor union prominence in 1935 with help from Harry Bridges.

The job was president of the Maritime Federation of the Pacific, a now defunct amalgamation of unions that grew out of the bloody 1934 waterfront strike.

Lundeborg had his first differences with Bridges over how unions should operate and ditched the job after seven months of "running up and down the coast in box cars in dungarees doing the dirty work."

ALTHOUGH the accepted story is that Lundeborg was Bridges' hand-picked candidate for the job, Bridges, the Australian-born longshore leader, recalls today:

"I scarcely knew the man. He was the sailors' candidate. They picked him. We supported him against our own man, a longshoreman from the Pacific Northwest, because the sailors had wrecked all previous maritime federations.

HARRY LUNDEBERG ... Out Went the Commies

"The sailors said the longshoremen wanted the federation, a longshoreman was president and that a sailor couldn't get elected. I wanted to head that off."

Lundeborg said in another interview:

"I was not personally pals with expeditions to the Antarctic continent since the year 1820 when Captain Nat Palmer of Stonington, Conn., first sighted the peninsula that bears his name. After Palmer, the next American was Lt. Charles Wilkes of the U.S. Navy who delineated the first parts of the Antarctic coastline in 1838-42. Then there was nothing for 90 years until our 1928-30 expedition—the first American expedition, incidentally, to set foot on the mainland. The four Antarctic expeditions it has been my privilege to lead since that year were instrumental in discovering over 1,000,000 square miles of the Antarctic continent—which is more than has been discovered by the expeditions of any other three nations combined. The expeditions under the leadership of Lincoln Ellsworth, Capt. Finn Ronne, and Capt. Gerald Ketchum also did good work and added to the total of American exploration.

Through expeditions such as our country and other nations are now planning, the great Antarctic continent will ultimately yield its secrets. It is my hope and belief that, in yielding them, it will bring manifold benefits to mankind. Let me list a few of these potential benefits from the project.

It has implications for the future of commercial aviation because, in many cases, the shortest route between two points in the Southern Hemisphere will lie across the polar regions.

It is essential to the progress of meteorological science because the wind and weather that are produced in the icy vastnesses of Antarctica play an important role in the modification of weather conditions in the more temperate regions. It is important, too, because it will increase our understanding of the long-range climatic changes that are taking place in the world.

Preliminary geological explorations have revealed deposits of coal and there are indications of other minerals. These deposits may take on increasing importance as the resources of the temperate climates are worn thin, and as the further development of packaged atomic energy makes possible the limited habitation of the polar regions.

ALTHOUGH THERE IS STILL very much to be learned about the ionosphere (a layer of ionized air, beyond the stratosphere, which reflects radio waves and other radiations) it has been estimated that the studies thus far carried out in both polar regions have already been worth billions of dollars to the development of radio. The knowledge of the upper atmosphere that will be gleaned by our scientists in the Antarctic will, it is believed, result in comparable benefits to the rocket and space satellite programs. The military implications of these programs have received much publicity—but their peaceful scientific implications are infinitely greater.

Developments of the postwar years have also borne out the prophecies of some of us, that, within our own lifetime, the polar regions would play an increasingly important strategic role in the world we live in.

It is my belief that, when the projected program terminates in 1959, a series of more or less permanent bases will have been established on the Antarctic mainland as a prelude to human habitation on a limited scale.

In this development the United States is bound to play a pre-eminent role.

Civic Chorus Candlelight Program Set

Admission will be free at Municipal Auditorium Monday at 7:30 p. m., when the Long Beach Civic Chorus will be featured in its 28th annual presentation of Christmas Carols by Candlelight.

Rolla Alford will direct the 125-voice chorus. One feature of the program is community singing of carols.

The program includes selections by an instrumental trio, vocal soloists and dramatic visualizations of scenes from the Christmas Story.

MEMBERS OF the instrumental trio are Dorothy Stafford, violin; Clarice Gaudin, cello, and Dorothy Oberg, piano. Soloists are Ruth Anne Lorenzen, contralto; Bernice Campbell, soprano; Edna Koon, contralto; Donald Thrall, bass, and a vocal trio—Kathleen Johnson, Patricia Kellam and Walter Mount.

Piano accompanist is Dorothy Alford. In charge of staging the visualization is Mrs. Virginia Ferri Clark, supervisor of drama and music for the Recreation Department.

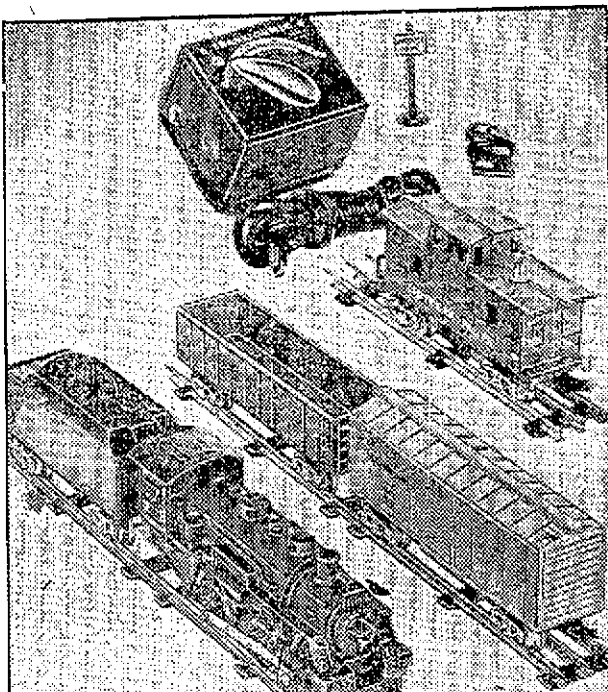

Sponsoring the program is the Long Beach Recreation Commission, which announces that the regular old time square dancing program will follow the concert.

LONG BEACH

Time to Take Care of Hospital Needs

LONG BEACH has been short on hospital facilities for a decade.

Our population has soared above 300,000. Unfortunately, our hospitals have not been expanded proportionately.

Impartial surveys show that this city has modern hospital facilities for a community of only 125,000. We have fewer than half the number of hospital beds needed to meet a decent standard. Thirty per cent of the existing beds were provided originally on an emergency basis and should be replaced with permanent facilities.

MEANWHILE, OUR CITY, owing to its tremendous growth in a short period of time, has developed pressing needs for other health facilities such as a school for registered nurses, a hospital wing for chronic and convalescent patients, quarters for contagious diseases, and general hospital beds for the mentally ill.

It was painfully apparent by 1953 that Long Beach had an emergency. Available hospital facilities were woefully inadequate for regular needs—and we shuddered to think what might happen in a disaster.

AGAINST THIS BACKGROUND, a hospital program was proposed in 1953 and approved by the people. The program was to be financed from tidelands oil money when and if such money became available for upland public improvement projects.

However, the money didn't become available. And our needs have become more urgent. So it obviously is most appropriate for the hospital program to be placed high on the list of bond issue proposals which will go before the people in February.

The Mayor and City Council's Advisory Public Improvements Committee has designated the hospital program as "most urgent."

A BOND ISSUE of $10,500,000 is proposed as of now, subject to a final decision of the Council. The program would provide enough hospital beds to meet the minimum critical needs of this community. It will cover the other important areas of public health mentioned above.

The question of need has been well established. The major remaining question is whether we can afford this and other proposed bond issues.

The answer is emphatically yes, for we have used up but a fraction of our bonding capacity and we are one of the most prosperous cities in the United States.

There's every reason why a hospital bond issue proposal, carrying reasonable safeguards as to administrative and ownership policy, should get the overwhelming approval of the citizens of this city.

Khrushchev Violating All Rules of Diplomacy

WHAT, we cannot help wondering, is Khrushchev up to in his tour of India and Burma? He is violating all the rules of diplomatic intercourse among governments. He is treating the governments of India and of Burma as if they did not exist, as if he, not they, had the right to lead their peoples in their relations with the rest of the world. There seems to be no bounds whatever to the insults, and to the downright lies, which he is directing at the Western governments with whom he has so recently been talking peace.

What then, is he up to? If the smiles of July were calculated, what is the calculation behind the venom now?

Or is there no calculation? Is Khrushchev, as Disraeli said of an opponent, "incubated with the exuberance of his own verbiage"? If it is that, what has happened to Khrushchev who, as observers at Geneva have been saying, was a restraining influence on Khrushchev's exuberance?

Or is it both calculation and intention? It looks so to me—as if the Kremlin had reached a decision of high policy to take the initiative in resuming the offensive in the cold war and that Khrushchev, who is an uncouth and exuberant man, is following the new line in his uncouth and exuberant way.

WE CANNOT BE sure what were the reasons for the decision to take the offensive. It may well have been the display of the weakness of the Western governments, of the United States with a sick President and an election, of Germany with a sick and aging chancellor, of France paralyzed by its constitutional sickness.

But of one thing, which is of great practical importance, we can be sure. If the danger of the smiles in July was that we would "lower our guard," the danger of the Khrushchev agitation today is that it will provoke us to react unwisely.

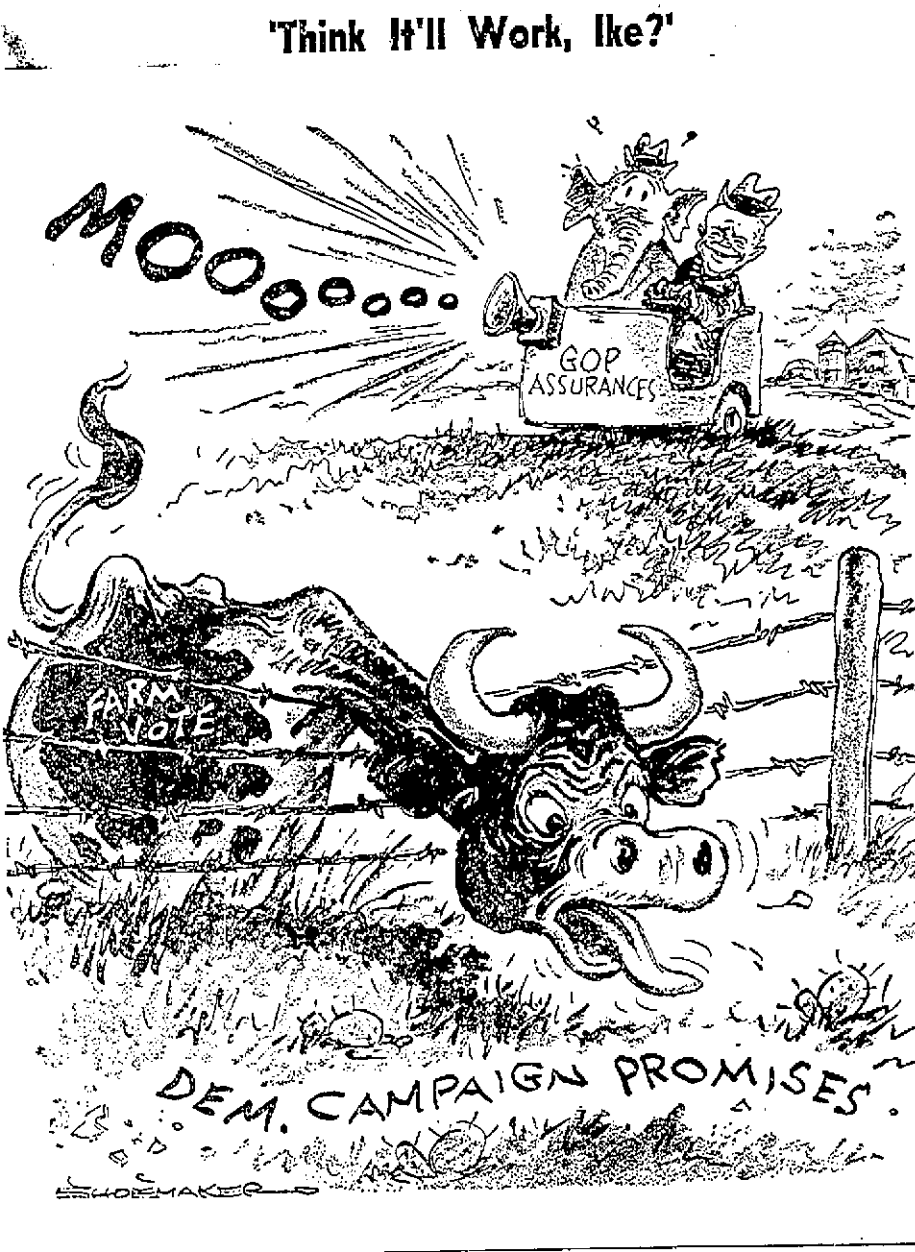

In fact, I, I am afraid, provoked Mr. Dulles into making a serious mistake in regard to the dispute between India and Portugal over Goa. This territory is legally a province of Portugal. Geographically it is an enclave on the western shore of India. Khrushchev has been making inflammatory speeches about India's right to annex Goa.

Our position has been and, according to Mr. Dulles speaking on Tuesday, our position still is, that we do not take "any position on the merits of the matter." Our interest, in other words, is to remain friends and both Portugal and India, not to be entangled in their dispute, and to do what we can to encourage a peaceable solution.

AFTER KHRUSHCHEV'S speech about Goa in which he backed India unreservedly, it might have been useful for Mr. Dulles, speaking for the United States, to re-state our position of disinterested friendship. Instead, he allowed himself to be provoked by Khrushchev's insults. Khrushchev having taken on the Indian side, Mr. Dulles agreed to a joint communiqué which, to all appearances placed him on the Portuguese side.

That will do Portugal no particular good and it has angered India. The net result, it would seem will be to disqualify Mr. Dulles as a conciliator in the Portuguese-Indian dispute.

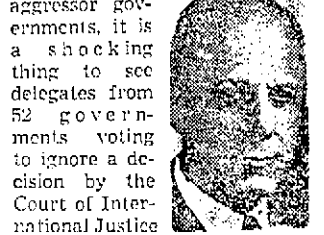

THE INCIDENT—it should be no more than that—may be a useful little reminder that, like Prime Minister Nehru, we too have a policy of neutrality and non-alignment when it suits what we consider to be our interests.

Ethics Sadly Lacking When 52 Nations Conspire to Violate Charter of U. N.

WASHINGTON—At a time when public morals are on the decline and when "expediency" is given as an excuse for condoning immorality in the behavior of aggressor governments, it is a shocking thing to see delegates from 52 governments voting to ignore a decision by the Court of International Justice which brands as illegal any "package deal" for the admission of members to the United Nations.

LAWRENCE

Only the United States, Belgium, France, Greece and Israel refused to participate in the voting on a resolution which asked the Security Council of the United Nations to "consider" the application of 18 nations as a package. Cuba and Nationalist China voted against the resolution itself. The position, however, of the five who abstained means that they refuse even to agree that such a proposal should be voted upon in the General Assembly.

It was on May 28, 1948, that the International Court of Justice, sitting at the Hague, handed down an advisory opinion—requested by the U.N. General Assembly—and ruled that it is illegal for a U.N. member to make its consent for the admission of one applicant dependent on the admission of another and that "considerations other than those prescribed by the terms and spirit of Article IV (of the U.N. Charter) could not prevent the admission of an applicant."

THE RULING SAID: "The provisions of Article IV necessarily imply that every application for admission should be examined and voted on separately and on its own merits. Otherwise it would be impossible to determine whether a particular applicant fulfills the necessary conditions. To subject an affirmative vote for the admission of an applicant to the condition that other states be admitted with that state would prevent members from exercising their judgment in each case with complete liberty. Within the scope of the prescribed conditions, such a demand is incompatible with the letter and spirit of Article IV of the charter."

HOW TO CARRY OUT this decision presents a problem in procedure. The United States has never used and will not use its veto power in the Security Council to bar any applications for membership. But the Soviet Union has threatened to use its veto power unless the entire group of 18 applicants are admitted.

The position of the United States is that the matter of admission should be left to a majority vote of the Security Council. Since there is apparently an assured majority in the Security Council for the so-called "package deal," the United States will abstain from voting and will explain publicly its viewpoint, which is one of opposition to the admission of the five satellite countries—Albania, Rumania, Hungary, Bulgaria and Outer Mongolia.

None of these five countries possesses sovereignty, and each is under the yoke of the Soviet Union. The United States government feels, moreover, that Rumania, Bulgaria, and Hungary have been found guilty of violating their treaty obligations and that, therefore, none of them can be accepted as a "peace-loving" government under the definition laid down in the United Nations charter.

Congressman Found Russ Goggle-Eyed Over His Car

WASHINGTON—While in Russia recently, Congressman Wayne Hays (D-Ohio) drove to a city called Tula about 125 miles south of Moscow in a 1955 Chevrolet. Hays and two attaches of the American embassy lunched in Tula, and when they got back to their car a crowd was milling around it.

"I wondered what was going to happen," reported Hays. "But nothing did. The people were just curious about the car. They couldn't seem to believe their eyes and pressed up close to feel the finish with their hands. When they asked the price and I told them $8,000 rubles (about $2,000) a buzz went through the crowd. A similar car in Russia of a 1939 model costs $3,000."

"Why is it you Americans don't come here more often?" one man asked Hays. "We have to know you and we love to see you."

Hays replied through an embassy interpreter that Americans didn't come because the Russian government prohibited it. The Russians discussed this among themselves and finally a spokesman for the crowd said:

"Well, it is good you come now," and let the matter drop. The Ohio Congressman encountered hostility only once in Russia—when a bystander objected to Hays taking a picture in Red Square.

Knowland Expects Ike to Make Decision Known Before Jan. 15

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. William F. Knowland (R-Calif.) was reported this week to be considering entering the April 10 Illinois presidential primary if President Eisenhower does not indicate by mid-January whether he will seek a second term.

Knowland, the Senate Republican Leader, declined to discuss the matter with reporters. He said in his previous statement that he believes Eisenhower will make an early announcement of his intentions.

IT WAS LEARNED, HOWEVER, that the California Senator thinks Republicans who aspire to the presidency would be justified in becoming active candidates if the Eisenhower decision is delayed beyond the closing date for entry in any primary.

Jan. 23 is the final date on which petitions may be filed to place the name of candidates on the Illinois ballot. The state's preference vote for presidential candidates is merely advisory—not binding on the 60 delegates to be chosen for the 1956 presidential nominating convention.

THE CONSENT OF A CANDIDATE is not required in Illinois. Thus the President's name could be put on the ballot even if he had not indicated his plans.

Knowland was said by friends to believe that the weight of public pressure will bring some sort of announcement from Eisenhower before Jan. 15. Indications have been that his final physical checkup to determine the extent of recovery from his September heart attack will not be made until late that month or possibly in February.

WITH THIS PROSPECT IN MIND, Knowland was reported to feel that Republicans who want to go after the nomination if the President doesn't seek it would be justified in putting their names in the ring.

He was said to feel that any lengthy delay in the President's announcement would work against all party hopefuls with the possible exception of one who might be singled out for an Eisenhower endorsement.

Beyond that Knowland was represented as feeling that a delayed announcement would seriously limit the time in which potential candidates would have for campaigning, to the point where none of them might become sufficiently known to the voters.

KNOWLAND, WHO CONFERRED with

Eisenhower at Gettysburg last week, was said to be firm in a belief the President will not run again.

Rep. Joseph W. Martin Jr., of Massachusetts, the House GOP leader who talked to Eisenhower the same day, has said he believes the President will run again and could be elected in an abbreviated campaign featuring only three or four television appearances.

If Knowland does get in the nomination race, friends said he is likely to enter only a limited number of primaries. Among these would be his own state's June 5 contest.

In California a candidate must consent before April 6 to circulation of petitions to enter his name on the ballot.

Knowland already has indicated that if the President doesn't run, there may be several contestants in the California GOP primary. These might include Gov. Goodwin J. Knight, who has said he wants "favorite son" designation, and Vice President Nixon, also a Californian.

SENATOR AND A FRIEND
Other Aspirants Have Right to Know

TOWN MEETING

Knowland TO THE EDITOR:

The only thing that is important to real Americans is knowing that some of our politicians are on our side.

I'm sure Sen. Knowland is one.

I hope he runs for the presidency.

Douglas Important to Every Citizen

TO THE EDITOR:

Every citizen in the Long Beach area is directly or indirectly dependent on big industry such as Douglas Aircraft.

Anybody who has seen the effects of removing a large business from an area certainly shouldn't want to do anything or fail to do anything that would jeopardize the existence of such industries in the community.

There are some people, of course, who think they have the right to try to deny their neighbors the right to live and work where they desire.

I live very close to the airport and like it. I know the wheels of industry are turning, and it gives me a good feeling. It spells peace, security and the ability of workers to buy the things they need.

DO THE OPONENTS of airport expansion want to take that away?

They talk about safety. Well, how about automobiles that jump the curb and crash into houses? Automobiles that mow down scores of people every year in this community. Should we therefore close down automobile assembly plants and automobile agencies?

There is only relative safety in this world. And the great benefits of the Douglas plant far outweigh any disadvantages.

Lock, Listen, Write

TO THE EDITOR:

We Americans must get on our toes—look, listen, write. I would vote for a man with the platform of trying to settle the farm question, and not by handouts, a man who wouldn't surround himself with rich advisers and wouldn't think now of exchanging our secrets and security with the Russians or Reds.

I'm sure we all wish our President the best of luck and health, but out of the White House.

I enjoy your paper—editorials, Malcolm Epley, etc.

MRS. G. M. BRADFORD, was given the Nov. 23, 1955, Wilma Burgess Sunset of Life Party for those over 70 years of age. We appreciate it very much.

By giving these folks we try to give those folks a little happiness since some of them are all alone.

Federal Aid Too Expensive

TO THE EDITOR:

Dr. Boyd A. Davis' personal interview survey conducted in Long Beach indicates there is much "fuzzy" thinking on the part of those interviewed, almost half of them favoring Federal aid for schools.

Where, pray tell, will the Federal government collect the money for Federal aid if not from the states? Why send a dollar to Washington in order to get back six cents? Statistics compiled from official Treasury reports show that out of every dollar the Federal government took out of California in 1953, approximately 61 cents were returned. Did the people interviewed know this? This is communism in action.

WOULD IT NOT be worthwhile to conduct a campaign to keep our money in California; to bring back the sovereign rights and powers that have been taken over by a dictatorial federal bureaucracy? Let the people wake up to what Federal aid means, and let us regain our right to control the state's purse, subject to the will of the people of the state.

Federal aid is too expensive for the people of California or any other state.

F. E. CALLAGHAN,
712 E. Seventh St.

THE UNITED NATIONS, a misnomer if I ever heard of one, was organized under another administration, financed 90 per cent by the United States, and still is, under others, but, in the leadership was a man since convicted as a traitor to the United States.

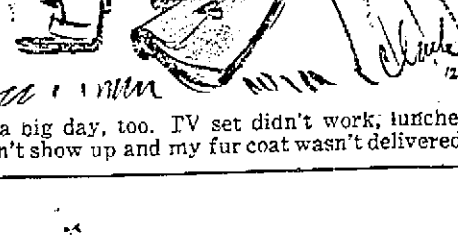

Then we can remember when the plates for currency of the United States were turned over to Russia to print "occupancy money." This was with the full knowledge of the Secretary of the Treasury, and, as it has never been denied, also that of the President of the United States. This to the expense of American taxpayers.

And Mr. James Roosevelt talks of "peace at any price" by the present administration? How naive can we get?

What Can You Get, Besides Bills, for Father?

Father pays the Christmas bills—and what does he get out of Christmas? Maybe a handful of neckties, if he is lucky.

Men traditionally are hard to buy presents for, say their women-folks. With the idea of doing right by Father, many stores this year are featuring items for men.

If the man of the house goes in for sports, everything is easy. There always are fishing rods, reels, wheeled caddies to tote the golf clubs. You get one of those, wrap holly paper around it, say "Merry Christmas!" and you are done.

If Father hunts, he always can use another gun. And on the market now is a new shotgun, a double-barrelled affair with one barrel over the other, not beside it, and just one trigger.

There also is a putting ding-bat. You know how Father practices his swing on the living room rug? You set this up, and when the ball goes in, a mechanism trips and shoots it back. It's adjustable, so the ball will travel either a few inches or quite a few feet.

HOW ABOUT A CAMERA, or a projector for Father? Or how about a good pair of binoculars? The new binoculars have coated lenses to eliminate reflections.

There are good campstoves on the market, sleeping bags, coolers; blankets that come in their own bag and may be used as blankets, as foot warmers, as cushions. There is a preparation in a bag that can be boiled or frozen—the same stuff. It will keep hot things hot, cold things cold and it would be pretty good for warming hands or feet.

Wouldn't Father like a king-sized bath towel? Probably the poor man never yet has had one big enough. There are big ones, in mannish colors with mannish designs, and if even they aren't big enough, there are "bath sheets" of about the size of Man Mountain Dean.

The Italian influence is strong in men's clothing this year. Casual shirts are of Italian fabrics and design, many of them of striped, either definite stripes or a muted effect, and the materials look like something else. Cotton is woven so it looks and feels like silk, for instance. Dress shirts, also feeling the Italian influence, come with smaller French cuffs—about half the size of the old ones—and of course smaller cuffs call for smaller cuff buttons.

Colored shirts still are ok, but they come in softer tones. Blue is excellent, and there are pink, tan, gray, mint, maize.

NECKTIES ARE WIDE in the middle, taper at the ends. The average tie now is 2½ inches across. Ties are marked mostly by interesting weaves. Youngsters often buy bow ties for Daddy.

Available are Tyrolean velvet hats, which come with a brush, a falcon's foot, a fleck of a partridge wing, a deer head.

There are wonderful Italian shoes, a cross between shoes and slippers, that are shaped and sewn under water.

Men's sweaters are interesting this year because of the blends. There is a combination of cashmere, mink, nylon and wool, for instance. There are many flecked tones. Coral and powder blue continue to be the favorites.

There are jackets, nylon on the outside, orlon on the inside, that can be tossed into the washing machine—really!

There are suede coats, Norfolk jackets, a "suburban" coat to be worn over regular clothes, as in a sportscar; a wonderful raincoat that can be worn in rain or good weather and that will last practically forever; less expensive raincoats that come in packages.

Quite a few suits are bought for men at Christmas time. Maybe they aren't just what Father wants and maybe they don't fit him, but he always can take them back and get what he wants. Some of the new suits are made of such crush-resistant material that they can be worn on a train for three days and come off unwrinkled, say the salesmen.

CHRISTMAS AND BIRTH-DAYS are practically the only time Father gets jewelry. Many of the new watches are self-winding; they are thicker than the other kind. There are handsome cuff buttons with tiger eyes, onyx, jade, lapis lazuli, turquoise, pearls, tourmaline, obsidian.

There are silver cuff buttons that point up a profession or a hobby—fish, golf clubs, comedy and tragedy faces, and even a pair of kitchen sinks for a plumber.

Father undoubtedly would like a typewriter and on the market is a dandy portable, with a carrying case which also has room for papers. It comes in maroon or sand. There are new ball point pens, and "liquid lead" pencils. Liquid lead is erasable.

PUT THE CUFFS ON PAPA

There is a cute "Cheerful Worry" book, in which Father may list his worries day by day. He might be interested to look back and see what it was he worried about last Feb. 23.

There are plastic playing cards, and a new poker chip rack. You turn the rack and five chips of any designed color drop out.

There is a combination cigaret lighter and flashlight that throws quite a beam in the dark. There are lighters that flare up almost like forest fires. And here is a lighter—tch, Father! —shaped like an undressed woman.

ON THE MARKET is a fine combination brief case and overnight bag that will see Father through any short trip. There is a variety of luggage, including a suitcase which will let suit jackets hang straight without folding.

Every man needs a good tie rack and there are smart ones that swing out. There are suit hangers shaped the way clothes really are shaped. There are desk clocks, radios and record players that run on batteries and thus can be taken on camping trips, carving sets, fire extinguishers and road flares that may be carried in the car, men's manicure sets in handy carrying cases, a variety of toiletries for men. Father might like an easy chair, a hassock for his own feet, a reading light. He might like an atlas or a globe because the shape of things has changed quite a bit in recent years. And when you come right down to it, what's the matter with getting Father a book? Either something to improve his mind or a detective story that he really will like?

Dear Mr. Chan: "The day I came to your office with my mother and brother I was about to give up hope of getting rid of my asthma attacks. I spent hundreds of dollars for shots and pills but yet found no results. After reading your advertisement, I tried you for my last resort and was thrilled to find that I responded wonderfully. After the first treatment I was able to breathe normally and could sleep better for the first time in months. Now I am feeling fine and hoping others will benefit from my experience with Dr. Chan's Natural Method." Signed, Mrs. Vivian Murray, To Whom It May Concern: "Five years ago I was badly stricken with neuritis in my shoulders and extremities. My hands and knees were so badly swollen that I could hardly use them. I wasn't able to raise my arms above the shoulders. I was told by several doctors that they have done all they could for me and that I no longer will be able to work again. Finally a friend referred me to try Dr. Chan's Natural Therapy. After the first week I felt much improved and the fourth week found me walking much easier with the pain in my shoulders disappearing; my hands returned to normal and I had one of those once more, cannot too highly recommend Dr. Chan to anyone who is ill." REAL "MAMA":

DELLA ANDERSON.

I'll always remember ...

THE LAST FAN-LETTER

by KATHRYN FORBES

TV "MAMA," Peggy Wood (l.), poses with author Forbes — who modeled the role on her grandmother.

THE AUTHOR: Millions of Americans who see I Remember Mama on CBS-TV wonder what the real mother of writer Kathryn Forbes was like. Here is at least a partial answer.

Almost every author has at least one admirer; someone who believes whole-heartedly in one's particular talent; someone who takes time to write letters to say so.

I used to get some wonderful fan-letters.

They were from my mother.

Mother never let on about her letter-writing activity. She did not realize that, after perusal by editors and publicity departments, these letters would be delivered to me. And I never told her.

Mother, being Scandinavian, did not believe in spoiling her children with direct or frequent praise. We might become vain, she feared, or take to showing off.

But whenever a short story or a book of mine appeared, there would arrive, in time, a restrained and polite fan-letter from my mother, pointing out to the editor or publisher what a really fine story they had.

She was far too honest to write her letters anonymously. She might disguise her handwriting, but she always signed her own name.

In her quiet way, she was also quite a salesman of my wares. When Mama's Bank Account was published in 1943, my mother carried a copy of the book (title outward, so that people might see) everywhere she went. On trains, streetcars or buses, she would enter into conversation with strangers and talk about my book.

When fabulous and wonderful things happened to my book — when John van Druten made it into a play, I Remember Mama, and it became a resounding success on Broadway — my mother took it very quietly. Only I knew that the steady stream of fan-letters was still going on.

Her diligent efforts on my behalf did not cease. She even took to writing to the magazines where my stories did not appear.

When RKO made a movie of the book and play, she awaited eagerly the day I Remember Mama would premiere in San Francisco. And that was the day my mother's doctor called the family to say that she would have to go to the hospital soon. He gave us scant hope that her illness would be temporary.

I took Mother to the very first showing of the picture. I sat by her side, bereft with the secret knowledge, and tried to keep from crying.

Mother was first embarrassed by my public display of emotion, then impatient. "After all," she reminded me, "this is only a movie."

"There's talk of a television series some day," I whispered, trying to divert her attention.

But before Mama began its Friday-night stand on television, our mother had left us, as quietly and as gallantly as she had lived.

Lonely months later, in the usual batch of business mail and forwarded memos, I was to find this letter:

"Dear Sirs: I Remember Mama was a fine movie. I laughed a lot, but it made my daughter cry. I liked the book too. I like everything this author writes."

It was signed, firmly, with my mother's name.

A hat designer's analysis:
she's a good-time Charlotte

Devil-may-care girl picks a red velvet brocaded winter sports hat with dangling tail, ermine trim. She hoots at convention, William J. says, is apt to wear this hat anywhere — even to the beach.

"HEAD HUNTER" type chooses hat that will shift attention from the gleam in her eye, according to analyzing designer. Above, the choice is an actual fox's head set on a plain brown velvet crown.

YOUR HAT IS YOU

So says this designer—who may know

NEW YORK.

On these pages is pictured the philosophy of hat designer William J. (that's his trade name): hats follow personality types. William, who runs a hat salon here, has long held that he can predict a woman's taste in millinery after a few minutes of conversation. Recently he brought in a group of models, allowed them to rummage through the shop and choose the hats they liked best. After each girl had chosen, she was told to reach inside the crown, read the slip of paper she found there. When each one read off her own name, William J. looked smug. "They can fool a psychoanalyst," he said, "but they can't fool me."

WOMAN OF THE WORLD prefers the bizarre, the strikingly dramatic or the offbeat. This sophisticated lady has picked a spray of beige vulture feathers. Other analyses by William J.: the shy female tends to select pillboxes; the hostile type, unsuitable hats.

SPENCER TRACY:

In 25 years he's made 59 pictures,

by LLOYD SHEARER

PARADE WEST COAST CORRESPONDENT

TRACY TODAY: Snapped by PARADE at Chamonix, in the French Alps, he looks every one of his 55 years. But time has not changed an essential ingredient of Tracy's great screen appeal: character.

HOLLYWOOD.

AT 55, AFTER a quarter of a century in motion pictures and top roles in some of the best films this town has ever made, Spencer Tracy remains Hollywood's least-known major star.

Currently he is beginning to slack off a bit. Having finished his 59th film, The Mountain — in which he plays the vigorous part of a French mountain climber — Tracy plans to star in one more vehicle next year, the movie version of Ernest Hemingway's The Old Man and the Sea. "And then," he says, "I'm gonna take it easy."

"Now, don't get me wrong," he quickly cautions. "I'm not retiring. The only time an actor really retires is when they don't want him any more. I don't think that's true in my case, although maybe it is. [It isn't, since Tracy recently was offered his standard fee of $250,000 per picture to star in two more, The Reminiscences of a Cowboy and Inherit the Wind]. But I don't see any point in making run-of-the-mill pictures. People can get as much of that stuff as they want on television."

"I'm not money-hungry, and what I'd like to do is make maybe one picture a year or even less. But I want the picture to be memorable, something substantial and worthwhile."

"When I get out of my Thunderbird these days, my back hurts. And it's not because of the driver's seat, either. It's because I'm not a kid any more. And if I'm going to do a picture, I want the story to be solid and meaningful and entertaining. When the public walks out of the theater where a picture of mine's been playing, I want to feel that the people have gotten their money's worth. I think they will in The Mountain."

For rugged-featured, deeply lined, white-haired Spencer Tracy to talk this extensively to a member of the press is unusual. For years screen reporters have considered him the most moody, unapproachable and uncommunicative actor in the business.

He is one player who has made a fetish of refusing to live his private life in public. How many times have you seen a photograph of Spencer Tracy and his family? How many times have you seen a photo of Spencer Tracy at home? How many times have you read a Spencer Tracy story in a movie magazine or a national magazine? What, in fact, do you know about Spencer Tracy, the man?

The chances are, very little. Proud, stubborn, changeable Irishman that he is, Tracy insists that acting is a dignified profession and steadfastly declines to lend himself to the schemes of studio publicists.

Hollywood's least-known star

but even Hollywood calls him a mystery man. Here is a look at the man behind the mystery his youthful looks match the romantic mood. Then — as now — Tracy stood 5'10½", weighed about 175.

As a result, for a star of his stature, he is regarded in Hollywood as pretty much of a mystery man.

Pat O'Brien, who grew up with Tracy in Milwaukee and roomed with him in New York when both were struggling young actors, says, "The only thing I can tell you about Spence is that he's a moody, talented, unpredictable Mick who's so sentimental that he hides his sentiment under a mask of gruffness."

"The reason nobody knows too much about Tracy," adds Jim Denton, of 20th Century-Fox, "is that for an actor he's incredibly modest. He doesn't like to talk about himself. When he came over here to do Broken Lance last year, all we got out of him was a single page of copy. When you look back over the record, however, you find that the guy has won two Oscars for Captains Courageous and Boys' Town. He's also been in the first-box-office 10 for years, and he gets more fan mail than most other actors."

Generally speaking, moviegoers find a definite classification for their favorite stars. Clark Gable, for example, long has been regarded as a lover, John Wayne as an adventurer, Greer Garson as a lady of the landed gentry.

Tracy's case defies classification. When Fox signed him 25 years ago, he was considered "too unhandsome" for Romeo roles. He also was regarded as a playboy offscreen. "I used to drink in those days," Tracy admits. "But never on a picture — always between. Anyway, the big shots were worried. They fired me, but at 8 o'clock that same night my agent took me over to MGM to have a talk with Louis B. Mayer, and he signed me to a contract. I stayed with Metro until this year."

At MGM during the 1930s it was decided that Tracy lacked feminine draw. He therefore was given a series of "good-natured goof" roles in which he consistently lost the girl to Clark Gable. He also ran a race with Paul Muni in depicting real-life characters on the screen. He played Father Flanagan in Boys' Town, Edison the Man, Stanley and Livingstone and others.

The result was that movie fans could not fix Tracy in their minds' eye with a simple, clear classification. Even more confusing, during World War II the studio suddenly altered its view concerning Tracy's sex appeal. He was given romantic leads, mostly opposite Katharine Hepburn (Adam's Rib, Keeper of the Flame, Without Love). Not too surprisingly, he soared to new popularity heights.

In the 1950s, however, Tracy returned to character roles in such films as Father's Little Dividend, The Actress and Bad Day at Black Rock. So that as a movie star he still remains all things to all men.

Years ago, after discarding alcohol, Tracy took up polo. When a close friend of his, Adrian Roark, was killed playing the sport, he, too, abandoned it on the insistent advice of his studio. He next tried yachting, then gave that up also. The fact is that his prime interest in life has always been acting — he began on the New York stage in 1922 and came to Hollywood in 1930 — and he will let nothing interfere in his driving determination to give every role his best.

A few weeks ago when I walked into the bar of the Hotel del Alpes in Chamonix, a picturesque French village at the base of the Alps where the Mountain company was on location, Harry Mines, a Paramount press agent, was lecturing Tracy on the need for publicity cooperation.

"We have a still photographer," Mines stormed, "and his job is to take pictures. You won't let him, and I think that's pretty uncooperative."

"Now wait a minute," Tracy roared. "Wait one minute." He ran a hand across his weather-beaten face and downed a straight shot of — milk.

"Did you mention the word, 'job'?" he asked ominously. There was a dramatic pause, befitting a veteran actor. "Well, I've got a job, too. I've got a job to act in this picture, and I mean to do it as well as I can. I'm not going to let anyone interfere with that. I get up at 5:30 every morning, and we've got to hike up the mountain. It's 10, 12, 13 thousand feet up. How many times you been up, Harry, once?"

There's a Time for Everything

"Well, the air's pretty thin up there and after you trudge for two hours, it's a little tough to breathe. I stand in the snow with a pack on my back and I try to give the scene everything I've got. I'm concentrating on the lines and the mood and the take, and then in the middle I suddenly hear camera-shutters clicking. I'm sorry but it breaks my concentration. I know that stills have to be taken but let 'em shoot a little distance away." And with that he got to his feet, smiled good-naturedly and said, "Don't make me a heavy. Let's go in and eat."

Next day Tracy spent two hours posing in the snow on the treacherous, jagged edges of Mt. Blanc. (See cover.)

"Spence will rib and ride people," Mountain director Eddie Dmytryk pointed out later. "And he'll fight like hell to maintain the quality of a picture. But I've never known him to hold a grudge against anyone. His capacity for compassion is infinite."

Their son's deafness taught the Tracys a lifelong understanding in Tracy's case his first sorrow occurred 30 years ago when his son John was born deaf. In turning this tragedy into a triumph, the young actor revealed a certain nobility, a grandeur of spirit that today is one of Tracy's outstanding traits. He may be moody, enigmatic, publicity-shy and seemingly far removed from reality—but let anyone around him get into trouble, and he's the first to help.

Bob Wagner, for example, the young actor who plays Tracy's kid brother in The Mountain, says: "Spence is one of the kindest guys in this business. The hints and tips he's given me, not only in this picture but in Broken Lance—it would've taken me 10 years to pick them up on my own. Why did he do it? Because I'm inexperienced and he happens to be a sweet human being."

Says Bob O'Donnell, Texas theater-circuit owner, "Tracy made a trailer for our crippled-children's fund a few years ago. Thanks to him we helped raise a million dollars. I know no other man more sensitive to the suffering of others."

At the time his son was born, Spencer Tracy was a 25-year-old actor working for the Wright Stock Company in Grand Rapids, Mich. He would commute each week between Grand Rapids and Milwaukee, where his wife was living with his parents. And he was blissfully happy.

He was married to Louise Treadwell, a strikingly beautiful actress who'd been a leading lady with the Leonard Wood Stock Company when Tracy was little more than a spear-carrier for the same outfit. The future of the young couple looked bright. When Tracy's weekly salary was raised to $125, he moved his family into an apartment hotel in Grand Rapids.

It was there one day that Louise Tracy discovered her baby was deaf. As she herself narrates the experience: "Our son Johnny was about 10 months old. He was taking his afternoon nap out on the sleeping porch, sleeping very late, when I decided to wake him. I remember that I let the screen door slam. (You remember things like that sometimes). Still Johnny didn't wake.

"I bent down beside his crib and called, 'Johnny, time to wake up.' There was no response. I moved closer and this time I fairly shouted in his ear. 'Johnny! Johnny! Wake up!' Then finally I touched him. His blue eyes opened, and he looked up at me, and I knew the truth. He was deaf.

"I had never known a deaf person, and I was scared stiff. I didn't know what

TRACY ON TRACY: "I'm not money-hungry..."

"... I'd like to make maybe one picture a year."

"When I get out of my car these days, I ache."

"... And that's because I'm not a kid any more."

Tracy prefers not to discuss his family and worries about just one thing: his work to do, and there is nothing in the world more frightening than ignorance. I didn't tell Spence, but I took Johnny to an ear specialist in Milwaukee. He asked me a few questions, then examined the baby. He rang bells, blew whistles and used a little tuning fork. Then he turned to me and said, 'Mrs. Tracy, your child is really too young to test. Take him home, keep him well and in a few years bring him back.'

"I told the doctor that I knew John was deaf. I was sure of it. What could we do about it? That's what I wanted to know. The doctor said it was nerve deafness and there wasn't anything we could do.

"Then I asked him the one question that I had been carrying around in my heart and mind for weeks. 'Will my baby ever talk?'"

The otologist looked at Louise Tracy sadly. He explained that children learned to talk through hearing, by imitation. If John couldn't hear any sounds, it could be assumed he couldn't imitate any. So he never would learn to talk.

"For weeks," Louise Tracy recalls, "I carried that secret around with me, tight and locked up. Somehow, I couldn't bring myself to tell Spence. I struggled on from day to day feeling helpless and lost.

"Finally, Spence came home one day. 'For goodness' sake,' he demanded. 'What's the matter with you, Louise? You've been acting so strange lately.' I told him Johnny was deaf.

"I'll never forget his reaction. He slumped into a chair. He buried his face in his hands. His body was racked with sighs. Watching him sit there in anguish, I felt my heart would break. I tried to get through to him, tried to tell him how much more we could mean to Johnny because of his deafness.

"After a while Spence got up. It was a Sunday. 'Louise,' he said. 'Get a baby-sitter. We're going out to the carnival tonight. We're not going to let this get us down ever.'"

And it never has — partly because that first doctor was wrong on one point.

When Johnny was 21 months old, Mrs. Tracy took him to a well-known New York otologist. The doctor tested the child and said, "Your boy is totally deaf and there's nothing I can do about it. But there's plenty you can do. Your child can learn to lip-read. He can learn to talk. He can do almost anything that a hearing person can do, but you and your husband have a job to do."

The Tracys accepted the challenge. It took time, money, patience, years of effort and experiment. But today their son John is a happily married man of 30. Having learned to lip-read, he was graduated from Pasadena Junior College and now talks, understands, works as a cartoonist and lives a normal life in suburban Westwood with his charming wife and 3-year-old boy, Joseph Spencer Tracy.

So that other parents of deaf children might learn from her experience in raising and training her son, Mrs. Tracy founded the John Tracy Clinic in Los Angeles 13 years ago. The first free clinic of its kind in the world, it has helped set thousands of deaf children on the path to speech. The funds to get started were donated by Spencer Tracy, who insists that he's had virtually nothing to do with the now world-famous institution.

'Keep Me Out of It'

"The whole thing," he claims, "was Louise's idea. She's the woman who's devoted her life to the project. If there's any credit coming, it's hers. Keep me out of it."

Three years ago, after Mrs. Tracy had been awarded honorary degrees by the University of Southern California and Northwestern University, her actor husband was called upon to say a few words at the opening of the clinic's new headquarters on Los Angeles' Adams Boulevard.

"Despite its great fame and following," Tracy began, "there is nothing Hollywood has done or ever will do which exceeds the contribution Louise has made to the welfare of so many children."

Then he stepped down, walked over to his wife and proudly kissed her.

The Tracys have another child, Susan, 22, who is taking vocal lessons and hopes to become a singer. But of Susie, like the other members of his immediate family, Tracy dislikes to talk.

"It's one of my peculiarities," he affirmed some time ago, "that I won't talk about my family. An actor gets little enough privacy as is. The life I live at home I try to keep entirely separate from my work. I think I'm entitled to do so. It's the only opportunity I have to forget shop completely. I don't think that's being snooty. It's a practical way of preserving something that I don't want spoiled."

According to newsmen, it's a practical way of becoming a male Greta Garbo. But Tracy never has concerned himself with the diatribes of reporters. "The only thing that worries him," declares his brother and business manager, Carroll, "is his work. About that he is Hollywood's No. 1 worry-wart. In fact, if he isn't worrying, he isn't happy. Twenty-five years ago his wife wrote her sister that Spence didn't photograph too well and there wasn't much of a chance that he'd ever become a success on the screen. Spence is still worried that Louise may have been right."

NEXT WEEK: The second part of Lloyd Shearer's article tells how a young New York piano salesman named Tracy became one of Hollywood's all-time top stars.

UP IN THE ALPS during filming of The Mountain, berated Tracy chats between "takes" with Robert Wagner (his screen brother), Barbara Darrow and Anna Kashfi.

'COMING OF AGE' IN THREE FAITHS — NO. 2

▲ "I ACCEPT YOU"

Standing before the Ark and under the Eternal Light, Rabbi Zion of Denver's Temple Emanuel places hands on Mark Horwich's head in blessing. Gesture recalls Confirmation ceremony in other faiths.

▶ "TO BE WORTHY"

Addressing Congregation packed into Temple, Mark says: "I will try with all my heart and soul to be worthy." This climaxes his speech of thanks (which Mark wrote) to Rabbi, teacher, family and friends.

A JEWISH BOY BECOMES A MAN

by KARL KOHRS and CAL BERNSTEIN

DENVER, COLO.

Judaism, oldest of the major faiths followed today in the U.S., is a religion of ceremonial rituals steeped in tradition and — to many Americans — somewhat enigmatic. It traces its beginnings back to Abraham, mentioned in Genesis, who is considered its founder. Through the ensuing centuries, Judaism has flourished as the fountainhead of faith that still inspires an estimated 5,500,000 Jews in the United States.

In modern times, two different forms of worship have evolved from the Orthodox: the Conservative and the Reform. Yet, whatever their differences, Jews today still hand down their ancient faith in the ancient way — from father to son. They accept each new generation into the Congregation when, in the time-honored tradition, it is ready to "come of age."

This "coming of age" is Bar Mitzvah, one of the most im-

A book and a drop of honey were Mark's introduction to the faith of his ancestors when he was only 5 years old portant ceremonials held in the synagogue. It is a rite participated in only by males, and is usually on the first Saturday after a boy has reached the age of 13. Marking his entry into the Congregation as a full-fledged member, in essence it is another form of a dramatic experience common to children of all faiths: Confirmation. (Today the analogy is even closer: In some Reform synagogues boys may continue their religious training in post-Bar Mitzvah classes, which also include girls. On completion of Sunday School there at age 15 or 16, both boys and girls may be confirmed in the Temple.)

As we know it today, the Bar Mitzvah—literally, "Son of the Commandment"—can be traced back only about 700 years. But the age of 13 seems to have significance reaching into earliest Jewish history. Tradition declares, for example, that Abraham rejected the idolatry of his father, Terah, and became a worshiper of God at 13. Esau and Jacob went to school together until they were 13, then went their separate ways—Jacob to the "house of the law," Esau to the "house of idols." Levi, son of Jacob, was called a man at the age of 13.

Such, briefly, is the background of the ceremony in which a Jewish boy becomes a man. Today PARADE records the Bar Mitzvah of Mark Horwich of Denver, held here recently in Temple Emanuel (a Reform synagogue).

Mark actually began preparing for the event when he was only 5 years old. The son of Herman Horwich, a business executive and civic leader, he received his first instruction when Manuel Breslaw, venerable Jewish scholar, came to Mark's home to start teaching him Hebrew.

Breslaw brought with him a Hebrew primer, placed a drop of honey on the first page and told Mark to kiss it. Then he said: "This pleasant association of the taste of honey with the learning of Hebrew should last you through life."

AT PARTY following his Bar Mitzvah, Mark is the center of attention. Some 225 guests attended traditional celebration.

FRIENDS congratulate Mr. and Mrs. Horwich (r.) at reception. This windup to Bar Mitzvah began in days when father called in his friends to hear his son read from the Torah.

Mark studied Hebrew for eight years. In weekly lessons Breslaw taught him not only the language but the customs and traditions of his people. Together they talked about the history of the Jews, the significance of Jewish holidays and — most important of all — the measure of responsibility Mark would some day assume as a Jew.

His years of preparation were climaxed with the study of the Torah, the ancient book of Hebrew law. The Torah, which contains the five books of Moses — the Pentateuch — includes the fundamental history and philosophy of Jewish life and the 613 laws governing religious Jews.

Revelation vs. Inspiration

Orthodox Judaism believes that the Torah is a revelation from God. Consequently, all its laws and precepts must be followed exactly. Reform Judaism believes that its faith is the sum of the religious experience of the Jewish people, and that the Torah was written by men inspired by God. Accordingly, even the traditional observance may be changed to reflect the modern world.

The service performed at Temple Emanuel was patterned after that of the Orthodox tradition, except that in the latter the men would wear the traditional skull cap, the tallith (white prayer shawl), and the tefillin or phylacteries (little black boxes strapped on the left arm and forehead) while reciting weekday morning prayers. The last may be considered symbolic of the way Jews are bound by the laws of their faith.

Temple Emanuel, oldest and largest Jewish Congregation in Colorado, was founded one year before Colorado became a state. It has a membership of 950 families and an enrollment of 750 children in its Sunday School. Its leader is Rabbi Joel Zion, one of more than 700 Reform rabbis in the U.S. There are also more than 1,000 Orthodox rabbis and about 600 Conservative.

But tradition held sway for the most part at Mark's Bar Mitzvah. This was the day when his father would stand up in the Synagogue before the Congregation and announce the Baruch Shepetarani, the Benediction: "Blessed be He Who has freed me from being responsible for this young man's conduct."

Henceforth, according to the ancient tradition, Mark's sins no longer were on his father's shoulders, and he no longer would benefit from his father's virtues. After the day of his Bar Mitzvah, Mark himself would be accountable for his own vows and, in the eyes of God, would participate fully in the Jewish community. He would be accepted as a member of the Congregation and counted in the Minyan (quorum) required for Congregational worship. He would be expected to obey the laws of the Jews, contribute to charity and accept the communal and personal responsibility of Judaism.

On the morning of the ceremony, Mark dressed in his new Bar Mitzvah suit, took his place at the altar at the beginning of the regular Sabbath service. With him were Rabbi Zion, an assistant rabbi and Mark's father.

The service opened traditionally with the Benediction and a hymn led by the boys' choir. Regular responsive readings followed; as Temple Emanuel is Reform, most of the service was in English. When the choir had finished another hymn, Mark moved into his rehearsed position between Rabbi Zion and his father, facing the sacred Ark in which the Torah rests.

Then the Bar Mitzvah (the term means the boy as well as the ceremony) listened as Rabbi Zion intoned the opening words:

"You are now ready to take your place in your responsibilities as a Jew. May you do so with dignity and honor . . . May the Lord bless thee and keep thee. May the Lord let His countenance shine upon thee and be gracious unto thee. May the Lord lift up His countenance to thee and grant thee peace."

Half-frightened, his knees shaking a bit, Mark tried hard to act as responsible and adult as the Congregation expected him to. All morning he had bucked up his courage by promising himself he wouldn't be nervous. After all, he had rehearsed his speech a thousand times, studied for two months the passage he was to read from the Torah.

Everything was very quiet. To his own surprise, Mark now felt confident and unafraid. As the Rabbi removed one of the three Torahs, Mark waited for his father to reach for the scroll and hand it on to him. This is the symbol of the passing of the law through generations from father to son.

PRESENTS, combined for Mark's birthday and Bar Mitzvah, included globe, radio, sporting equipment, cameras and books. There were several duplicates.

Reading of ancient law in the Torah is high point of ceremony

In the next moment, the Bar Mitzvah, holding the sacred object in both hands, was facing his Congregation. To the accompaniment of sonorous chords from the organ, Mark moved exactly as he had practiced so many times. Now he was standing next to the gowned Rabbi, waiting for him to open the scroll and indicate where Mark was to read.

As Rabbi Zion moved a pointer to guide his reading, Mark recited the portion of the Torah dealing with the kindling of the Eternal Light, which symbolizes the eternal Spirit of God. Then he read and translated a passage from the Haftarah (the Prophets), read during each service as a supplement to the Torah.

Then for Mark came another crowning moment—the Derashah, or address to the Congregation in which he formally accepted his responsibilities. In it he also thanked all who had helped him accomplish his Bar Mitzvah. Part of his oration ran: "My dear parents, relatives, friends and teachers. I shall try with all my heart and soul to be worthy of all and to live in the spirit of Scriptural admonition... and to apply the teachings of the Torah to my entire life. Amen."

And to Mother, Dad and Sister listening proudly before him, that was the finest speech ever made anywhere by anyone.

The hour-long service was concluded with a sermon by Rabbi Zion based on a portion of the Torah Mark had read. He told his audience that this particular scroll was more than 100 years old. It had been used in a synagogue in Germany and had been partially destroyed by the Nazis. Restored, it had been bought by Temple Emanuel and placed in the Ark with the other two Torahs. Said Rabbi Zion: "This restored Torah represents the immortality of learning. Let it be the symbol of the everlasting life of Judaism."

After the service, Mark's family, relatives and friends rushed up to congratulate him on his speech and wish him Shabbat Shalom (peaceful Sabbath) and Mazel Tov (good luck). Then 200 or more relatives and friends, some from more than 1,000 miles away, joined the family for the traditional feast and celebration—Se'udah.

Everyone, of course, brought Mark combination Bar Mitzvah and birthday presents, as is the custom. They included every kind of gift a boy could wish for. From Rabbi Zion came a beautiful gift-edged Bible. And tucked away among the larger gifts was a small one with a significance all its own to a young man on the threshold of maturity: a shiny electric razor.

TEACHER Breslaw, in shawl and cap, shows Mark how to put on phylacteries, boxes containing prayers used at morning worship.

NEXT WEEK: The third and last story in PARADE'S "Coming of Age" series describes, in photos and text, a young Catholic girl's Confirmation.

Teen-age Topics

Jealousy is a normal emotion, but when it is excessive the result is unhappiness for all concerned. Here are some letters on the subject.

Q. Last summer I fell in love with a wonderful girl. After seeing each other constantly, we broke up because we argued so much. The reason is that I am jealous. How can I overcome it?
— G.W., Boston, Mass.

A. Try writing a letter to yourself about your behavior—and in it list the things in this girl's behavior that make you jealous. Perhaps when you look at the letter you will see that your complaints are very shallow.

Q. I am 13, and a boy I like who is 15 visits me often. When I am with him he always talks of other girls to make me jealous. He asks me to go to dances and football games, but in a joking way. I refuse because I think he might "stand me up." — S.T., Bethlehem, Pa.

A. I would say that he had made you jealous. His teasing, which you probably enjoy, may be of the variety that brothers reserve for their kid sisters. His invitations probably are not sincere, but he may be telling you in his own way that when you are older he'd like to take you out.

Q. Each time my boy friend brings me home, he says, "I am sorry I ruined your evening." I really enjoy myself until he says this. He also thinks that, because he doesn't have the money to take me to expensive places, he doesn't do enough for me. — A.R., Washington, D.C.

A. It's sad for a teenager to have the habit of self-pity. All I can suggest is that you build up his feeling of importance. Tell him politely and firmly that you did have a good time and let it go at that. If he persists in being a spoilsport, go out more with other boys. Some people are afraid to enjoy life—and therefore never do.

Vanishing Americans

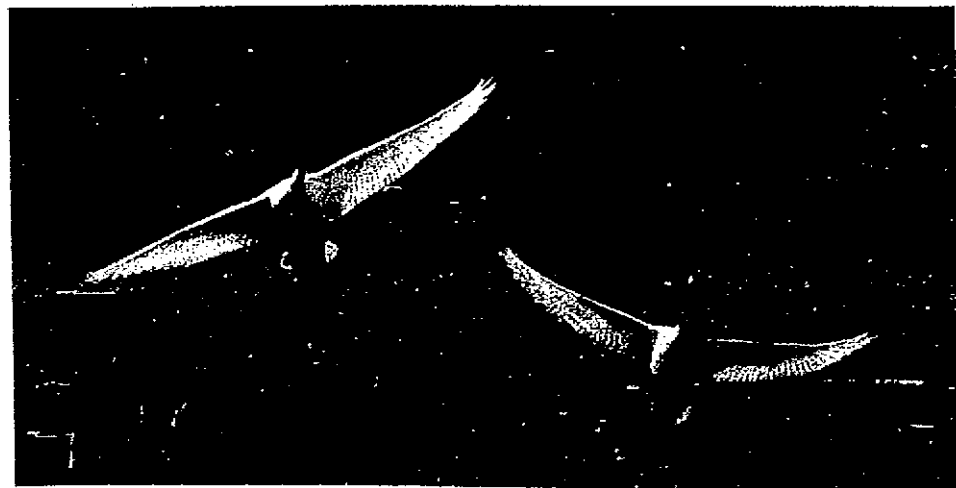

Like the passenger pigeon and heath hen, these animals may disappear — unless man helps them

DESERT FOX: Civilization's advance in the Southwest may well have doomed this shy, big-eared, largely nocturnal creature. But recent checkups hint that it is holding its ground.

LONGHORN COW: Victim of man's insatiable appetite — and of breeding for better beef cattle — this animal has won a respite. From one herd of 30, longhorns have increased to 500.

TRUMPETER SWANS: Hunted without mercy, the species was thought extinct in the early 1900s. Then a few survivors were found in Montana. The chicks sold well to zoos, so local folk ruled out hunters. By now, with trapping and killing outlawed, U.S. has 650 trumpeters.

on their Arctic-to-Texas flyway mistake the 5' birds for geese.

One day soon you may pick up your newspaper and read that the last whooping crane (above) or key deer (right) is dead. If so, blame man. It was man who killed off the passenger pigeon, heath hen and ivory-billed woodpecker; who slaughtered the sea otter, gray whale, longhorn cow and trumpeter swan to the edge of extinction; who, unchecked, might well wipe the whole U. S. clean of wildlife.

Luckily, man also knows how to conserve if he must. Led by the Government's Fish and Wildlife Service, thoughtful sportsmen at last are protecting whole species and marking their breeding and feeding areas off-limits. Result: at least a partial comeback for the grizzly bear, moose, bison and bighorn sheep. But for most of the animals pictured here — along with the prairie chicken, condor and even the symbolic bald eagle — such efforts may prove too little and too late. ■

KEY DEER: Collie-sized, they live only on Florida keys; hunters have reduced them to about 90 individuals. Unless they increase to at least 200, species is doomed.

Brazil nut plum pudding

This new version of an old favorite is rich with fruits and nuts — but easy to make

Fourteen days to Christmas! Two short weeks to wind up shopping, wrapping, mailing and planning the holiday feast. To help you with this last, but so important detail, here is the recipe for a superb dessert. It's traditional — yet so new! You can stretch the preparation over two days, if you like. On the first day cut up the fruits, combine with the orange juice, cover, store in the refrigerator; grind the Brazil nuts and suet; mix and sift the dry ingredients. On the second day, mix and steam. Rewarm to serve.

- | | |
|--|---------------------------------------|
| $\frac{3}{4}$ cup orange juice | 1 cup plus 2 tablespoons |
| $\frac{3}{4}$ cup seedless raisins | dry bread crumbs |
| $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. pitted dates, cut up | $\frac{3}{4}$ cup sifted, enriched |
| $\frac{1}{2}$ cup finely cut citron | flour |
| 2 apples, peeled and | $1\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoons baking |
| chopped | powder |
| $1\frac{1}{2}$ tablespoons grated | $\frac{3}{4}$ teaspoon baking soda |
| orange peel | 6 tablespoons sugar |
| 3 eggs, slightly beaten | $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon each, salt |
| $\frac{1}{4}$ cup molasses | and cinnamon |
| $1\frac{1}{2}$ cups ground Brazil nuts | $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon each, allspice |
| $\frac{3}{4}$ cup (3 oz.) ground suet | and ground cloves |

Pour orange juice over raisins, dates, citron, apple and orange peel; let stand 1 hour. Combine eggs and molasses; stir in Brazil nuts, suet and bread crumbs. Mix and sift remaining ingredients; sift into egg mixture; blend well. Add fruit mixture; mix well. Turn into a greased 2½-qt. pudding mold with tight-fitting cover (or cover with aluminum foil and tie securely). Place on rack in deep kettle; pour in boiling water to half the depth of the mold. Cover; steam 3 hours, adding more boiling water during steaming if necessary. Serve warm with whipped cream-in-a-can or hard sauce.

ROCKY MARCIANO'S MOTHER PRAYS...

"I think God was very good to us," she says, "and I always pray that Rocky will do the right thing."

The heavyweight champ's mother urges:

'QUIT NOW,

BROCKTON, MASS.

After my son Rocky beat Archie Moore in their fight this fall, lots of people asked me: "When is Rocky going to retire?" I don't know the answer, because I never ask Rocky what his plans are. But I wish Rocky would quit. I wish he would quit right now.

Sure I'm proud and happy that he is champion, and I thank God all the time. But I worry about him; now that he is champion, Rocky looks older than his 31 years. There is a great strain on him. Today he is here, then tomorrow he is in some place like California. Rocky never says anything, but I know he feels a big responsibility about being the champion, and he worries that he will do right.

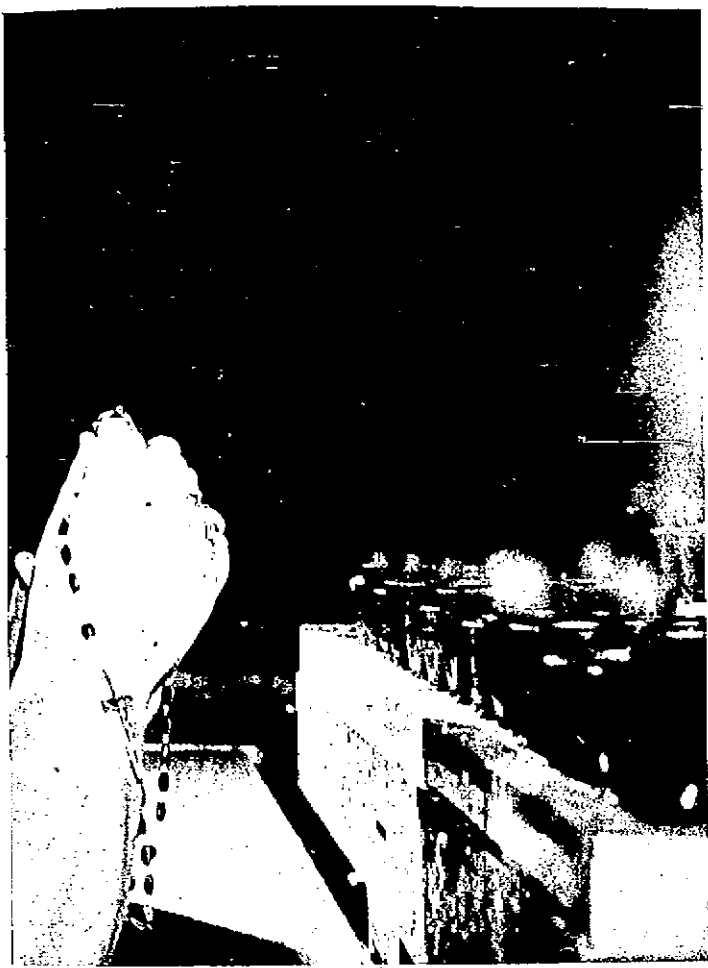

Also there is always a lot of people who bother him. He always has to do favors. He never can stay with his family. He can't lead his own life. He can't stay at home and see his baby growing up.

I want Rocky to quit because I worry about the people he meets in the fight business. I fear that all they do is just take money from my Rocky. They need him to make money and they might do bad things to get more money. I worry that they won't let him quit. I just hope they won't take advantage of my son.

Since Rocky has been the champion, there has been a great strain on our whole family. The door to my house is always open to anybody who comes to see him or ask about him. Some days I'm busy all day with people calling on the phone, ringing the bell, and always asking questions. I know that if I don't answer them, people will say bad things about Rocky and his family. We never turn anybody away from the door, but it's a big strain trying to be nice all day and all night. Even when the phone rings in the middle of the night, or early in the morning, you've got to be smiling and pleasant.

It's wonderful to meet nice people, but you must have your own life too. Some days I feel like my husband and I are in a window. It's the same thing for Rocky and his wife, Barbara.

Don't misunderstand. I don't want Rocky to quit because I'm worried about him getting hurt in the ring. Really, even deep down in my heart, I don't worry. I am confident that he can fight without getting seriously hurt. He has won so many fights that I am sure nothing will happen to him while he is fighting. But it is the terrible life he has to lead outside the ring — as long as he is champion — that makes me wish Rocky would quit.

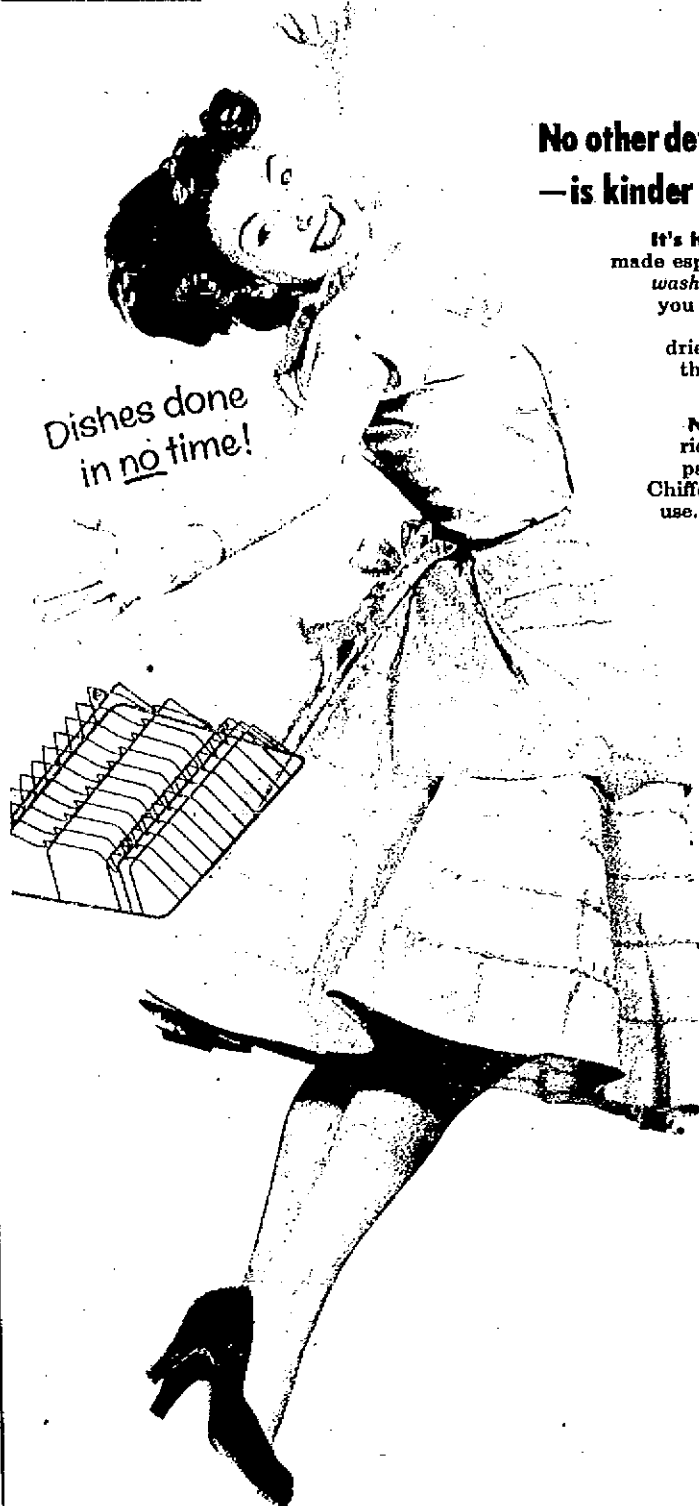

A lot of people think Rocky keeps on fighting because we need the money. It's not true; from the day my husband came back from World War I, he always had a good job in the shoe factory here. We owned our own house on Brook Street, where all my children — Rocco, Louis, Alice, Connie, Betty and Peter — were born.

'I just hope I'll be able to help him learn how wonderful it is to raise a family'

TOGETHER for rare visit at training camp — Barbara is usually barred — Marcianos watch daughter Mary Ann, 2½, munch dad's birthday cake.

My first child died at birth; a year later I had Rocco. Then every two years like clockwork I had a baby, until Peter came 14 years ago.

I knew all the time in my heart that Rocky would be something. I love all my children the same, but Rocky is my first, and a mother has a certain feeling about the first boy.

Rocky could have been a success in almost anything because he always thought big. He was never satisfied with small things. He started fighting while he was in the Army during World War II, and of course I didn't know anything about it. If he had been home, he would never have started. I would have been after him to stay away from it, and he would have listened to me.

When he came home and started to fight in the amateurs, I saw that was what he wanted to do, so I didn't say anything. But I prayed: "God, if that is what he wants, please take care of him."

In the beginning, lots of people discouraged me. They told me that Rocky was no good — that he would get a bad beating. I wouldn't say anything to him — he had to live his own life — but I would pray. Of course I didn't know much about fighting, and never did I think my boy would become so big a fighter.

But now that he has done what he wanted — now that he is champion — I must say to him what is in my heart: Rocky, God has listened to my prayers, for He has been very good to us. But now I think you should retire. You have won enough.

Rocky knows how I feel and he is always telling me: "Ma, you just take it easy and be quiet." He always wants me not to be nervous.

On the day that he fights, though, I think he is the only member of our family who is not nervous. He never asks me to see him fight, and I never want to go. Other people in the family go, and though they don't tell Rocky, they are all nervous.

I always go to church with a friend of mine on the day Rocky fights. She's a lady I've known for a long time. After church we go back to her house — just the two of us. This lady is a good friend, but I never tell anybody who she is so that there won't be telephone calls and telegrams and everything.

When we get to her house, she turns the clock back so I don't know what time it is. I know that she turns the clock back, but I never say anything. I like this because when the clock shows that Rocky is stepping into the ring, the fight actually may be all over.

We usually sit and watch television — anything but the fight. My friend keeps sneaking in to her radio to find out what's happening. Then, when it's all over, I go home. Most of the time I don't even know what I saw on the television.

It's Hard on Brothers

A lot of people think I am foolish for wanting Rocky to retire. They say it will be easier for his brothers to become somebody. They are wrong; it will be harder. Everybody will expect them to become champions in whatever they do. But maybe they won't have the same luck that Rocky had. Also, they won't let Rocky do anything for them because he is the champion. But if he weren't, I think maybe then they would let him help.

Some of my friends tell me I should be happy that Rocky is champion, because I go to a lot of nice places and meet a lot of famous people. It is true that my husband and I do get to travel a lot, but what I enjoy best is going to Rocky's training camp at Grossinger, N. Y. — especially a few months before the fight, when Rocky has time to be with us. Up there I can enjoy the good food, the healthy air of the mountains. I read and write, and just take it easy.

That, and meeting wonderful people, is about the only real happiness I have gotten out of Rocky being champion. I will always be proud that I met Cardinal Spellman and the Pope. Charlie Goldman, who is Rocky's trainer, will always be one of my best friends; he has been a wonderful friend to my Rocky. And then there is Jennie Grossinger and Perry Como — he is a fine boy.

I love meeting new people, for this is the way I try to help Rocky. I like to meet all the people who are interested in him. Sometimes it's a little too much. I'm not too well any more, and people are always asking me to go here and go there.

Don't misunderstand: I love company and parties. But now there are so many.

Sometimes the house is filled with people I don't even know.

Some of these people are phony (and I think some of the men who hang around Rocky's training camp are bad men), but most of them are very nice. Yet sometimes I wish I had met only a few of them, so I could keep them for friends. And now I almost wish I wouldn't meet any more people so I could get to know better the ones I've already met.

Old Friends Lost

But though Rocky's fighting has made many new friends for us, it has also lost us some of our very old and dear friends in Brockton. Unfortunately, I do not have as much time as before to see them, and they try not to bother me. This has made me very sad. I think that if Rocky were no longer the champion, we would have more time to be with these old friends.

But there are bigger reasons why I wish Rocky would not fight any more. There is my boy Connie, who's in the Army now. If Rocky were not fighting, I do not think Connie would take it up. I don't want him — or any of my other sons — to fight. I say to them: "If you do that to me, then you have no heart for your mother."

My youngest boy, Peter, is now on the football team at Brockton High School. Football is all right, but I like baseball best for my sons. Both Connie and Peter like baseball, and I am glad. But I want them to learn a lot of things, not just sports. It's nice to have a talent for sports, but when you reach 30 or 35 you must be able to do other things.

If Rocky doesn't stop fighting soon, I'm afraid it will be harder for him to lead a natural life later on. He will sit home and say to himself: "I could be here or I could be there." I just hope he has not forgotten how to take it easy. I just hope I'll be able to help him learn how wonderful it is to stay home and raise a family.

I would like him to go into business when he leaves the ring. But I don't care what he does, just as long as he stops fighting. That would make me the happiest woman in the world.

MARCHEGIANOS and famous son: He dropped "heg" from name after entering ring.

Quaker develops new oatmeal that cooks completely in just one minute

NEW PRODUCT TASTES SMOOTHER, CREAMIER...AND ITS HIGH-PROTEIN CONTENT CAN HELP YOU CONTROL YOUR WEIGHT

QUICK AS COFFEE—that's today's new oatmeal. Cooking time has been cut to just 50-60 seconds with the new Quick Quaker Oats. The pan cleans instantly, too... without scouring.

ESPECIALLY APPEALING TO CHILDREN is the extra creaminess and smoothness of the new oatmeal. The oat flakes have simply been rolled thinner for quicker cooking. All the nourishment of oatmeal, all the traditional oatmeal flavor, is there.

PROTEIN IS A KEY to weight control. Today's high-protein oatmeal has a very special significance for those who want to gain weight...

or lose it. It is the fundamental "must" for building up strong bodies, good red blood. At the same time, a diet high in protein is essential for those who need to lose weight. Protein raises the blood-sugar level, helps keep appetite inactive. It cuts down hunger—while supplying needed strength and energy.

YOUR WEIGHT-CONTROL PROBLEM—either kind—can be helped by the high-protein content of new Quick Quaker Oats.

For those who prefer the taste and the texture of old-style oatmeal, Old Fashioned Quaker Oats cooks in a mere 5 minutes.

ALL-MORNING ENERGY, for work or play is provided by a single bowl of hot, creamy oatmeal. Oatmeal supplies more stamina, more energy than any other whole-grain cereal... and a serving of Quaker Oats costs about 1¢.

PAN RINSES INSTANTLY when oatmeal is prepared properly. Just keep pan tightly covered, before and after serving, until ready to wash. It will rinse clean, without scouring.

WEIGHT-CONTROL SECRET is food high in protein to curb appetite, maintain stamina. And oatmeal supplies far more protein than any other leading cereal. Bowl of oatmeal, with sugar and milk included, contains only 210 calories... yet supplies 9 grams of protein.

PHENIX CITY, ALA. —one year later

The rackets are gone, and in their place is new-found pride

by ROBERT W. BROWN

Editor, The Columbus (Ga.) Ledger; 1954 Pulitzer Prize winner for his articles exposing vice and corruption in Phenix City.

EDITOR'S NOTE: A year ago, PARADE reported on Phenix City, Ala., just after the town's decent element had defied bombings and murders to shatter longtime gangster domination. Then the city's red-light district was shuttered, its gambling dens closed. But would the cleanup take? To find out, PARADE asked Robert W. Brown, author of last year's article, to check on the "new look."

PHENIX CITY, ALA.
Once it was one of the most notorious buildings in this notorious "Sin City of the South." The second floor housed a $1,000-a-day numbers racket; downstairs, a gambling den flourished and prostitutes congregated.

When you visit it today, you find a silent, deserted second floor. The first floor still rocks with merriment—of a different sort. Children sing and play youngsters' games. This is St. Patrick's Catholic Youth Center, symbol of the New Phenix City, 1955 model

—a cleaned-up city with recharged civic pride.

"There's a new spirit here now," explains Ed Seymour, a merchant and pre-cleanup member of the reform group. "In the past, a person from Phenix City registering in an out-of-town hotel would give Columbus, Ga., as his address. Now he puts it down like it is—Phenix City, Ala."

True, it took an unprecedented crime offensive by the State of Alabama to clean up the town and revive civic pride last year.

1954: Reformers Hugh Bentley (l.) and son were beaten by gangland thugs at polling place.

Gangsterism was broken up by martial rule and wholesale fines and imprisonments by outside enforcement and a special judiciary. But the townspeople have not only kept the community clean, they have made it sparkle. Their story teaches a lesson for all towns.

This fall Phenix City registered the largest vote ever cast in a single-seat election for the City Commission. In reelecting a reform commissioner, the voters endorsed higher taxes and a stricter policy on liquor licenses. To replace the revenue that formerly came from the dives, directly or indirectly, the new commission levied a $1-a-month garbage collection tax and a $5-a-year motor vehicle license fee.

There have been few complaints, and at least part of the citizenry has welcomed the new taxes. In the recent election campaign, a candidate reminded Negro voters that the two new levies added $17 a year to their tax bills. One man told him in reply, "We can remember when 'the law' would come around once or twice a year and we'd have to pay $50 or so whether we'd done anything or not. It's cheaper this way."

The new taxes and the air of reform that went with them have brought many changes to Phenix City. Here are some of the projects begun in the past year: a new $15,000 fire station; a $750,000 expansion of the water system; a new minimum housing code; a downtown slum-clearance and redevelopment program; a sanitary land-fill system of garbage disposal; an enlarged police force; a pay increase for sheriff's deputies; a $750,000 hospital addition; a refurbished municipal amusement park, and a new 79-acre recreation park.

Then there have been other changes. A Kiwanis club has been organized; a new weekly newspaper has been launched. A "Committee of 200," including some members from Columbus, has been organized to boost the area's potential. Retail sales are up; so is home building; so are church and Sunday School membership and attendance.

People Are Moving IN

But the biggest changes have been those of attitude. For the first time in years, people from surrounding towns in Georgia and Alabama are moving into Phenix City. An Alabamian who formerly commuted 56 miles a day rather than live in "Sin City" now owns a home overlooking the Chattahoochee River. So does Columbus newspaper cartoonist Marvin Zukerman, whose acid cartoons had helped to expose racket domination of the town. "It's cleaner than Columbus now, and the view I have of the valley is breathtaking," Zukerman says.

Phenix City is clean. "There is an occasional fight, and we go out and raid a still once in a while," says Sheriff Lamar Murphy. "But there is no bughouse [numbers headquarters] here and if there are any writers they are working the bug from Columbus." Besides the youth center, the old line of honky-tonks now houses, among other things, a medical-supply house and a feed store.

Recently, an investigative unit reporting on its surveillance on behalf of soldiers from nearby Fort Benning, Ga. (once the chief target of the vice operations) quoted a contact man:

"It's as dead as a graveyard. No women, no gambling, no nothing."

And just last month, a former belle of the red-light district, passing through town, stopped in to revisit some of her old haunts. Things had changed so that she had a few drinks for consolation and finally wound up in jail on a drunkenness charge. A few years ago, a drunken prostitute was commonplace, but this time it rated a story in a Columbus paper. Within a half hour after publication, a half-dozen Galahads were at the jail to bail her out. Her type had become so rare that she was a celebrity.

How long will Phenix City remain quiet and clean? The question still is asked by some cynics in Phenix City as well as observers from other points where the "new look" seems suspicious. An out-of-state writer concluded a few weeks ago that many gamblers and others of the gang element still were hanging around, waiting for the lid to blow off again.

"Yes, they're still around," says Hugh Bentley, an early reform leader whose home was blown up for his efforts in 1952. "But they are few, and they are identifiable. They would like to see a return to the old days."

"But now everyone is either on the right side or the wrong side, and the wrong side has been deprived of its strength. There are no middle-of-the-roads to confuse the right and encourage the wrong. There is no compromise."

The doubting evidently have not counted on three things. First, local law enforcement now is determined to crush any resurgence of crime. Second, John Patterson — son of Albert L. Patterson, whose murder touched off the cleanup last year — will be attorney general of Alabama, directing state law enforcement, for three more years.

And then there is a citizenry aroused by a new spirit. Citizen strength, when there is the will to use it, is well-nigh irresistible. It is being used now in Phenix City.

In at least one dentist's office, the old doorknob-and-string approach is outmoded

Lower lip pulled down, Thelma shows the dentist her loose tooth.

A 6-YEAR-OLD YANKS HER OWN TOOTH

NEW YORK.

For children like little Thelma Milliken, a local dentist who prefers to remain anonymous has turned his office into a "fun place." As pictured here, youngsters who want to may pull their own loose front teeth.

Says the dentist: "Most youngsters have more confidence in themselves than they have in me. When it's all over, they're elated, proud and perhaps less reluctant to come to the office in the future."

His technique: local anesthetic is applied; the child is given the forceps after the "guilty" tooth is singled out; a twist of the wrist does the trick.

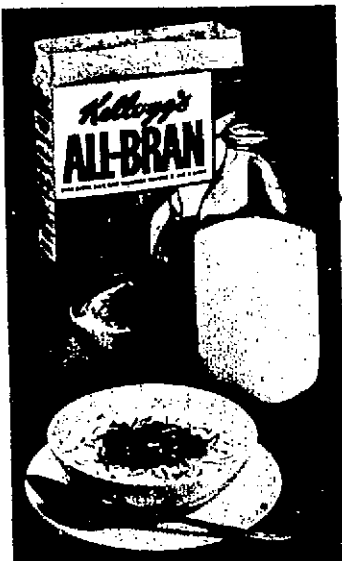

Only problem so far: a 5-year-old boy who insisted that the dentist's office was a space ship. He grabbed the mouth sprays to shoot down flying saucers before pulling an upper.

Forceps set.

Life Begins at 39

By Terry Vernon

Independent TV-Radio Columnist

THERE IS ONLY one man in show business who is 39 years old yet was born in 1894. He is, of course, Jack Benny. He has been riding on that 39-years-of-age gag for so long that most people have forgotten how many years have gone by since that Feb. 14 in Chicago when Benny Kubelsky was born.

Benny has won every signal honor that entertainment can bestow... except one. That one is the golden statuette of "Oscar," symbol of supremacy in the world of motion pictures. This despite the fact that he has done scores of films in Hollywood and also made "The Horn Blows at Midnight." He still hopes to capture an "Oscar" some day on his own merits.

Waukegan, Illinois, is duly recognized as Jack Benny's home town, but he actually resided there a comparatively few years. When Benny was 16, he and Cora Salisbury, pianist at the Barrison Theater where Jack worked after school, teamed and went on the road playing vaudeville dates in adjacent towns and cities. Later he teamed with a Chicago pianist, Lyman Woods, and this pair began to gain fame. They toured as far West as Seattle and even played an engagement at the famed London Palladium. But Benny, as such, was still just a fiddle player.

WORLD WAR I interrupted his theatrical career, so he made the most of it and joined the Navy. Stationed at Great Lakes Naval Training Station, he took part in the famed Great Lakes Revue to raise money for Navy relief.

This was the birthplace of the man who has become a legend in comedy on the vaudeville and Broadway stages, radio, movies and television. It was during one of the productions that Benny tucked his faithful fiddle under his arm and began to talk. This unusual procedure wowed the sailors and before long his talk was more important than his fiddling.

"It was actually Ben Bernie who caused me to change my theatrical name," says Jack. "I used Ben K. Benny as my stage name until Bernie became quite popular. Feeling that there was too much similarity and anyway (with a sly look and twinkle of the baby blue eyes) I didn't wish to, you know, make Ben look bad by overshadowing him... you know... I changed my name to Jack Benny."

THERE IS LITTLE doubt but that Ben K. Benny, Benny Kubelsky or Jack Benny would have overshadowed anyone regardless of name. He has no peers in his chosen field of comedy and because he keeps his shows flexible insofar as format is concerned, no other comic can copy him for any length of time.

After getting out of the Navy and starting out on his own in the vaudeville theaters, he played a little fiddle, told some jokes and acted as emcee for the stage shows in whatever theater he was playing. This work gave him that wonderful sense of timing that no other comic possesses to such a degree. He learned that the spoken word can be important but that the unspoken word oftentimes carries more punch.

He headed for New York and wound up doing musicals for the Schuberts and Earl Carroll. This was his stepping-stone to

A famous pair of entertainment world: Jack Benny and Eddie (Rochester) Anderson. Rochester, hired for a one-shot bit, was a hit and stayed on.

Hollywood and a movie career that is remembered chiefly for his work in "The Hollywood Revue" for MGM.

BUT IN BETWEEN pictures he had nothing to do except draw a salary and Benny is not noted for inactivity.

This might account for the fact that he wandered around town and met Mary, who was Sadye Marks, salesgirl at The May Co. He and Sadye hit it off and in January 1927 were married in Waukegan at the apartment of an old friend of Jack.

Then back to Broadway and a role in an Earl Carroll musical where he was doing very well. Fact is, he turned down $1,500 per week (big money in those days) in the road show company in order to enter radio.

In the early 30s, some may recall, radio was coming into its own. Amos 'n' Andy were household words and movie houses stopped the film so patrons could hear the latest in the life-story of the two favorites; Steopnagle and Bud were big-time comics; Eddie Cantor had taken the plunge and Burns and Allen, Fibber McGee and Molly and many other old vaudeville teams had turned to this new medium.

"If they can do it, I can," thought Benny, so in early 1932 he agreed to take a guest spot on "The Ed Sullivan Show." He had bumped into columnist Sullivan in a Broadway restaurant and Ed asked him to do the job. "But I don't know anything about radio," stated Jack. "Nobody does," said Ed.

BENNY DECIDED to take the flyer and that next night walked up to the microphone and said: "This is Jack Benny talking. Now there will be a brief pause for everyone to say 'Who cares?'"

Apparently a lot of people cared when he got through for shortly thereafter he was on the air with a sponsor and began to grow into the biggest comedian the world has ever known. His first bankroller was Canada Dry Ginger Ale but through the years he has been identified with many another sponsor. Probably his most famous sponsor was General Foods and Jack altered his usual opening by saying, "Jell-o again, this is Jack Benny talking" and to this day, twelve years later, many people still believe he is sponsored by Jell-o.

Benny developed his own material for those early shows, worked out the gags and gradually drifted into the format he now uses consistently. It is one that makes him the hapless boob, the man with human frailties who has the same faults shared by many others... and also the money lover and penny pincher.

IN ONE OF HIS EARLY shows he had Mary come on as a girl from Plainfield, N. J., who'd burst into his program and read "poems" and make wise-cracks. This was to be a one-time shot but the public clamored for more and Mary Livingstone became a regular part of his shows.

When Jack gained popularity in radio it was natural that movies would again beckon him and he signed a contract. This meant moving his radio show to California so he planned to make the transition on the air. In one of these shows the Benny gang were aboard a train and the Pullman porter was portrayed by Eddie Anderson. This, too, was a one-time only shot but the public so loved "Rochester" that Benny hired him and made him a star in his own right. Don Wilson joined the Benny gang in 1934 as announcer and became so much a part of the show that he has been under contract to Benny ever since.

IN THE YEARS that have passed Benny has started many others out on careers. Frank

Parker, who has reappeared on the air with Arthur Godfrey, was one of the first of a series of tenors who were an integral part of the Benny format. Others have been Kenny Baker, Dennis Day and, while Dennis was in the service, Larry Stevens.

Benny always has music on his shows and the orchestra leader becomes a part of the act. This technique is now being copied by other comics and most noticeable is John Scott Trotter on the "George Gobel Show." The men who had led the bands on Benny's shows include Ted Weems, Frank Black, Don Destor, Johnny Green, Bob Crosby and probably the most famous, Phil Harris, who had bigger parts in the show than did the others and made more out of his roles.

Looking back through the years Benny still gets the biggest kick out of the "feud" he had with his good friend Fred Allen. There was a time when every set in the nation was tuned to Benny's show one night and then to Allen's to hear the interchange of insults between the two radio comics.

The feud started out when Fred Allen did a takeoff on an amateur show. He hired an eight-year-old violinist and the boy played "The Bee." Allen quipped "Only eight years old and you can play 'The Bee.' why Jack Benny ought to be ashamed of himself."

THE NEXT WEEK Benny came back on his own show to disclose indignantly that he could produce six persons who would verify that he could play "The Bee" at the age of four. This "feud" gained space in national magazines, front pages of newspapers, and other comics even joined the act.

Back in Hollywood Benny began making movies again and included in this group were such

College on Manana Hill

By Brita Bowen

FIFTEEN Long Beach area residents have joined the increasingly popular fall migration to Mexico City College, the only American liberal arts college south of the Rio Grande. This term there are 765 men enrolled and 199 women.

Looking out over Mexico City, site of the ancient Aztec empire, and across to the snowy slopes of the famous volcano Popocatepetl, the college is a combination of Mexican murals and American campus chatter.

Though cosmopolitan Mexico is no more than a few hours by plane from any part of North America, the perspective of distance allows students to realize fully their own national heritage and to appreciate the customs and living standards of their foreign neighbors. Organized groups make frequent trips to such well known spots as Acapulco on the Pacific Coast, Veracruz on the Gulf, the Pyramids of Teotihuacan and Desierto de los Leones, while historical sites such as the Castillo de Chapultepec and the Cuauhtemoc Statue on Avenida de la Reforma become everyday landmarks.

CONCERTS, plays, ballet performances and art exhibitions are available continuously. Sunday afternoon finds crowds at the Plaza de Toros, largest bull ring in the world, while jai alai offers a spectacular new thrill for the sports enthusiast. Because of the diversity of arts in Mexico City, well known scholars and artists visit every year, many of them available on campus as special lecturers and faculty members.

Although MCC's catalog lists some 20 specialized fields of study, because of its location, Spanish, anthropology, creative writing, art, foreign trade and international relations have proven to be the most popular with the Americans. The Spanish major finds himself in almost constant contact with the natives of a Spanish-speaking country. In Mexican homes — where students learn to enjoy such native dishes as tacos con guacamole and chili rellenos — the language becomes an idiomatic approach to international understanding. The anthropology student is able to take part in periodic field trips to various parts of the republic, where he can explore Indian civilizations which date back as far as 5,000 years.

ART AND CREATIVE writing students, in addition to having a colorful old world backdrop to influence their own efforts, are in a position to study the works and attend the lectures of some of the most famous artists and writers on both the contemporary Mexican and American scenes. The foreign trade and international relations majors have their classroom work augmented by visiting regularly the many export-import houses and diplomatic delegations situated in the capital.

Classes at Mexico City College are taught almost entirely in English. Founded some 15 years ago, the school offers the American BA, BFA, MA and MFA degrees and a two-year course leading to a certificate in foreign trade. It is listed as an approved senior college by the California State Department of Education.

THE LONG BEACH area residents, among a quarterly average of around 900 students from nearly every state in the Union, are studying for the same degree they could receive at home, but have the heightened advantage of living in a foreign atmosphere where the striking contrasts of Mexico range from prehistoric pyramids to some of the most advanced architectural structures in the world.

Clothes present no problem, cottons and woolsens being equally acceptable. Mexico City is at an altitude of close to 7,500 feet. Days are generally warm and clear, evenings pleasantly cool. During the summer rainy season showers wash the countryside every afternoon. Though the country is mildly seasonal, the contrast, beauty and friendliness of Mexico remains perennial.

A noted American educator has said that studying at MCC affords the American student the opportunity of taking part in a valuable experiment in international living, and several magazines have termed such students "individual 'ambassadors' of their country." But no matter what you call it, the north-of-the-border immigrants call it fun.

(John) David Arbuckle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Myron C. Arbuckle of 129 Syracuse Wk., received his BBA degree at Claremont Men's College and served two years in the U. S. Army in the Arctic theater of operations. At Mexico City College he is working toward his master's degree.

JOHN DACKER of 2723 E. 8th St. is majoring in business administration at MCC. He attended Long Beach City College and served in the U. S. Navy from 1945 to 1948 before coming to Mexico.

Phillips Ericson Barton, of 217 Argonne Ave., received his BS degree from the Virginia Military Institute in Lexington, Va. He served two years in the U. S. Air Force with service in the U. S. and England. He was previously employed as a test engineer at Douglas Aircraft in Long Beach. He is also majoring in business administration at MCC.

Phoebe Seward Bunce of 2402 E. 6th St. received her BA degree from Wellesley College and was a teacher in Los Angeles before coming to MCC. At MCC she is majoring in Spanish.

Collin Chester Chamberlain, of 4442 Palo Verde Ave., attended Long Beach City College and served two years in the U. S. Army in Korea and Japan. At MCC he is majoring in art.

WHY WOULD ANYONE have trouble with an armload of packages and an umbrella? Remember, the ground is wet—and water soaks into packages quickly.

Go back into the house? Well, maybe so, but once the umbrella is open, how will you get through the door? Or, for that matter, how do you pick up the packages once you've opened the umbrella?

Quite a problem, isn't it? But it can be solved. If you don't think so, just watch . . .

Man With the One-Second Draw

"Sudden death" is more than just an expression in "Man With the Gun," in which Robert Mitchum plays a gunfighter who tames a lawless frontier town in the West. Bob had to learn to draw and fire so fast that the life expectancy of an adversary, from provocation to demise, should not exceed one second. Mitchum did better than that in this United Artists thriller. He did it in four-fifths of a second. Stop watch here shows fast draw.

Mitchum reaches for his holstered gun after first impulse to shoot. Elapsed time seen on watch: one-fifth second.

Only another fifth of a second needed for follow-through sweeping motion of whipping the gun from Bob's holster.

Without loss of motion, gun is leveled on target, trigger finger begins squeezing in another fifth of second.

Before adversary has a chance, bullet is on its lethal way. Elapsed time is 4/5 second, best yet in film capital.

He Served on the First U. S. Sub

First U. S. Navy submarine was the Holland (above), and at least one Long Beach man remembers her well. He is Edward J. Krec, who served aboard her.

Service record and chief petty officer's uniform are mementoes of Krec's 38 years with submarine service.

By Ted Krec

MEMO TO FOLKS in the 4900 block of Fidler Ave. in Lakewood: Don't be startled if you start hearing cries of "Take her down!" "Up 'scope!" or "Green board, Sir!" That's only "The Admiral" reminiscing.

"The Admiral" moved into 4942 Fidler Ave. recently, and already everything is shipshape and policed up around the area — and surprisingly, he seems quite content to be a dry land sailor after a lifetime connected with submarines.

Undersea craft have been his main interest ever since Uncle Sam bought the first one, the USS Holland, back in 1904. I should know, I've heard it all my life. "The Admiral" is my dad.

Edward John Krec (everyone calls him either "The Admiral" or "E. J.") is 68, but you would not believe it — especially when he starts reeling off those animated narratives about the early days under the sea.

HE ENTERED the Navy on June 20, 1905, and in 1907 he volunteered for the infant submarine service. Assigned to the USS Holland, he became a member of the electrical crew — but he had to know every other job on the boat, too; you'll find out why a little later.

The Holland was classified as a submarine torpedo boat. She was 55 feet long, 10 1/4 feet in diameter, had a displacement of 75 tons and a hull made of steel. She was powered by a gas engine while running on the surface and a motor run by storage batteries while she was submerged.

What was she like inside? Well, there was only one compartment and one torpedo tube. She accommodated seven men — two in the electrical crew, two in the ordnance crew, two in the

WHAT'S YOUR HOBBY?

Tatting Is a Lot of Holes

MRS. MARY ALICE RAY, 112 Magnolia, has what she believes is the only pair of tatted gloves in town.

She is keeping them for the Hobby Show. If she gets around to it, she may tat herself a pair to wear to church.

"I've tatted for 60 years," says the sprightly Englishwoman. "I never even heard of tatted gloves until recently when a friend, Miss Ellen Norris of Chorley, England, sent me an English tatting book. It had a picture of tatted gloves and directions. Of course I made myself a pair."

Mrs. Ray has a tatted cape, which may be the only one of its kind in town. And she has a tatted American flag and Union Jack — probably the only ones, too.

IN HER APARTMENT also are tatted Afghans, tatted baskets (she stiffens them with an acacia gum solution), tatted Tatted gloves, as well as flags and other articles which she tatted, are shown by Mrs. Mary Alice Ray.

purses, tatted place mats, doilies, handkerchiefs, collars, flowers, etc.

"It's a little funny making all those holes," she says. "That's what tatting is—holes."

Mrs. Ray, who was born and reared in Bolton, Lancashire, says her mother taught her to knit and sew when she was 4 years old, and taught her to weave and make netting when she was 10. She learned to tat when she was 18.

HE SERVED ON THE FIRST U. S. SUBMARINE

 engineering crew, and the skipper.

HOWEVER, an official job listing didn't mean much, for the electricians had to make periodic checks on the engines and drag them out of the engine room when they were overcome with carbon monoxide from the gas engines. Then the electricians had to take over in the engine room and run things until they, too, were overcome and the engineers reciprocated.

There was no periscope — the Holland ran with her conning tower above water and targets were sighted through portholes. She had one distinction, however: She was the only American submarine ever to have a dynamite gun.

After the Holland, "E. J." served aboard the Octopus, the C-2, G-4, K-1 and R-19. But there was little glamour attached to the service in those days. The underwater pioneers were termed "pigboat men" by their brothers in blue — because the submariners were always smeared with oil and carbon from the engines.

WHEN HE WAS MARRIED, E. J. was making $51 a month as a second-class petty officer. But even then the Navy recognized the perils of the service. Submariners were paid $1 for each dive, and could make no more than 15 dives a month or three a day.

"The Admiral" left the service in 1920, but stayed with the inactive reserve until 1934. His permanent rating is chief petty officer.

In 1922 he joined civil service and was assigned to the Inspector of Naval Materials, Philadelphia, as a submarine battery and parts inspector.

While he was with the inspection service, a young lieutenant was assigned to be electrical officer of the department. This was some time in the '30s. Dad and the young lieutenant became good friends. The lieutenant's name was H. G. Rickover. He's a rear admiral now — and recently developed the atomic submarine!

Submariner of another era: Krec as he appeared while a crewman aboard Holland beloved Navy activities.

Listening to "The Admiral" is an education — he can trace for you the entire history of submarines in the United States Navy. He should be able to — he helped make it!

COOKING

It's Candy-Making Time Again

By Mildred K. Flanary
Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

IT'S IMPORTANT — very important — to treat memories kindly, especially those of Christmas. In the sunny Southland the weather fails to conform to the usual conception of a "white Christmas" and Californians must build up the yule touch in ways other than depending upon snow, sleigh rides and a near blizzard chasing itself around the house. An afternoon of candy-making is one way of achieving a feeling that Christmas is at hand — and it's a happy way of making up most-welcome gift packages for family and friends.

Mrs. George Badenhause, 2409 E. 2nd St., learned early in her career as a homemaker that everyone has a sweet tooth, and when that sweet tooth can be appeased and the body refueled with quick energy, protein and vitamins at the same time, that's really an efficient, yet happy operation. She says, too, that candy-making is a wonderful family custom, and many are the happy memories of the pre-holiday goodies in the making, each member doing his or her own bit.

The Badenhause's favorite candy is fudge, so that is the featured recipe today. You'll note the addition of cornstarch is a unique feature. Here are some others:

Raisin Penuche

- 2 cups brown sugar
- 1 cup granulated sugar
- 1 cup sour cream
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1/2 cup seedless raisins
- 1 tablespoon top milk

Place the brown sugar, granulated sugar and sour cream in a saucepan over a low heat and stir constantly until the sugar is dissolved. Cook gently to 238° F. or until a little of the mixture forms a soft ball in cold water. Add the butter, vanilla and raisins. Beat with a spoon or electric beater until nearly stiff. Add top milk and continue beating until the mixture is of the same consistency as before milk was added.

Divinity

- 3 cups sugar
- 3 egg whites
- 2 tablespoons Karo syrup
- 1 cup water

Boil until mixture cracks in (Continued on Page 45.)

Fudge is almost a universal favorite and the special recipe of Mrs. George Badenhause is given today.

Mrs. Badenhause's Fudge

- 3 cups sugar
- 2 level tablespoons cornstarch
- 3 squares bitter chocolate
- 1 large can evaporated milk
- 1/2 cube butter
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 cup broken walnut meats

Mix cornstarch and sugar and add cream. Place on stove and heat. Then add chocolate and boil rapidly until soft ball is formed in ice water. Remove from stove, add butter and vanilla. Let mixture get cold, then beat.

Kitchen Tip:

A tip for making light, fluffy butter cakes and corn bread is to add one tablespoon of boiling water after all the ingredients have been added, then beat well.

Where Spanish Goes Polynesian

Color abounds in the huge living room of the home of Mrs. A. W. Horton Sr. Exotic furnishings and expressions of Mrs. Horton's artistry are evident.

Essentially Spanish in architecture, the house underwent a complete change of character in 1938. That was the year Mr. and Mrs. Horton visited Hawaii for a lengthy sojourn. So enamored were they with the native arts and customs that they brought back boundless plans for redoing their house.

To this day, Hawaiian and Oriental themes most intrigue Mrs. Horton who has the artistic ability to create most of her "brainstorms" herself.

FOR INSTANCE, Mrs. Horton is an accomplished weaver. Her loom, which is set up in the hobby shop, produces, almost magically, beautiful wall hangings, table appointments, lamp shades and fabrics. Evidences of Mrs. Horton's prowess at the potter's wheel are in evidence throughout the house. The color schemes here are vibrant and startlingly different. In fact, the entire house mirrors to perfec-

IN AN AGE when the old "homestead" quality of living has all but died out and families move effortlessly—and endlessly—from one place to another with the regularity of swallows, it is rare that one finds a middle-aged house still comfortably accommodating the family that built it.

But that is the case with a fine old home at 100 Rivo Alto Canal. This magnificent dwelling has been overlooking the tion the personality of its vital, vivacious and talented owner.

Entering the house through a lofty and rather austere hall, one finds the living room decorated with all the dramatic flare of a stage setting. Yet, despite the theatrics, there is something infinitely welcoming and comfortable about this high-ceilinged, 20x30-foot room.

Sharp and vivid contrast is afforded by the color scheme.

Against walls and ceiling of deep blue-green, draperies and carpet of saffron yellow offer brilliant accents.

Placed between two windows at the far end of the room is an enormous hiki-e (large Hawaiian-style divan of bed proportions), its bolster banked with many colored throw pillows.

AN OVERSIZED coffee table—composed simply of a long, thick slab of wood painted flat black and supported by cement blocks similarly camouflaged with black paint—spans the huge plate glass window that overlooks the waterway. Standing at one end of this simple but awe-inspiring table is a gigantic hand-blown wine vessel of clear pale turquoise glass. To deepen the blue-green hue of the glass (and more closely emulate the strong wall color) Mrs. Horton filled the jar with colored water. Topping the wine bottle is a proportionately large drum shade of opaque fibreglass, thus completing its conversion to a dynamic table lamp.

At the other end of the room is a conversational area composed of a taupe-gray sectional sofa intersected by a step table painted flat black. On its low, wide lower surface Mrs. Horton displays low exotic floral arrangements.

THE FIREPLACE opening is spanned by a heavy beam that forms the mantel. Highlighted on the mantel is a large hand-woven tray of reed and a gnarled and twisted piece of driftwood at the base of which is placed a piece of Japanese sculpture representative of the sensitivity and delicacy of Oriental artisans.

The glassed lanai opens off the living room and is equally interesting in a much more casual and somehow humorous way.

Rush squares, sturdy and perfect for the role they play, cover the floor. A pair of punois (which can double nicely as guest beds) stand on their rattan bases on either side of a combination lamp and coffee table and provide for comfortable lounging.

A SECOND FIREPLACE opens to the lanai and devotes itself largely to barbecuing of steaks and Hawaiian pork. Within reach of the fireplace is a bamboo and wood paneled bar. Tall rattan stools face the bar and come in handy for outside use in the patio for summer snack times as well as standing by in the lanai.

The glass windows and doors opening to the completely enclosed patio-courtyard are hung with roller bamboo blinds painted rich blue-green, echoing the living room wall color. (Walls in the lanai are waxed knotty pine.) Outside the windows a profusion of tropical growth crowds close and gives guests the feeling of being outside, yet inside!

Three steps up from the lanai is the dining room which is located very advantageously for serving buffet dinners when guests are milling from living room-to-lanai-to-patio. Thus elevated, the rattan table can be set with all the effectiveness of a stage when exotic foods and a sizeable guest list are on the agenda.

Almost as much a part of the house as the actual structure itself is the closely integrated patio-courtyard. "Floored" with round disks sawed from redwood trunks set into concrete, the intimately private area is secluded with tall palms, sheltering rice paper trees and banana plants.

BOOK REVIEWS

The West That Is No More

By Fred Taylor Kraft

Independent, Press-Telegram Book Editor

THE WEST, and particularly California, is the setting of several new books which, because of their treatment and fine flavor, will make ideal gifts for almost everyone who likes to read.

A celebrated dancer, for whose love a king came off his throne, comes to life beautifully in "The Woman in Black: The Life of the Fabulous Lola Montez" (Putnam, $4.50). It was Lola Montez who, after sweeping all Europe off its feet with her uncommon beauty and dancing, came finally to Grass Valley, Calif., to make her home. Helen Holdredge, the Sacramentan who has written two previous books about Californians, faithfully traces the life of Miss Montez, even through the dazzling courts of Europe; and her style of writing is as fascinating as her subject.

Southern Californians who love to roam the desert will want "Baja California" (Academy Publishers, Los Angeles, $5), in which Ralph Hancock tells of his travel, hunting and fishing adventures on the long peninsula with Ray Haller, Mike McMahan and Frank Alvarado. Now in a new edition, there is no more authoritative guide to the country south of Tijuana; and the fire-side adventurer will find it thoroughly enjoyable.

Much has been written about the Pony Express, but this great chapter in the development of the west was never told better or more completely — and with more enthusiasm — than by Raymond W. Settle and Mary Lund Settle in "Saddles and Spurs" (Stackpole, $3.75).

Somewhat wider in scope, but reeking with nostalgic stories of early western days, is "The American Cowboy: The Myth and the Reality" (University of Oklahoma Press, $3.75). Authors Joe B. Frantz and Julian Ernest Choate Jr. have remembered that the cowboy is a myth possessing a living and present reality in the American folk mind and have succeeded most effectively in depicting him as a part of the entire western panorama instead of looking at him, as most previous works have done, in isolation from his larger environment.

And finally, historian Oscar Lewis has authored a distinguished book for young people. "The Story of California" (Garden City Books, $2.50) is a glowing, easy-to-read history of the Golden State and when illustrated with handsome drawings by John N. Barron, becomes the perfect gift for the teenager.

NO HISTORY of the old west is complete without generous references to William F. Cody. For this man, known to the world as "Buffalo Bill," was a good rider and a crack shot at 11, when he joined his first Conestoga wagon train. When 12 he met the famous scouts, Kit Carson and Jim Bridger, at Fort Laramie; at 14, he was riding for the Pony Express and became acquainted with Wild Bill Hickok; while still a young man he was in the midst of savage Indian wars, became conspicuous as a great buffalo hunter. With this background he became the gentleman scout, Buffalo Bill, and for 40 years he exhibited tremendous showmanship by bringing the old west to the world on the stages of famous theaters and through his famous Wild West Show. His life story, omitting none of his daring exploits, unfolds like a fast-moving western thriller in "Buffalo Bill and the Wild West," a definitive biography by Henry Blackman Sell and Victor Weybright (Oxford University Press, $6.95). Between the colorful end papers, mingling with the adventures of Buffalo Bill, are almost 200 photographs.

ences to William F. Cody. For this man, known to the world as "Buffalo Bill," was a good rider and a crack shot at 11, when he joined his first Conestoga wagon train. When 12 he met the famous scouts, Kit Carson and Jim Bridger, at Fort Laramie; at 14, he was riding for the Pony Express and became acquainted with Wild Bill Hickok; while still a young man he was in the midst of savage Indian wars, became conspicuous as a great buffalo hunter. GIBBSVILLE, Pennsylvania, is a fictional town, laid out and peopled by John O'Hara, and "Ten North Fredrick" (Random House, $3.95) is the address where lay the body of Joseph Benjamin Chapin, mourned in various degrees of intensity by his family and his business and political associates. Through many flashbacks the history of the Chapin family and those families connected with it are detailed with great clarity. Too, there is a sense of intimacy which makes for full understanding and sympathy from the reader. If at times the intimacy is somewhat shocking, few will take offense at it.

The novel might well be summed up as a study in frustration. Joe Chapin became aware early of his limitations, but he was persuaded to ignore them. At first his mother dominated him, and then he married a woman who tried to possess him completely even though she herself was possessed in another fashion. Joe was persuaded to enter politics, but there he failed. Failing gracefully was a strong point in Joe Chapin. He grew used to it. It was in Joe's middle years when his son and daughter began to understand the man who had fathered them. Through his daughter, Joe met his single triumph and satisfaction. It is a whisper of happiness that comes to him in a short and tender love affair. It is all that Joseph Benjamin Chapin was ever to have, and it was to last him all his life.

When the novel comes full circle, the reader will realize that if this is not O'Hara's best it is certainly his most.—G. L.

WIDE-AWAKE boys and girls in their early teens will be royally entertained by "The Young Scientist's Reader" (Hart, $2), in which Gerald M. Straight compiles much material on things scientific for young, explorative minds. Some of the subjects covered are the rocket, tornado, astronomy, radio, and the story of evolution.

THE SAILING CROWES

TO LONG BEACH comes something a little bit special in a book written by Bill and Phyllis Crowe who built and sailed a 39-foot auxiliary schooner around the world. Their book is "Heaven, Hell and Salt Water," (De Graff, $3.95) and in it they tell of scores of narrow squeaks from storm and shoal, man and beasts of the sea. No saga of sailing is complete without shipwreck and Bill and Phyllis had theirs—in Zanzibar. Phyllis is an Iowa girl who went to school in Long Beach, where she met and married Bill. They now live in Honolulu, where they operate the Ala Wai Boat Works and where their doughty little schooner, the Lang Syne, tugs at her lines. Armchair adventurers will get a big kick out of their adventures, which are pleasingly illustrated with their own photographs taken around the world.

Here's a Christmas decoration idea: Affix your cards to a wall with cellophane tape in form of yule tree.

Show Off Your Cards

CHRISTMAS CARDS that flood into your home during the Yule season are so colorful and attractive that their friendly beauty should be shared with everyone who enters your home. They should be displayed, and featured as a prominent part of your Christmas decorative scheme.

Each year clever homemakers devise new ways to show off these pretty cards. Here are a few suggestions; you can follow them exactly, or you can use them as a springboard for your own imagination, to help you think up new display methods of your own.

Attach cards to your living room curtains or drapes; line them up across the cornice boxes above venetian blinds; pin them to the tape of venetian blinds. Use them to cover the backs and sides of an overstuffed chair or divan; paper your entry hall with them. Make a "Christmas tree" or a "Santa Claus" all of cards, fastened with cellophane tape to either an indoor or an outside wall. —NANCY VOGEL.

Neighborhood gatherings, such as a barbecue depicted here, is a good way to overcome "big-city blues" and get back the homey "small-town feeling."

Reviving that 'Small Town' Feeling

By Stella George

EVER HEAR the newcomers to Long Beach (and once in a while the old-timers, too!) make the remark, "Long Beach is fine, but sometimes we sure miss living in a small town"? Frequently the reactions of people who move out here from back East follow a definite pattern. They come out and immediately fall in love with the climate; they are fascinated with our casual mode of living; they thrill to the fact that they are near the movie capital of the world; they are awed by the long, beautiful beach by the ocean; and to them the new, modern housing developments and shopping centers represent the ultimate in nice living.

They buy a home (or, in some instances, rent one) and the man of the house settles down to a new job that pays well. The children start to school in one of the most up-to-date school systems in the country and the wife starts keeping house with practically every modern convenience at her disposal. Everything is wonderful until small town and the family gets the big-city blues.

A typical family named Smith came from a little town in Ohio where everyone knew everyone else. With a good sales record in his background, Smith immediately got a top position with an automobile agency. The family acquired a new home in Lakewood, and the children started school. Life had never been so good before and the Smiths agreed that Southern California was the only place in the world to live.

ABOUT A WEEK after the Smiths were settled in their home, Mrs. Smith felt her first pang of homesickness. She had met her next-door neighbor once or twice, but she discovered that people in the block kept pretty much to themselves. She was lonesome for her former friends and neighbors in Ohio, but at the same time she was very busy getting her home in order and enjoying the luxury of the local supermarket.

When the first winter in Long Beach arrived according to the calendar, the Smiths were impressed with wonderment. No snow! No overcoats to worry about! No cold nights or frosty mornings! Christmas was almost

'Seeing the Works'

"Seeing the works" is a favorite pastime with most tourists. And it's especially easy to do in the all-year resort of Phoenix and the Valley of the Sun.

Several commercial operators run regular tours to points of interest in and around the valley for those without transportation or for visitors who want to see and learn a lot about the famed vacationland as quickly as possible.

Among some of the commercial tours conducted regularly from Phoenix are:

Grayhound: Three-day tour to the Grand Canyon, $18.24; three-day tour to Hermosillo and Guaymas, Mexico, $24.75; one-day tour of the Apache Trail, $4.65; two-day tour to Las Vegas, $19.45; one-day tour to Nogales, $7.45, and three-day tour to the Petrified Forest and Painted Desert, $22.10.

Tanner Gray Lines Motor Tours: Grand tour of the Salt River Valley, $3.50; one-day tour of the Apache Trail, $1.00; three-day tour to the Grand Canyon and Northern Arizona, $35; one-day tour to the Wickenburg dude ranches and Vulture Gold Mine, $8, and two-day tour to Casa Grande National Monument, Tucson and Nogales, $22.50.

Arizona Tours, Inc.: One-day trip over the Apache Trail, $10; grand tour of the Salt River Valley, $3.50; two-day trip to Tucson and Nogales, $22.50; three-day trip to the Grand Canyon, $35; Valley of the Sun tour, $2.50; four-day grand circle tour to Las Vegas and the Grand Canyon, $57.95; four-day Chiricahua National Monument loop trip, $42.50; four-day tour to Las Vegas, Zion and Bryce National Parks and the Grand Canyon, $84.15, and a four-day grand circle tour to Las Vegas and the Grand Canyon, $48.75.

Frontier Airlines: Daily trips to the Grand Canyon, $24.42.

In addition, Continental Trailways and the Santa Fe Railroad operate regular service from Phoenix to the Grand Canyon.

Further information on commercial tours and other things to do and see in the Valley of the Sun may be obtained without charge by writing to Vacation Adviser, Phoenix Chamber of Commerce, Phoenix, Ariz.

releases as "George Washington Slept Here," "Buck Benny Rides Again," "Man About Town," "To Be or Not to Be" and "The Horn Blows at Midnight."

In 1950 Jack Benny began his career in television. "The Jack Benny Television Show" was seen Saturday, Nov. 11, on KTTV 11 at the time the station was a CBS affiliate. He was a sensation from the start and has handled TV very carefully without jeopardizing his popularity.

Grandfather Benny now lives quietly in Beverly Hills with Mary, and all he has to do is work out his television shows, rehearse, entertain and occasionally play some golf. His adopted daughter, Joan, and her husband come to visit whenever possible and then 39-year-old Jack Benny becomes 61-year-old Grandfather Jack.

So Everything Happens to You!

By Paul Jones

National Safety Council

SO EVERYTHING happens to you?

Maybe you just think it does. For instance:

Have you obeyed a traffic light, only to have it (the light) fall in your lap?

Has your two-year-old son or daughter driven your automobile?

Have you proudly named your place Dew Drop Inn, only to have it do just that—into the lake?

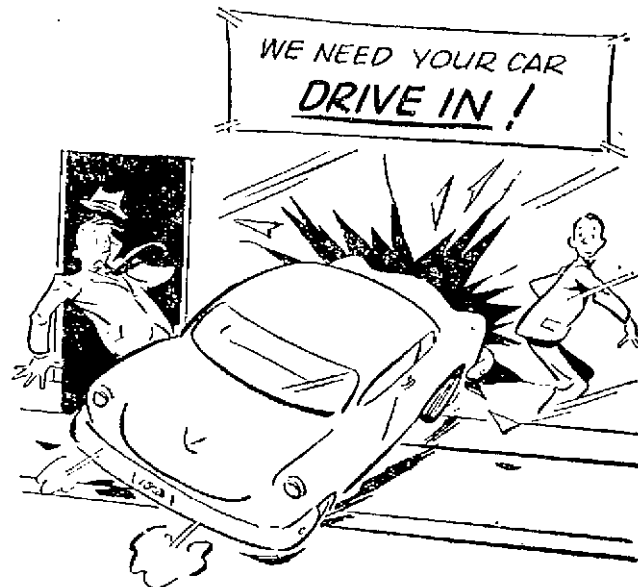

All these odd little happenings and many others were uncovered by the National Safety Council in its annual roundup of freak accidents. Here's the rundown on the dizzy doings in 1955:

TIMOTHY DAVIS made headlines in Long Beach by taking his grandfather for a little spin in the family car. The trip was newsworthy for three reasons. One was that the car tore off the porch of a nearby house and came so near running down a neighbor that she fainted. The second was that Timothy propelled the car by sitting on the accelerator. The third was that Timmy was only two years old. Timmy's mother had left him in the car with his grandfather. Timmy turned on the ignition, sat on the gas pedal, and — swoosh!

Now, if a two-year-old boy can drive a car by sitting on the accelerator, a two-year-old girl can do it, too—and do it better. So Margaret Ann Kilby, of Indianapolis, did it. Margaret Ann wasn't content to crash into a mere house. She rammed into a fire plug, knocked out the neighborhood water supply for three hours, turned the street into a sheet of ice, and, of course, wrecked the car. Another woman driver, eh, fellas?

The Dew Drop Inn at Port Huron, Mich., lived up to its name during a wild wind and rain storm, and dropped into Anchor Bay. One drink too many!

TRAFFIC EXPERTS say it's safe to go on the green light. Try to tell that to motorist E. T. Drake Jr., of Atlanta! As Drake dutifully obeyed an overhead traffic light that flashed him a green go-ahead signal, the light fell on top of his car and sent him to the hospital. Drake saw red.

So everything happens to you? Don't you believe it. Look at the predicament this motorist in L. A. is in!

The sign over the door of a used car salesroom in Los Angeles said, "We need your car—drive in!" Lewis Jackson Jr. did — with his throttle stuck. The car crashed through a heavy wooden door, sideswiped two glistening cars on the showroom floor, ran head-on into a costly convertible, and bounced the convertible into another car. They took down the sign.

Stanton Sapp and his brother, Daniel, happened to run into each other on the street in their home town, Mount Vernon, Ohio. That would have been perfectly all right, of course, if each of the brothers hadn't been driving a car. Neither was injured in the head-on crash, but it did prove the need for the safety slogan. "Be Your Brother's Keeper — Stop Accidents!"

AND IN COPENHAGEN Mrs. Else Sorensen and Karen Kirk Lassen couldn't resist the dance music coming out of a radio in the Old Folks Home, and decided to try the mambo. They both landed in the hospital with broken legs. Both dancers were 80.

Every theatrical act strives for a knockout finish. The ballet "Streetcar Named Desire" literally achieved it. As tiny ballerina Nora Kaye whirled in the middle of a pirouette during a New York performance, her elbow caught her husky partner Igor Youskevitch smack in the face, and he went down for the count.

Ordinarily, a hung jury is one that fails to agree. But the jury that hung midway between the first and second floors of the courthouse in Reading, Pa. in a stalled elevator for almost an hour agreed perfectly. It wanted down!

In Hollywood, where even toys must be colossal or bigger, the Burns and Allen television show was using a 20-pound stuffed Teddy bear in a department store scene. The king-sized bear fell off the shelf, hopped Gracie Allen on the head and knocked her out cold.

WALTER BERGMAN, of Ashton, Idaho, was aware that his jalopy had served him long and well. But he didn't realize how faithful it was until he parked it in front of the post office and hurried in to get his mail. Somehow the car slipped into gear and followed him in, right through the post office window. Move over, old dog Tray!

And in Los Angeles there's a man who just can't stay out of accidents. He's had several traffic escapades that made news for the papers. And this year he fell through the floor of the laboratory where he works and landed 9 feet below with a bang that knocked him out. His name? No kidding, folks, it's Safety First!

Still think everything happens to you? Monotonous life you lead, isn't it?

And have you ever had this happen to you? Well, it's the artist's conception of what actually happened when big storm hit Port Huron, Mich.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH DEPLANE

LONDON

"Would it be all right to travel by train in Europe this winter or is it too uncomfortable and cold?"

I LIKE THE TRAINS in Europe and they've always been well warmed in winter. I don't know where you are going but the crack trains like the Aarlsberg-Paris express (Tyrol to Paris), the Orient Express, the Train Bleu and the Mistral (Nice to Paris) are excellent.

Generally, figure second class is inexpensive and very good in Germany, Austria and Switzerland. Go first class in Italy, France and Spain. I haven't used anything but commute trains in Great Britain. But you should write first to the British Travel and Holiday Association, 64 St. James St., London, and ask about the British Railway tickets you can buy in advance in THIS country. This gives you a certain number of miles by rail at a reduced fare. But you have to buy it here.

You may want to know about tipping. Something for the sleeping car attendant just like in the States. In most dining cars, you'll find 12 to 15 per cent service on the bill. So don't over-tip. Something equivalent to a quarter extra is plenty and you don't have to do that.

"Would you recommend some good pocket guides. Where to eat and what to see and how to get along?"

BEST OVERALL is Pan American Airways' "Far Horizons" for $1 at any PAA office. For Europe, TWA puts out a pocket booklet that is very complete for some six countries. Any TWA office has them.

EXPERIMENT for TRAVELER

By Isobel Joy Aronin

A new experiment is being inaugurated this year in Denmark, not by a travel agency, or an official sightseeing corporation, but by an enterprising manufacturer of agricultural machinery. The company is Gyro A/S in the little town of Skive, some 150 miles from Copenhagen, and the object of the plan is to show Americans how the average Dane lives and works.

Arne Christensen, vice president of Gyro, and promoter of the idea, believes that it is the first time in any country that a single industrial plant has taken it upon itself to make such a voluntary contribution to international understanding. He maintains that his tour will be a welcome change from the standard tourist fare of museums, castles and boat rides.

The tourists who take the free guided tour around the factory will see at first hand the production of agricultural machinery in all its phases, the new facilities for employees' recreation, the storage warehouse fitted with railroad tracks which connect to the main line, and the huge outdoor testing grounds. At the end, each will be treated to a cup of pure Danish coffee, freshly ground from a Gyro coffee mill.

Across the street from the factory is the Sans Souci Restaurant, where a dollar brings you a meal of Danish specialties like Smorbrød (open-faced sandwiches) or pork chops and red cabbage, with the mild Danish beer, or the potent clear brandy for beverage. Sights in the vicinity are the beautiful flower-covered public gardens, the heath with its open-air museum, the little winding streets reminiscent of tales by Hans Christian Andersen, and the medieval castle of Spotttrup. The biggest and best hotel in Skive is the Skivehus, whose rates start at less than a dollar.

Transportation from Copenhagen may be by train and ferry (eight hours, $5), or by private car, rented in Copenhagen for about $5 a day.

Major sight in Damascus, Syria, oldest continuously inhabited city in the world, is the Omayed Mosque — originally the Church of St. John the Baptist, built by Theodosius in the fourth century.

SEEK AND FIND THE ISLE OF CAPRI

Isle of Capri

CAREFREE, fun-loving Capri in the Bay of Naples has enchanted tourists since the day Ulysses identified it as the Siren's Isle.

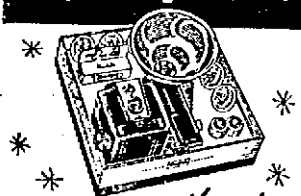

Capri has close to 50 hotels and pensions, according to a Pan American World Airways' report. These inns range from the de luxe Quisisana Hotel in Capri and the elegant Caesar Augustus in Anacapri to dozens of small boarding houses. The average expenditure for room and board runs $8.50 a day, but rates for students in private homes go as low as $1 a night. Meals in the small restaurants tucked in the side lanes of Capri are about $1. But even a superb repast on the terrace of the swank Augustus Caesar with wine, music and spectacular scenery costs no more than $4.50 a person.

TWO ROCK-HEWN ROADS in Capri zigzag skyward at dizzy angles along the cliffs where Emperor Tiberius used to push his enemies into the sea. Though the donkey is still the main means of transportation, there are taxis to carry visitors back and forth across the six square miles of the island. The rate is roughly 75 cents for a ride from the docks at Marina Grande, the Big Harbor, up to the tiny Piazza that is the heart of Capri.

The island is cut up into several tiny settlements, dominated by the village of Capri, and linked by footpaths, a winding road, sheer cliffs and arches. Everywhere there are pastel-shaded villas and terraced vineyards, deep grottos and Roman ruins. Towering above Capri is the town of Anacapri, famous for its vista and the near-by Villa San Michele, now a Swedish art colony.

Though Capri is another world for the majority of tourists, the trip from Rome takes no more than half a day. The Rapido fare to Naples from the Italian capital is about $5, and the short boat ride across the bay is a quarter. Air fare between New York and Rome is $648, tourist, or $877, first class, via Pan American World Airways, which can be financed for 10 per cent down with the remainder to be paid in as many as 20 monthly installments.

Shoot a Shower Picture

A LITTLE WHILE ago we found ourselves whistling the tune of "Singing in the Rain"—and that gave us an idea. Why not talk about "shooting in the rain?" To be sure, a shower can be inconvenient, but have you ever thought of taking a picture of one? Not only the rain itself but many other subjects

By the Shutterbug

can be photographed to good effect on a rainy day. If possible, choose a fairly bright rainy day for your picture taking. Then load your simple camera with some extra fast film and you can take bad weather in your stride. (There's a new one on the market this year. Your photo dealer will be glad to advise you on using it.) But be sure to do your shooting from a sheltered spot—a doorway or window will do nicely.

JUST REMEMBER to keep your camera dry—because raindrops on the lens interfere with its vision as much as they do with yours when they land in your eyes or on your glasses.

Naturally, your rainy-day picture won't be a sharply contrasted black-and-white—it'll have a grayish tone with a great deal of atmospheric quality. However, it will be a snapshot that you'll be glad to have in your album—one whose tone and mood give the imagination something to work on!

THREE EXCITING books for the photographer who wants to become more expert at his trade have just been published by Camera Craft of San Francisco.

In "How to Shoot for Glamour" ($2.95), Carl Bakal analyzes the techniques, studies the secrets, and collects the tricks of the world's top glamour photographers, models and beauty authorities. Accompanying the text are 270 photographs, comprising probably the finest collections of glamour pictures ever brought together in a single volume.

"Better Color Movies" ($4.95), by Fred Bond, is designed as a practical guide for the average snapshotter, giving detailed instruction in the techniques of getting uniformly good color quality throughout his films. The 16 excellent color plates are a valuable addition, permitting easy visualization and solution to color problems.

The new fourth edition of Fred Bond's "Kodachrome & Ektachrome: Color Photography from All Angles" ($8.75), offers the serious color worker a complete course in color photography. It has been considerably expanded and improved and is up to date, even including such recent developments as the new Kodak direct-color printing materials. The author has worked exclusively in color for 18 years.

TWO NEW EASTMAN books of interest to shutterbugs have been placed on the bookshelves of camera dealers. They are "Kodak Papers" (50c), which is out in a revised edition with a full section devoted to making prints on Kodak papers. It is perforated to fit the Kodak Reference Handbook. The other is "Kodak Ektachrome Film" (35c) and is devoted to the many phases of shooting in color under many light conditions. It is colorfully illustrated.

THEY COME FROM 'BACK HOME' AND REVIVE THAT 'SMALL TOWN' FEELING

around the corner and some days were nearly warm enough for swimming at the beach! The Smiths sent long letters home full of detailed weather reports. It was spring when Mrs. Smith began to notice how much she missed her home town. The feeling spread to the rest of the family and they all agreed that living in a big city had its disadvantages. It seemed difficult to get acquainted, and their friends were few. They missed the feeling of belonging that their small community had offerred in spite of the material luxuries they had never known before. They decided to leave California and return home. SMITH FELT that he ought to be fair to his new employer and finish out the year with the company. He suggested that Mrs. Smith and the children go on ahead and stay with a close relative until he could join them in the future.

Mrs. Smith and the youngsters were warmly greeted by their relatives and friends in the little town. The children regaled their friends with stories about California — why they even saw Roy Rogers once at a big store opening! Mrs. Smith told about the supermarkets and the wonderful, sunny weather. But it was wonderful to be home.

Then as the weeks went by a strange thing happened. Mrs. Smith found herself thinking more and more about her California home. The small town began to seem dull and unglamorous even though she enjoyed being with her old friends. She felt a strong urge to return to her new home and her husband. To her surprise, the children, too, missed California, and wanted to get back to Roy Rogers and the big markets. Again, she and the children made a trip alone, this time home to California.

The outcome of this story is typical. The Smiths are finally sold on everything about Southern California except one thing: they miss the "small town feeling," a feeling of belonging. What they haven't realized is that it is possible to create a tiny town in a small community in a big city, with all of the advantages and none of the pettiness sometimes found in small towns.

IN ANY BLOCK of houses in Lakewood or Los Altos or any other section of Long Beach, the Smiths, the Browns, the Watsons, the Clarks and a dozen other families live side by side or across the street from one another. Most of them have children. Most of the men have good jobs. Most of the women are housewives and mothers. All of them have similar problems or experiences that beset an average family. If these people who live so close together and who have so much in common would get to know each other really well, they could create their own small town within the area.

Many people who move out here from little towns are shy and reluctant to get acquainted. It's very possible that a next-door neighbor who has lived in Long Beach for 10 years might also be reticent about becoming chummy with new neighbors. People often view one another with suspicion. "It pays to keep to yourself," they've heard. "You never know." What "you never know" is never quite certain.

Actually, the possibility that one's next door neighbor might be a dope addict or former bank robber is a remote one. What one might never know is that his neighbor loves a good game of pinochle and that his neighbor's wife makes the best apple pies in the world. These neighbors are missing a real enjoyment of life because they don't dare get acquainted.

"Sure, that sounds good in print, but how would you go about knowing all your neighbors?" someone might ask. "After all, I can't walk up to a door and say, 'I'm John Jones. I live across the street. Let's be friends.'"

FRIENDLINESS is contagious. A housewife can easily get to know the mothers of her children's friends. She can then ask the mothers she has met over for an informal coffee hour in the morning when the older children are at school. Idle chit-chat can pave the way for husbands to meet. If one woman mentions that her husband is about to put up a new fence on Saturday, another might say that her husband has been thinking of building a barbecue and the result could well be a mutual sharing of jobs.

The community spirit does exist in some local areas. Recently the people in one Lakewood street had a block party, even roping off the street for the evening festivities!

Long Beach does have everything: the unmatched climate, the lovely beaches, the excellent stores, the mountains with snow in the wintertime — only an hour's drive away — and the best living conditions in the world for average budgets. If the "small town feeling" is missing, it's up to each individual person to start a good neighbor policy of his own. The fact that the general store has become a supermarket doesn't change the people who shop there. After all, there was a time when all of Long Beach had one general store!

HOW TO

Make a "Ceppa," Italian Favorite for Christmas Season Decoration

1. IN ITALY, Christmas trees are scarce, so the average family builds a "ceppa," or tree-shaped wooden form with shelf space for all the things that mean Christmas.

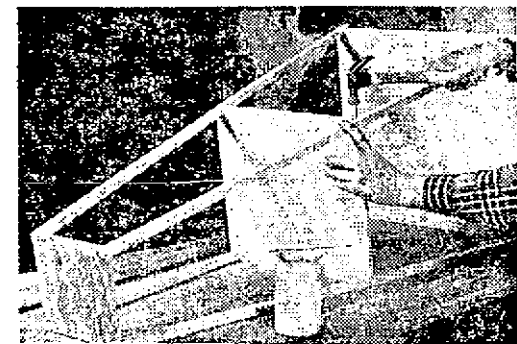

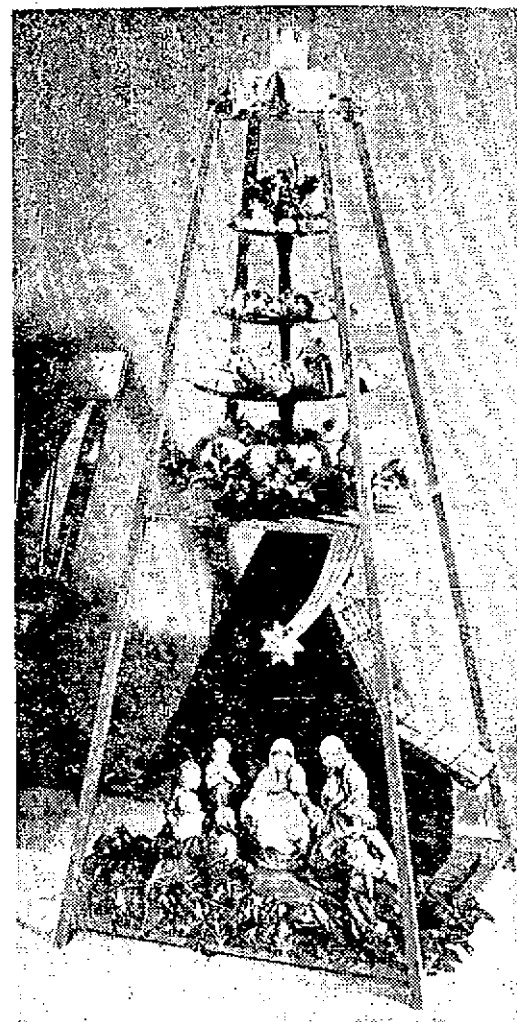

2. THE "CEPPA" is actually a four-legged pyramid of shelves. Begin by cutting three shelves out of plywood and notching the shelves as shown. Notch all four corners of the three shelves $\frac{1}{2}$ by $\frac{1}{2}$ inch to take $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch lumber you use for legs. Bottom shelf is 20 by 20 inches; middle one is $13\frac{1}{2}$ by $13\frac{1}{2}$ inches, and the top one, 7 by 7 inches.

3. THEN BRAD-AND-GLUE legs into the notches. Legs are 48 inches long. Set the shelves at 2 inches, 25 inches, and flush at top.

4. PUT ALL THE SHELVES in the same way you did the top one. Paint the "ceppa" a bright Christmas red. Two coats of enamel will give you the best-looking job.

Legendary Pal of the Elves

Gamble's First Lady, aged 2½ years, is a prize example of the alert and happy Pembroke Welsh Corgi.

By Eleanor A. Price

ONE CHARACTERISTIC of the Pembroke Welsh Corgi stands out above all others—he is one of the most agreeable of small house dogs. Pleasant and affectionate he ever remains, but he does not force unwanted attention on anyone, not even his owner.

There is a story that he is so pleasant and unfawning that elves and fairies used him as their mount. And if you look closely at him, you can usually detect the shading of a saddle on his back.

His splendid, jolly nature, however, by no means prevents him from being an alert, vigilant watch dog.

MANY PEOPLE confuse the Pembroke Corgi with the Cardigan Corgi, and this is understandable since they have at times been crossed. Nevertheless, breeders of each are now striving to keep their dog individual and distinct from the other.

The Pembroke wears a docked tail, the Cardigan a long one. The Pembroke's body is less lengthy, his body a trifle higher. His dense coat is more finely textured and his disposition is usually more lively than that of the Cardigan.

Because of his short legs, the Corgi is often considered to be related to the dachshund. Actually, he is not. The Pembroke springs from the same family that includes the Keeshond, the Samoyed, the Norwegian elkhound, the chow chow, and the Finnish spitz.

ITS ORIGIN can be traced back to 1107 A. D. He was originally a small cattle dog brought across the channel by Flemish weavers who were encouraged by Henry I of England to make their home in Wales. Although weavers, their nature was also agrarian, and soon they and their dogs were happily adjusted. The dog is still a sturdy breed for farm work.

The award winning, bright eyed Pembroke Corgi pictured with this article is Gamble's First Lady, age 2½ years. She is owned by Mrs. Robert L. Petersen, 3096 Josie Ave.

IF YOU ARE scanning the want ads for puppies of various breeds for Christmas giving, consider the type of owner the dog will have as well as the type of dog the person would prefer. In fact, it might be a good idea to find out if the person wants any dog at all! Remember, puppy or dog owning is a two-way deal.

Look for the lively, friendly puppy, one with clear eyes, cool nose, firm stomach, clean, pink ears, firm gums, white teeth, coat clean and free of blotches. Choose preferably the medium sized pup of the litter.

If the pup is purebred, obtain a copy of the pup's pedigree and either a completed registration certificate or a registration blank filled in with everything but your signature and the name you plan to give the dog.

Gardens Get in the Holiday Mood

BEFORE YOU KNOW it the Christmas holiday will be here. So this is the time to start dressing up your garden in the holiday colors of red and green. The Christmas color ornaments will brighten up your garden during the winter season and many will continue at their best for a long time afterwards. When it comes to discussing Christmas plants you should first consider the berried shrubs. Many of these are very much at home in the Southland, enjoying high favor even with landscape architects. In addition, they may be utilized for a wide range of garden uses such as, for example, specimen plants, hedges and foundation subjects.

By Bob Gilmore

One of the best of our berried shrubs is the pyracantha possibly the most famous member of this class being variety Gruberi. For Southern California gardens this one is hard to beat. The plant is certainly larger than any comparable type and the foliage appears more glossy. The bright crimson berries are enormous, being produced in clusters as large as a dinner plate.

THE BERRIES are at their best during the holiday season giving way in early spring to thousands of tiny white flowers. One plant of pyracantha gruberi will prove an accent mark. The berries may be seen from a distance of blocks away.

Because of the beautiful two-tone effect . . . the bright red berries and glossy green foliage . . . this subject certainly qualifies as a specimen plant. It may also be trained against the side of a blank wall to break the monotonous effect.

Another excellent variety for this area is a California native that is certain to succeed in your garden. It is generally known as the toyon but botanists refer to it as Photinia arbutifolia. The berries are bright red in tone and contrast well with the attractive deep green foliage. When full grown the toyon will have a height of close to 10 feet. Excellent drainage must be provided and an open exposure out in the sun will serve admirably. The berries, like all of our berried shrubs, are excellent for indoor decoration.

CAMELLIAS SHOULD also be on your list of Christmas color plants. Generally speaking, the camellia season in this region gets going during the early spring months. But many of the early varieties will be in flower for the holiday season. The red flowers, so perfectly formed, and the fresh-appearing leaves are an excellent combination. The soil around the roots of camellias must not be allowed to dry out.

Stocks set out now, especially the Winter Nice types, will add color as well as fragrance to your holiday garden. The foliage of stocks is a very light green and the best red varieties are Lloyd George, blood red and Souvenir de Monaco, crimson.

Hollies are more or less synonymous with the Christmas season and perhaps more than any other plant are used as a decoration piece at this time of the year. Burford's holly, often listed in catalogs as Ilex cornuta Burfordi is definitely the best selection for this area. The foliage is deep green, extremely glossy and of nice form. The plant will succeed in either sun or shade. At maturity it will attain a height of from six to 10 feet.

High Lights, Accents with Callas

Yellow callas offer variety in the garden. Pink, white, black callas are other color possibilities.

By Bob Gilmore

THERE WAS A TIME... just a few years ago, in fact... when the only well known calla was the white one. In those days the flowers were used more as florist pieces than for general gardening purposes. But this is no longer true. Today you have a choice of yellow, pink, black and white callas, the latter being a vastly improved type.

The yellow calla, perhaps the outstanding member of this family, has deep green leaves set off by hundreds of small white dots. The yellow calla may be grown in the outdoor garden, indoors as a pot plant and the blooms are splendid for indoor decoration. For brightening up a dark corner, either inside your home or outdoors, the yellow calla will prove an excellent choice.

The white calla acts as a high light on the general garden scene. The white spathes, often termed the flower section, are clear in tone and often 10 inches long. The yellow calla spathes are only four inches long. The foliage of the white calla is also quite large, growing to a length of 18 inches. The flowering segment of the white calla has a waxlike appearance and the foliage is glossy and deep green.

PERHAPS THE MOST sensitive member of the calla family is the pink sort which is adversely affected by temperatures lower than 55 degrees when the bulbs are started. The pink calla enjoys its widest usage as a pot plant. Like other members of the group it prefers semi-shade. However, the callas will tolerate full sun if sufficient moisture is supplied.

The black calla is actually a deep maroon but it is one of the plant kingdom's deepest shades. This ornamental is somewhat of a novelty but will provide something different in your garden. Its main use is for potting purposes. Formerly the black calla was found objectionable because of its strong pungent odor. However, the hybridists have now removed this undesirable trait and you will find the black calla a worthwhile addition to your garden.

For pot culture use a friable soil that contains liberal quantities of peat. Make certain that the bottom of the container is lined with a layer of drainage material. Broken bits of clay pots will suffice. Set a concave section of this pottery over the drainage hole in the bottom of the pot. This will encourage adequate drainage and should aid in aerating the soil.

THE WHITE, yellow and pink callas are identified botanically as zantedeschias and are natives of Africa. The growing conditions of their homeland provide a clue to their culture in this area. The plants are found growing close to the Nile, flowering during the flood period. After the flowers die, the foliage ripens and falls on the ground, thus protecting the roots from the hot sun. Keep this in mind when growing these callas in your own garden.

During the growing season callas require lots of water. But after the flowering period, as in their native habitat where the Nile waters recede, a fairly dry period will prove desirable. Callas are quite effective when planted near a pool or other small body of water. Adding peat to the soil improves its moisture-retaining quality.

Tips on Gardening

GARDENING TIPS for the week... The new crop of gladiolus corms is now ready. These plants do well in winter and early spring. Plant them at intervals of every two or three weeks for a succession of blooms.

Several varieties of bulbs can be grown indoors. Try the Chinese sacred lilies, the "paper whites" and the "yellow paper whites." Use a shallow bowl and support the bulbs with small pebbles. They can also be grown in bulb fiber.

Winter-flowering sweet peas may still be planted for early spring bloom. Set them in a sunny spot and in a rich soil. Separate varieties as well as mixtures are obtainable at garden supply stores; also coated seeds that are colored to indicate the color of the flower.

Unbitten Fudge

Into a large bowl combine:
3 packages chocolate bits
30 marshmallows
2 cups nuts (chopped)
½ pound butter or margarine
2 tablespoons vanilla

Into a heavy pan place:

4½ cups sugar
1 can milk (large)
Stir and put on heat, bring to rolling boil and boil 10 minutes. Pour mixture over contents in bowl. Mix thoroughly until dissolved. Chill 24 hours.

Peanut Brittle

1 cup dark syrup
1 cup beet or cane sugar
½ cup water
½ teaspoon soda
2 tablespoons margarine
½ cup shelled peanuts

Combine syrup, sugar, water and vinegar; mix well. Boil over low heat, without stirring, to 280° F., or until brittle when tried in cold water. Quickly add soda and margarine; stir, then add peanuts. Remove from heat. Mix well. Pour into a well greased shallow pan. Smooth out with a spatula; lift and pull out into a thin sheet with hands. When cold break into pieces.

Cinnamon Sugared Walnuts

1 cup beet or cane sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
Dash of salt

6 tablespoons milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 to 3 cups walnut halves

Combine sugar, cinnamon, salt and milk in saucepan. Cook to soft ball stage (236° F.). Remove from heat and add vanilla and walnuts. Stir until creamy. Immediately, before it hardens, drop by spoonful on waxed paper and separate the nuts.

Coconut Peaks

¼ cup butter
2 cups sifted confectioners sugar
4 tablespoons evaporated milk
3 cups moistened shredded coconut (2 4-ounce cans)

Melt butter and keep over heat until a deep golden brown. Blend in sugar and milk. Gradually work in the coconut, which has been cut fine. Drop from a teaspoon onto a pan that has been greased or covered with waxed paper. When cold, shape into cones with the fingers. If desired, the bottoms may be dipped. Melt ½ package of chocolate bits in a small container over hot water. Mix until smooth and free from lumps. When the temperature of the bits reaches 95-99° F. on a candy thermometer, twirl the bottoms of the coconut peaks in the chocolate and place on a cooling rack that has been covered with waxed paper. Let set until chocolate hardens. Makes about 36 pieces.

FRANCOIS RICHMOND
They Aren't Bells

OCCASIONALLY, during an evening of dining at Francois' Manhattan restaurant, a pleasant ringing sound will be heard.

Newcomers assume it is the sound of bells. But persons who have dined there previously know it's the tinkling of wine glasses in the clever hands of Francois James Richmond, owner of this exceptional restaurant at 1909 E. 4th St.

When Francois serves a bottle of wine (such as a wonderful Rossatello Vin Rose from Italy) he doesn't just walk up to the table and pour. No, sir, not Francois. First he strolls around the dining room, sending forth musical tones by clinking the wine glasses together. When he arrives at the table, he sets the bottle down with tender care, removes the cork with a grand, expert gesture and then fills the glasses with the expression of an artist at work on a masterpiece.

THE PREPARATION and serving of food and drink is a rare art at the Manhattan. Amazingly enough, the prices are very reasonable. For example, a complete dinner of the most delectable Chicken Cacciatore is only $2.50. A dinner of marvelous Swiss Steak au Vin Rouge, Jardiniere, is but $2, complete.

The dinners are lavish, to say the least, including a tray of chilled appetizers (stuffed celery, herring, olives, etc.), all the soup you can hold, tossed green salads with choice of dressing, vegetables, assorted breads, choice of beverage and choice of dessert.

Of course, if you really want to live, order Flaming Duckling, a dish originated by Francois. Costing $7 for two persons (and worth every cent), it consists of a whole beautiful Long Island duckling, served with yams and wild rice. It is brought to the table in a blaze of copper chafing dishes and after Francois applies certain liqueurs, the duckling erupts with a remarkable blue flame.

It is absolutely delicious.

Allen's Votes for L.B. Use of Oil Bared

Grab-Wealth-Bill
Author's Reversal of View Is Recent

By MALCOLM EPLEY

A couple of old votes came out of the past to haunt Assemblyman Bruce Allen Saturday, when the record was cited to show that he twice had balloted to approve Long Beach use of tidelands oil money away from the tidelands. Both votes were on legislative ratification of city charter amendments.

Assemblyman W. S. Grant of Long Beach pointed out the record on Allen's votes at the tidelands interim committee hearing here. He later explained that it showed that Allen, as late as January, 1955, believed Long Beach had the right to spend half its tidelands oil money away from the tidelands under authorization of a 1951 legislative act.

Long Beach contends the legislature intended the act to provide that authority, but the Supreme Court in the Mallon case later ruled that the 1951 law, instead, gives the 50 per cent of tidelands revenues to the state. Allen has introduced a bill to seize all of the revenues, and relies on the Mallon case in pressing his proposal.

BEFORE THE Supreme Court had ruled in the Mallon case, Allen last March, introduced his bill and frequently has criticized the city's handling of the funds.

Grant cited the record on Allen's vote while questioning City Auditor John Mansell, a principal witness before the committee Saturday. He brought out

Reds Arrest Bishop, Stir Vatican Ire

LONDON (U.P.)—Radio Moscow reported Saturday that Kung Pin-Mei, Catholic bishop of Communist-held Shanghai, and his "principal accomplices" were arrested two months ago as spies and subversive plotters.

The broadcast, quoting press reports from Red Peking, said secret police who arrested the bishop and his aides captured radio equipment and papers proving they were working for Free China and "certain foreign powers."

VATICAN CITY (U.P.)—Vatican sources said Saturday night that the arrest of the bishop of Shanghai indicated that the anti-church drive in Red China is back at full pressure.

One high source said "It can be pointed out that the easing of anti-church pressure in China that accompanied the summit conference at Geneva is now ended."

Smog Green Today

LOS ANGELES (U.P.)—Smog green conditions will prevail in the Los Angeles basin today, although slight eye irritation will be felt in some areas, the air pollution control district predicted. The eye-stinging smog will be present in the central and coastal areas.

L.A.C. SAYS:

What Does Man Cost?

It is doubtful is one in 50 families has ever tried to estimate what it would cost the family to live—without the father. Just what does it cost to keep a man clothed, fed and housed? It would be easy to estimate the cost for a single man. But the percentage of total family expenses is something else. Actually the man's cost is a small percentage of the average family expense. His going away cuts a small part of the family expense. But few families have any idea of how their expenses would be paid if the man's pay check were eliminated.

The average man and wife seem to feel it is indecate or morbid to discuss such an eventuality. The natural tendency is for people to avoid unpleasant subjects. There is a natural tendency to feel—it can't happen to us—or—there is plenty of time. People who are careful to keep social appointments and to keep their credit

Heavy fog rolling in Saturday night slowed traffic to a crawl, sent the Coast Guard searching for two vessels, grounded flights at the Municipal Airport and caused several auto accidents.

The fog is expected to clear

Woman Hurt as Car Smashes Store Front

A woman driver suffered back and right shoulder injuries when her car careened off another one and smashed into a large plate-glass window at 4th St. and Locust Ave., late Saturday.

Helen Videbeck, 37, of 1745 E. Ocean Blvd., was treated at Sea-side Hospital after her car and one driven by Melvin Braxton, 20, of 607 Cerritos Ave., collided.

The Videbeck vehicle went out of control, over the curb, smashed the 15x20-foot store window and ended up with the right front wheel inside the building.

Workers Who Quit Smoking Get $50 Each From Boss

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (U.P.)—Pay-off time came Saturday night for a Wichita Falls oil man and rancher who offered his employees $50 each to quit smoking.

J. S. Bridwell made the offer last March to the 255 employees of the Bridwell Oil Co.

A total of $12,625 was paid to late this morning. However, the weather bureau predicts more fog tonight.

The Coast Guard was working against the odds of darkness and zero visibility fog to rescue four persons, including a child, from a 40-foot cabin cruiser from Alamitos Bay reported lost in the rocky waters south of Newport Harbor.

The Coast Guard also launched a search for a 16-foot skiff carrying two San Clemente youths.

The fog began rolling in late Saturday afternoon. A "double zero" fog ceiling at the Municipal Airport was reported at 6:15 p.m. by the CAA communication office. Commercial flights were re-routed to the Burbank Airport.

The fog stretched as far inland as Artesia and Norwalk.

THE MISSING CRUISER was identified as the Sea Toy. The Coast Guard said names of the occupants were not known. The vessel left Alamitos Bay at about

1 p.m. and was reported lost in the fog an hour later.

The night-time search for the cruiser was hampered by the darkness and the fog. The searchers said those aboard the boat apparently were unfamiliar with operation of the vessel's radio.

Some messages were audible, however, and a Coast Guard patrol boat was trying to contact a "fix" on the Sea Toy's radio signal.

The Coast Guard said the search was narrowing to the rocky seacoast between Newport and Huntington Beach.

THE TWO YOUTHS aboard the skiff, lost in the fog off San Clemente, were identified as Don Wright, 19, and Don Liske, 19, both of San Clemente. They were reported missing about 3 p.m. by San Clemente police.

The fog brought highway traffic to a snail's pace.

In one accident, Larry W. McLean, 28, of Huntington Park, was injured when his car collided with an auto near the end of the Long Beach Freeway at 9th St. and Pico Ave. His car rolled over several times. Riding in the car with him was Sallor Tommie H. Hollingsworth, 30, of the USS Jarvis.

Shore-Road Crash Kills GI, Hurts Pal

(For more about traffic accidents among servicemen, turn to Page E-8.)

PORTUGUESE BEND — One serviceman was killed and another seriously injured when their car crashed head-on into a truck one-half mile east of the Portuguese Bend Club Saturday.

Highway patrolmen identified the dead man as Army Sgt. Allyn Bruce, 23, stationed at Ft. MacArthur.

In serious condition at Harbor General Hospital is Cpl. Stanley C. Rhine, 21, also of Ft. MacArthur.

Bruce was driving at the time of the accident, investigators said.

Soviets Free East Berlin GI Captives

Red Zone Republic's
'Authority' Ignored
by U.S. and Russia

BERLIN (U.P.) — The Soviets Saturday night released two American soldiers whose case had become a major issue in a mounting controversy over Communist East German claims to sovereignty.

East German propagandists, claiming that recently announced agreements with Russia superseded four-power control over the divided city of Berlin, had demanded that the two Americans be tried in an East Berlin court to prove the sovereignty of East Germany.

The U. S. Army identified the GIs as Pvt. Will J. Holden, 19, of Poplarville, Mo., and Pvt. Richard L. Calbert, 22, of Kansas City, Mo.

THE COMMUNISTS announced the arrests last Wednesday on charges of attacking a cabaret actor in East Berlin.

The Soviets released the Americans Saturday after U. S. authorities handed the Communists a written demand for their immediate release.

Col. O. M. Barsanti, Army chief of staff in Berlin, followed up the written demand with a visit to Soviet headquarters to see Col. Ivan A. Kotsuba, Berlin's deputy Soviet commandant. Shortly thereafter, the American soldiers were handed over to Lt. Col. Vernon Hammond, Army provost marshal here.

THE MEN appeared to be in good physical condition, but they were admitted to the U. S. Army hospital for a routine physical examination, an Army announcement said.

American officials sent the written note after the Reds hinted they might try the soldiers in an East Germany court. Such a trial would be a violation of four-power agreements in Berlin.

Apartment Thief Gets $1,715 Gems

Elleen C. Mills, 1827 E. Ocean Blvd., reported to police that four diamond rings valued at $1,715 were stolen from her apartment Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Mills told officers a man in his late 20s had called at the house about renting rooms and that later on she discovered the rings were missing from the top of a dresser.

Mrs. Mills is manager of the apartments at that address. She said she had seen the man in the vicinity two weeks ago.

Negro Beauty, 17, Chosen 'Queen of Queens' at University of Iowa

DORA LEE MARTIN... Choice of Iowa 'U' Men

IOWA CITY, Iowa (U.P.)—Dora Lee Martin, 17-year-old Negro beauty from Houston, Tex., was chosen "queen of queens" of the University of Iowa campus Saturday night.

It was the first time the state university's male students, who choose the queen, had ever selected a Negro girl for the honor.

Miss Martin said she was "thrilled" and "surprised" at being named sweetheart of the Iowa state campus.

The pretty, light-skinned girl, about five feet, six inches tall, was the only Negro of 29 candidates. She was among seven girls entered by Currier Hall, a woman's dormitory. About 50 of the 900 girls in the dorm are Negroes.

Miss Martin is a dramatic arts major attending Iowa on a scholarship. The "Queen of Queens" winter formal dance is one of the university's top social affairs.

Miss Martin said she was interested in an acting career.

She said this was more a "popularity contest" than a beauty contest, which makes the honor even more wonderful.

Advice Casts Fresh Doubts on '56 Race

President Gets Checkup, Urged
to Lighten Work

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower's physician disclosed Saturday night that he has urged the chief executive to lighten his work burden and "slow down" while recovering from his heart attack.

The doctor, Maj. Gen. Howard M. Snyder, also said that if he were in Eisenhower's position he wouldn't feel that he would be able to make "a satisfactory decision" until mid-February as to whether to run again.

A medical bulletin issued after the President had a complete checkup Saturday pronounced his condition good and declared "he continues to look well and feel well."

But it said his work load has put a "heavier tax" on him than could ideally be desired. And Dr. Snyder added at a news conference that the President has experienced "fatigue" on many occasions after long conferences, although his recovery is continuing normally from the "acute" heart attack he suffered in Denver.

THIS NEWS FROM the White House was laden with implications for the possible major impact for the 1956 presidential campaign. For one thing, the "slowdown" advice cast fresh doubt on whether he will run again, as many supporters have been hoping he will.

It did not, however, rule out the possibility that he might be a candidate. Those Republicans fervently desiring him to head the ticket could find comfort in the doctors' emphasis that the President's progress toward recovery has been good.

Dr. Snyder's stand that the President probably won't be able to make a satisfactory decision for another two months was taken as a reply to some Republicans urging that the decision be announced in January.

SEN. KNOWLAND of California has indicated that he himself will get into the race for the Republican nomination.

U.S. Steps Up Efforts on New Missiles

WASHINGTON (U.P.)—Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson Saturday night announced the United States is stepping up its efforts to beat Russia in the development of long-range ballistic missiles—known as the "ultimate weapon" of hydrogen bomb warfare.

Wilson, at an unusual evening news conference, said that expansion of efforts toward the fantastic intercontinental weapon is a result "more of our own technological developments and realization of possibilities" than Russian advances in the field.

Wilson declined to say whether the United States is ahead of Russia in the deadly race. But he denied that the new U. S. step-up has anything to do with Russia's recent H-bomb explosion.

Wilson said he did not think Russia has made any unforeseen advance in the development of a ballistic missile. "Their progress has been what could be expected," he told newsmen.

L.A.C. SAYS:

What Does Man Cost?

good seem to have a blank spot when it comes to keeping the family's future safe if the family producer is suddenly taken in death.

Take for example an average family of four. If the father is taken away, does he expect the wife and mother to go to work? If so, what provision is there for looking after the two young children? Just how much less money will the family need when there are only three instead of four? It is not a pleasant subject for family discussion. But it is the most important discussion a man and wife can have.

Actually the man's presence in the family is a minor part of the family expense. He eats some food. The average family food bill is only about 20 per cent of its income, so on that basis one-fourth, or 5 per cent, would be saved if the man were not fed. The average man's clothing bill is a small part of the family budget. The wife and children make up most of it. There would be no saving on rent if the wife and children were to continue living on the same standard.

When you put down all the family expenses for four and figure out how much would be saved if the man's cost were eliminated you find his cost is very small. The only way a large saving would be accomplished would be by greatly reducing the standard of living for the wife and children surviving. And that is exactly what happens in the great majority of cases.

It is tragic that so few men are realistic enough to plan for their loved ones should the husbands be taken away. Most men are completely selfish in that they look ahead to the good things they will do with their families—but ignore what they will do if the fathers are not with them. We say it is completely selfish, because there are things he can do to protect the family from drastic curtailments should his income be cut off.

An example of this selfishness is the carelessness men show in neglecting to make a will so they may know who will be guardians of their children should both father and mother be taken. Another example is the way men delay taking out adequate insurance policies with annual monthly payments to the family provided. Very few men know how insurance policies they now have would be paid in event of their death. The husband and wife rarely sit down and try to plan what would be done if one of them were taken away. Result is when tragedy strikes it is more tragic because the surviving one must plan alone.

Planning for the future is something most people put off until tomorrow. For many of them when tomorrow comes it is too late. The plan of saving a little each month and establishing an insurance estate is put off because seemingly today's necessities are more important. But the people of today who have economic security are the people who planned long ago to provide it.

There is no more important factor in a family's life than analyzing and planning for what would happen should the father's income be taken away. It would be illuminating to most families to realize how little it takes to keep a man in the family and how much it would take to keep the family if he were taken away.—L.A.C.

OFFERS A 'HOT HEART'

Viennese Girl Seeks Rich Texan for Mate

DALLAS, Tex. (UP)—Anna Maria Springer of Vienna, Austria, whose picture indicates she has plenty of old world charm, asked a Dallas editor Saturday to find her a rich and lonely Texan to whom she can offer "a hot heart."

Miss Springer wrote Editor Bill Ruggles of the Dallas Morning News that she wants a husband from Texas who can afford to buy her a 1956 Chevrolet for a wedding present. She promised Ruggles a mess of Viennese schnitzel if he delivers.

Her letter said: "American newspaper people are said to have a right understanding of extraordinary or original conceptions. At least, this is rumored here in Vienna. "Well, I suppose I have a somewhat unusual idea and therefore I apply to you. I do not intend to immorally occupy your precious time. Therefore, to cut a long story short: I should like to marry an American of your state.

"I SHOULD be a mature man and not exactly the poorest of the country. I am 26 years of age, five feet, five inches tall and reddish-brown haired. I earned the academic title 'bachelor of commerce' at Vienna University.

"I should like to offer with Viennese charm a hot heart to a lonely feeling man who is ready to present me with a Chevrolet '56 for a wedding gift. I am dreaming of Texas, this most beautiful state of the U. S., of its everlasting sun and of its strong, husky men.

Rock Strike Negotiators Mark Time

Negotiators in the costly strike against 29 Southern California rock products firms took a week-end rest Saturday.

Representatives of industry and the striking teamsters' union met jointly Friday for the first time in five days. A similar session is planned for early this week, federal conciliator Earl J. Ruddy said.

Ruddy announced that he had added two more persons to his panel—mediators Arthur G. Vlat and Oliver E. Goodwin.

An industry spokesman said employers were standing pat on their Nov. 28 offer to make a locally administered pension plan available to the teamsters. The union wants an all-state pension fund administered by the western conference of teamsters in Seattle.

publican nomination if Eisenhower doesn't make his intentions public next month. Knowland, who is Republican leader of the Senate but has bucked the administration on some major foreign policy issues, had no comment Saturday night on the news from the White House.

Sen. Bridges (NH), Chairman of the Senate Republican policy committee, said before Eisenhower's checkup Saturday: "I think the President should make his intentions known as early as possible and I am hopeful that we can know them shortly after Jan. 1."

Bridges declared the present uncertainty puts New Hampshire's political situation in a "twilight zone." The state's presidential primary comes March 13, and the filing period for national convention delegates is Jan. 13-Feb. 11.

Some Republicans are known to be restive because of a feeling that the "Eisenhower wing" of the party is seeking to immobilize potential candidates outside that wing by prevailing on the President to delay his announcement as long as possible.

Eisenhower motored here Saturday from Gettysburg and underwent a lengthy examination at the Army's Walter Reed hospital.

SNYDER, COL. THOMAS W. Mattingly, Walter Reed Hospital heart specialist; and Maj. Gen. Leonard D. Heaton, the hospital's commanding officer, agreed on a medical bulletin asserting:

"Executive responsibilities have imposed a heavier tax upon the President than an ideal convalescence program would incorporate. "Then, too, the weather (at Gettysburg) has not always been the best.

"Participation in office and farm activities has been carefully supervised so that no harm has resulted."

"The President's condition, when examined today, was good."

The press conference came after the President underwent a complete medical checkup at Walter Reed hospital lasting a little more than an hour and a half.

THE MEDICAL bulletin referred to the 65-year-old President's Sept. 24 coronary thrombosis as "acute" for the first time, but the doctors said that referred to the suddenness of the attack which previously has been described as "moderate."

Gen. Snyder told the newsmen that "we expect his work to be lightened" when the President goes back to Gettysburg Tuesday after conferences here with congressional leaders.

Snyder said that if he were in the President's position he wouldn't feel that he would be able to make "a satisfactory decision" on whether he would be able to run again for "another two months."

He said that the President's activities for the next several weeks will be carefully controlled with emphasis on keeping the middle of the day—from noon until 2:30 p. m.—free of any activity. That period, he said, will be set aside for lunch and rest.

SNYDER PREFACED the reading of the medical bulletin by saying "the news continues to be good."

The bulletin asserted the President has "felt well and looked well." It said he "sleeps well, rests well and relaxes easily during the day" and that he had used a very mild sedative only once since he left the hospital in Denver Nov. 11.

The bulletin went on: "His general circulation is excellent, including the circulation in his legs and feet. Although there was an area of soreness in the President's chest during the first 48 hours of his illness, his breathing has been entirely comfortable during his entire illness."

"The blood-clotting time has remained at a controlled level. The blood sedimentation rate has steadily declined and is now in the upper normal range for this altitude. The white blood count has remained at a normal figure since the early days following the acute attack. The serum cholesterol varies slightly but continues within the normal range."

THE BULLETIN went on to say that the electrocardiograms "show residual abnormalities as a result of the scar in the heart muscle" and added:

"These abnormalities remain stable as is expected at this stage in the healing process. This stability is a desirable finding. The scar in the heart muscle wall appears to be firm and of moderate size. Fluoroscopic examination indicates that the heart-beat is good and that the muscle action is satisfactory."

"The heart shadow, compared with films that were made in prior years and with those that have been made since the acute attack developed, shows no significant evidence of enlargement."

The chief executive had arrived in midafternoon for the physical checkup, the first complete one he has had in a month.

Snyder said that the President probably will not move back into the White House until Congress reconvenes.

Under questioning the doctors said that the size of the area injured by the President's heart attack was approximately four-fifths of an inch, which is about average, they said.

SNYDER ALSO said he thought it would be inadvisable for the President to deliver his "state of the union" message to Congress in person. He would not say flatly whether he thought the President would ever play golf again, saying that heart specialists differed on the advisability of heart patients playing that game.

He said he would defer that question to the opinion of heart specialists he has consulted. Dr. Paul Dudley White, the Boston heart expert, who will examine the President again at Gettysburg, Dec. 17, has said previously that it is quite possible the President ultimately can resume playing golf if his progress continues to be satisfactory.

On the question of the heart enlargement, Col. Mattingly said that in such cases there is almost always some moderate enlargement and that in the President's case it was "minimal."

The main burden of Dr. Snyder's view was that he would like to give the President as much time as is humanly possible to continue his convalescence with a minimum of official burdens.

ASKED BY A REPORTER if he had suggested to the President that he "slow down" the pace of his activities, Snyder replied that he had done so in recent days.

A case in point, brought up by White House News Secretary James C. Hagerty, was the National Security Council session at Camp David, the President's retreat in the Catskill Mountains on Thursday. On that occasion the President worked with his top defense planning group for approximately two hours and 20 minutes in the morning and about that length of time in an afternoon session.

There were other occasions, Hagerty added, when the President has worked at his Gettysburg office until past noon and resumed work before two o'clock. Because of this, he said, he has not been able to get the needed 2½ hours in the middle of the day for lunch and prescribed rest.

"Everything possible is being done to lighten the President's burdens," Hagerty said adding that "we expect that in the future they will be made even lighter."

Allen's Votes for L.B. Bared

that in January, 1953, and again in January, 1955, Allen voted with other legislators to approve amendments involving local oil funds. One authorized expenditure of tidelands money, away from the tidelands and the other authorized specific purposes for which certain tidelands money could be used, including upland projects.

MEMBERS OF THE legislative committee chuckled when Grant recited the record.

Allen remarked that he voted for the Long Beach charter amendments after Grant had represented they didn't involve oil money.

There were more chuckles and then Grant came back. He pointed out that when the first amendment came before the Assembly, in 1953, he was not a member of that body.

The matter was dropped there, but it had provided a high light of a session devoted principally to financial records of the Long Beach tidelands oil operations and the city's auditing practices. The committee recessed at noon and will reconvene in Los Angeles Jan. 13 when Allen will begin presentation of his side.

Auditor Mansell submitted a complete financial record of the 44 years of harbor operations and 17 years of tidelands oil operations. Mansell's report showed net revenue to the city from the Richfield and LBOD contracts up to June 30, 1955, was $233,547,154.63.

HIS FIGURES showed a total of $158,511,202 on hand on June 30 in the four city funds which receive tideland oil revenue. All moneys in the reserves, he said, are invested in U.S. government bonds, and cash on hand is kept in long-term interest-bearing bank accounts.

Before the interim committee is the question of permitting Long Beach to keep all or part of its tidelands oil revenues to spend under terms of its grants from the state. The Mallon decision awarded half to the state, but the legislature could restore that half. Allen has proposed that the state take it all and allocate money back to Long Beach for harbor operations.

MANSELL'S REPORT showed that, excluding oil revenues, the harbor has had a net loss before depreciation during its 44 years of operation of $1,117,040.25. Total depreciation is $8,053,318.83, bringing the net loss for 44 years, after charges for depreciation to $9,170,359.08.

The city presented figures to show a comparison between its lucrative tidelands oil operations and those of the state. The state has received about 26 percent of the gross revenue from its tidelands. Long Beach has received 55.96 percent from the LBOD contract and 70.19 percent from the Richfield contract. These are the only contractors operating the city's tidelands oil field.

ASSEMBLYMAN ALLEN questioned at length about accounting methods and particularly asked about cases where Mansell had protested Harbor Department expenditures. One such case, Mansell said, was expenses for a dinner. He said there had been about five such incidents, and that in three cases he was sustained, two overruled.

Allen also quizzed Mansell and Port Petroleum Engineer Frank Hardesty closely about the city's methods of metering oil and gas coming from the tidelands wells. Hardesty said that to the best of his knowledge, all oil and gas but waste goes through the meters.

Japan GI's Worries End, Cops Find His Car's Junk

The Spirit of Christmas shows itself in many ways.

For a U.S. soldier in Tokyo the Yuletide greetings include notice that a car he once owned has been reduced to junk—and thus worry that has haunted him for two years will be lifted.

The soldier, Harry Pugh Jr., lived in Long Beach before going overseas early this year and owned a 1947 sedan. After he left, his wife decided to sell the car. She took a down payment on it but through a misunderstanding allowed the purchaser to take the pink slip immediately. The change in ownership apparently never was recorded.

For the past two years Pugh has been receiving a mass of correspondence from irate gasoline station owners, policemen and court officials requesting that he pay bills and traffic tickets and answer summonses. He worried about these things and finally last week wrote a three-page letter to the Clerk of Municipal Court here outlining his difficulties and asking aid.

The court turned the letter over to the police traffic bureau and they traced the car through several owners and finally found that it was sold to an auto salvage company and destroyed for junk.

Municipal Judge Martin DeVries wrote Pugh a letter this week telling him his worries are over. It should arrive by Christmas.

CHILDREN WANT SINCERITY, AUTHORS SAY

Two Writers Here for Book Fair Explain 'Magic Key' to Tots' Hearts

By BEN ZINSER

When you write for children, you have to be "terribly honest."

And you write just as if you were communicating with adults—only you leave out the sophistication.

That's the authority of two successful children's authors—Leo Politi and Taro Yashima. Both were in town Saturday afternoon to attend the Association for Childhood Education's first annual Book Fair at State College.

Yashima, 47, of Los Angeles, got into the story-telling business accidentally. Home from the war and duty with the OSS, he found himself embittered, and victim of an ulcer.

His young daughter, Momo, he recalls, put her cheek to his. "I didn't realize that a young child was capable of such sympathy," he said. "Suddenly I wanted to make a story for my daughter—one with deep meaning."

He started writing and illustrating.

Wife Dead, Gun Wielder in Life Fight

A Buena Park man who fatally wounded his estranged wife and attempted to shoot a 4-year-old daughter remained in critical condition Saturday night from a self-inflicted bullet wound.

Frank Earl Ward, 30, shot Mrs. Josephine Sanchez Ward, 26, at 6501 Knott Ave., Buena Park, Friday afternoon, reportedly tried to shoot the girl, Linda, and then turned the gun on himself, officers said.

MRS. WARD died at 6:10 a.m. Saturday in Orange County General Hospital. Ward also was hospitalized there.

Linda escaped injury when Ward's gun jammed, a witness told police. The girl ran screaming from the room.

Ward reportedly fired three bullets point-blank into his wife after she rejected his attempts at a reconciliation. Officers said the weapon was a .32-caliber revolver.

The couple has two other children, Marla, 3, and Warner, 8 months.

DOWNNEY — Armed bandits early Saturday "took over" a liquor store at 8035 Imperial Hwy. and turned customers away while they robbed the establishment of $170 in cash.

Clerk Dewey W. Young, 59, told sheriff's deputies he was alone when gunmen walked into the store. They jerked the telephone from the wall and ordered him into a back room. The bandits forced him to lie face down on the floor and tied his hands behind him.

Customers attempting to enter the store while the robbery was taking place were told by the thugs that the store was closed.

FBI Arrests Fugitive in Murder Case

CHICAGO (U.P.)—The FBI Saturday night announced the arrest of Lewis Statler, 68, wanted for the slaying of his 18-year-old housekeeper last October.

FBI agents closed in on Statler in Chicago's Loop. He was unarmed and offered no resistance, they said. He had been using the name of Robert Est.

Statler had been sought since Oct. 9, when the body of Gloria Anne Perry was found strangled in Brookside Park, Cleveland.

Cleveland police had asked the assistance of the FBI when they learned that Statler had left their city on Oct. 20.

The FBI said Miss Perry had resided with Statler in his home in Altoona, Pa., where she had performed the services of housekeeper for several weeks.

Shortly after she took up residence, Statler was arrested and charged with statutory rape and contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

Investigators learned that Statler and Miss Perry had fled to Cleveland and lived together for about two weeks before her slaying.

Sex Maniac Hunted in Coed Slaying

OMAHA, Neb. (U.P.)—A coed beauty queen's body, ripped by four bullets, was found on the University of Omaha campus early Saturday and police searched for a sadistic sex killer.

The body of pretty brunette Carolyn Marie Nevins, a 20-year-old senior honor student, was found behind a clump of bushes amid evidence of a struggle.

She was fully clothed but her garments were disarranged. Her shoes were found 40 feet away side by side and later her panties discovered buried in snow some 30 feet distant.

Police branded the killer "sadistic" and said sex appeared to be the motive. A preliminary autopsy report, however, said she was not raped.

Investigators, working feverishly on the case, theorized that she was probably killed in an auto and her body dumped later on the campus.

WASHINGTON — We don't know who is the most nervous these days, Bulganin, Krushchev, or Georgi Malenkov, but the boys must certainly be eyeing each other somewhat fishily. In the revolving door which is the Kremlin, pudgy Georgi appears to be forcing his way back into the position from which he was only recently ousted.

According to accepted political practices over there, the top men usually take swift action against any swift-rising subordinate. On the other hand, they can never be sure he isn't taking swift action against them. All of which must make for a nice easy give-and-take conversation when the boys get together. After all, they must all remember that Malenkov eliminated Beria precisely two days before Beria planned to eliminate Malenkov. Chummy, eh what?

Speaking of dictators, purges and the like, Juan Peron may have made some political miscalculations down in Argentina, but he did make one brilliantly correct prediction. After he had been ousted, he was asked what he thought of the government of Gen. Lonardi which had succeeded him. Replied Peron: "Lonardi reminds me of the man who jumped from the roof of an 18-story building and as he passed the fourth floor yelled: 'I'm doing fine.'" Several days later those who decide such things in Argentina decided Lonardi wouldn't do and he went out quite suddenly. He's now on his way to the U.S. for what may or may not be euphemistically called "medical reasons."

Quiz 2 Mystery Suspects in Florida Hatchet Killings

MELBOURNE, Fla. (U.P.)—The request of State Attorney Police questioned two mystery suspects Saturday night in the hatchet murders of a respected laundryman's red-haired wife and their 7-year-old daughter and predicted a solution may be near. Police Chief John Thomas confirmed that two more persons were being grilled in the brutal slayings, but would not identify them.

"I don't know what this will amount to, maybe only a hill of beans," Thomas said.

But he was confident of investigators' progress in the case and said a solution "isn't too far off, although I don't expect we'll wrap it up tonight or tomorrow."

The bereaved laundry operator, Phillip van Eeghen, was questioned for more than 11 hours Friday, but no charges had been placed against him. Van Eeghen is a former Canadian soldier and son of a late oil company executive.

The bodies of his wife, Patricia, 30, and 7-year-old daughter, Phyllis, were found viciously slashed in a car parked across the street from a funeral parlor and police believed they were slain with a hatchet.

Van Eeghen was still being held in custody after the long questioning session. Thomas said he was transferred to the Broward County jail at Titusville at

Report Panama Chief Slain in Dope Plot

FORT WORTH, Texas (U.P.)—The Fort Worth Star-Telegram said Saturday night in a copy-righted story that the late Leroy (Tincy) Eggleston, notorious Fort Worth gangster, might have been the trigger man who assassinated President Jose A. Remon Cantera of Panama with machinegun fire last January.

Star-Telegram reporter Ira Cain said that a private investigator, Col. Gaspar Bilo Mendez, says there is enough evidence "to give credence to the accusation that Eggleston manned one of the machineguns that blasted President Remon to death."

A key clue is a German burp gun (sub-machine gun) found in a wrecked and abandoned automobile near Hurst, a Fort Worth suburb, last August.

The Star-Telegram story says that Mendez believes Remon was slain because he cracked down on the narcotics traffic and that Eggleston was slain because he failed to divide part of the payoff for slaying the Panamanian president.

Eggleston's body was found Aug. 24, thrown into an abandoned well near Saginaw, Texas, in this vicinity. He had been slain by a shotgun.

Some time before, Eggleston and Cecil Green, a gangland companion, had been charged with murder in what officers called a killing-for-pay of wealthy Fort Worth oilman William P. Clark. Green was killed shortly thereafter. Clark's estranged wife recently was found innocent on charges of hiring Green, Eggleston and Harry Huggins to slay her husband. Huggins is in jail.

The slayers of Green and Eggleston have not been found. Mendez added later the Star-Telegram said, that his information was that the payoff of $50,000 was made in Los Angeles. The man who paid off gave Eggleston his cut of $20,000 and, forced to flee town by Los Angeles officers, gave Eggleston the $15,000 cut due another gangster.

The newspaper further quoted Mendez as saying that Eggleston gambled away his $20,000, plus the $15,000 cut of his partner, and that the loss of the money

KFOX Selects Officers

W. T. McDonald, Long Beach Commission. McDonald is the industrialist, has been elected majority stockholder.

President of KFOX Broadcasting Corp., company officials announced Saturday.

Other officers include Hal Shideler, executive vice president of music, news and sports and general manager, and Paul Bauer, secretary-treasurer.

Purchase of the stock by the new group recently was approved by the Federal Communications Commission. McDonald is the majority stockholder.

"We are ordering new equipment and completely redecorating our studios," Shideler said. "We shall continue our policy of music, news and sports and would like everyone to know that our services are available at all times for any community program in which we might be of help."

CAA Chief Resigns at Weeks' Request

WASHINGTON (UP)—Frederick B. Lee resigned Saturday as Civil Aeronautics Administrator. He said he was asked to quit by Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks because of a "lack of satisfactory working relations" with Weeks' office.

Berserk, Kills His Mother, Wife, Child

BALTIMORE (UP)—Police said Saturday night a 50-year-old Baltimore man ran amuck with a gun and an ax, slaying his wife, his six-year-old daughter and his mother, and wounding a policeman.

He ended his own life with a gun Saturday night as his brother-in-law, a policeman, and another officer tried to enter the small tavern and living quarters occupied by the crazed man, Eugene McNeal.

Officers said McNeal went to the home of his brother-in-law Saturday morning about 11 o'clock and told the latter's wife he had "done a horrible thing."

The brother-in-law still was sleeping, and his wife did not disturb him. When he went to McNeal's home, with Police Sgt. Joseph A. Heming, they were fired upon as they used a flashlight on a window. Heming was struck in the chest.

McNeal then took his own life. Two dolls were nestled close to the dead child.

Woman, 72, Tops TV Quiz for $100,000

NEW YORK (UP)—The largest prize in the annals of radio and television giveaway shows—$100,000—went to a 72-year-old woman Saturday night.

Mrs. Ethel Park Richardson, of Los Angeles, won the prize by answering a six-part question about folk songs.

"I'm going to give a tenth of it to him," Mrs. Richardson said, gesturing heavenward, after the fanfare and applause had died down.

Mrs. Richardson was the first contestant to reach the $100,000 end of the trail on the NBC television program, "The Big Surprise."

Two persons have won $64,000 on another television quiz show, CBS' "The $64,000 Question."

Until now, that was the largest such prize ever given away.

Mrs. Richardson missed the $100,000 question two weeks ago, but got another chance at it Saturday night.

For the big prize she correctly identified the Erie Canal as the "Highway to the West" built in 1825. She identified the Shenandoah of the folk song as an Indian chief. She named the Wabash River as the one mentioned in a song called "Elanoy."

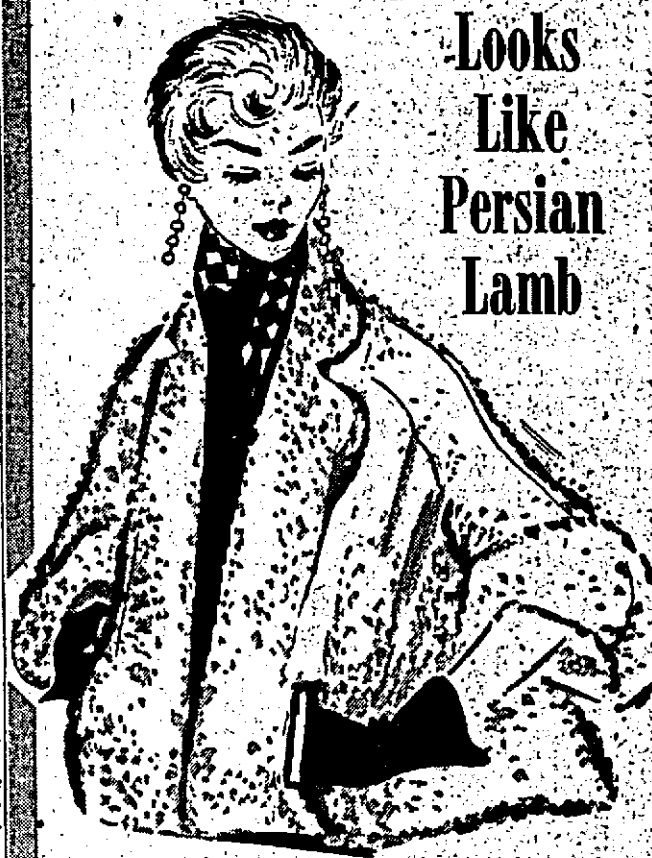

THE FOURTH part of the question caused Mrs. Richardson to stumble. After identifying the tune of "The Streets of Laredo," she made several false starts in an effort to sing the first verse. She returned to the question later and got it.

For the fifth part she named Laura as the girl of the Colorado Trail with eyes of a morning star and cheeks like a rose. And she sang the verse and chorus of a California gold rush song that has the same tune as "Camptown Races."

"Now I'm scared," she confessed to master of ceremonies Jack Barry after she won the prize.

Barry announced that the $100,000 question was prepared by California's Gov. Goodwin J. Knight.

MARTIN'S MECHANIC

Pioneer Plane Builder Never Took Ride

(Editor's Note: Death of Glenn Martin last week ended the career of the aviation pioneer credited with the first flight in a self-propelled airplane (the Wright Brothers plane was launched with a catapult). His Newport-to-Catalina flight was the "first distance flight" over water. In the following article, Vera Williams interviews the mechanic who built the historic first Martin plane.)

By VERA WILLIAMS

When Glenn Martin was laid to rest Friday in Santa Ana, heading the list of pallbearers was Roy Beall, 70, mechanic who drew the plans for and built Martin's first plane, or more exactly his first eight or nine planes.

And the strange thing is that although Beall used to go up in hot air balloons and take aerial photographs, he never has gone up in a plane with Martin or anybody else. And when he was building planes he didn't even believe in them.

"I figured," he recalls, "like the fellow who told the boy to let go of the tiger before it clawed him up. . . I thought rich people wouldn't have anything to do with airplanes because they didn't want to get killed, and poor folks wouldn't have anything to do with them because they cost too much."

BEALL, for 18 years a Colorado cowboy, moved to Santa Ana in 1902, returned to Greeley in 1903, came back to Santa Ana in 1904 and has lived there ever since. He remembers when Glenn Martin came to Santa Ana and built the first garage in town.

At the time, Beall was working at a bicycle shop, which also sold Maxwell cars. He was repairing cars and bicycles.

Glenn Martin asked him to go to work for him, so he did. Then one day the two of them went to the Dominguez air meet.

"Glenn asked me to sketch a Curtiss plane there. There were so many people around I couldn't get close. But I did the best I could. We brought the sketch back and started building a plane in Glenn's garage. Of course we changed the plans as we went along. We worked on that plane about a year. We made it out of spruce and we cut the propeller out of a solid original plans—we never did have any other plans. The original design was in ink, we put in the pencil changes we wanted. And we took parts of one plane to build another.

"About that time, Glenn began flying at the mesa of the San Joaquin Rancho over at the south end of Main St. And he flew at Dominguez and Brown St. It only got off the ground a few inches. As it bounced, the long spruce arms broke. We got bamboo arms and we wired the thing together.

"Then we got an Ellbridge three-cylinder engine and the airplane got off the ground eight or 10 feet. Then an Ellbridge four-cylinder engine and it got up 50 to 100 feet.

"All of a sudden one day when Glenn was flying around in it, there was a fence in front of him. He got it over the fence, and that's the day we figure he first flew."

"That first successful flight was Aug. 1, 1909."

Flushed with success, Martin then leased the abandoned Southern Methodist Church, 2nd and Main, Santa Ana, and started building his second plane. Others followed.

"It's kinda hard to tell just how many airplanes we did build," says Beall, "probably it was eight or nine. We used the

and he admits ruefully that Martin never mentioned it again.

"Then," he says, "I don't remember the year, maybe it was 1912 or so, Martin moved his airplane plant to Los Angeles. He asked me to go along, but I told him I was sick of airplanes and I'd stay on with automobiles and bicycles."

Martin's garage was taken over by his father, C. Y. Martin, and Beall worked for him some years before starting his own garage.

"I pioneered in airplanes and automobiles and radios," he says. "I worked on the two, four and six-cylinder early day Fords. I worked on the one-cylinder Olds, on the two-cylinder Haynes Apperson and the old Duryea."

He built crystal sets when radio was new, but when they went to AC and got fancy he quit them.

BEALL LIVES ALONE at 601 E. 3rd St., Santa Ana, in a yellow seven-room frame house that he says he "stole" for $1,000 about 1912.

His wife, Geraldine, died in 1951. He has three sons, a daughter, five grandchildren, and will have a great-grandchild next

TV Assailed for Parental Delinquency

LOS ANGELES UP — A Los Angeles psychologist charges television is causing parental delinquency.

Reported Mason Rose Saturday:

A breakdown shows that children of pre-school and school ages spend 28 per cent of their recreational time viewing TV.

In the 14-16-year age bracket, the average hours per week comes to 10.8. In the 5-10 age group, the average is 33.8 hours per week.

"THE LITTLE ONES seem to be plunked down in front of the TV screen as though it were a mechanical baby sitter," commented Rose.

"It's not their fault if they see things that baffle or bewilder them."

"It is the fault, rather of 'delinquent parents' and by that I mean parents either lazy, too much immersed in their own activities, or not well enough informed."

ROSE MADE his statements after studies of 4,384 answers in the first statistical report on a TV survey now being conducted throughout the Beverly Hills school system under the auspices of the National Audience Board.

FBI Chief Rejects Bid for Presidency

WASHINGTON (UP)—Sen. Jenner (R-Ind.) said Saturday that FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover has turned down a proposal that he become a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

Jenner said that, acting on a request from an Indiana Republican leader he did not name, he personally sounded out Hoover on whether he would be willing to run. Hoover told him he couldn't do it, Jenner added in an interview.

"He said he didn't want to jeopardize the position he has built up for the FBI by getting into politics," the Indiana Senator reported. Jenner added that Hoover would be "highly acceptable" to many people in Indiana.

JENNER'S ACTION in seeking out Hoover was regarded in some

Top Demo Sees Tax Cut in '56

WASHINGTON (UP)—Sen. George (D-GA.) predicted Saturday the Democratic controlled House will move immediately toward a reduction in individual income taxes when Congress convenes next month. But he said it may be some time before the Senate gets around to considering the issue.

George, a veteran member of the Senate Finance committee, said in a telephone interview from Vienna, Ga., that he feels sentiment for tax cuts will be strong among returning legislators that the House ways and means committee will act quickly. That is where all tax bills must originate.

While there have been indications that President Eisenhower might point the way to a future tax cut in his January state of the union message, administration officials generally have indicated they want to hold off on any specific recommendations until there are clearer indications that the budget will be balanced.

GEORGE, WHO has said budget balancing is at hand, indicated that he expects the Democrats to get the jump on the administration in tax cutting.

"I am under the impression there will be an immediate move in the House and that action will be taken there rather promptly," George said. He added he thinks the move will have the full approval of House Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas.

Because of the time lag involved in hearings and floor action, George said the Senate may not get around to considering the tax issue for some time. He said this lapse of time will provide more information on whether the budget is going to be balanced.

"I hope we can increase the individual income tax exemption from $500 to at least $700," George said. "That will benefit the low income group most but it will help everybody. Also, I think there should be some adjustment in the rates on middle income brackets."

THE MIDDLE BRACKETS generally are regarded as those ranging from $6,000 up to about $50,000 a year. It has been George's contention that many small businessmen in this bracket have been hard hit and need tax relief.

George has opposed any reduction in overall corporation rates, which now range in maximum of 52 per cent. His proposed $100 increase in personal exemptions has been estimated by treasury officials to cost about 2½ billion dollars in revenue.

Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey has predicted the budget will be balanced this spring, despite previous Budget Bureau estimates of a $1,700,000,000 deficit on June 30, 1956. Humphrey has indicated he may favor a tax cut. He said he expects Eisenhower to speak out on the question in his state of the union message.

The SPINAL COLUMN
By DR. J. C. KEYS
D.C., Ph.C.

We all know what happens when an electric power station, generating and transmitting power through lines to various receivers, when one of the receivers blows out, the whole system is of little or no effectiveness until repairs are made on the faulty receiver.

An example of this was the old style Christmas tree lights. When one light on the string went out, the whole string went out.

It is almost exactly the same with the human body. The brain generates the power and transmits it down the spinal column, from which it is distributed to the various parts of the body, by means of the nervous system.

HEALTH DECREASING

When one part of the body is afflicted with sickness or disease, the effectiveness of the entire human system is decreased seriously, until the afflicted area, whether a gland, muscle or organ, is restored to health.

Chiropractors, such as Dr. J. C. Keys, have proven that the spine is the key to the nervous system and therefore to good health. The spine must be in adjustment, else nerves will be limited in function, leading to lowered resistance and impaired health in one of its many forms.

TIME TELLS

In your daily life, you are subject to falls and accidents, many apparently minor at the time, yet they may strain the spine and slip a vertebra or disc out of normal position so that nerves are interfered with. In time your health is undermined and you are at a loss to know why. The wise thing to do is to consult Dr. J. C. Keys, and to thus take advantage of his 30 years of successfully treating the sick and ailing of this area.

When trouble is found, have the cause corrected so that good health and a more abundant life may be yours.

For further information, contact Dr. J. C. Keys, D. C., at 1075 Atlantic, or phone him at HEEmlock 6-6777.

Blast McKay for Opening Game Refuge

WASHINGTON (AP)—The National Wildlife Federation charged Saturday that Interior Secretary Douglas McKay's new policy to regulate oil leasing and mineral exploration on national wildlife refuges "is the nearest thing to an outright give-away yet perpetrated."

McKay last week announced that the new policy was to protect wild life. He said extra precaution would be taken in areas where it was necessary to protect nearly extinct species such as the whooping crane. He also said it would be necessary for prospectors to get approval of the U. S. Fish and Wild Life Service in some cases.

Ernest Swift, executive director of the federation and until a few months ago assistant director of the Fish and Wild Life Service, said McKay's new policy and regulations protect only "unique natural areas" and near-extinct species.

IN ADDITION to Okefenokee Swamp in Georgia and the Texas wintering grounds of the whooping cranes, Swift said, McKay's regulations listed only eight other areas.

Swift said the regulations open the way for constant pressures for mineral development.

Brewing Dean Dies

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Joseph Goldie, 81, retired president of Rainier Brewing Co., and dean of California brewers, died in a hospital here Saturday.

UNLESS HELP COMES

1,500 Families Face Bleak Christmastide

More than 1,500 families in this area will have very little Christmas unless money, canned food, usable clothing and good toys pour into the Christmas Cheer Clearinghouse at 854 E. 7th St. from now until Dec. 23.

Dr. Godfrey Parnell, chairman of the Christmas Cheer drive, said Saturday that contributions so far will take care of approximately 300 of the needy families in this area.

The rock strike, increased population and the changing economic conditions are major factors which tend to make this the year of greatest need since the Cheer program started.

Trained workers from Salvation Army, Volunteers of America, Catholic Welfare, Bureau of Public Assistance, Juvenile Bureau and other agencies are in the field daily surveying the needs. The outlook at this point is not a happy one.

"WE ALSO NEED volunteer workers to help us in the clearinghouse and the warehouse from now until Dec. 23," Dr. Parnell said. "We will remain open at 854 E. 7th St. from 8:30 a.m. until 9 p.m. daily beginning Dec. 12. Any group or individual interested in helping should call HE 2-1434."

Thursday is the deadline to adopt a family if you wish to do the shopping for gifts and food yourself. All packages for the adopted families must be in the warehouse by Dec. 19. Deliveries to families will begin Dec. 14 and be completed by Dec. 23. Cash contributions will be accepted until the office closes the day before Christmas.

Telephone numbers at the Christmas Cheer Clearinghouse are HE 6-1506, HE 6-1518 and HE 6-3012.

Japan-Korea Tension High, Fear Clash

TOKYO (AP)—A bitter cold war between the Republic of Korea and Japan is threatening to break out into violence that would be embarrassing to the United States.

U. S. entry into the dispute as a mediator appeared inevitable. The dispute centers on a 60-mile-wide buffer zone thrown around both South and Communist North Korea by President Syngman Rhee Jan. 18, 1952. Within this maritime domain, the Republic of Korea refuses at gunpoint to allow Japanese fishing boats to operate.

It was the same zone marked off by Gen. Douglas MacArthur during the Japanese occupation. Japanese fishing boats were ordered not go into the zone.

During the Korean War, the United States, in 1952, drew approximately the same line around Korea as a defense zone. Rhee refers to American actions as precedents for his decision.

Seizure of Japanese boats and crews by ROK coast guard ships has continued with varying intensity since 1947.

THE ROK JOINT chiefs of staff threatened Nov. 17 to shoot and sink Japanese vessels violating the line. This has brought the two nations into heated verbal exchanges.

It is the culmination of always bad ROK-Japan relations that still even farther downhill this summer. The Korean government threw up trade restrictions and hurled angry charges that Japan was betraying the West by her negotiations with Communist nations.

Observers believe the Japanese government, which remained calm on the festering fishery problem, pounced on the threat to disturb Far Eastern peace to bring its case to the attention of the world.

The possibility of a midge sea battle remains a constant possibility. Japanese boats are still fishing in the "forbidden" area because, according to the Japanese foreign office, "the fishermen must eat."

Both nations last week officially welcomed U. S. mediation but did not request it formally.

U.N. Council Gets Soviet Ultimatum

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Russia handed the Security Council an all-or-nothing ultimatum Saturday on the proposed admission of 18 countries to the U. N. The Russians also threatened to block the whole scheme with a veto if the council did not vote on new members according to procedure dictated by Moscow.

Amazed delegates, confronted with unyielding stands by the Soviet Union, assailed "suspicious Russians." The bitter procedural wrangle at two extraordinary Saturday sessions was not settled as the delegates adjourned at 5:43 p.m. The council will meet again next Tuesday.

Arkady A. Sobolev, Soviet delegate, unleashed his twin threats during five hours of debate. First, he said the Russians were willing to accept all 18 applicants "without exception," and would take no other plan. This had been expected but his notice was the formal warning.

Next, he opposed a plan by Sir Leslie Munro, New Zealand, and Cyro De Freitas Valle, of Brazil, for the voting procedure. They wanted to have the council vote separately on each country in order of application and then vote as a whole on all of those passing the voting by each country.

This would give the Soviet Union or any other country able to use a veto the chance to cast a final veto on the whole package if one of the countries it favored was cancelled out in the individual voting.

Sobolev said he would vote against priority for this plan and against the plan itself. This would veto the 18 in one ballot.

Nationalist China, which has threatened outside the council to veto Outer Mongolia if necessary, stood aside for the most part as the Russians slugged it out with others on procedure. The Russians have said a veto of Outer Mongolia would kill the deal.

Russ Agents Start India Trade Talks

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Soviet Russia's top-ranking visitors continued to woo India with sugar-coated speeches Saturday, but their aides got down to hard economic bargaining. Premier Nikolai A. Bulganin and Communist Party Chief Nikita S. Khrushchev wound up a two-day visit to the Himalayan state of Kashmir, which is in dispute between India and Pakistan.

In their speeches, the visitors have asserted that Kashmir unquestionably belongs to India. They also have denounced Great Britain for separating the Indian sub-continent so as to separate Moslem Pakistan from Hindu India.

Reaction in Pakistan was angry. A Foreign Office spokesman in Karachi, the capital, said the mere fact of the visit to the disputed area was "not friendly"—even aside from the pro-Indian speeches.

IN NEW DELHI, three members of the big Soviet delegation started brass-tacks business talks with the key Indian officials.

Andrei A. Gromyko, deputy foreign minister; Pavelov Lunykin, deputy minister of foreign trade, and V. B. Kheibnikov, deputy minister for the steel industry, were the Soviet negotiators.

They discussed a proposed deal for 700,000 tons of Russian steel, the construction of a big steel plant, the setting up of Indian plants for the separation of manganese and chrome ore, and aid by Soviet experts in Indian diamond mining.

Purged Red Boss of French Auto Workers Suicide

PARIS (AP)—The death of a recently purged Communist automobile workers' union boss was listed as suicide Saturday by the French police.

A relative found the body of Marcel Lacaze, 42, in bed in his small apartment near the Montparnasse section of Paris. The jets of a gas stove had been turned on.

Lacaze was fired a few days earlier from his post as secretary of the big Renault auto-plant branch of the Communist-led General Confederation of Labor (CGT).

Lacaze fell from grace for having failed to block the American-type "New Deal" labor contract the management of the nationalized 40,000-worker auto plant concluded with the free labor unions.

U.S. Prepares TV Film for Use Abroad

WASHINGTON (AP)—A television "living picture" of the United States is being prepared for worldwide distribution by the U. S. Information Agency.

The first in a series of half-hour filmed television shows will be ready in January, the agency announced Saturday.

Back of the program is the belief that by 1956 the potential foreign television audience will total 40 million. More than 100 TV stations already are operating abroad.

"The purpose of this new program," said Acting Director Abbott Washburn, "is to present a living picture of the United States, its people and its customs, together with a description of our policies—both national and international—as part of the world scene."

The new program will be available in English and in French, German, Italian, Spanish, Portuguese, Arabic and Japanese. Joseph Harsch, National Broadcasting Co. commentator, will narrate the English version.

MIT to Use 'Electronic Brain' Giant

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—A new giant "electronic brain" which can perform 40,000 additions of 10-digit numbers in one second, will be installed at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, it was announced today.

The computer, first of a new high-speed type developed by International Business Machines Corp., for education and basic research, will be the principal tool in a new MIT electronic data processing center. It will be installed early in 1957 in the Karl Compton Memorial Laboratories, which MIT is now building here at a cost of $4 million.

AVAILABILITY of the 704, as it is known officially, was announced jointly today by Dr. James R. Killian Jr., MIT president, and Thomas J. Watson Jr., IBM president.

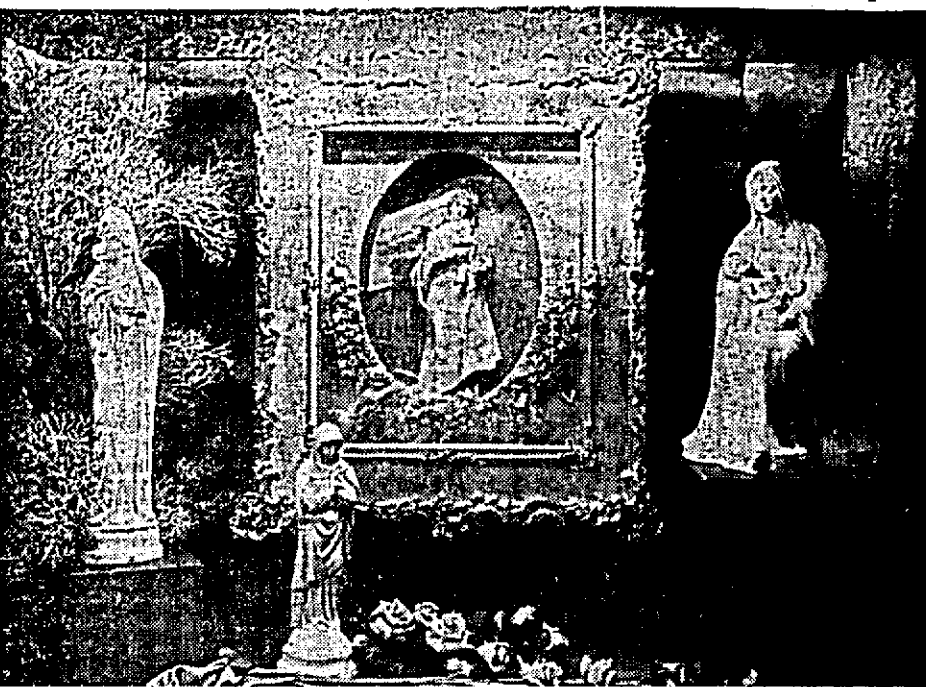

Watson said the "brain" was designed for solving mathematical problems in engineering, science, social science and management studies. Its speed is so great, he said, it can perform 40,000 additions or subtractions or 5,000 multiplications or divisions of 10-digit numbers in one second.

Watson also disclosed IBM expects to produce next year some 80 computers of the 704 type, and its commercial version, the 705.

OTHER COLLEGES and universities in New England have been invited to share in the use of the machine for research and education of students in computing techniques, Killian said. He added that an advisory committee, made up of representatives of New England colleges participating in the program, will be formed to advise on the priorities for problems to be submitted to the machine and the suitability of problems.

By BOB GEIVET

SANTA ANA — Treasures to be seen for the first time here will feature the opening today of the seventh annual Madonna Festival at Charles W. Bowers Memorial Museum. More than 300 art pieces, trace the history of religion over the centuries.

Grouped in artistically arranged displays, the prized collections of dozens of Californians are in place; they are expressions of the Christ and the Virgin Mother as interpreted by 26 nationalities in 22 mediums. Priceless pieces in rare porcelains, marbles and wax are there; bas-relief in tile, wood, paintings, paintings on leather, 18th century Bisque, needlepoint, leaded glass, crystal, rare Belleek, bronze, ivory, solid silver, parchments on which delicate and finely-woven cloth is superimposed are among a few.

OF THE 300 pieces in what is perhaps the most outstanding collection ever shown by Mrs. F. E. Coulter, the curator, about one-third are modern-day creations; the rest date to 16th, 17th and 18th centuries. With a program at 3 p.m., the Madonna Festival will open officially, although doors of the museum at 20th and Main Sts. open at 1 p.m. closing at 4 p.m. Daily the exhibit will be on from 10 a.m. until 4:30 p.m., and on Thursday evenings from 7 until 9 o'clock. It continues through Jan. 10.

Collectors from as far north as San Francisco and Oakland, and from Carmel, Santa Cruz, Santa Barbara, Santa Monica, Beverly Hills and many other Southland cities lent their pieces for display. . . . MOST OF THEM, SOME RUSSIAN icons and other pieces

Girl, 14, Dies Too Much, Dies

OLDHAM, England (AP)—Dorcen Butterworth, a chubby 14-year-old, thought people were laughing at her for being fat. During September she ate nothing but eggs and apples and lost two pounds a week. After four weeks she contracted pneumonia and just "wasted away" in a hospital. Coroner John Watson was told. She died Wednesday.

Watson ruled she died from pneumonia "caused by her poor condition due to not eating."

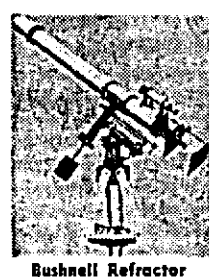

DOMINATING DISPLAY is 17th Century Spanish-Moroccan gold-encrusted Madonna owned by Mrs. Anita Zambrano of Long Beach. Beneath it is Carrara marble treasure owned by Mrs. Carl J. Klatt of Santa Ana. More than 300 priceless pieces will be on display.

State Balloting Snags City-Federal Pension

By GEORGE WEEKS

Integration of the state-administered retirement system for city employees with the federal Old Age and Survivors Insurance program may be delayed for many months as a result of an adverse vote by state employees.

This opinion was expressed Saturday by Director of Finance Samuel M. Roberts. He said he is seeking further information from the state retirement board as to the effect of the vote and also as to whether new legislation will be required.

State employees recently voted 43,202 against and 12,859 for integrating their own system with Social Security, according to a report by Walter C. Stutler, deputy secretary of state, who supervised the ballot counting.

For this reason it was considered doubtful that the state board would undertake to set up an integration plan for Long Beach employees only.

EVEN IF THE CITY should decide to withdraw from the state system in favor of an alternative plan, that is a lengthy and complicated procedure, Roberts explained.

As one alternative, Long Beach could add Social Security to its present system without changing its state contract. But that solution is regarded as unlikely because of the relatively heavy added cost both to the city and the employees, officials agreed. Roberts said he is exploring other possibilities under the existing state legislation. If necessary, an attempt will be made to obtain additional legislation, he added.

The integration program is permitted here under a charter amendment adopted in 1954 following the liberalization of the federal Social Security laws. It has been delayed by the state employees' poll, which was preceded by months of intensive campaigning.

red flannel suit

December 11th, 1955

Dear Southern California:

At this season, it is proper and fitting that we pay special tribute to the man in the red flannel suit. Who is he? Well, all year round he's just the man in the gray flannel suit or the blue overalls or the slacks and sports shirt — busily trying to make a better life for wife and family. But in this magic holiday period, Father becomes as popular as Santa Claus. Mother fixes his favorite desserts, Sis tells him he's handsomer than Gregory Peck, Junior sacrifices the T.V. set, and Fido brings him his slippers.

And whether he dons the red flannel suit in fact or not, he feels as jolly and bountiful and welcome as St. Nick. Even though he gives all year — Father knows this is a different kind of giving. It's giving surprises... it's granting desires... it's wrapping up love in a shining package.

If you ever doubted that there is a Santa Claus, take a look around you. You'll see him everywhere... arms filled with parcels, a smile on his face... hurrying home. He's really the man in the red flannel suit, and we hope he'll be well remembered by those he loves this Christmas.

Sincerely,

Buffums'

Long Beach • Santa Ana

LONG BEACH has at last gotten a big break in the dispute over its tidelands revenues. Assemblyman Bruce Allen will start his anti-Long Beach presentation before the tidelands interim committee on Friday, the 13th.

THE shift to the site in the nearby village was made, perhaps, to compensate to Allen for scheduling his testimony take-off on the traditionally unlucky day.

Chairman John McFall, explaining the change, said that it was felt that it might be fairer to Allen's witnesses if they didn't have to testify in a presumably unfriendly atmosphere.

"We'll just move over to a neutral corner for a while," said McFall, a Manteca attorney who has conducted the hearings so far in a spirit of determined fairness to all concerned.

Assemblyman Bill Grant of Long Beach had no comment on the shift to Los Angeles but he was pleased at the choice of Friday, the 13th.

Kidding Allen, he said: "I've heard of people falling flat on their faces on Friday, the 13th. Maybe just a story, but a fellow can hope, can't he?"

THE visiting Assemblymen had dinner together in a second floor suite of the Lafayette Hotel Friday eve after the long, hard day's session.

When the check came they had quite a time figuring up the contribution each should make, the amount of the gratuity and so on. After about five minutes of good-natured negotiations, somebody said:

"And this is the same outfit that has to figure out what should be done with $160,000,000."

ATTENDANCE hasn't been exactly heavy at the tidelands committee hearings held in Long Beach the last couple of months.

There have been no more than 30 or 40 people in the audience at any time, and many of them have been city officials or others directly interested. Considering all that is involved, this seemed a little strange to some observers.

One said to this writer: "Where else but in Long Beach, under such circumstances, would you find so few local people in the audience?"

My answer may have been wrong but here it was: Just about anywhere. There isn't much difference in the people of various American communities. They will tell you they're interested in public affairs, but they're not interested enough to sit in on discussions of the big, weighty matters.

BUT give them something with a little special or unusual flavor to it, even though it's not too important, and you'll find the spectators' section crowded.

For years I covered council meetings in a medium-sized city. That Council of course often discussed and acted on matters of extreme importance to the local citizenry, involving relatively huge sums of money and decisions affecting everybody in town.

Though the Council sometimes urgently invited people to attend its sessions, hardly anybody ever did.

Then there occurred a neighborhood ruckus over a big glass-eyed dog that had frightened somebody, who proposed that the dog be banished from the city. A hearing was held in the Council chamber to hear from the dog's friends and its enemies.

You couldn't find a square inch of vacant space in the room!

WELL, anyway, if you want to attend any of the Long Beach tidelands hearings from here on out, you'll have to do it in Los Angeles.

The committee plans four days of meetings there—Jan. 13 and 14, and Jan. 27 and 28.

It might come back here next fall, but that's uncertain. It may meet in Sacramento to wind up its work. The present outlook is for a progress report, only, at the March session of the Legislature. In that case, it won't make its final recommendations until the session of the Legislature starting in January, 1957.

Meanwhile, in addition to the legislative issues, there is a lot of complicated legal action pending.

This is beginning to look like something that could drag on forever.

Homemaking Exam's No Cinch, When You're a Hefty 6 Foot, 3

(Editor's Note: What happens when a reporter standing 6 feet 3 inches and weighing 210 pounds takes a homemaking exam? Here's the answer from Reporter Lee Craig.)

By LEE CRAIG

Who will be the All-American Homemaker of Tomorrow?

One thing is sure — it won't be this reporter. During the past week, 765 Long Beach high school girls—and one Independent Press-Telegram reporter—vied with 255,769 graduating girls from other American high schools in aptitude tests for homemaking, with a $100,000 scholarship program established by General Mills awaiting the winners.

Thanks mostly to a height and weight advantage over the Sunday editor, this reporter's score will not be divulged.

The test, men, was a dilly. It was a 50-minute exam consisting of multiple choice and objective questions over which any red-blooded American male, from Ike on down, would fracture himself.

MOST OF THE EXAM concerned itself with an imaginary couple named Ann and Bob, who, during the course of the test, have enough problems to shatter any marriage.

Things got off to a fine start with a beef between Ann and her mother over whether to have a small or large wedding.

Of the four choices, the approved answer obviously is this: "Ann should point out to her mother why she wants a small wedding and try to reach a compromise."

To accomplish this diplomatic task without bloodshed would tax John Foster Dulles. The probable result would be to fix it so nobody wins and everybody's unhappy.

Any man would know that the best solution is for the couple to elope, which would at least make Bob happy. He'd have the satisfaction—however brief—of showing his mother-in-law who's boss.

NEXT TO BE CONSIDERED is Bob's $5,000 salary, and how it is to be apportioned percentagewise to cover the new family's expenses.

The only way we could come up with a solution that totalled less than 150 per cent was to leave out food, which might not be a bad idea, anyway. Brides are notoriously bad cooks.

This is only the beginning. Here are a few of the other problems on which this unhappy couple run to you for advice:

How Ann should comport herself at a meeting with Bob's prospective boss, how to arrange their living room furniture, how to wash walls before redecorating their living room, how to cope with neighbors who have more money; whether to open charge accounts, what to say when a neighbor asks an opinion on a hideous new sofa, what to remember when buying meat, how to choose draperies and room colors and many more.

About now is the time to go back and revise that budget. These kids need a psychiatrist, if it isn't already too late.

HOWEVER, SUCH household problems seem trifling when you come to the section of the exam where Ann and Bob become parents.

This brings up a new set of complications.

How to handle a temper tantrum, what to tell a child about where babies come from, how to punish a pre-school child, what to do if the child stutters, how to bathe a baby... the list goes on and on.

Amazingly, Ann and Bob don't wind up hovering over a gas jet. And if, as it appears, today's high school cuties are learning in advance the answer to tomorrow's problems, the men of the nation have only one worry... how to retain the pants in the family.

Back to school, men.

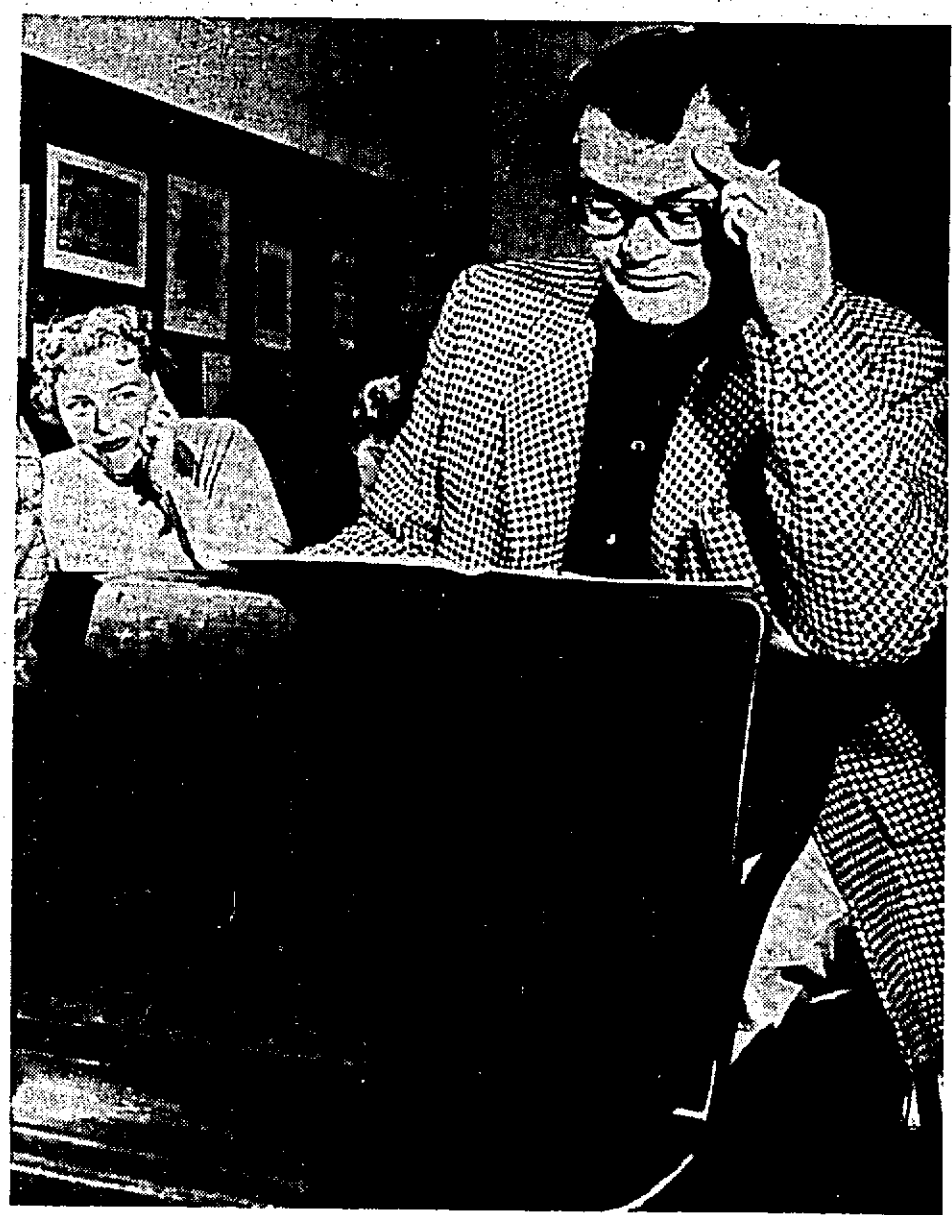

THE ACTION was in line with a demand for local representation on the float voiced recently at City Council meetings and expressed in numerous letters to the editors of the Independent and Press-Telegram.

Judy is strictly a local product. She was born in Long Beach, attended Horace Mann Elementary School, Jefferson Junior High, Wilson High and is now a freshman at Long Beach State College.

She will share the scented throne with Hillevi Romblin, Miss Universe, and Carlene King Johnson, Miss USA.

FURTHERMORE, the official announcement concedes, "It is planned that the Long Beach girl winning the title of Miss Welcome to Long Beach will appear annually on the Long Beach float, along with the winner of the title Miss USA."

Do YOU Rate as Homemaker?

To get a line on your rating as a homemaker, here are a few sample questions from the quiz given last week placed to 765 Long Beach High school girls.

No official answers are available. However, Malda Olmsted, head of the Wilson High School homemaking department has provided a list of answers which she would accept. These answers follow the list of questions:

A. more hospital beds.

A. a wool suit.
B. a simple dress of plaid gingham.

CRITICS ANSWERED

Pretty Judy Will Grace City's Float

Critics of the Long Beach policy of allowing only the world's most beautiful women to grace the city's float in the Pasadena Tournament of Roses won a victory Saturday.

An announcement from Miss Universe Beauty Pageant headquarters revealed that beautiful Judy Ware, Miss Welcome to Long Beach, would join the reigning Miss Universe and Miss United States of America in floating down Colorado Ave. in a mobile bower of posies.

THE ACTION was in line with a demand for local representation on the float voiced recently at City Council meetings and expressed in numerous letters to the editors of the Independent and Press-Telegram.

Judges Back Jury System Against Raps

By BOB SWANSON

Planting of hidden microphones on unsuspecting juries in Wichita, Kans., by a university study group has touched off comment from New York to Long Beach on the country's jury system.

A University of Chicago research team concealed the microphones and recorders in the jury rooms with the consent of judges and attorneys for both sides. Object: find out how to improve the jury system—which some experts think needs to be changed.

Although the system has strong critics, it has strong defenders. Among those who commented last week were Municipal Judge Frank C. Charvat and Superior Court Judge Joe Rycraft, both in Long Beach, and Court of Appeals Judge Harold R. Medina in New York.

Judge Charvat said: "The jury system is as old as any of our present institutions. It has been subjected to criticism from time to time but an alternative has never been proposed that has found very wide acceptance.

"I am aware of no alternative and it is likely that none will ever be found that would be acceptable.

"The composite judgment of 12 jurors can as a general rule be relied upon more than that of a single individual," said Judge Charvat.

JUDGE RYCRRAFT also defends the jury system, but said it needs to be modernized in some instances.

"Although the modern jury system as practiced in Long Beach still has several imperfections, it is much improved over the system of a hundred years ago and it is still a basic right which free men must continue to enjoy."

Judge Rycraft said one weakness is that the judge's instructions cannot be taken into the jury room in civil cases.

And, while he is opposed to anything like a professional jury, Judge Rycraft says he favors a "well trained and educated jury panel." Two jurors who recently completed their service told the judge they wished they could have sat in on a number of trials before going on the panel.

Principally, said Judge Rycraft, "we need people of common sense willing to apply their common experience and knowledge in determining what is true or false."

IN NEW YORK, Judge Medina said the jury system "has not been a perfect instrumentality for justice, but no more so is the administration of the government of the country."

The solution, he said, is improved techniques in selecting jury panels and bettering methods of training and instructing jurors.

One New York state supreme court judge commented: "There's nothing wrong with the jury system that a better attitude by our citizens about jury service wouldn't cure up instantly. You don't need concealed microphones and tape recorders to figure that one out."

THE COMING OF THE KING

Independent to Present Peale Christmas Story

Norman Vincent Peale's Christmas story, "The Coming of the King," a 12-part serialization of the birth and childhood of Christ, begins Monday in The Independent.

The story, written especially for children, will be accompanied by illustrations by Valenti Angelo.

In a warm and instructive style, Peale sketches the life of Mary and Joseph, the trip to Bethlehem where the Child was born, the flight into Egypt and the return of the small family to Nazareth.

The traditional story brings to life again the adoration of the shepherds, the coming of the wise men, the star in the east, the wicked King Herod and the early childhood of Jesus. Coming at the height of the Christmas season, Peale's story is a timely recounting of the birth and early life of Christ.

15 Key Trade Groups Await Bigger Boom

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fifteen key industry groups Saturday forecast rising business next year, almost unanimously. If their guesses are good, 1956 will be easily the biggest sales and production year in history.

Officials of national trade associations, covering manufacturing, building, food, trade and transport, presented their findings at a symposium arranged by United States Chamber of Commerce.

Most foresaw a rising price trend. All forecast high-level employment. Some expected lower profits because of rising wage and other costs.

Summing up their reports, Emerson P. Schmidt, the chamber's director of economic research, offered his own opinion that the industry forecasts of auto production and home building were "a little too optimistic." He concluded:

"Next year may very well be the best year for total economic activity."

"BUT WE now have an economy operating at very nearly full capacity. The rate of growth in 1956 can not be as great as in 1955."

New car dealers may not sell as many cars next year as the industry is producing this year, according to James F. Cousins, comptroller of the National Automobile Dealers Association (NADA). Output this year is estimated at nearly eight million, and Cousins figured there may be a 5 per cent decline next year.

Sales may be between 7½ and 8 million, Cousins said, but: "If we use sound credit and advertising policies, which the NADA is trying to encourage, we don't believe we can dispose of as many cars in 1956 as this year."

Schmidt foresaw lower auto sales and housing starts largely because, he said, both industries have been buoyed on a wave of credit expansion "which can not be maintained."

HE MET some disagreement from the National Association of Home Builders represented by John M. Dickerman, executive director. Dickerman forecast 1,200,000 to 1,250,000 housing starts, whereas Schmidt foresaw about 1,100,000. This year's total will be about 1,300,000.

Several of the industry reports supported Schmidt's view that the consumer will meet slightly higher prices—"perhaps one or two percentage points at the most," the chamber economist predicted.

Schmidt expressed assurance that "prices will not skyrocket," but pointed to shortages of metals, building materials, and in some areas, skilled labor. He said:

"It would be surprising, indeed, if these scarcities did not reflect themselves in higher prices."

Ike Asks Early Mailing of Yule Parcels, Cards

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower Saturday appealed to Americans to mail their Christmas packages and greeting cards early.

In a special message, he said this year's Christmas mail will be "the heaviest in the history of the post office."

TAX REDUCTION

In Austria Divorce Can Cut Expense

VIENNA (AP) — More than 40,000 Viennese men and women are living as unwedded mates in "wild marriages" to escape heavy taxes, city authorities said Saturday.

The so-called wild marriages, or "life-companionships," are legal, and so desirable financially that some married couples get divorced and continue their union as life companions.

The relationships are non-church and unlicensed, but officially recognized. They have brought such loud complaints from the clergy, and couples who want to remain married but claim they are overtaxed, that the government is considering a reduction in family taxes.

If a Viennese widow remarries, she loses her government pension and free rent. On the other hand, if she enters a so-called wild marriage she can keep the pension, since officially she is not married.

Austrian taxes run very high for a married couple when the husband and wife have separate incomes and one of them owns a business. But a man and woman can live together as life companions, keep their jobs and business, and still pay the lower tax rate as legal bachelor and spinster.

Ex-Port Bank Teller Cited as Navy Hero

SAN DIEGO UP—A former San Pedro bank teller, now a chief yeoman at the Naval Training Center, Saturday received a letter of commendation from the center's Naval Administration Command for exemplary action at the time of the sinking of a 35-foot motor launch off the Coronado Islands, Nov. 11.

The letter said Harry F. Bonner broke out life jackets, maintained good order, and rendered assistance to those in distress when the motor launch Dee Jay sank. Ten passengers and two crewmen aboard the Dee Jay were rescued by another launch. Bonner was one of the passengers.

Prior to entering the Navy 12 years ago, Bonner was a teller at the Security-First National Bank in San Pedro. His daughter, Carol Jean Bonner, lives in Los Angeles.

Waitress Dares L.A. Bandit, Gets Bullet in Thigh

LOS ANGELES UP—A waitress who said, "Go ahead and shoot" was shot Saturday by a two-gun bandit who robbed a tavern cash register of $370.

Thelma Foster, 40, hurled the challenge after two men entered the cafe and told the bartender and five customers:

"This is a stickup. Line up against the wall."

Miss Foster started walking toward the rear of the room and made her comment as one of the gunmen ordered her to stop. She was shot in the thigh.

Postal Crew Fetes Arnold, Now Retired

Cecil D. Arnold, who began service 41 years ago in the Long Beach post office when a handful of mail carriers could cover the entire city, was honored Saturday night by fellow employees at a party marking his retirement.

Arnold is believed to be the oldest postal employee here in point of service. He ended duty Friday as superintendent of the post office's East Long Beach branch.

Two Southland Gas Firms to Build Pipeline

LOS ANGELES (AP)—An amended application for more natural gas in California was on file Saturday with the State Public Utilities Commission.

The Southern California Gas Co. and the Southern Counties Gas Co. want to construct a 236-mile pipeline from Topock, Ariz., on the Colorado River to Newhall, Calif.

Gas delivered at Newhall would come into the Los Angeles metropolitan area in a 41-mile pipe to Alhambra which is not part of this application. Lines and auxiliary facilities will cost as estimated $30,750,000.

Vandals Damage Car With Sledge

Richard Steele reported to police that the windshield of his car had been broken, the top ripped and the right front fender dented by vandals using a sledge hammer while it was parked in front of his home at 110 Via Di Roma Wk., in the Naples area, Friday night.

Police found a 12-pound sledge hammer with a 30-inch handle lying on the ground near the vehicle.

The car had been driven only 14 miles, Steele said.

VORONEZH, USSR UP—Plans were announced Saturday to erect a 10-foot bronze statue of Czar Peter the Great in this river port where he founded the Russian navy more than 200 years ago. It is believed the statue will be the first memorial of a Czar put up in Russia since the 1917 revolution.

Truck Kills Young Wife, Hint Suicide

A 32-year-old Paramount woman was killed Saturday when she apparently threw herself under the wheel of a truck. California Highway Patrol investigators identified the woman as Mrs. Dorothy Peasley, 13618 Downey Ave. They said she was narrowly missed by three other cars as she darted through the busy intersection of Downey Ave. and Quimby St., Paramount.

The truck driver, Charles Jennings, 23, of 8101 1st St., Paramount, was treated in Rio Hondo Memorial Hospital for shock. Jennings said he purchased the truck only several hours before the incident.

OFFICERS SAID Mrs. Peasley made attempts to kill herself in her home shortly before the accident.

They reported she set fire to her home, took an overdose of aspirin, and slashed her wrists and throat.

A friend of Mrs. Peasley's, Marvin Conrad, 23, who lived at the same address, was booked on a drunk charge. Officers said the pair had been drinking together before Mrs. Peasley was killed.

Italy Unearths Cultural Treasures of 100-Centuries-Old Civilization

By ANDREW NAHAS

PAESTUM, Italy (AP)—A treasure trove of antiquities, possibly spanning 100 centuries, is being uncovered here by Italian archeologists.

On a grassy meadow a mile from the Gulf of Salerno, a panorama of history is unfolding that ranges from Roman times back to the Greek culture of 2,500 years ago and perhaps as far as prehistoric times. Flint weapons, believed to have been brought into Europe 10,000 years ago by invaders from the East, have been found in a necropolis—an ancient cemetery uncovered by an American bulldozer crew building an air field during World War II.

Excavators have been at work off and on since then. Prof. P. Claudio Sestieri, 40-year-old superintendent of the antiquities department of Salerno and Potenza, tells about the most important recent find:

"It was a temple buried in the ground. It was partly hewn into rock at ground level. The temple was dedicated to Hera, the Greek goddess of marriage and fertility."

"Its gable-shaped roof was covered with tiles, and it had no openings. We went through the roof to have a look inside and found eight beautiful vases containing honey, which was in a perfect state of preservation."

The bodies, says Prof. Sestieri, were buried in "a curled-up position." In some 200 tombs, with flint daggers and arrows. "Close by," he went on, "was a marvelously preserved terra cotta vase on which were painted in black the apotheosis of Hercules ascending to Olympus and, on the opposite side, a ballet of satyrs in the presence of Hermes and Dionysus."

THREE MAJESTIC Greek temples, patterned after the beautiful Parthenon on Athens' Acropolis, rise from the meadow against a background of snow-capped mountains. While lacking the incomparable beauty of the Parthenon, archeologists say the temples are precious examples of Greek architecture.

Two of the three temples, plus 11 minor places of worship, were dedicated to Hera. The third, the so-called temple of Ceres, first named after the Roman goddess of agriculture, has been proved by later digging to be dedicated to Athena, the Greek goddess of intellect and beauty. This was established by the discovery of clay figurines showing Athena wearing her helmet and shield. "Recent discoveries," says Prof. Sestieri, "consist of objects of gold, silver and bronze and ivory carvings, Greek and Lucanian vases and offerings by young brides. They confirm that the cult of the goddess Hera was the basis of the local worship. Her name is incised on many potsherds and, especially, on a silver disc weighing more than a pound."

Several statues and carvings show Hera with pomegranates, a symbol of fertility, and with young babies. There are also many statues of other Greek gods and goddesses, including so many of Venus and Cupid that Sestieri believes archeologists will some day find still another temple dedicated to Aphrodite, the Greek goddess of love, whose Roman counterpart was Venus.

ALTHOUGH THE NECROPOLIS indicates that the site had been inhabited long before, the founding of the Greek town of Paestum dates to the sixth century B. C. Pleasure-loving Greek sybarites, who had previously established a colony at Sybaris on the Gulf of Taranto, came to the mouth of the River Sele, then the only good landing place on this part of the coast.

The central section of the city was bounded by a three-mile wall, which was 22 feet thick in some places. The richness and fertility of the soil brought prosperity, as the grandeur of its ruins still attests. But it also brought trouble. The Lucanians, an Italic people living in the mountains, couldn't resist the luxury and conquered the town about 400 B. C. Still later, about 273 B. C., the Romans took over. They treated the Paestumians more kindly than had the fierce Lucanians, and the Greeks responded by providing ships loaded with wheat for Romans trapped in Taranto by Hannibal. The Romans rewarded this fidelity by letting the Paestumians continue to mint their own coins.

The Romans renamed the town, but the soil, however, and built their own buildings—sometimes on top of Greek structures. Roman baths, a forum, an amphitheater and a temple have been found, within a Roman wall which reduced the size of the Greek city.

The forum, extending from one of four Roman gateways, divides the city, and at one time led down to the sea.

PAESTUM PROSPERED for several more centuries, thanks largely to steady production of cereal and oil from the nearby mountains. But she finally became an early victim of failure to understand conservation. The forested mountains had been largely stripped. The soil that washed down from the denuded canyons silted up the river. Malaria broke out and the land turned to swamp. The few remaining inhabitants moved into the mountains.

The deserted city was hidden by forest and swamp until the middle of the 18th century, when it was rediscovered and some explorations made. But the most intensive excavations waited until the postwar Italian government appropriated considerable sums in 1952. Paestum, a village located on the Reggio-Naples-Rome highway, now has about 200 inhabitants, but attracts 5,000 visitors each summer to view the treasures of ancient cultures.

'Actors' Muff Lines, TV Trial Smash Hit

By JIM BOWMAN

WACO, Tex. (AP)—"The day while," he said. "This thing gets laborer in a honky-tonk bar."

"This thing" was a week-long drama of a man on trial for his life. "I don't know about kids seeing it, but it's mighty good schoolin' for adults," he said.

That part about the schooling seemed to pretty well sum up reaction of the average Waco citizen to the first direct televised murder trial in American history, just completed Friday.

The case involved Harry L. Washburn, 39, Houston businessman, who was convicted of planting a dynamite bomb in an automobile and causing the death of his wealthy mother-in-law, Mrs. Helen Harris Weaver. A jury gave him a life prison term.

Another side to the story was the tremendous interest aroused in the trial by the use of TV. Other trials have been filmed and the proceedings shown later on TV. But KWTX-TV here was the first to provide a live television broadcast direct from the courtroom.

THERE WERE SOME dissensions, mainly from member of the legal profession. A veteran Texas lawyer visiting the courtroom was mildly worried over the TV prospects.

"A witness is nervous enough when he sits down in the stand," he said. "Then he looks up there and sees that TV camera looming down at him."

A neatly-dressed spectator wandered into the courtroom and took a back seat. "I've been watching this thing on TV and a year there will be TV in courts just had to come down for all over the country."

HOW DID THE CAST stack up? Not so hot by TV mystery standards. Lines were fumbled and cues were missed, as in any trial.

Stories told by most of the 60 witnesses were dull individually. Very few were even mildly sensational.

But daily, crowds in the small courtroom grew larger. At the end of testimony, even standing room was no longer available.

"We just had to come and see it," many said. Does the Judge think a trend has been established? "Yes, I think in six months or a year there will be TV in courts just had to come down for all over the country."

Benson Calls for Survey of Food Profits

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson said Saturday that President Eisenhower has agreed the administration must find out definitely if food middlemen are getting "improper" profits from the consumer's food dollar at the farmer's expense.

Benson ordered department economists to step up their continuing studies of marketing margins and farm production costs in an effort to pinpoint distribution of the food dollar.

The farmer's share of the dollar has shrunk from a high of 53 cents in 1946 to 40 cents now. Since the Korean War, the drop has been rapid. At the same time, retail prices have been rising and farm income has been falling, widening the price spread.

ECONOMISTS HAVE attributed the widening spread to marketing charges.

"I have discussed this vital problem with the President," Benson said in a statement. "We are agreed that we must definitely determine whether or not prices paid by consumers contain improper or excessive marketing charges and profits."

"Farmers are entitled to receive the very maximum for their products through efficient marketing service."

BENSON HAS been the target of sharp criticism because of declining farm income. Some have come from members of his own party. The problems of huge surpluses, overproduction, and declining incomes are certain to be major issues in next year's presidential campaign.

The order was regarded by some as an attempt to head off election-year criticism.

"The failure of retail food prices as a whole to reflect the decline in farm food products during the past year is recognized by the department as a real obstacle to a solution of the farm surplus problem," Benson said.

U.S. to Send Surpluses of Grain Abroad

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government is preparing to release thousands of tons of surplus grain to church agencies for overseas relief, officials disclosed Saturday.

Barring an unforeseen obstacle, Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson probably will announce the action during the coming week.

Agriculture Department officials said Benson is taking a keen personal interest in the project as a result of urgent appeals from religious leaders to "share our surplus" with less fortunate people abroad.

Benson has discretionary authority, under Public Law 480 which Congress passed last year, to release all types of government-owned farm surpluses to voluntary relief agencies for free distribution to the needy overseas. So far, however, the Agriculture Department has released only commodities which were in danger of spoiling in storage, mainly dairy products and cottonseed oil.

A DELEGATION representing Protestant, Catholic and Jewish relief agencies urged Benson at a meeting here last month to release 250,000 tons of wheat, 100,000 tons of corn products, and 80,000 tons of rice to fight the threat of "actual starvation" in many countries.

Agriculture Department officials had said previously that Benson was "sympathetic" to the request, but was not sure it could be granted under department policies forbidding any use of surplus commodities that would tend to displace normal commercial sales.

Officials said Saturday it now appears that all problems in connection with the project can be worked out, and that a favorable decision can be announced within a few days.

Some Japan GIs Immoral, Solon Says

TOKYO (AP)—Rep. Clement J. Zablocki (D-Wis.) said Saturday he fears some American soldiers are turning to illicit sex because the Army "evidently" lacks proper recreational programs.

The congressman said he could not understand why soldiers are allowed to remain away from their posts all night.

"I hope to look into this thing," Zablocki said in an interview. "I've asked for some figures on the number of children born out of wedlock."

The congressman said he will devote part of his stay in Japan to checking a report that a high number of American soldiers are living illicitly with Japanese women.

Meany Raps Archaic Ideas of Labor Foes

NEW YORK (AP)—George Meany, president of the new AFL-CIO, said Saturday unions still are confronted by foes with the "archaic" idea that management and labor exist in a "master-slave relationship."

The merger of the two big labor organizations into one 16,000,000-member union this week still leaves much to be done, Meany said.

"We are still not over the hill by any means," he said.

"We are still up against people with archaic ideas—who think that management and labor exist in a master-servant relationship."

Meany spoke at a La Guardia Memorial Association lunch at which the annual award in memory of the late Mayor Fiorello La Guardia was given posthumously to Albert L. Patterson, who was murdered in 1954 while fighting crime and corruption in Phoenix City, La.

The award is given for outstanding achievement in municipal affairs.

Meany said the AFL-CIO merger had set up a "better instrumentality" by which labor can make it possible for the American people to "live better and to buy the things that labor produces."

Automation of industry will present a problem during the "transition period," he said, but labor is not afraid of it.

Meany said the U. S. will not be able to fight communism successfully until Southern Negroes are assured their constitutional rights.

"No one can call himself a Christian or a member of any other religion of any standing and deny civil rights to people because of the color of their skin, as is being done in the South," he said.

"We can't carry on our fight against communism successfully if we in the United States are complacent in the face of the stark naked fact that hundreds of thousands of persons are denied basic constitutional rights because they are Negroes."

"This is a shame everyone in this country bears, and part of our defense against communism is to see that this shame is wiped out."

PENNEY'S "THE FAMILY STORE"

100,000 to See Chandler Sworn

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP)—A. B. Chandler will be inaugurated governor of Kentucky next Tuesday in a spectacle expected to rival the Kentucky Derby.

This picturesque little capital city of 11,000 population has made what preparations it could to handle the throng of more than 100,000 expected to see the 57-year-old former baseball commissioner sworn in as chief executive of the commonwealth for the second time in his life.

The oath of office will be administered at high noon, when Chandler—as required by Kentucky's constitution—will raise his right hand and swear, among other things, that he has never fought in, accepted a challenge to, or acted as a second in a duel.

The oath will take only a moment, but the day's festivities will require all the moments that can be crowded into a colorful 24 hours.

His day of triumph will start for Chandler at his home in Versailles with a quiet family breakfast, after which a cavalcade of Cadillac will take the Chandlers 15 miles to the capital. There they and the lieutenant governor-elect, Harry Lee Waterfield, will attend special services at the Episcopal Church of the Ascension.

From the church, Chandler will take his seat in a carriage drawn by six snow-white horses to lead a two-hour parade over the bridge across the Kentucky River and past the reviewing stand set up in front of the newly-decorated state capitol. There he will alight from the carriage and hurry to the reviewing stand to watch 50,000 well-wishers parade past.

Parade officials expect marching units from each of Kentucky's 120 counties, including National Guard troops and units from Ft. Knox, and at least 60 bands.

The ceremonies on the inaugural platform will open with a prayer, followed by the singing of the Lord's Prayer and My Old Kentucky Home by the Versailles chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America.

Outgoing Gov. Lawrence W. Wetherby—who fought Chandler bitterly in the Democratic primary last August—will make a 10-minute address, and Chandler will deliver his 15-minute inaugural address.

This will end precisely at noon with Chandler taking the oath of office.

Loans for Fishers

White House Pickets Ask Amnesty for Objectors

WASHINGTON (AP)—A score of men and women picketed the White House Saturday with banners urging President Eisenhower to grant a "Christmas amnesty" to conscientious objectors imprisoned during World War II.

"World War II Objectors Still Being Punished 10 Years After War's End," said one placard. Another said: "Amnesty Granted in Many Lands, Why Not Us?" They gathered about the time Eisenhower arrived in town from Gettysburg for a medical check-up at Walter Reed Hospital.

Leading the procession of the group, which called itself the Amnesty Demonstration Committee, was a man dressed as Uncle Sam. He was handing a Christmas package marked "Amnesty" to another man attired in prison stripes. The group came from Philadelphia and New York.

Rhee Calls Halt on Anti-Reds 'at Request of U.S.'

SEOUL (AP)—President Syngman Rhee said Saturday he had ordered a halt to Korean demonstrations against Communist truce inspectors at the request of the United States.

"The United States," Rhee said in a statement, "requests us to interfere with the people's right to express themselves through demonstrations."

The ROK president reported the United States explained that a solution to the controversial Korean truce inspection system will be made easier "if the public demonstrations were stopped."

DO-IT-YOURSELF—FOR $1,100

Raymond K. Baird, Long Beach chemical engineer, proudly takes the wheel of his handmade, fiberglass roadster, the Meteor. Baird and a friend, Dick Jones of Denver, built the car in Baird's garage for $1,100. The 150-m.p.h. job won an award for design in the 1955 National Automobile Review.—(Staff Photo)

Dad Returns 'From Grave'

SAN DIEGO (AP)—A daughter, reunited after 36 years with the father she had long thought dead, now hopes to spend Christmas with him and his present family.

Mrs. Gerald Schilling, 38, said she plans to take her three sons along to the home of her father, Ernest Wootton, 63, at Modesto, for the Christmas visit.

No '55 Ford Parts in It, but It's Still a Ford

It's a F-o-o-r-d! Or is it? Raymond K. Baird's bright purple sports roadster is registered with the Dept. of Motor Vehicles as a 1955 Ford. "But it doesn't have a single '55 Ford part in it," he declares.

Baird, 31, a chemical engineer at the Union Oil Co.'s Wilmington refinery, built the car in his garage with the help of a friend, Dick Jones of Denver.

Swedes Jail U.S. Marines

MALMOE, Sweden (AP)—Two U. S. Marine sergeants from the U. S. embassy in Copenhagen were charged here Saturday with violence and resisting arrest following an alleged fight with Swedish police.

The charges were filed by the Malmoe city prosecutor against John Kadlecik, 22, of Johnson City, N. Y., and Herbert Castleberry, 26, of Broadus, Mont.

The daughter was two years old when her mother and father separated in Illinois and she grew up in the belief he was dead.

She learned only a year ago that he might be alive. Then, with the aid of Quincy, Ill., authorities, she located him in Modesto.

The body was built, stage by stage, within the confines of Baird's laboratory-garage at his home, 2433 Nipomo Ave.

First Baird and Jones fashioned a small mahogany likeness of the body style they wanted. They used photo enlargement to bring the design to full scale, then traced their molding forms from the pictures.

Threats Told by Negroes

ORANGEBURG, S. C. (AP)—Threatening letters are being received by Negroes here in a tussle between white merchants and Negro customers arising out of the school integration ruling, an NAACP official said Saturday.

Mrs. H. F. Pierce, widowed housewife and vice president of the Orangeburg branch of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, said she has turned a threatening letter over to local police.

"This wasn't the only one," she said officers told her, "received by Negroes here. The Federal Bureau of Investigation has it, and they told me they have others and are comparing them."

Mrs. Pierce said a boycott of Orangeburg white merchants by Negroes is "widespread." The boycott started when the Orangeburg Citizens Council announced a drive for economic pressure on Negroes seeking integration.

'Pay-as-You-Go' U.S. Services Under Study

SIoux FALLS, S. D. (UP)—The Eisenhower administration is giving serious thought to putting special government services on a "cafeteria style" or "pay-for-what-you-use" basis, the Sioux Falls (S.D.) Argus-Leader said Saturday.

In a copyrighted dispatch from Washington, John A. Kennedy, publisher and editor-in-chief of the newspaper, said the program under consideration would call for the payment of fees for all federal licenses and inspections and for other government services, including stocking private ponds with fish and issuance of steamboat licenses.

Fees for use of federal parks would be increased and there would be charges for government pamphlets, and charts, now issued free, Kennedy said.

"This new project to help cut the deficit has been under consideration by the Budget Bureau for the past several months and now is receiving attention at cabinet level," he reported.

"Revenue variously estimated from $70,000,000 to several times that figure is involved—a tidy amount that could aid in balancing the budget and making possible tax cutting by Congress."

Kennedy said a proposal has been made to form a central organization with a staff executive in charge to get cooperation from various governmental agencies.

Because Congress has placed a ceiling on some fees charged for departmental and agency services, new legislation probably would be needed, he said.

Many bureaus and divisions of government could be made self-supporting by such a program, Kennedy said. As much as $30,000,000 would flow into the Treasury in the field of federal licensing and regulation alone, he said.

Among his recommendations were increased fees for use of federal parks, admission fees for the Washington Zoo, increased charges for copyrights, trademarks and patents and fees for civil service examinations.

Yalta Paper Editor Gets His Job Back

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Civil Service Commission Saturday ordered Donald M. Dozer, ousted State Department historian, put back in his job.

A commission letter to Dozer, which he made public without comment, said the State Department had failed to be specific enough in all its charges against him. Also the letter found Dozer never had been told adequately the reasons for his dismissal last Oct. 5.

Dozer said in October he was fired from his $11,000-a-year job because of clashes with holdover Democrats in the department. He said these clashes occurred over publishing records of secret World War II meetings such as those of Yalta, Cairo and Tehran.

DOZER, 50, SAID the letter he received from the commission indicated the State Department has seven days in which to appeal from the commission's ruling.

He said he intends to show up for work at the department on Monday morning.

The letter to Dozer was signed by E. A. Dunton, chief of the appeals examining office, bureau of departmental operations, Civil Service Commission.

Dunton's letter, in response to Dozer's appeal of his firing, did not go into the merits of the case. It dealt purely with Dozer's contention of procedural defects and upheld him on that point.

Dozer was working on the Cairo-Tehran conference papers when he was dismissed. Bryton Barron, who had helped put together the recently released Yalta conference papers while sharing an office with Dozer, was allowed to retire on pension as of the end of this year. Barron is on leave until Jan. 1.

State's Total of Nonfarm Jobs Shrinks

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A seasonal decline of 43,300 placed the total of nonfarm workers on the Pacific Coast at 5,381,300 in October, still 222,000 above the similar 1954 month. The figures were reported by Max D. Kosoris, western regional director of the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Employment trends were mixed in major industry divisions in the three states. Strikes in California were listed as the chief cause for heavier than usual employment losses in mining and the transportation, communications and public utilities group.

CONSTRUCTION EMPLOYMENT decreased sharply, but cutbacks were less severe than expected in manufacturing and the service industries.

Gains were reported for wholesale and retail trade, finance, insurance and real estate and government.

All major industry divisions except mining were at higher levels than a year earlier.

GAS STATION VISIT DRIES 'ANGEL' TEARS

LEWISTON, Idaho (AP)—The littlest angel of them all on a float depicting "The Little Angels" in a Santa Claus parade just couldn't seem to sing. Instead, he cried. For three blocks, while the other angels sang, the littlest angel cried. Finally, the float pulled out of the parade and stopped at a service station.

When it rejoined the parade, the voice of the littlest angel of them all could be heard—singing—above all the rest.

3 Japanese War Leaders to Go Free

TOKYO (Sunday) (AP)—Three more major war criminals will be released next week, leaving in Sugamo Prison only one of the 25 Japanese leaders sentenced by an international tribunal in 1948. A majority of the allied powers represented on the 11-member court Saturday gave Japan permission to free two leading architects of the conquest of China and the diplomat who helped to weld the Axis alliance of Japan, Germany and Italy. All were given life sentences.

This will leave in Sugamo only one major war criminal. He is Lt. Gen. Kenryo Sato, 60, close associate of the hanged Hideki Tojo. Sato headed the War Ministry's political bureau. Also given life, Sato is expected to be freed next spring.

Naoki Hoshino, 63, chief secretary of the Tojo cabinet, will be released later today. Marquis Koichi Kido, 66, wartime lord keeper of the Privy Seal, and Hiroshi Oshima, 60, wartime ambassador to Germany, will walk free Thursday.

Kido, a confidant of Emperor Hirohito, helped to press the war in China and promoted Japan's "co-prosperity sphere for greater east Asia."

California Boy to Give Recital at Capital Fete

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Christmas Pageant of Peace on the ellipse behind the White House will feature an organ recital by 14-year-old John B. Ledwon, of La Canada, Calif.

The child prodigy, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Ledwon of La Canada, has won international acclaim since his first public appearance at the age of 11.

His recital will be given, Dec. 23, White House aides said. The Christmas pageant, extending from Dec. 18 to Jan. 2, gets under way officially with the lighting of a 65-foot Christmas tree by President Eisenhower.

Flood Victims Get U.S. Help

WASHINGTON (AP)—The International Co-operation Administration announced Saturday that the government is rushing medical supplies, blankets and warm clothing by air to aid the victims of the recent floods in West Pakistan.

It said the first of the planes carrying the emergency supplies already has arrived in Pakistan, and that 11 others will follow within a few days.

Rescued From Mud

MOBILE, Ala. (AP)—An 84-year-old man, partially blind, wandered off a road and was bogged down in mud up to his thighs for three hours in sub-freezing weather early Saturday. When finally rescued by police and firemen, E. E. Byrd was so cold he could hardly talk, but apparently was unharmed.

Nobel Prizes Awarded in 2 Ceremonies

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Nobel prizes were presented Saturday to three Americans, a Swede crippled by polio and an Icelandic for their work in physics, chemistry, medicine and literature.

At a companion ceremony in Oslo, the Norwegian capital, the Dutch chief of the U. N. High Commission for Refugees, received, for the commission, the 1934 Nobel peace prize—a check for $35,066.90, a gold medal and diploma. The recipient, Dr. G. J. Van Heuven Goedhart, announced it would be used to remove 125 destitute Romanian and Hungarian refugee families from their squalid camp on the Greek island of Tinos to new homes.

King Gustaf VI of Sweden handed out the four prizes, loftiest in the academic world, in the ceremony in Concert Hall here.

CHECKS, TOTALING nearly $147,000, solid gold medals each weighing two pounds, and diplomas went to the four scientists and the Icelandic writer here. Each prize was worth $36,720 in cash.

The four scientists were:

Dr. Willis E. Lamb, 42, of Stanford University, and Dr. Polykarp Kusch, 44, of Columbia University, who shared the physics prize for their independent calculations in 1947 which enabled scientists to correct their information on what goes on inside the atom.

Dr. Vincent du Vigneaud, 54, of Cornell Medical College, New York, who received the chemistry award for his lifetime work on sulphur compounds and two hormones which help in childbirth and keep a check on vital organs such as the kidneys.

Dr. A. Hugo Thorrell, 52, crippled Swedish biochemist, who won the award in medicine for discoveries on the nature and action of enzymes which help living cells use oxygen.

THE AUTHOR was 52-year-old Halldor Laxness, a leftist novelist whose book "Independent People" was a best seller in 1946.

Chairmen of Swedish academies which picked the winners told why each won and extolled their works.

Their learned scientific dissertations were understood by few people in the audience.

In the opening address, Swedish Grand Marshal Birger Ekeberg commended Alfred B. Nobel, Swedish dynamite inventor, whose prizes have now been awarded to 289 scientists, authors and statesmen. The United States leads other countries with 62 winners, followed by Germany with 48, England 46 and France 32.

At least half the people wept as they watched Dr. Thorrell, who was crippled in both legs by polio, struggle step by step from the platform to receive his prize. The Nobel foundation had provided a stairway with a special rail from the platform to the hall floor for him. But only once did he falter and find it necessary to seize the rail. The king stepped forward to meet him at the base of the stairway, but Thorrell signalled him to move back.

San Diego Urged to Bid for Ocean Air-Lines' Trade

SAN DIEGO (UP)—This city should replace Los Angeles as a transpacific air terminal because it does not have a smog problem, an airport consultant said Saturday.

Leigh Fisher, of South Bend, Ind., said San Diego should build a large international airport that could handle flights to the east, transpacific flights and flights for Mexico that now leave from Tijuana.

He was hired by the city to make a survey of flights for a new municipal airport. His report will be ready by Feb. 1, Fisher said.

Now You Can Build Your Own Christmas Tree

DO-IT-YOURSELF CRAZE has notched another triumph in the form of a plastic Christmas tree, which you can build in a few minutes. Barbara Colby shows how it works. You take home a neatly wrapped package. Then you assemble the tree, twig by twig and branch by branch. At the end of the tinsel season, you take the tree apart, toss the parts in the wash, then pack them away for the next holiday.—(Staff photos by Dick Tolbert.)

BYRD ANSWERS QUESTION

Why Go to South Pole?

On the eve of his departure for the Antarctic on the icebreaker Glacier, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd wrote this dispatch on the significance of the American expedition. This is Byrd's fifth expedition to the South Polar area. He was the first man to fly over the North Pole and first over the South Pole. He has now been designated director of the U.S. Antarctic program.

By R. ADM. RICHARD BYRD
Written for United Press

PORT LITTLETON, New Zealand—As you read this, I am about to leave for the bottom of the world, on my fifth venture to the Antarctic continent.

Not too many years ago the Antarctic was looked upon as an area whose chief purpose was to provide scope for the restless instincts of explorers like myself. Its cruel inhospitability—its temperatures ranging to 80 degrees below zero and lower, its mighty mountain ranges, its eternal crust of ice and snow thousands of feet thick, its fierce blizzards—made many people wonder what practical purpose our explorations could serve. But the further study of the Antarctic region has vast and many-sided possibilities.

The new United States Antarctic scientific undertaking will have two purposes. First it will serve to implement the Antarctic phase of the U.S. program for the International Geophysical Year (1957-58)—a world-wide endeavor in which some 40 nations will be cooperating. But simultaneously it will serve our national interest by carrying forward the work of exploration and mapping initiated by previous expeditions.

IN HIS "ATOMS FOR PEACE" PLAN, in his proposal for assistance to underdeveloped Asian countries and in other matters, President Eisenhower has consistently emphasized the willingness of America to share its scientific knowledge and technical know-how with other peoples.

It is in this spirit that our IGY plans for the Antarctic have been conceived; and it is our hope that through our efforts we will be able to make some small contribution in support of the President's policy and of his difficult quest for peace.

As a key part of the IGY program, the United States and 11 other countries have planned operations in the Antarctic extending from the end of 1956 into early 1959—which will make this the most concerted scientific attack ever undertaken on the south polar continent.

The United States plans call for the establishment of six observation stations, five of them around the perimeter of continent (McMurdo Sound, Little America, Marie Byrd Land, Knox Coast and Cape Adare), and a central one at the South Pole.

The chairman of the U.S. national committee for IGY is the distinguished physicist, Dr. Joseph Kaplan; and the chairman of the Antarctic subcommittee is my old expedition colleague, Dr. Lawrence Gould. The commander of Naval Task Force 43, assigned to the project, is Rear Admiral George Dufek, a veteran Antarctic sailor who was with me on two previous expeditions.

THE BASE at the South Pole is noteworthy because this will be the first time since the Amundsen and Scott expeditions of 1911-12 that men will have set foot on the Pole; and it will be the first attempt in history to establish a station there and maintain it through the winter night. The two pioneering flights over the South Pole which my colleagues and I made on previous expeditions will have paved the way for the 100-flight airlift that will be necessary to establish the base. Other participating nations will establish approximately 20 stations at various points on the continent and these will cooperate in making simultaneous observations of the weather and other scientific phenomena.

Antarctic Has a Future

In the case of the weather, all the information will be funneled into a "central" at the main American base, so that for the first time we will be able to construct weather maps covering most of the Antarctic continent, and tie them in with weather maps of the rest of the world. The comprehensive scientific studies will also include glaciology, ionospheric physics, geology, magnetic surveys, cosmic rays, aurora, airglow, seismology and gravity measurements. The scientific discoveries are to be shared by all the participating nations in the best scientific tradition. Scientific studies of a general nature, not specifically related to the IGY, will also be conducted. The work of topographical and geological exploration, for example, is something that each nation will find it in its own interest.

THERE HAVE BEEN many expeditions to the Antarctic continent since the year 1820 when Captain Nat Palmer of Stonington, Conn., first sighted the peninsula that bears his name. After Palmer, the next American was Lt. Charles Wilkes of the U.S. Navy who delineated the first parts of the Antarctic coastline in 1838-42. Then there was nothing for 60 years until our 1928-30 expedition—the first American expedition, incidentally, to set foot on the mainland. The four Antarctic expeditions it has been my privilege to lead since that year were instrumental in discovering over 1,000,000 square miles of the Antarctic continent—which is more than has been discovered by the expeditions of any other three nations combined. The expeditions under the leadership of Lincoln Ellsworth, Capt. Finn Ronne, and Capt. Gerald Ketchum also did good work and added to the total of American exploration.

Through expeditions such as our country and other nations are now planning, the great Antarctic continent will ultimately yield its secrets. It is my hope and belief that, in yielding them, it will bring manifold benefits to mankind. Let me list a few of these potential benefits from the project.

It has implications for the future of commercial aviation because, in many cases, the shortest route between two points in the Southern Hemisphere will lie across the polar regions.

It is essential to the progress of meteorological science because the wind and weather that are produced in the icy vastnesses of Antarctica play an important role in the modification of weather conditions in the more temperate regions. It is important, too, because it will increase our understanding of the long-range climatic changes that are taking place in the world.

Preliminary geological explorations have revealed deposits of coal and there are indications of other minerals. These deposits may take on increasing importance as the resources of the temperature climates are worn thin, and as the further development of packaged atomic energy makes possible the limited habitation of the polar regions.

ALTHOUGH THERE IS still very much to be learned about the ionosphere (a layer of ionized air, beyond the stratosphere, which reflects radio waves and other radiations) it has been estimated that the studies thus far carried out in both polar regions have already been worth billions of dollars to the development of radio. The knowledge of the upper atmosphere that will be gleaned by our scientists in the Antarctic will, it is believed, result in comparable benefits to the rocket and space satellite programs. The military implications of these programs have received much publicity—but their peaceful scientific implications are infinitely greater.

Developments of the postwar years have also borne out the prophecies of some of us, that, within our own lifetime, the polar regions would play an increasingly important strategic role in the world we live in.

It is my belief that, when the projected program terminates in 1959, a series of more or less permanent bases will have been established on the Antarctic mainland as a prelude to human habitation on a limited scale.

In this development the United States is bound to play a pre-eminent role.

Dec. 20 Ceremony to Fete Mellon

Paintings by Convicts Will Go on Display

CHICAGO (AP)—An exhibit of paintings done by inmates of the Stateville Penitentiary will go on display Dec. 18 at the Esquire Theater.

About 40 convicts have contributed to the show's exhibition of still life landscapes, and religious themes.

Modern Dental Plates

Aided by "modern" dental plate materials and "improved techniques," used in the construction of dental plates, Dental Science has followed a "progressive" path that resulted in dental plates more natural in "appearance," better fitting and more "comfortable" to wear than thought possible a few short years ago. CAN SID GILLMAN, PLAGUED ALL YEAR BY INJURIES TO KEY PERSONNEL, BRING THE L.A. RAMS HOME A WINNER IN TODAY'S GREEN BAY GAME AND EARN THE RIGHT TO MEET THE CLEVELAND BROWNS FOR THE N.F.L. TITLE?

FAVORED BY 6½ OVER PACKERS IN FINALE

Win or Tie Today Will Net Rams Title

It's blue chip day in the Coliseum today as the Los Angeles Rams attempt to wrap up the Western Division title of the National Football League with either a win or a tie against the Green Bay Packers.

The Rams, who have never lost a home game since moving to Los Angeles in 1946, are favored by 6½ points to keep the streak intact today and thus qualify to meet the Cleveland Browns for the NFL championship in the Coliseum Dec. 28.

A win or a tie today will assure the Rams of the Western crown regardless of what the Chicago Bears do against the Philadelphia Eagles in their finale. The Rams lead the division by a half game with a 7-3-1 record. The Bears are 7-4-0.

The one and only time the Packers whipped the Rams in Los Angeles was back in 1947, 30-10, and from 1948 until late in 1953 the Packers fell 11 times to the Rams.

Things are different this season, however. Coach Liz Blackburn's Packers, with quarterback Tobin Rote the field marshal, hold one of the three wins over Los Angeles.

THIS WAS A come-from-behind 30-28 decision in mid-October, which included three touchdown passes by Rote and a last minute field goal by Fred Cone.

If the weather is clear as predicted, some 60,000 fans are expected to see if the Rams can win their fifth division title since 1949. Kickoff time is 2:05 p. m.

Coach Sid Gillman, in his freshman year as a pilot in the big pro league, again is confronted with problems of injury-hampered players.

The main question marks are two dangerous pass receivers, Bob Boyd and Elroy (Crazy Legs) Hirsch. Gillman said he would have to wait until game time before deciding whether either or both will play. Both were held out of last week's 20-14 win over Baltimore.

OTHERWISE, THE Rams are in sound shape, including their passing star, Norm Van Brocklin; linebacker-placer kicker Les Richter, and two hard-running backs, Tank Younger and rookie Ron Walker.

The Packers will rely on Rote's running and passing, and his backfield mates, Joe Johnson, Al Carmichael and Howie Ferguson, all named to start the game.

"Obviously, this is the big one for us," Gillman said. "And I'd rather be playing almost anyone than this Packer team. They're equipped with outstanding talent in several key positions and over-all are more explosive than most teams in the league."

"Take that Rote, for instance. Not only is he a great passer, but he's the finest running quarterback I've ever seen."

Civic pride prompts me to report that Bob Davenport, humbly stood before the microphone in the Beverly Hills Hotel Thursday night and very graciously accepted the UCLA most valuable player and best blocker and tackler awards at the Bruin Bench annual football dinner-dance.

His response to the plaudits of 550 Bruin partisans and to the words of praise from his coach, Henry R. Sanders, are worth preserving for posterity.

"My greatest reward is to have been a member of the UCLA team," the grateful Jordon High alumnus began. "I never expected anything in life. I never expected these honors tonight. I never played on a winning team before. I've played on nothing else since I came to UCLA."

"In all our games, when I looked across the line I saw players as big or bigger than myself. I saw players as agile and as fast. But when the game was over, we had won. There could only be one reason—the coaching we received and the desire to win that had been planted in us."

Here are the moral and physical basics of life, so neatly phrased by a muscular, robust fullback who, according to some concepts of living, is supposed to be long on brute strength and short on the mental approach. Simply, Bob said the coaches taught the boys how to play the game with a purpose:

"As simply, these concepts will be carried out into life by all the Bruins who were members of this 1955 championship UCLA team. In the future they will pursue the same pattern... we have been taught and now we must apply these teachings objectively. Life! Bob was the only Bruin who was accorded two honors. When Sanders made the presentation of the Paul I. Wellman Trophy for the best blocker and tackler to Davenport, he said:

"Davenport is not only the best blocker and tackler on the UCLA team, he is the best blocker and tackler I have ever seen on any team."

At precisely this instant, or paragraph, I should remind you that these words carry the weight of years upon them. Sanders has seen quite a few blockers and tacklers in his days. In 13 years as a college head coach, six at Vanderbilt and seven at UCLA, he has seen at least 124 games—from the bench. How many others the master of the single wing has ogled as a spectator or scout I won't venture to say.

An All-American off the field as well as on, Davenport is the first Long Beach high school product to receive most valuable player recognition at Westwood. He joins an impressive list of predecessors, among them Terry DeHay, Paul Cameron, Ernie Johnson, Tom Fears, Bob Waterfield, Milt Smith, Kenny Washington and others.

Keeping this pattern of desire, Sanders alluded to the Jan. 2, 1956, Rose Bowl game with Michigan State College in this manner:

"We have told our boys, and all of us believe it, that any team can be beaten."

"In this post-season game, Davenport will conclude three years of greatness in the uniform of UCLA—the fruits of teachings, application and desire!"

BIG DOIN'S—Long Beach's newly-organized Hot Stove League will hold its second meeting of the winter season Wednesday, Dec. 14, at 7:30 p. m. at Mike Dimas' Restaurant, 1045 E. Pacific Coast Hwy. Chuck Stevens at 6A 7-7551 is taking reservations. A big night has been planned by the manager, Eddie Beckman.

UNQUE, Pacific Coast Conference records since 1916 show that only one school—California—has ever gone through a full basketball season, undefeated. Berkeley's Bears did it twice, or more precisely, in consecutive years. In 1926, the Bears rattled off 12 in a row, then came back with 15 straight in 1927.

BEST, Jack Kramer has paired Australia's Rex Hartwig and Tony Trabert together as a doubles team against the Pancho team of Segura and Gonzales. It's the mightiest doubles duo in all tennis, avers Kramer. Trabert, he claims, is the best back court doubles player and Hartwig the best forecourt player in the world. Oh, well, Kramer will know by the time his pros reach the end of the trail—now a long, long way off.

SUGAR RAY ROBINSON Wants Bobo for Big Money

'Friction' Denied by Trimble

CHICAGO (UP) — Coach Jim Trimble of the Philadelphia Eagles said Saturday he was "completely surprised" by reports he may be ousted from his position because of a disappointing showing by the Eagles this season and alleged friction with some players.

The Eagles close their National Football League season against the Chicago Bears at Wrigley Field today carrying a 4-6-1 record.

Club officials have not commented on the report, but Trimble said "Monday I'll find out all about this."

"I ALWAYS THOUGHT I was doing a good job with the Eagles," said Trimble. "If we beat the Bears Sunday, it will be close to an even break. That's pretty good in this tough league in which I don't know how anybody can say this team, or that should be a pre-season favorite to win the championship."

Trimble vehemently denied rumors he has trouble with some of his stars, such as Pete Pihos, Chuck Bednarik and Bobby Watson over coaching tactics. "That's a ridiculous statement," he said.

"A Philadelphia story said I was closeted with Eagle officials all week on this subject," he said. "The truth is I did not meet with any club officials any time this week."

UCLA Begins Drills for Rose Bowl Tilt

UCLA Saturday began 16 days of practice for its Jan. 2 game against Michigan State in the Rose Bowl.

Coach Henry (Red) Sanders sent the Bruins through a double drill, the morning session being devoted to fundamentals and individual work and the two-hour afternoon session to a drill on defense against Michigan State formations.

UCLA, the Pacific Coast Conference champion, will drill five days weekly for the next three weeks.

Meanwhile, team physician Dr. Edwin Ruth would not venture to say whether passing star Ronnie Knox will be able to play in the big game. Knox still is wearing a cast on the leg he broke against Washington.

Dr. Ruth said the cast probably would be removed in a week, but added that Knox most likely would not be able to run well for a week or two after that, even though the break may have healed.

Ronnie may have reinjured his leg in a tumble, his mellifluous father, Harvey, reported. Off crutches and in a walking cast for two weeks, he was ordered back on them by an orthopedic specialist the day of the fall.

CHICAGO (UP) — Sugar Ray Robinson, a brand new ring immortal wearing the middleweight crown for the third time, embarked Saturday upon a glorious "new phase" of life in which he hopes to become a dollar-a-fight man for charity.

Before entraining for New York with his entourage, the 35-year-old "miracle man" who knocked out Carl (Bobo) Olson at 2:51 of the second round Friday, told sports writers, "I'm not starting a new career—it's a new phase of my life, devoted to helping my people."

Confident that with added weight he is punching harder than ever before, he said he will have one "big money" fight with Olson as soon as the kayoed ex-champion is ready, in order to straighten out his tax differences with Uncle Sam.

AFTER THAT, he hopes to be in position to accept only one dollar for each fight and give the rest of his purses to Negro charities in cooperation with the National Advancement Association of Colored People. He indicated that he will retire in a year or two.

Co-managers Ernie Braca and Harold Johnson negotiated with U. S. Internal Revenue representatives about the new champion's purse of $46,439.

His purse from the gross gate of $139,725, paid by 12,441 spectators, and from the $75,000 TV-radio fee, has been tied up by the government, which claims he is $67,000 in arrears for the period from 1944 through 1953.

ROBINSON SAID he knew Olson "could be taken" at the end of the first round when he landed a stiff left hook to Olson's head. "That hurt him, although maybe just me and him knew it. Everybody says it was a right-uppercut that knocked Olson down. As far as I'm concerned, it was a left hook which did the business and the right clinched it."

"I felt I was moving better against Olson than in our two other bouts. That's no doubt because I never trained harder for a fight. I was surprised when my feints were fooling Olson. The opening certainly was there, but I didn't think it would end that soon."

Meanwhile, Olson—who receives a purse of $65,014—had flown back to San Francisco. He will wait until he has straightened out his marital difficulties before setting a date for the return bout.

His wife, Delores, blamed "men-chasing women" for their predicament. She said that at the moment she doesn't want Olson "champ or no champ."

George Gairford, Robinson's manager, suggested that Olson "should go out and make himself a reputation before he thinks about a rematch. He should get the stigma of Friday's fight wiped off with some comeback bouts, like Ray did."

French middleweight champ Charles Humez suggested that he should be Robinson's next opponent since Olson failed to give Sugar Ray any opposition.

COMPTON MISSED WADDELL

Injured Ace's Absence Cost Tartars Three TD's—Brown

By JERRY HALL

ROSE BOWL, PASADENA — Someone must have let the cat out of the bag, because the pocketful of tricks and surprises the Tartars took into the Rose Bowl Saturday came hurling back into their faces and to a man they were happy to settle for the nine-point victory.

Jones JC of Mississippi did most of the things to Compton that Compton had planned to do to Jones. The only thing that went according to the script was the national jaycee championship. That went back to Compton after a few seasons of wandering. And it went back on the shoulders of end Charley McNeil and fullback Neal Wagerle.

JIM WADDELL, the Compton star who has rewritten the school's record books this year, was injured on the fifth play from scrimmage and removed to a hospital with a possible concussion, a broken nose and face lacerations. He was kicked in the head. There was no evidence that it was intentional.

Cornered after the game, Compton Coach Tay Brown summed it up when he explained that the reason his three-touchdown victory prediction didn't hold up was "We didn't have Waddell." Brown estimated his crew would have added three TDs to the 22-point total. That's about right, because it appeared that Compton played the game with only half its offense.

But it was the Compton defense that was the surprise of the day. Jones tore it to tatters with its passing game. That was what the Tartars had planned to do to the Southerners. But when passes on the first two plays of the game went so terribly, the Tartars stashed them away and stayed with ground maneuvers. "We thought they had weaknesses and still do," commented Brown. Fortunately, they uncovered those weaknesses in time, but if Jones' ends had been able to hang onto passes right into their hands it might have upset things. "There's no doubt we never have dropped so many," said Jones Coach Jim Clark.

CLARK WAS all smiles after the game. He excused as an "honest mistake" the officials' decision on an intercepted pass in the end zone that was placed down on the one-yard line. About two-thirds of the huge crowd disagreed with the action which led to a safety for Compton on the next play. That completely sunk the Bobcats. It gave Compton its nine-point bulge.

"That safety didn't make much difference," said Clark. "We needed two touchdowns to win it anyway." But the man who intercepted the pass was not so forgiving. Halfback Ron Williams said he was sure he was behind the goal. But that Compton player who picked him up and tumbled him back onto the playing field "was a doggoned strong guy." A pass intercepted in the end zone is an automatic touchback and goes to the intercepting team on the 20.

THERE WAS NO evidence of bitterness on either side. Nothing reflected the rabble-rousing campaign of some Southerners who threaten to push the school into bankruptcy for playing on the same field with Negro athletes. The Jones contingent

MIKE SOUCHAK Fires Sparkling 65

MIAMI, Fla. (UP)—Massive Mike Souchak, former Duke end who chose golf over the gridiron as a profession, pulverized par with a sparkling 65 Saturday and grabbed a two-stroke lead after two rounds of the $12,500 Miami Open.

Souchak tacked his 5-under to an opening 68 for a 133 total with one round to go.

Par for the 6,620-yard Miami Springs course is a comparatively easy 35-35-70. Twenty-two players broke par and 13 others matched it.

SOUCHAK, who registers out of Grossinger, N. Y., carded his fine round despite a bogey on No. 17, where his drive landed beside a tree and he was forced to putt the ball lefthanded onto the fairway. He canned birdie putts of 20, 15, 7, 7, 5 and 4 feet.

Bud Holscher, who carded a 68, put together two of the most remarkable shots of the event for a par four on the 18th hole, which tied him with five others at 136.

On the final hole, Holscher banged his second shot five inches from a tree. After trolley officials ordered an automobile moved so he could swing, the lanky shotmaker pitched the ball off lefthanded with the back of his putter, then calmly clipped the ball 25 feet into the cup.

Frank Stranahan, 67-68, 135; E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, 67-68, 135; Alvin Karpis, 67-68, 135; Arnold Palmer, 67-68, 135; Jack Isaac, 67-68, 135; Bud Holscher, 67-68, 136; Sam Snead, 67-68, 137; Paul McCure, 68-68, 136; Pete Cooper, 68-68, 136; Wally Ulrich, 67-70, 137; Tommy Bolt, 68-68, 137; Sam Snead, 67-68, 137; Ray Terry, 67-68, 137; Fred Hering, 67-68, 137; Fred Wampler, 67-68, 137; J. James Blair III, 67-68, 137; Doug Hering, 67-68, 137; John Weir, 67-68, 137; Duke Knievel, 67-68, 137; Tom Talkington, 67-68, 137; 3-Amateur.

Compton's fortunes finally took a turn for the better at 6:40 of the final period. Constantly threatening, the Tartars finally moved to the Bobcat seven, where, on second down, Aldrich fired to the goal line. Williams intercepted with one foot in the end zone, but the officials ruled he was cut down by Tartar tacklers on the Bobcat one-foot line. So the Bobcats moved from there to their own demise. On the first play, Williams was trapped by Bob Gudath in the end zone for a safety—two points.

THAT ENDED the scoring on a controversial note. Still, the Bobcats fired away with Schulte throwing passes all over the field. Few connected as the Tartar line gave him the constant rushes. Otherwise, the results might have been costly to the Tartars, who for some reason displayed a leaky roof in the secondary.

At the outset, Compton's luck was all bad—four 15-yard penalties in five plays the first time they took to the attack. All told, Compton was assessed 120 yards.

MENZIE, who had the honor of reeling off the game's first touchdown, was voted the Helms Trophy as the game's outstanding player.

Compton's victory wound up in this statistical setting—a 335-224 advantage in net yards gained and 11-9 in first downs. So the Hub City team today rules the nation's jaycee football teams—as they should. They're the greatest!

LA JOLLA (UP)—Pat Todd of La Jolla moved into the women's finals of the National Hardcourt Tennis Tournament Saturday with an upset victory over top-seeded Darlene Hard of Montebello.

The third-seeded Mrs. Todd eliminated Miss Hard, 6-1, 6-0, in a semi-final match.

Fourth-seeded Mimi Arnold of Burlingame toppled Nancy (Chaffee) Kiner, Palm Springs, who held the No. 2 spot, 8-6, 6-3.

Fourth-seeded Herb Flam of Beverly Hills advanced to the men's final with a 5-7, 6-2, 6-1, 6-2 victory over Hugh Stewart. He will meet Mike Franks, Beverly Hills, who eliminated his fellow townsman, John Leach, 5-7, 6-2, 6-4, 6-3.

the magic real estate 76 yards to the south.

Ineffective, offensively, the Bobcats struck with decisiveness on their own at 13:32 of the second period, quarterback Ken Schulte unraveling a 68-yard pass play to halfback Ronnie Williams for the tying touchdown. His flip was a 25-yarder to Williams sweeping across the middle. Ron, in full flight, just kept prancing to the equalizer when an outfoxed Tartar defender was found insufficient to meet the crisis.

SAMMY STRIBLING's try for the extra point was wide, so the Bobcats missed their only chance to take the lead.

Lightning struck again seconds later when the Bobcats kicked off to Neal Wagerle, Tartar fullback. Wagerle angled to the eastern sideline, cut back and didn't stop huffing and puffing until he had carried the pigskin 86 yards to Compton's second touchdown. The clock said 13:58 when he crossed the last white stripe. This time Aldrich obliged with the conversion and the Tartars were out in front—to stay.

More drama was yet to come for on the next kickoff Compton recovered on the Bobcat 25. In five plays and at 14:59, Aldrich scooted off his own right tackle three yards—and, presto—Compton was in front, 20-6, when the cagey Tartar q. b. booted another conversion between the uprights.

JONES COUNTY, obviously heading home to a cold reception for playing in an "integrated game" which of a sudden became a controversial issue below the Mason-Dixon line, made a contest out of it with a sudden 59-yard pass play at 14:29 of the third period. This time Schulte fired to Williams through the middle, and he didn't stop running until six more points were added to the Bobcat total. Stribling added the seventh.

Compton's fortunes finally took a turn for the better at 6:40 of the final period. Constantly threatening, the Tartars finally moved to the Bobcat seven, where, on second down, Aldrich fired to the goal line. Williams intercepted with one foot in the end zone, but the officials ruled he was cut down by Tartar tacklers on the Bobcat one-foot line. So the Bobcats moved from there to their own demise. On the first play, Williams was trapped by Bob Gudath in the end zone for a safety—two points.

THAT ENDED the scoring on a controversial note. Still, the Bobcats fired away with Schulte throwing passes all over the field. Few connected as the Tartar line gave him the constant rushes. Otherwise, the results might have been costly to the Tartars, who for some reason displayed a leaky roof in the secondary.

At the outset, Compton's luck was all bad—four 15-yard penalties in five plays the first time they took to the attack. All told, Compton was assessed 120 yards.

MENZIE, who had the honor of reeling off the game's first touchdown, was voted the Helms Trophy as the game's outstanding player.

LOSS OF 2 DOWNS TOPS GRID ODDITIES

By Associated Press

An Iowa player clipped one of his teammates and the other team was penalized for it; West Virginia "kicked" an extra point when there were no goal posts; a Texas Christian player went to kick off and missed the ball entirely; a third-string UCLA fullback was called out of the stands to play in a game and a Colgate player ran 50 yards (or more) to score a point after touchdown.

Those were some of the odd happenings of an odd football season listed by sports writers and broadcasters in reply to the Associated Press post-season questionnaire.

But the oddest of all, they decided by the slim margin of a single vote, was the referee's "loss" of two downs that may have cost Bucknell a victory over Harvard.

This incident drew eight votes from a total of 159 ballots. Seven each went to the missing goal posts at the Pitt-West Virginia game and to the lone fan who bought a grandstand ticket for the snow and ice-bound San Jose State-Washington State game. In all, 44 different odd events were listed by the experts, but no others appeared on more than four ballots.

The Bucknell-Harvard game, Oct. 29, ended in a 26-26 tie—a surprising result in itself. With four minutes to go, Bucknell had the ball on Harvard's 37 with first down. A pitch-out was fumbled and a wild scramble for the ball ensued. Referee Charles Bradley saw the ball in the arms of Harvard end Bob Morrison, gave a signal and the sticks were moved to show first and 10 for Harvard on the 40.

Field Judge Alden Hewitt, however, said he had whistled the ball dead while Bucknell's Dick McCartney still held it, so it was returned to the Bisons. But the sticks weren't moved again and when the next play began the ref called "fourth and 10." Bucknell couldn't make the 10.

No one yet has explained how the mixup happened—or why there wasn't a ringing protest from Bucknell players and coaches. Said referee Bradley: "We just made a mistake."

An official's error was responsible for the penalty mix-up in the Iowa-UCLA game—an error that wasn't discovered until a couple days later. A long UCLA touchdown run by Chuck Holloway was called back when the official called clipping on "No. 52" and the Bruins were penalized 15 yards. Later someone realized that no UCLA player was wearing No. 52 that night and a review of films showed the offender was Iowa center Norman Sik.

The missing goalposts at Pittsburgh were no mystery. Pitt's Panthers were in the process of upsetting previously unbeaten West Virginia and the excited fans couldn't wait until the finish to tear down the timbers.

Then on the last play—actually after time had run out because there was a penalty on the "last" play and another had to be granted—West Virginia scored a touchdown. It was impossible to kick the point because the posts were gone. Pitt and the officials just conceded it.

Other notable oddities reported included the theft of a Villanova handoff by a Florida State guard. It took place in the end zone and produced the winning touchdown. . . . The disappearance of a Colorado lineman, Joe Connors, who left the bench in a huff during a game because he thought he wasn't being used enough. He turned up apologetically a couple of days later. . . . The success of Don Hollender, a great Army end, as a makeshift quarterback. . . . The hangings-in-effigy of various coaches. . . . The fine performances of UCLA's Ronnie Knox, tabbed by many as an over-coached over-praised young player.

Standard Oil, Navy Deal Up to Solons

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Navy Charles S. Thomas said Saturday he will take no action on an Elk Hills naval oil reserve "trade out" proposal by Standard Oil Co. of California "without specific approval of Congress."

This may be difficult to obtain, Elk Hills in which California Standard holds a one-third interest, is the Navy's richest petroleum reserve. Congress wants it kept on a stand-by basis for national emergencies.

The company put 8,541 acres into the Taft, Calif., reserve in 1942 under a "unit" contract with the Navy which entitles it to one-third of the underground oil—about $1,600,000,000 worth. This was done because its properties checkerboarded the 37,000-acre Navy reserve which President Taft established by executive order in 1912.

The company, since 1951, has been trying to negotiate an arrangement whereby it would take its share of oil from a so-called shallow reserve and leave the Navy in sole possession of deeper pools. This would be carried out over a period of 20 years or longer.

Nab Suspect Attacker of Injured Girl

ONEIDA, N. Y. (AP)—A man who posed as a sheriff to halt an automobile was charged Saturday with raping a nurse after she broke her leg in a desperate attempt to escape.

Walter Marshall, 32, Canastota, N. Y., was arrested in East Syracuse, N. Y., and was identified by his alleged victim, 24-year-old Miss Rosemary Sorrentino, police said.

Police said Miss Sorrentino told them she was returning from night school classes at Syracuse University, Thursday, when Marshall halted her car. She said he represented himself as a deputy sheriff and told her the car she was driving had been reported stolen.

Marshall ordered her to get out of the car, she said, and they drove toward Canastota in his car. She became suspicious while crossing a bridge, she said, and leaped from the moving car.

Miss Sorrentino said that despite her leg injury, Marshall carried her to his car and assaulted her. Later he returned her to her own automobile and fled, she said.

REALTOR OF THE WEEK

Bess Lyne Once Paid for Reading Mail

A native of Nebraska who taught school 10 years and then followed the advice of men in her history books and came West is the Realtor of the Week, honored by the Long Beach Board.

Bess K. Lyne, whose office is at 2918 E. Broadway, came to Long Beach in 1938 for a visit and like so many others, decided "I had found heaven."

Bess finished high school in Nebraska with the highest honors and then had 3 years at Kearney State Teachers. During the summer she would succumb to her venturesome spirit and work in Yellowstone Park as a "savage" and at a dude ranch near Cody, Wyo.

World War II found her in Honolulu and she says she will never forget the morning of Dec. 7 when the Jap bombs awakened her. And she'll always recall the days that followed. Volunteering for the war effort she went to work in the censorship department of the Postoffice and received five promotions in less than four months, achieving the distinction of being one of 6 censors out of 300 to be placed in the registered air mail department.

"I thought reading the mail was interesting, but that was before I got into realty," says Mrs. Lyne.

"In the process of my work I had the thrill of holding $1 million in my hands. I also was able to assist the Army in locating 2 men sought as spies, by examining a large suitcase full of old letters sent to New Jersey from the Philippines. I also was called on to translate an occasional letter from the Czech language to English."

Her hobby for 26 years has been collecting antiques. Among her objects of art is one of the finest collections in the city of Dresden, Meissen, and rare Chantilly French Biscuits.

Mrs. Lyne has been selling realty for 10 years and a member of the board since 1947, serving on various committees. She is vice president of the Wire Club, a group of women in real estate.

Mrs. Lyne and her husband, Elmer, have been married 27 years. He is a civil engineer with the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Their home is at 2525 Pine Ave.

See Greatest Month in L. B. Retail Sales

December retail sales boom will meet the Christmas buying spree head-on... result: the greatest month in retailing history!

Long Beach merchants can expect cash registers to ring up $58,500,000 sales during December. "Sales Management," the magazine of marketing reports, climaxed a year during which the city has been spotlighted as a retail sales "High Spot City" every single month by the magazine.

Long Beach retail activity will rank sixth in the country during December in percentage gain over the previous December, topping the national increase by 11.9 per cent.

A total of $18.6 billion retail sales are predicted by "Sales Management" for the nation during December, a gain of 4 per cent over December, 1952, the previous all-time record high.

The yearly retail total will run close to $186 billion, a 9 per cent rise over 1952 with every component of retailing sharing in the gains.

For the first 10 months of the year, these percentages of gain are, from high to low, as follows: Automotive sales, up 22 per cent; household-furniture-appliances, up 10 per cent; gasoline service stations, up 9 per cent; general merchandise, up 7 per cent; lumber, building materials and hardware, up 6 per cent; drug and proprietary and food, up 5 per cent, and eating and drinking places, up 4 per cent.

John Cotton, State Realty President, Will Be Here

Members of the Long Beach Board of Realtors will be hosts to the 1953 president of the California Real Estate Association, John Cotton, San Diego, at the weekly breakfast meeting Tuesday morning in Lafayette Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Cotton will arrive Monday for the visit here. E. T. Moore, president of the Long Beach Board, said H. Jackson Pontius, state secretary, and Mrs. Pontius, and Burt Smith, Bellflower, regional vice president and Mrs. Smith also will be guests at the breakfast.

Cotton, named to lead California Realtors in 1953 at the state association's convention at Los Angeles in September, has just returned from meetings of nationally prominent realtors in the East in his capacity as a director of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

"We are fortunate that Cotton is visiting our community early in his heavy schedule of travel to local realty boards throughout California," Moore said.

"He will report on real estate conditions, educational and legislative matters affecting the association's activities. We intend to show him the exceptional growth taking place in this area in order that he may incorporate information about our community in his survey of realty progress being made in California."

Whaley's New Terms Spur Sales in Los Altos Units

A sharp increase in the number of new home sales at Los Altos 23rd and 25th Units was noted during the past week, according to Lloyd D. Whaley of the L. S. Whaley Co., developers of the Los Altos community home additions.

The marked rise in sales, Whaley said, was due to the new low terms for veterans which were recently put into effect. The terms call for down payments as low as $800, plus costs and impounds, with monthly principal and interest payments of $76.01. Non-veteran terms include FHA loans as well as the unusual "Customerized Financing" plan, Whaley stated.

"From all indication this brisk sales pace means that we will experience an early sellout in both units," said Whaley. "When a sellout does occur, there will no longer be any new home developments left in Los Altos."

Junior executive type 2 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes are featured in both the 23rd and 25th units. The homes offer color harmonized interiors, forced air heating to all rooms, fire alarm system by Minneapolis-Honeywell, natural birch hardwood cabinets and acoustical type plaster in every room.

Sliding doors of glass to patio areas also serve to bring an air of indoor-outdoor living to these contemporary styled homes which are situated on extra large lots.

WITH 12 DIFFERENT elevations and a variety of floor plans from which home buyers may make a selection, the Los Altos 23rd and 25 Units include such exterior features as 2-car garages with concrete driveways, large aluminum sash, genuine lath and plaster construction and colored aggregate rock roofs.

In addition, both units are located within the city of Long Beach and incorporated in them are all utilities. Curbs, gutters, sidewalks and street lighting as well as treelined parkways are all in and paid for at each of the developments.

Model homes are on display at both locations from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. daily and Sundays. The 23rd Unit may be visited by driving east on Spring St. to Woodruff Ave. Directional signs posted along Spring lead to the model home site.

The 25th Unit is located just east of the Long Beach State College campus and may be reached from either Atherton or Stearns St. by turning south on Palo Verde Ave.

Cudahy Changes Remove Packing Firm From 'Red'

OMAHA (UP)—Cudahy Packing Co. announced the results of sweeping changes it has made in its business during the last two years—return "to a profitable basis with net income amounting to $2,702,755" for the fiscal year ended Oct. 29.

Cudahy reported a net loss of $7,162,254 for the 1954 fiscal year.

The return of operations to the profit side of the ledger was traced by the company to "major adjustments" of the last two years. During this time Cudahy closed a number of unprofitable plants and branches and made other changes in its producing and distributing facilities.

The dollar sales volume in the 1955 fiscal year amounted to $308,142,000 compared to $454,194,000 in 1954, the report said.

The 32 per cent decrease in sales was attributed to "lower prices throughout this year."

The report said the sales tonnage of edible products was "only 26 per cent less than in 1954 despite the fact that the units closed at the end of that year produced 40 per cent of the total dollar volume and sales tonnage."

The ratio of current assets to current liabilities was 2.1 to 1 at the close of the 1955 fiscal year compared to 1.74 to 1 a year earlier.

IN EXCELSIOR VILLAGE

Beechwood Bel-Air cabinets, built-in range and oven and washer-dryer are included in the kitchens of the second unit at Excelsior Village. The second unit, which opened last weekend in Garden Grove, is offered to qualified veterans for a move-in price of $125.

Excelsior Village Draws Many Buyers at Opening

Second week of the opening of driving straight out Westminster to Brookhurst Ave. Unit 2 of Excelsior Village is under way with good response, according to Don Coleman, sales agent.

The second unit is offered for a move-in price of $125 to qualified veterans.

Built-in range and oven, washer-dryer, forced air heat, Beechwood Bel-Air cabinets and the new Fire-Belle alarm system are all included in the four bedrooms, two-bath homes.

Situated on "pool-size" lots, the homes are part of a completely planned community with a shopping center to be built within walking distance of the homes and a school is located across the street from Excelsior Village.

The first unit has been sold out, according to Coleman, in urging buyers to make their selection early of the second unit.

Within a few miles of the Long Beach area, Excelsior Village is in Garden Grove. Four beautifully furnished models are on display and may be seen by

New Spray Found for Pear Insects

GENEVA, N. Y. (AP)—New spray materials have proved effective against the pear growers' worst insect problem, the pear psylla.

According to entomologists at the experiment station here, dinitro sprays are especially toxic to the eggs and young of the psylla. Parathion and some other phosphorus insecticides are highly toxic to both the eggs and adults. Parathion also can be used without danger of injury to foliage or fruit.

"Failure to control psylla at a reasonable cost has been a chief cause for waning interest in pear growing in New York state," the entomologists say.

The pear psylla lives over winter as an adult and appears in orchards the first warm days in early spring. It is soon after this and during the so-called "late dormant" period when the bud scales loosen but before many green leaf tips appear, that the first psylla spray should be applied.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—The board of directors of the American Hereford Association passed a resolution that artificially bred calves could become registered Herefords only if the sire were alive at the time of the insemination.

Non-Vets Still Offered New Wonderland Homes

Despite record breaking sales of both conventional and temporary design homes at Wonderland Homes, non-vets still have a chance to purchase the 3 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath dwellings.

"A number of homes earmarked for buyers on FHA terms are now being offered due to credit rejections of early buyers," a spokesman said.

"Because they were picked some time ago, these homes represent an unusually fine selection from among the many stylings designed especially for Wonderland Homes by Architect William M. Bray," he added.

Located at the southwest corner of Ball Rd. and Walnut St. in Anaheim, the homes are available on long term FHA financing to both non-vets and to vets who have already used up their GI eligibility, it was explained. Several homes are also now available to vets on terms of nothing down, except costs and imponds, with monthly payments from $64.49, including both principal and interest, it was noted.

Priced from $12,000 to $14,000, these homes feature 6 in 8 full-hearing mature orange trees on virtually every home site, the spokesman declared.

Available in 12 different floor plans, the homes incorporate living rooms with a complete wall of glass, with sliding glass doors and fixed floor-to-ceiling windows that overlook concrete terraces.

Wonderland Homes may be reached via the Santa Ana Freeway to Euclid Ave. in Anaheim, then south to Ball Rd. and east to Walnut St.

IN ANAHEIM

The above exterior exemplifies the many stylings in three and four-bedroom, two-bath homes rising in Wonderland Homes, Ball Rd. and Walnut St., Anaheim. Vets' and non-vets' terms are offered.

Barbecue in Kitchen Proves Skylark Hit

The new model introduced last week in Skylark Terrace's Town and Country Unit 2 which features the barbecue in the kitchen has been enthusiastically received by home buyers, according to Bill Tietz, president of Tietz Construction Co., developer of the Garden Grove subdivision.

"We put the barbecue in the kitchen because we know that today Southern California living demands a barbecue—while at the same time, outdoor barbecues have a limited use depending on the weather and the type of entertaining a hostess is doing. Now, the hostess can give barbecue parties in all kinds of weather. Many homemakers will use the barbecue in their daily cooking."

Skylark Terrace homes offer the "country estate" atmosphere along with the convenience of all city activities. Featured, and the subject of much enthusiastic comment are the all-electric kitchen equipped with built-in Hotpoint ranges and ovens, Hotpoint dishwashers, garbage disposals, exhaust fans, ceramic tile counter tops and natural birch cabinets.

The new Skylark homes are constructed on huge, estate sized lots averaging more than 80 feet in width and providing more than adequate space for barbecues, patios, badminton courts and even patios. Prices start from $16,330 and can be purchased with VA and FHA loans.

To reach model homes from Long Beach, just drive out Sevens St. (Garden Grove Blvd.) to Brookhurst and turn left. From Santa Ana, visitors are directed to drive out Memory Lane, which becomes Garden Grove Blvd., and turn north (right) on Brookhurst.

WALLS OF GLASS

This living room in one of the Skylark Terrace homes shows how builder Bill Tietz has used walls of glass for indoor-outdoor living.

Need of Community Won't Lure Industry

ORLAND (AP)—Gov. Knight has some advice for California communities desirous of attracting new industry. "No industrialist worth his salt, that community," Knight told attracted only by what the community has to offer him."

PREVIEW BEGINS
Exemplified above are the three and four-bedroom, two-bath homes in the second unit of Homestead Gardens, which has its preview today on Verano St., about one-half mile south of Garden Grove Blvd.

Homestead Shows Homes in Another Unit

Preview showing of Homestead Gardens' second unit of 3 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes begins this weekend on Verano St., between Trask and Westminster Aves. In Orange County, it was announced by the builders who said terms and ease of qualification are certain to attract large crowds.

Active buying continues in Homestead Gardens' first unit on Trask Ave., between Wright and Cypress Sts., 2 blocks south of Garden Grove Blvd., where model homes with furnishings by Aaron Schultz are being displayed.

"Visitors to the model homes are greatly impressed, especially when they learn that terms for vets are nothing down, except costs and impounds, and non-vets are offered FHA terms with down payments from $950," a spokesman said.

Walker and Lee, sales agents, said vets will pay from $56.49 a month and can qualify on earnings of $319 monthly. The development features landscaped lots of 7,200 square feet, thermostat-controlled heating, 8-foot sliding glass wall, Modernfold doors in many models, and snack bar in addition to the dining room.

Also featured are mahogany kitchen cabinets, Waste King garbage pulverator, steel casement windows, fibre glass insulation, acoustic ceilings, lath and plaster walls, extra-large garage with storage space, wide driveways, weatherstripped doors, king-size glass-doored shower stalls, 40 and 50-gallon water heater, heavy modern multi-color rock roofs, gutters and downspouts, attractive redwood exterior accents and wide overhanging eaves.

"We know that the scarcity of adequate-sized urban tracts is causing some types of industry to look to the suburbs and rural areas for vacant sites for plant construction," said Knight.

"But they must be sold on the advantages you have to offer."

"Industrial operators are interested in facts, not in community enthusiasm, propaganda, or highly colored information," he added.

"Investors must know if they come into a community all the required elements for success are there," Knight agreed that California's climate, its mushrooming work force and market potential give it an edge over other areas.

But said prospective new industries will want to know also about less glamorous items like local transportation, availability of raw materials, water, waste disposal, zoning regulations and taxes.

"Non-veterans who have shopped the area for a new home have told us that the new 30-year FHA financing arranged at Brookhurst Plaza is definitely the most liberal that can be found," Sirrene stated.

"Under these terms non-veterans may purchase for as little as $1400 down, with monthly payments as low as $78 including everything — principal, interest, taxes and insurance. Veterans can still buy with nothing down, only impounds," he continued.

The 3-and-4 bedroom, 2-bath homes are priced from $12,900 and incorporate all the excellent features today's home-seekers demand. Included are: built-in Western Holly oven and ranges, natural birch cabinets, electric exhaust fans, G.E. garbage disposals, double compartments sinks and breakfast space in the kitchens.

Three-bedroom homes have 75,000 BTU furnaces, with 100,000 BTU in the four-bedroom homes. Sliding windows with French doors lead to patio areas, and there are wood-burning fireplaces in the living rooms.

Brookhurst Plaza is on Brookhurst Ave., just north of La Palma. From Los Angeles, drive out the Santa Ana Freeway to La Palma, then east to Brookhurst and north to the model homes.

From Long Beach, drive out Carson (Lincoln Highway) to Euclid Ave., turn north, cross the Freeway to La Palma, west to Brookhurst and north to the model homes.

Large Fairview Ranchos Still on Veterans' Terms

Noting that luxury features inside and out have attracted home buyers to the 3-bedroom, 2-bath homes at Fairview Ranchos in Santa Ana in steadily increasing numbers, Frank Chandler of Pioneer Land Co., sales agents, stated that veterans may still buy these homes for a few more days on no money down except low costs and impounds terms on the final 30-year maturity loans. Monthly payments range from $65.13 and include principal and interest, Chandler added. D. & E. Corp., builder-developers of Fairview Ranchos, believe the quality material used is a factor in popularity. Features include garbage disposal, range hood with fan, oak floors, plaster walls and ceilings; natural wood cabinets in the kitchen, service porch with room for washer and dryer; semi-automatic dishwasher, convertible in generous size breakfast nook and sliding glass doors to patio in most models. California's Garden Homes have complete landscaping in 5 separate areas. Front and rear lawns are in and have sprinklers. The patio has redwood divider with seat and ornamental light. The rear yard is also floodlighted and the entire rear area is enclosed in a "basket weave" redwood fence. Fairview Ranchos may be reached from the north by driving ing out the Santa Ana Freeway to Harbor Blvd.; turn south on Harbor to Edinger, then left on Edinger to Bristol and left again to the property. From Long Beach take 7th St. (Garden Grove Blvd.) to Bristol, turn right 2 1/2 miles on Bristol to the model homes.

Report Heavy Orangewood Manor Sales

In spite of the rainy weather last week, Orangewood Manor enjoyed exceptionally good sales over the weekend, according to Thomas Helt, spokesman for the McCarthy Co., sales agents for the Garden Grove development.

"We believe that in Orangewood Manor we have the best home buy in Orange County," Helt stated. "Nowhere else, to our knowledge, can a veteran earning as little as $295 per month qualify and buy a $12,750 home with so many luxury features as here and still on 'no cash needed' financing. Monthly payments at Orangewood Manor are as low as $62.05 including principal and interest. Among the many popular features in Orangewood Manor are: Kitchens with Roper gas ranges in pastel colors that match the Columbia steel cabinets, real fireplaces, and living rooms with ski-view walls of glass offer popular indoor-outdoor living. Big patios feature built-in barbecue. Other features include: baths with Zelatone walls and asphalt tile flooring, Thermador electric bath heaters, stall showers and Standard colored plumbing fixtures; forced air heating, heavy rock roofs in five decorator colors, and exteriors of California redwood siding.

From Long Beach, visitors may drive out 7th St. (Garden Grove Blvd.) and turn north on Magnolia. From Los Angeles, take the Santa Ana Freeway, turn south on Magnolia and continue for four miles to Orangewood Manor.

Making Fortune From Gravel

LANSFORD, N. D. (U.P.)—Lester Convis bought a quarter-section of land south of here at an auction 10 years ago. He never suspected that there was gravel on the land until a search for gravel was made in the area for construction of runways, roads and other facilities at the Air Force Jet Interceptor base at Minot. Now Convis is cleaning approximately $1,000 a day from the pit.

TV Tele-Vues
by TERRY VERNON

A trio of stars will appear on the Maurice Evans show at 1 p. m. on (4) as the famous actor produces "Dream Girl" starring Vivian Blaine, Hal March and Evelyn Varden.

The story tells of a girl who runs a bookstore but spends far more time day-dreaming and dramatizing herself than she does selling books. In consequence she experiences great confusion in sorting out the men in her life.

Hal March is a down-to-earth newspaperman, Evelyn Varden is the girl's mother and also seen will be Edmon Ryan as a "wolfish" bookman, and Don Symington as the brother-in-law with whom "Dream Girl" fancies she is in love.

QUESTING—George Meany, first president of the combined AFL and CIO, will "Face the Nation" on (2) at 1 p. m. . . . Former President Herbert Hoover will "Meet the Press" on (4) at 6 p. m. . . . Carmine DeSapio, who would handle the campaign for Harriman if he runs for President, is heard on Drew Pearson's portion of "730 on TV" at 12 noon on (7) . . . Irving Stone, author and art critic, will discuss two new books about famous artists during "Cavalcade of Books" on (2) at 3:30 p. m. . . . Bobby "Droup Blues" at 11:15 a. m. over (2).

DRAMA—Thomas Mitchell, Teresa Wright, Robert Preston and John Kerr with Cathleen Nesbitt will star on "The Alcoa Hour" at 9 p. m. on (4). The story is "Undertow" and tells of Cap'n Hallock, his taciturn, hard-working wife and their two sons in Nova Scotia. It takes a near-tragedy to get the family to drop its customary reserve and reveal true feelings. . . . Judith Evelyn is featured on "Alfred Hitchcock Presents" over (2) at 9:30 p. m. Mystery centers around a quarreling family, the appearance of the wife who secures a big carter "for malling toys," she says, and the total absence of her husband. A detective is called in, but is unable to enter the mysterious apartment until he finds a disguise and reveals the fate of the husband. . . . The strange story of a beautiful and gracious English girl who became one of the most successful gamblers of the old west is told on "Frontier" starring Joan Vohs at 7:30 p. m. on (4). . . . Charlton Heston and Steve Cochran head the cast of the "G. E. Theatre" on (2) at 9 p. m. A rancher kills an old Indian friend of another rancher and the problem of whether to force the charges is posed. In the old Southwest, following the Civil War, murder was only committed against white men. . . . Maureen Stapleton joins Theodore Bikel and William Prince in "Justice" on (4) at 10:30 p. m. A man and wife, newly married, have trouble when the husband seems to be hiding from his past. The wife finds out his secret and seeks aid from the Legal Aid Society and the husband is set to run away.

AT 8 P. M.—A special "Variety Hour" offers a "Salute to George Abbott" on (4) with Helen Hayes presenting the famous producer-director with an award. Other guests will be given Varden, Eddie Albert, Nancy Walker, John Hattit, Fran Warren, Edith Adams and Sam Levene. . . . Comedians Abbott and Costello, singer Teresa Brewer, British comedienne Joyce Grenfell and her company, Mimi Bezel of the Met, comic-violinist Wandy Tovar, the Three Merkleys and the Oberkirchens Children's Choir of Germany will appear on the "Ed Sullivan Show" on (2).

Words and Music
by JOHN B. CALLAGHAN

All kinds of people, young and old, are banging out the "Blue Danube" . . . or picking out a Christmas carol . . . on the piano. This is the most popular instrument of all, both with children and with adults who are just getting started in music. Some say that it is one of the easiest instruments to learn. Moreover, it provides harmony, melody and accompaniment at one and the same time.

A fine piano is the musical gift of a lifetime. It's a gift that will bring joy to the whole family . . . not just to the child or adult who plays. And it's one gift you'll never get tired of . . . for the appeal of music, so strong at Christmas, is something that transcends time and special occasions.

Perhaps you've dreamed for years of owning a fine piano. We'd like to help you make that dream come true this Christmas. A piano is an instrument that should be selected with care. You'll want one whose design and style will blend with the setting of your home. You'll want one with responsive action and fine tonal quality that you like. You want an instrument which will be a thing of beauty you'll be proud to have in your home . . . and which will create the beauty of superb music. You'll find these qualities in our selection of Steinway, Everett and Cable-Nelson pianos . . . available on convenient terms. PENNY-OWSLEY MUSIC CO. OF LONG BEACH, 4334 ATLANTIC BLVD. League Silver Ball Bids Happy Holiday Welcome

Wilson, Mrs. Mark Kuffel and Mrs. Vernon Brickey. The Silver Ball is a tradition with the league, and each year is arranged by provisionals for the total membership, their husbands and guests. Completing the lovely decorations were twinkling stars extended from the ceiling in shimmering sway. Charles Hurtay and his orchestra provided the dance music.

Manifest Symbols of Christmas

By JOYCE KENT

A dash of silver star-dust — the scent of pine wafted on a gentle breeze — carols resounding in the distance. These symbols of the most joyous of seasons were manifested last evening to enchant and delight members and guests of the Long Beach Assistance League who gathered in the Cavalier Room of Lafayette Hotel for the League's annual Silver Ball.

Silver trees resplendent with green baubles and evergreen boughs spread holiday cheer to the dinner tables, while mobile stars sparkled their welcome from the ceiling. Yet despite their loveliness, decorations were overshadowed by the elegant ball gowns worn by league members.

The evening's danceable and listenable music was provided by Charles Hurtay and his orchestra, with instrumental numbers interspersed with enjoyable vocal solos.

From the moment guests gathered at the hotel for pre-dinner cocktails, until the last group of weary revelers trekked home from a post-ball breakfast hostessed by Mrs. Ansel Olson, the night was one to be long remembered.

Spearheading arrangements, and doing a commendable job, were Mrs. Gordon Dougherty and Mrs. William Clemo, active, assisted by a committee of provisional league members.

Leading the parade of elegantly gowned women were Mrs. John Rowe, league president, who chose rose peau de sole in ballerina length with a brilliant clip and matching wrap, and Mrs. Francis Heusel, president-elect, who wore a gown of imported white lace over nude nylon net in cocktail length, with a cape of white ermine.

The quiet charm of Mrs. Kenneth S. Wing, vice president, was enhanced through her selection of cranberry and silver peau de sole beaded with crystals and rhinestones, and set-off by a silver blue mink stole. Mrs. John Brooks, secretary, chose a Sophie Original of navy Chantilly lace with jewel encrusted cowl neckline and mink wrap, while Mrs. Patricia Collins Cameron, treasurer, was in turquoise blue nylon net, fashioned in bouffant waltz length, with rows of black lace in apron.

EXPRESSIONS OF DELIGHT on the faces of Assistance League members were happy accompaniment to their lovely gowns Saturday evening as they radiated their joy over being a part of a successful party. Provisional members, led by active chairmen, Mrs. Gordon Dougherty and Mrs. William Clemo, were in charge of the annual Silver Ball which took place last night at the Lafayette Hotel Cavalier Room for league members, their husbands and guests. Mrs. Gilbert Karste is seen greeting Mrs. Gus Swanson, center, and Mrs. Dan Dunlap. The three are league provisionals and took active part in planning the delightful dinner-dance, one of the Christmas season's most fashionable affairs.

PAUSING FOR A MOMENT in the evening's festivities were, left to right, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Arnold, Mrs. Eugene Jones and Dr. Jones, who were among the guests Saturday night at the Assistance League annual Silver Ball at the Lafayette Hotel Cavalier Room. League members who work tirelessly on numerous philanthropies throughout the year, forget fund-raising and their "hours charts" this one night of the year, and gather solely for friendship, fun and to share in the happy holiday season.

Longtime Friends to Gather

Logs blazing merrily in the fireplaces will add their warmth and cheer to that radiated by the gathering together of long-time friends, when Mr. and Mrs. Allan D. Scherer entertain 75 couples at an open house from 7 to 10 p. m. Dec. 18 in their 5560 Anaheim Rd. home.

The guests, many of them newlyweds during the past year, others home for the holidays from colleges and universities throughout the country, will enjoy an evening of being brought up to date on events here and away.

A theme of white and gold will be used in decor to enhance the modern feeling of the Scherer home. A smoke tree with gold ornaments and tapers will frame a beautiful madonna as table centerpiece.

Assisting the popular couple will be Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Purvine, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lintz, Miss Donna Decker, Miss Joanne Kerr, William A. Sampson, James Bogle, and Mr. and Mrs. Carl B. Shank, parents of the hostess.

Dance Will Reflect Joys of Season

The sparkling glitter and festive gaiety of the holiday season will reign supreme at Lakewood Country Club Friday when Eboli Juniors stage their annual semi-formal Christmas Dance.

Promising to be one of the special social events of the club year, members and friends are eagerly anticipating the delightful evening being prepared for them by dance chairman, Mrs. Philip Erdahl, and her committee.

The shimmering, shining gowns of the ladies as they dance to the music of Jimmy Seltzinger's orchestra, will complement the beautiful decorations being prepared by Mrs. B. J. Quinn and her committee. Tables will be graced with huge frosty white candles accompanied by painted magnolia leaves to resemble poinsettias. In contrast, jolly rollicking Santa Clauses aglitter with tinsel garlands will add to the gaiety of the occasion.

Proceeds from the dance will be used toward the two philanthropic projects chosen by the club for the current year, aid for the Exceptional Children's Foundation, and clothing and aid for needy Navajo children. The dance is open to the public and tickets will be available at the door.

Caribbean Visit

Mr. and Mrs. Frende Combs and daughter Carolyn, 4282 Pacific Ave., sailed from New Orleans last week aboard the SS Alcoa Cavalier, luxury liner of the Alcoa Steamship Co. They are traveling to Port of Spain, Trinidad, where they will spend several days vacationing. Before returning to Long Beach they also will tour some of the other islands in the Caribbean. They spent a day sightseeing in New Orleans prior to sailing.

Music Club Coffee Hour

Changing from the traditional formal Christmas tea following the afternoon program, the Woman's Music Club this year will entertain with a coffee hour at 11 a. m. Wednesday in Eboli patio. At 12:30 o'clock the Choral Section, under direction of Arne Zahl, will sing Christmas melodies and lead in community singing of familiar carols.

Harvey Wagner, concert haritone soloist, will appear on the afternoon program at 1:30 in Eboli auditorium in "An Operatic Cruise" replacing the program originally scheduled. Mrs. Paul Lowder will be accompanist. The organ prelude will be played by Mrs. Ruth Nichol.

Holiday Tea

All members and friends of the Young Women's Christian Association are invited to a Christmas tea Dec. 19 from 2 to 5 p. m. in the YWCA. The staff will be in charge.

BEAUTY RIVALS

Lavishly gowned women and equally beautiful holiday decor will lend a touch of elegance to proceedings Friday evening when Eboli Juniors entertain at Lakewood Country Club with their annual Christmas dance. The semi-formal event is open to the public and tickets may be purchased at the door. Proceeds will benefit the club's philanthropies, Excep-

Surveying a sample of party decor as they complete plans for the evening are Mrs. Philip Erdahl (seated on floor), dance chairman, and left to right, Mrs. William Guyser, Eboli Junior president; Mrs. Charles Brantingham, Junior past president, and Mrs. B. J. Quinn, decoration chairman.

'U' Club Dance to Explain 'Operation Big Switch'

In an effort to acquaint their wives and guests with what will be their new "home" by the first of the year, members of the University Club of Long Beach will entertain with an informal preview dance from 8 to 11 p. m. Monday at the Towne Club.

Prospective members and the wives of current members will be thoroughly acquainted with "Operation Big Switch" through the use of large posters showing proposed changes in the building's floor plan and facilities. In addition, University Club members, resplendent in host badges, will be on hand to answer questions concerning the proposed purchase of the building, and to sign up new members.

Under the proposed plan, the expanded facilities will afford more opportunity for family events than is now offered at club quarters atop the Lafayette Hotel. Membership is open to men with two years residential study in a 4-year higher education institution. J. Richard Shelley, club pres-

Entertain at Yule Party

True Christmas spirit prevailed Friday when Mrs. Josiah S. Mertz and Mrs. Robin L. Hindley entertained 125 friends at a holiday brunch and bridge at Lakewood Country Club.

The warmth of friendship coupled with the traditional joys of the season, made the day a delight from beginning to end. The red, white, and green color theme stressed throughout the day had its beginning in invitations sent to the guests. The bids, white with red lettering, were addressed in green ink.

Center of interest in the decorations was a long table holding gaily wrapped bridge awards. Santa Claus and his sleigh made their way between a pair of revolving Christmas trees to serve as table centerpiece. Quartet tables were draped in green and bore red and white centerpieces.

Assisting the charming hostesses were Mrs. Wilbur Lee Candy and Mrs. Lewis Van Winkle.

Ident, and Mrs. Shelley will head the host committee, assisted by Dr. and Mrs. Earl Hershman, and Messrs. and Mrs. Norbert W. Dean, Julian C. Davis, Douglas R. Benwell, Ernest H. Lockwood G. William Six.

Also in the offing for the club is a kiddy Christmas party Friday, Dec. 16 from 3 to 5 p. m. at the Lafayette Hotel headquarters.

Open to the youngsters of members, ages 0 through 12, the day will feature a visit by Santa Claus (Joe Ratliff), with gifts for the children, carol singing led by Mrs. Ratliff with Edwin C. Illiff at the piano, entertainment and refreshments. Mr. and Mrs. William T. Dalessi are co-chairmen of the event.

Wild Waves

Donder and Blitzen, Dancer and Prancer, Dasher and Cupid—Halley's and Comet? This is a mental exercise we go through every December. The year we get it right will probably be the same one we have our Christmas shopping done by New Years. By the way, how's yours coming? Two weeks from today. Or, computed another way, 12 shopping days left. Left? Right? Go to your left, your right, your left...

Enough of gloom. Merriment is in order. Among the most treasured invitations of the week were those received from Dell and Don Berry and Jessie Lee and Don Malcolm, who put the word "holidays" in big, red letters for 135 friends with bids to a cheerful and lovely party planned for Dec. 21 at the Berry home, 4110 Country Club Dr.

Assisting the hosts and hostesses with their evening's gay duties will be Flo and John Brooks, Lana Ruzic, Ed Berry, Mildred and Jack Dorsey, Julia and Robert Helms and Eleanor and Herb Carlson. While we can't let you in on all the details, can say that the two Dons, one Dell and one Jessie Lee hope to have the Roger Bacon trio wandering about playing troubadour style all evening and that Pat Bartell is painting a Christmas scene on the big windows overlooking the patio as impressive as the stained glass of Notre Dame.

Recipe for a wonderful party. One part host and hostess (the brand is important, so if you want the best make it Betty and Bix Bixby); one part Christmas season; 60 well-dressed friends; an equal number of filled cocktail glasses; one beautiful hors d'oeuvres buffet. Mix all together gently and in good humor, then let stand for a couple of hours. This concoction will be blended Wednesday evening from 6 to 8 p. m. at 45 Dana Pl. The results will be, as always, delectable.

They kissed the children, patted the cats, whistled at their birds, waved goodbye and headed for Palm Springs Wednesday. That's what Helen and Bill Eastman did to celebrate their 17th anniversary. Friday they came home, kissed the children, patted the cats, whistled at the birds and unpacked their suitcases.

Did you happen to notice how wonderful it was between 11:30 a. m. and 1:30 p. m. last Wednesday? If you did you must have been among the 80 young friends of Pat Bartell and Shirley Planting, who were bidden to the Planting home, 5419 E. Anaheim Rd. for their truly elegant Christmas smorgasbord. Assisting the two smart young hostesses were Pat Craig, Barbara Rowan, Joanne Christensen, Sharon Adamson, Carolyn Raney, Sylvia Sherwood Jr., Jean Dunlap and Ruby Bothwell.

Hot spiced cranberry punch started the festivities which continued on a high note. Lots of bright candles, pine boughs sprayed gold, holly and bright dashes of Christmas red and green.

You know what Bobbie Burns said: "The best laid schemes o' mice and men gang aft a-gley." Apparently it applies to women, too. Good example is Virginia Utecht, who has been counting on the arrival of her brother and sister-in-law, Henry and Peggy Mellem and their eight months old baby daughter for weeks. Just before they arrived last weekend Virginia up and had an emergency appendectomy and had to greet them from a hospital bed! The Mellems are here from Coco Beach, Fla. and will make California their home. Smart people!

One of the gayest and most enjoyable parties Winnie and Leo Dreher ever attended was given last weekend in Pasadena at the home of the Harold Bissners. Reason for their particular enjoyment in this affair, which was a cocktail buffet and reception, was because it was the official en masse celebration for all the architects who have just received their prized licenses as full-fledged California architects. Leo was among the men being so honored. He hangs his hat alongside John Duffy's in their partnership office.

Like a bunch of kids with a new toy (or a gang of fathers with new boys) were University Club members at their annual Christmas cocktail and buffet Monday at Towne Club—the smart quarters overlooking the ocean which the University men will make their own private club upon completion of purchasing negotiations.

Among those on hand, members and guests, to inspect the new "toy" and revel in the informal and friendly atmosphere of the clubhouse were Dick Shelley, Kelly Williams, "Bix" Bixby, Walter Desmond, Ken Rudd, Vern Smith, Don Sullivan, Craig Hosmer, Dr. Burns Chaffee, Dr. John Cottrell, Hugh Gibbs, Werner Ruchti, Jim Pino, Earl Hershman, Milton Roberts, Bob Shoemaker, Bruce Mason, Russell Pray, V. DeMott Sedgwick, Bob Barmeyer, Paul Southgate and a couple of hundred others including the Kiwanis Barbershop Quartet composed of Brewster Gray, Jack Hammond, Norm Masterson and Harry Christensen, who sang a few of their bubbling rhythms.

That "little-boy-lost" look has miraculously disappeared from "Ev" Boyette's face since the arrival back home of wife, Dorothy, last week. Dorothy and her mother, Mrs. Laura Service, decided a pre-holiday visit with Dorothy's brother and therefore, naturally, Laura's son, who makes his home in Greenwich, Conn., would be just the plain ticket. So they bought plane tickets and traveled. Gone three weeks, they were, and managed fun visits in Washington, D. C., New York and Maryland as well as the town where they make the time fly.

Holding up the old saying, "If a thing's worth doing, it's worth doing right," we'll change it, for the benefit of Lawyers' Wives to, "If a thing's worth doing, it's worth doing twice!" You see, the women's first holiday open house for their husbands last year at Pauline and Al White's home was such a howling success they up and planned another one for this year. It took place Friday at Flo and John Brooks Orangewood Acres home in Anaheim. Sure enough. Terrific again. Helen and Bob Buck were in charge and assisting the Bucks and the Brooks were the Keanes—Ruby and Bart. Ruby is LW president.

Bitter and Sweet Dept.: Season's joy was diminished by the departure last weekend of Jean Hunter for home in Ashton, Idaho. She's been visiting her mother, Mrs. Roland C. Lewis, for several weeks but now it was time to get back to fireside and Ralph. Ralph, himself, was here briefly over Thanksgiving from his publishers duties on the Ashton Herald.

"And this is good old Boston
The home of the bean and the cod
Where the Lowells talk to the Cabots
And the Cabots talk only to God."

If that's the case let's hope there are some good old Smiths and Joneses around Boston for Val and Marta Moore to talk to! They left Tuesday for a visit to the capital of Massachusetts.

We Welcome

Sergeant, 'Platoon' Thaw Here

By JEAN B. MOORE

Place a Floridian in Alaska and what does it do? Shivers, naturally. Transplant it to Southern California, and then what? It thrives! This is top secret information and none of it must get to Florida or Ola Van Deusen's name is mud.

When she married into the Army she realized her existence would be somewhat nomadic, but the temperature extremes were something else to reckon with.

Summers at Ft. Richardson up there near Anchorage were mild. The winters—brrr. Many winter days during the three years she and her sergeant husband and their two daughters spent in the cold country the temperature dipped to a nasty 20-some degree below zero. That sort of thing was a bit rough on both the Van Deusens. Del, or Van as he's called in the Army, was born in Fresno, so it was an experience to say the least, that Alaska venture.

Since September they have been thawing out in Southern California. Van was a chief personnel clerk at Ft. Richardson and is doing similar work in the adjutant general's section at Ft. MacArthur in San Pedro. They make their home at 798 W. 29th St. San Pedro. They lived in Richmond, Calif., for about two years before going to Alaska.

The Alaska venture made somewhat of a heroine out of the Van Deusens' elder daughter, Janice. Most of the pupils in her first grade at Ft. Fernin School have never been out of the state. Golly, to listen to someone who has been to Alaska, that's something!

Ola grew up in Hamilton, Fla., and before her marriage did clerical work in Columbus, Ga. Just over the state line from her home. She likes to sew things for herself and her little girls in Alaska, as here, she and her husband attend the NCO Club and the Protestant Chapel at the fort.

Further hush-hush information is Ola's opinion of California vs. Florida. In small letters, so as to offend no one, she

LIVED IN ALASKA

Funny how popular dad becomes when he's about to whip up a batch of candy. Dad in this instance is Sgt. 1/C Delmer L. Van Deusen who is stationed at Fort MacArthur. His lady friends, sporting their most infectious smiles as if to speed him up, are his family, Janice, 6; Ola, his wife, and Joanie, 3. Previously they were stationed at Ft. Richardson, Alaska.—(Staff photo by Mary Neiswender.)

—shh—finds life in California more interesting.

Van has decided to make the Army his career. Before World War II called him, and for a two-year period when he was again a civilian, he clerked in an auto parts store in Fresno.

Off duty, Van likes to play golf, even in Alaska. June was a good month for the sport up Anchorage way. Photography is another hobby of the first sergeant. The interest started in the northern country, and he has many color slides to remind his family of their life there.

Alaska had two television stations during the Van Deusens' stay, but reception was fairly poor. Now that almost every channel has a program to offer in their new home, all four are having a good time catching up.

And if his girls are very good, all three of them, sometimes the sergeant will putter about in the kitchen while they're watching a show. Pretty soon a wonderful fragrance emanates from that vicinity, and not long after that there's a plate set before them filled with the creamiest fudge or lightest divinity as only the sergeant can make it.

LONG BEACH STATE COLLEGE EVENTS
by PLACER MINER

A most distressing situation at Long Beach State College is about to be remedied. If you are familiar with the State campus, the following explanation is superfluous. But there are two roads that run from the lower campus on Anaheim Rd. to the upper campus on 7th St., and neither of these thoroughfares have a name.

A contest open to all students at LBSC has been set up to give these channels for autos a name. Entries for the "Name the Road" contest may be placed in a sealed box in the Activities Office, and then the winning entry will be submitted to the president's council for final approval. Somehow it gets to be a winning entry between the sealed box and the press's council. Winner or winners of the contest will receive a pen and box of stationery from the college book store, and a classified or display ad from the Forty-Niner. Depend on it, when the winning names are announced they will appear here. Think how handy it will be if you are driving in a dense fog and you look up and see _____ written on a sign board. Now you'll know where you are.

Last night the annual Christmas dance for LBSC was held at the Pacific Coast Club with the theme "Winter Wonderland." Two large white Christmas trees were covered with blue lights and bangles, and the tables arranged in the shape of a star with table decorations of silver and blue to complete the decor. The hard working committee which made this dance a success, deserve some mention: Committee chairman was Connie Markel; Nellie Bell handled the dance bids; Shirley Clem and Elynn Wilson worked on the dance decorations; Doug Strong and Lynn Richmond arranged for the orchestra, and John Munley worked on the publicity.

Holiday cheer is starting to fill the Long Beach State campus and overflow onto the unnamed roads, what with the annual Christmas dance, the starting of tradition with the decoration of the yule tree, and the Christmas assembly for 1955. The program is sponsored by the Associated Women Students, and on tap for next Wednesday will be selections from "Amahl and the Night Visitor," the LBSC Choir, a short musical program from the deans of LBSC (?) and a short talk on the Bill of Rights.

Ceylon, Cuba, Denmark, France, The Netherlands and Sweden are calling for American students. Graduate scholarships and fellowships are being offered by foreign governments and universities to citizens of the United States. Interested parties should contact, the U. S. Student Department, Institute of International Education, 1 E. 67th St., New York 21, N. Y.

Christmas Eve of 1931 NBC television produced a modern Christmas opera before an audience of millions. "Amahl and the Night Visitors" in four years has turned into a Christmas classic. One of the reasons so many organizations like to try "Amahl" is that it gives them a chance to try something new and it presents a challenge in production, stage setting, choreography and lighting. The Long Beach State College Opera Workshop has scheduled "Amahl and the Night Visitors" for two productions next Friday and Saturday in the Little Theatre at 8:30 p. m.

The "Who's Who" of Long Beach State College will hit the campus tomorrow in the form of a student directory put out by the Tau Kappa Epsilon Fraternity. The book lists all LBSC faculty, students, their addresses and phone numbers. Over 5,000 names are contained in the Student Directory. Last year it sold for 25 cents to defray the cost of printing. The fraternity planned the book as a public service to the college.

The Psi Kappa Alpha, business and commercial fraternity, sponsored a film about the future last Thursday night. The literary world has its 1984 and Big Brother, but the National Chamber of Commerce has its film 1975. Based on a survey of businesses and industries that are working on projects for the future, the film showed such items as driverless automobiles, and electronically controlled kitchens. Earlier in the week the Honorable Craig Hosmer, Representative of the 18th Congressional District of California, spoke on the "Feather River Project."

CHRISTMAS IS COMING!
Wives of Navy Doctors Club will meet Dec. 14 for their annual Christmas party at Allen Center. Aware of the needs of others at this holiday time, the club has adopted two Navy families, each with a large number of children, and will supply them with a bounteous Christmas. Little Club to Install at Jolly Noel Party

This year, as always, altruistic members of Little Club, one of the city's most honored philanthropic groups, will pause in the busy course of their lives to share the goodness and pleasure of a Christmas party together. A few minutes will be borrowed from the gaiety of the day for the serious purpose of installing the new slate of officers at which time Mrs. Karl Hawthorne will be seated as president.

The annual party will be given in the home of Mrs. William W. Jenney, 4236 Country Club Dr. Wednesday beginning at 12:30 p. m. The warmth and beauty of the season will be typified in the decorations which will be predominately the bright reds and clear greens of Christmas with profuse use of poinsettias, leaves and candles.

Ruth Craig Merrell, public relations chairman; John Halbert, production chairman; A. J. Danstrom, distribution chairman; James Craig, social chairman; and Mrs. Milton McGrew, outgoing president, who will serve in the ensuing year as chairman of ways and means.

This Christmas party is one of but two social affairs of the year for Little Club members who devote their time to making layettes for the needy throughout the months. For any mother-to-be in need of a layette, a single call will bring the needed baby raiment.

VCC Setting as Waltzers Dine, Dance

Tradition reigns at Christmastime. The fragrance of greens permeates rooms aglow with candlelight, and shiny baubles reflect the gaiety of partygoers as they dine and dance.

Yuletide's merry sounds ushered forth from Virginia Country Club last evening when Viennese Waltzers celebrated the joyous holidays with a dinner dance.

Garlands of redwood branches aspartle with ornaments formed a festive background for the formal gowns as guests gathered in the lounge. Cocktails preceded the dinner.

On the dinner tables were red cone trees also bright with baubles. Couples danced to the music of John Brownling's Orchestra.

Spongberg-Black Names Linked

Her parents' 24th wedding anniversary was the date chosen by Dolores Jean Black for her wedding Nov. 25 to Gary L. Spongberg. Solemnized in Lakewood Community Methodist Church, the double ring ceremony was read by the Rev. Marvin Johnson before a company of 300 guests.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Black of Garden Grove, formerly of Long Beach. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Virgil L. Spongberg of 495 Market St.

The church was beautifully decorated for the 8 p.m. service with baskets of white chrysanthemums and yellow pompons. The bride was escorted by her father down a bridal aisle outlined with the same lovely flowers and the glow of tapers in flower bedecked candelabra was reflected in gleaming white satin bows.

For her wedding, the bride selected a gown of traditional white. The fitted bodice of Chantilly lace featured long sleeves and sequins accented the portrait neckline. Sequin-trimmed medallions were applied on the billowing skirt of nylon tulle which swept into a full train. Pearls and sequins adorned a tiny pill-box cap which caught a fingertip veil of illusion nylon net. She carried lilies of the valley surrounded by a cluster of gardenias, centered by a detachable white orchid.

The bride's cousin, Mrs. Donald G. Kincaid served as matron of honor. She was attired in a gold-colored gown of crystallette, styled with a bouffant skirt and bolero jacket, and wore a matching tulle and white lace mitts. Her nosegay of tinted gold and green pompon chrysanthemums was tied with matching satin ribbon and nylon net.

Bridesmaids, Mmes. Robert E. Egan, Errol F. Greenleaf and Lois Phillips wore gowns of the same hue and carried nosegays of gold-tinted pompons tied with gold and green satin ribbon and net.

Flower girl Linda Young scattered pink rose petals in a white runner covering the bridal aisle. Mark Spongberg was ring bearer.

The bridegroom's brother, V. Jay Spongberg, stood with him as best man; ushers were William Black, Doug Hurlbert and Dave Child.

At a reception in the church following the ceremony, the newlyweds cut a five-tiered wedding cake which was surrounded by miniature nosegays repeating the colors of the bride's bouquet.

Mrs. R. M. Saldana obtained signatures for the bride's book.

The bride attended Woodrow Wilson High School and Fullerton Junior College; her husband received his schooling at Jordan High School and Brigham Young University.

The couple returned from a honeymoon in Las Vegas to establish their home at 1363 Ximeno Ave. on Dec. 1.

Gay Decor to Brighten Yule Affair

Mrs. Gilbert Wagner will again open her spacious home at 5912 Bay Shore Walk for the annual Christmas party of the Alamitos Bay Garden Club next Thursday beginning at 11:30 a.m. Approximately 100 members will enjoy the seasonal activities.

The guests will truly revel in a "white" Christmas, thanks to the capable hostess who annually decorates her home in a clever motif appropriate to the occasion, and this year is using snowy white accented by brilliant red, symbolic of the season.

Assisting Mrs. Wagner will be Mrs. John E. Bauernschmidt. Those who will assist in serving the luncheon will be Mmes. Sidney T. Exley Sr., Frederick Kellogg, Eugene C. Jones, John Henry Bryson, Fred A. Koester, Llewellyn Bixby Jr., Gordon Dougherty, Robert Mills, Lewis D. Reese, William Jensen, Dorothy W. Scott and Horace T. Fay.

"Santa's Helpers" during the informal gift exchange will be Mmes. Woodrow W. Smith, Richard P. Glasco and William Jensen.

The festivities will take on added meaning at the close of the day with the singing of Christmas carols by all, accompanied by Mrs. Robert C. McKissock.

Hendersons' Open House

Old Santa Claus himself greeted guests from the front door plaque at the beautiful new home of Mr. and Mrs. John Henderson when they welcomed more than 100 friends at a Christmas open house.

Pink snow glittered on a tree adorned with bright ornaments, adding a festive note to the living room of the residence at 2310 Pine Ave. Red carnations and glowing tapers combined with holly decorated the buffet supper table.

Assisting the Hendersons were Messrs. and Mmes. Albert Bristol, Arthur Green, James Herley and Robert Ivey.

Royal Neighbors

Royal Neighbors Camp 3822 will meet at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday in Machinists Hall for a Christmas party. Eva Eastman is chairman of the evening.

ANOTHER 'FIRST' AT LBSC

Zeta Tau Alpha Establishes Precedent at State College

Zeta Tau Alpha sorority has been invited to colonize at Long Beach State College, after the sorority had given official expression of interest to the college administration, announces Dr. Lois J. Swanson, associate dean of student activities.

The invitation issued to the Zeta Tau Alpha is in keeping with the established policy of State College in inviting sororities to colonize on campus as the existing sororities become stabilized.

The Long Beach State Colony is the first Zeta Tau Alpha to be established in the California State College system. Other Zeta Tau Alpha chapters in California are located at the University of Southern California, University of California at Los Angeles, and the University of California.

Locally, the new colony will have the support of a strong Alumnae chapter. The Long Beach Chapter of Zeta Tau Alpha was organized in 1937 with a membership of 15. Since that time it has grown to 43 members who represent 21 colleges.

The chapter is a member of the Southern California Federation of Zeta Alpha, and a member of The Long Beach Pan Hellenic. Activities which have received support from the local group are: Have-a-Heart Bazaar, National Society of Crippled Children and Adults Orthopedic Hospital, Exceptional Children's Foundation, Long Beach Osteopathic Hospital, and Tucker Clinic. The organization also has furnished secretarial services to the International Council for Exceptional Children.

Several members of the sorority are currently enrolled at Long Beach State College. Helping to organize the colony is Miss Claudia Lorenz, National Chapter counselor.

By VIRGINIA NEWTON

The magic time of gay anticipation is here and with it many parties and sparkling events.

Two important service set clubs have announced wonderful yuletide dates. The Coast Guard Officers Wives Club on Tuesday, Dec. 20, have a Christmas luncheon party at 12:30 p. m. at Allen Center with Mrs. W. E. Ireland and Mrs. E. V. Carlson as hostesses.

The Christmas luncheon party of the other popular club, the Nautical Club, will be on Dec. 15 at Allen Center. At noon members will be greeted by the senior hostess, Mrs. Philip Ruth, president, assisted by Mrs. H. Koons and E. O'Brien. Members are reminded to bring gifts for an exchange of gifts, and canned goods for their Christmas baskets for needy families.

Both clubs also are having evening parties. The Nautical Club will welcome husbands and guests on Dec. 14 at the cocktail hour at Allen Center. Then on Saturday, Dec. 17 all officers of the 11th Coast Guard District and those attached to ships in this area will join their wives and guests for the annual Christmas dinner dance of the group. It will be a gala affair and will be held at the Officers Club, Fort MacArthur.

New residents here from Japan in time for a wonderful Christmas in the United States are Comdr. and Mrs. William Kitch and family, who are now at home to their friends at 231 San Remo Dr., Naples.

Lt. (jg) and Mrs. Chester Tweedle are telling the world about their first arrival, pretty little Pamela Ann, who weighed in at 6 pounds 12 ozs.

Last night Lt. and Mrs. R. W. Banfield entertained in their home at the cocktail hour with a gay holiday event. Attending were officers attached to the USS Mathews and their wives.

Not to be forgotten in the exciting club plans for the yuletide is the attractive Christmas luncheon party planned by the Officers Wives Club of NAS, Los Alamitos for Thursday, Dec. 15 at the BOQ aboard the station.

Hostesses for the day will be Mmes. W. F. Proper, O. Skartland, and L. E. Ragan.

Reservations should be made as soon as possible with Mrs. J. F. Daly of 222 East First. Apt. 2. Members are reminded to bring food donations for the club's project—needy Navy families.

Then, with the holiday spirit riding high, the group has planned a buffet supper party to welcome husbands and guests on the evening of Dec. 18 at BOQ.

And speaking of popular and busy clubs, the Mine Force Officers Wives Club members will enjoy a pretty yuletide luncheon on Friday, Dec. 16 at Allen Center. Hostesses will be the newly elected officers. The event will honor their newest member, Mrs. M. E. Murphy, wife of Rear Admiral Murphy, Commander, Mine Forces, Pacific.

It'll be a white Christmas for Lt. Comdr. and Mrs. W. H. Auerswald and daughters Susan and Linda who are flying back next week to Bridgeport, Ill. to be the Christmas house guests of the naval officer's mother, Mrs. H. F. Auerswald.

Monday night was Capt. John Schwager's birthday so Mrs. Schwager went right ahead and baked a cake and planned a celebration; and sure enough Capt. Schwager and his buddies flew in from Peru right on time. On hand to greet their husbands' return with Christmas wonders from Peru were: Mmes Edward Goodrich, Clyde Sikes, and Robert Peterson.

Looks like Harvey Way out in Lakewood is going to be known as the street of Admirals. Newest admiral to purchase a home there is Rear Admiral William Winter Jr., USN (ret) and Mrs. Winter, daughter Doreen and son William Malcom Winter, who are now at home to their many friends at 5315 Harvey Way, right across the street from Rear Admiral George J. McMillin, USN, (ret) and charming Mrs. McMillin.

The Winters are delighted to be here for a Christmas in the United States, for they but recently came from Athens, Greece, the last duty station Winter held before retiring.

Another reason they are so pleased to be here is that when young Ensign Winter years ago reported for his duty aboard the old Oklahoma stationed in Long Beach, he brought his bride here and they vowed they'd return and retire to this wonderful city.

Last Thursday the wives of officers attached to Destroyer Squadron Nine enjoyed a delightful Christmas luncheon party at Allen Center. Wives of officers attached to the staff were hostesses. They were: Mmes R. L. Nolan Jr., who was assisted by Mmes J.S.C. Gabbert, M. W. Walton, J. R. Thorndyke, W. R. Howard, and G. D. Hale.

Mrs. Gustav Kraft entertained at a pretty dessert bridge party at her home last week in a farewell to her guest of honor Doris Wolfe who is leaving shortly for Japan.

And speaking of the Far East, Capt. Robert Oblinsky, who will go to Palm Beach, Fla., for two months temporary

Air Force Duty, will early in next year head for duty in Japan. Mrs. Oblinsky and the children are making exciting plans to follow.

The Fleet Officers Wives Club members and their guests enjoyed a Christmas coffee last Thursday morning.

Lt. and Mrs. Dale Cress entertained last night at the cocktail hour for a group of friends who gathered at the BOQ, NAS, Los Alamitos.

Lt. and Mrs. Melvin Blixt have as their house guests Mrs. Blixt's mother and sister, Mrs. Lucille Titman and Pat from Aurora, Neb.

Going back east for a white Christmas are Lt. and Mrs. D. G. Sunberg who will go to Minnesota, and Lt. and Mrs. J. P. Hannigan who are heading for Missouri.

New members welcomed at the Christmas luncheon party of the Long Beach Air Force

Officers Wives Club were Mrs. Ronald Levy and Mrs. Vernon Peters.

Newlyweds Lt. and Mrs. F. Eickler of the Air Force set moved into their lovely new home in Westminster last Friday.

Comdr. and Mrs. B. A. Miles and family returned from a most exciting trip far down into Mexico.

Ensign and Mrs. Elton Curran of 42½ St. Joseph Ave., entertained at a buffet dinner party. Lt. (jg) H. G. Steckley, whom Ens. Curran relieved on the USS Summitt County, and Mrs. Steckley. The Steckleys have as their house guests, the Navy officer's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin E. Steckley from Nebraska.

Dr. E. C. Drews of NAS, Los Alamitos and Mrs. Drews are proudly telling everyone about their holiday gift, their new baby, pretty little Colleen Elizabeth.

Sparkling Luncheon

Silver, gold and white will set the color theme for luncheon tables at Virginia Country Club Wednesday when the auxiliary to the Children's Memorial Hospital enjoys its annual yuletide fun fest. Santa, resplendent in a white and gold suit, will ride a sleigh, drawn by prancing white reindeer, down the center of the table.

In charge of the event will be the hospitality committee, headed by Mrs. Leo McCreary. Her co-hostesses are Mmes. Romaine Akers, Paul Barnes, O. K. Hoffman, W. F. Myers, Kelly Kirkwood and Virgie Rothwell.

Sally Cannon, vocal soloist, accompanied by Mrs. Fern Bonzer, will furnish Christmas music.

Young Musicians to Perform

Spotlighting the year's musical horizon will be Marilyn Horne, soprano, and John Browning, pianist, in a joint concert Jan. 8, at Municipal Auditorium Concert Hall. Both artists are known, not only throughout the Southern California area but nationwide as well.

Miss Horne, from our own city of Long Beach, has had appearances under the baton of Stokowski, Stravinsky, Rodger Wagner and Bernard Hermann. She has been soloist with the Hollywood Bowl, Standard Hour, Sunday Afternoon Museum Concerts, Monday Evening Concerts and was winner of the Arthur Godfrey Talent Scout Show. Last year Miss Horne appeared as the voice of Carmen in the 20th Century Fox production of "Carmen Jones." Next August she will leave for Germany to sing two seasons with a German Opera Company.

John Browning of Los Angeles, strode into national prominence within the past two years when he became winner of the most coveted awards for all pianists, the Steinway Centennial and Edgar M. Leventritt awards in New York. Outstanding among his many solo appearances are those with the Los Angeles Philharmonic, Denver Symphony, Hollywood Bowl and Pacific Coast Festival Standard Hour Broadcast. On Feb. 5, Mr. Browning will be soloist with the New York Philharmonic on a nationwide broadcast.

Miss Marilyn Horne

Each year the Symphony Juniors sponsor some large project for the purpose of raising money for a continuance fund which helps to support the Los Angeles Philharmonic concerts in Long Beach. Ways and means chairman of this concert is Mrs. James Herley. Her committee includes Mmes. Marshall Julian, Leo Rauch, Gordon Shawver and Edward Killingsworth.

Tickets may be purchased at Humphrey's Ticket Office or by contacting ticket chairman, Mrs. Marshall W. Julian, 3190 Eucalyptus Ave.

Major Club Plans Major Celebration

Highlighting the all day session of Woman's City Club when members gather Friday at 1:30 p.m. in Morgan Hall, 835 Locust Ave., will be the celebration of the club's 43rd birthday. All past presidents will be honored guests of the day.

For the third year in succession by popular request the St. Anthony's Boys Choir will entertain. Mrs. George Baldwin, Bible chairman, will present an illustrated program with songs of the old and beautiful Christmas story in four scenes. The music was arranged by Mrs. Myranna R. Coon, music chairman, before her departure abroad to spend the Christmas holidays in her native Wales. Mrs. Ruth C. Runyan will conduct a short business meeting.

Medical Assistants, National Secretaries in Party Mood

By Anne Gilchrist

They will doff their white uniforms in favor of party dress and exchange the clean aura of antiseptics for the sweet odor of perfume. "They" are Medical Assistants who will gather en masse tomorrow evening at the fashionable new Petroleum Club for their annual Christmas dinner party.

Hostesses of the evening planning festive party accoutrements are Marsha Smith, Mildren Carelton, Margarette Lorenzen, Ella Esposito Wilson and Anna McPhail. Virginia Mitchell will have charge of community carol singing.

There will be the usual exchange of gifts between the assistants and all will bring tree decorations, canned food and money contributions for Christmas remembrance for their "adopted" needy family at the holiday.

National Secretaries Members and guests of Queen Beach chapter of National Secretaries officially opened their holiday season with the group's annual Christmas party Tuesday at Kennedy Center, U.S. Naval Station. White Christmas trees and glittering snow scenes were lavishly used throughout the clubrooms. Organist Ray Whitaker provided appropriate musical background to the evening.

President Marie Wells introduced three guests from the Los Angeles chapter including Miss Dorothy Devlin, president. Highlight of the party is always the revealing of the year's secret sisters which is accomplished with the distribution of gifts from the sister-member who has provided courtesies throughout the year.

Not forgetting others, each secretary brought foodstuff for the Christmas charity project to be distributed to patients of Long Beach General Hospital who are able to go home for the holidays. Vervyl Sumrall is in charge of the second part of the holiday project; buying toys from the chapter for the Children's Ward at General Hospital.

Quota Club

Ballerina Room of the Lafayette Hotel was setting Monday for the meeting of Quota Club. Rita Stanfield, vice president and chairman of the club's civic and community affairs committee, introduced guest speaker Judge Roberta Butzbach who recounted some of her experiences as a judge. Although they ranged from the sordid and tragic to the pathetic and to the ridiculous, it was evident this very feminine and attractive woman was able to maintain a true sense of balance and values despite the mental hazards of her occupation.

Program music was furnished by Beulah Sanders and her all-girl barbershop quartet.

Margaret Ives BPW

A full evening of business discussion and plan making occupied members of Margaret Ives Business and Professional Womens Club when they met at the YWCA Monday. With President Hazel Hamilton conducting the meeting, Mabel Crossley, chairman, gave the final reading of amended by-laws for consideration. Plans were completed for two holiday parties, both of which will take place at the home of Miss Little Lee, 2234 Cameron St. First will be a buffet dinner dance tonight to which 30 foreign students studying in Long Beach will be special guests. The International relations committee, of which Miss Lee is chairman, is sponsor of the affair.

The second party will be the club's annual Christmas affair for members and will take place Dec. 19 to be arranged by the recreation committee with Mrs. Marguerite Wood, chairman. Members will bring toys for the "Toys for Tots" Marine Corps project. Games, exchange of gifts and special refreshments will conclude this evening. Novel idea for the gift exchange this year: each person must wear the article she brings for another.

Zonta Club

When Vivian Showalter, president of Zonta Club, opened her home for recent board meeting, two considerations were uppermost... to decide how the club could make Christmas a little happier for those less fortunate and to add a few happy surprises to Myranna Coon's luggage. Mrs. Coon, after an absence of 29 years, left by plane last Sunday to spend Christmas with her family in London and Wales. A past president of Zonta, she plans to remain abroad until early in January.

Why Grow Old?

Here Are Important Facts to Know About Exercise

Everyone should know the following, well established facts about exercise:

1. Exercise is one of the factors which contributes greatly to physical fitness. But remember, capacity for exercise differs with the individual. Sometimes even young people do not react well to it.
2. Your ability to recuperate after exercise is a good gauge of how much you should take, whatever your age. If you are tired and weak following exercise, even after a rest period, you are doing too much. If your heart and breathing are still too fast after 10 minutes following exercise, you do not react well to it.
3. Hard competitive games should not be played after the age of 30 or 35 unless you have been playing them constantly and are accustomed to them.
4. If you are out of training you should not compete with those in training or with those much younger than you.
5. You should have your heart and blood pressure checked before beginning any course of exercise.
6. The improved circulation which exercise demands makes the heart stronger and more efficient. Prolonged inactivity does just the opposite.
7. If you are "soft" or out of condition you will need a conditioning period. By this I mean that you will have to begin exercise very slowly and build up the amount you do very gradually.
8. Swimming and golf are two sports you can profit by at any age if you are moderate.

Chef of the Week

Sailor, Soldier---and Cook, That's Librarian Castagna

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
Independent Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

He champions life in most of its various aspects, and his range of interests is wide. An inquiring mind, and a versatile appreciation of things, events and people, have produced a well balanced, well informed and interesting person. Chef of the Week Edwin Castagna can enjoy a bull fight, a ballet or a political conclave with the same intense enthusiasm; and his knowledge of each is on a par.

"The Egg and I" narration has a special meaning for Castagna, for he was born at Petaluma, Calif. . . the land of the super egg supply. At the age of 17, upon completion of Petaluma High and Santa Rosa Jr. College, he went to sea; and as a deck hand, toured the South Pacific, the Fiji Islands, Samoa and Australia.

His decision to conclude his sea voyage and return to college was simultaneous with the big depression. But he won at all odds, and in due time received his library degree at U. C., Berkeley.

Somewhere in his busy life, World War II overtook him, and he volunteered for combat duty as a private. Three years and three campaigns later, he emerged with the bars of a captain. For his activities beyond the call of duty, he was the recipient of both the bronze star and the purple heart.

Castagna's first library assignment was at Ukiah, Calif. After that came Washoe Co., Nev.; his headquarters being at Reno—then Glendale, Calif., as chief librarian, and finally Long Beach in 1950, as City Librarian, the position he now holds.

Were we to attempt an evaluation of his present hopes and aspirations, we'd say, first—he wants a brand new library building and the best possible library system for Long Beach. Secondly, he is constantly keeping a keen and active desire at work in behalf of world peace. A member of the American Association for United Nations, he serves Long Beach as president of its local chapter.

Our "chef" has other propensities, too. He's a writer. Not only has he authored a book—"The History of the 771st Tank Battalion," but has had many of his articles published in professional magazines.

He has a way with seasonings, too, which he no doubt inherited from his French mother. He can whip up a

AAUW Christmas Tea Today

The lovely home of Mrs. Ruth Craig Merrell, at 4201 Chestnut Ave., will be the setting for the American Association of University Women's Christmas tea today, from 2 to 5 p. m.

A huge spray of glittering silver balls will form a canopy over the tea table in the dining room, and beneath it a candelabra of balls with two flaming wassail bowls at each end. With the wassail will be served tiny Christmas wreath and holiday cookies with red and white frosting.

Santa Claus and his sleigh and reindeer on the railing of the staircase will add bright color to the entrance hall, while sprays of colored balls with greenery and clouds of angel hair will carry out the Christmas motif in the spacious living room. Tucked away amid the decorations will be a manger scene with tiny wax figures of the Madonna and Child, angels, wisemen and shepherds.

Arrangements for the tea have been made by Mrs.

Arthur Huey and her committee, and pouring at the wassail table will be Mmes. H. W. Funke, Franz B. Buerger, Frances N. Nielsen, George L. Geiger Jr., Robert Shoemaker, Frank Hardesty, Claire Bech-craz and Miss N. Evelyn Davis.

Heading the receiving line, in gay formal, will be Miss Hazel Collins, president of the club, and some of the members of her board.

Ocean Blvd. The show, principally paintings with a few pieces of sculpture and some crafts, will remain in the Art Center through Jan. 15. Hours are Tuesday through Friday, 9-5; Sunday, 1-6.

Judges' commendations were: Lois Cytron, "California Coast"; Fran Soldini, "Pattern With Red Boat"; Howard Clapp, "Octane Power"; Elizabeth Zill, colored etching.

Studio-Workshop Art Gallery, 127 E. 1st St., announces its Christmas show, featuring the work of John Martin and Orval Dillingham, instructors at Long Beach State College. The show will open with a reception from 4 to 8 p.m. today.

Critics praise Martin for his clear colors and sharp silhouettes, and Dillingham for the warmth of his paintings.

The show will remain in the Studio-Workshop through Jan. 1.

Vic Smith, graduate of Long Beach State College with a master's degree in art, has his first one-man show in the county medical office, 8th St. and Pine Ave., where it may be seen this month 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. He is showing eight oil paintings and a drawing: "Aged Lovers," "Halcyon," "El Toro Blanco," "Self Portrait," "Portrait of My Father," "Tryst," "Crux," "Moon Scar" and "The Guitarist."

Smith has exhibited at the Long Beach Art Center's annual juried show where he received the judges' commendation award for design, expressive quality and technical competence. He exhibited in this year's California state fair.

John W. Olsen, coordinator of art at State College, says of him: "Vic Smith approaches paintings as a means of understanding as well as recording human experience. A certain emotional energy is revealed in his attempt to record, but his essential expression is tempered and clarified by a more formal yet equally urgent need to arrive at intellectual understanding and unification of experience."

settles and Cape Cod and a look at the wintery side of the Christmas season. They'll be back Tuesday or Wednesday. Actually, they don't worry about the Cabots, the Lowells—or even the Lodges—because they are very special guests of Val's cousin.

Virginia Dickie has been going around pinching Christmas trees. If she finds one so fresh it pinches back she'll buy it, content that it will last from now to Dec. 25. You see, she'd like to have one up for the holiday buffet she and Charles are having Thursday. Among the 24 guests, close personal friends, who will be present for the cozy party are Connie and Phil Putnam, Peggy and George Cain, Evelyn and "Kirk" Kirkceng and "Rick" and Lowell Bowton.

"Adios" said Helen and Bill Ward to house guests, Antonio and Sara Zorola last weekend as the charming pair from Mexico City, who visited here with the Wards for two weeks, left for their home south of the border.

The holiday got off in a blaze of glory for friends of Gwen and Deon Jones, 4520 Cerritos Dr., last night when the cute pair entertained at a Christmas-flavored cocktail party that practically sent everyone on their way feeling like they had jingle bells on their toes!

LuVailean Poetry Club will meet Tuesday from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Municipal Art Center. Poetry workshop session and reading of Christmas poems will be featured. The meeting will be open to the public.

Key Your Gift Selection to Recipients' Interests

By ANGELO PATHI

Christmas is the day we honor children by giving them the things we hope they would like to have. Following the example of the Magi, one gift is for practical use, one for the soul, one for unadulterated pleasure. For these we search the shops, always keeping in mind the child for whom the gift is intended.

There is something here to think about: one is likely to select the gift one likes himself or one which he wants the child to like regardless of the tastes, ability or desire of the child. That sort of gift spoils Christmas, as the gift of piano lessons for a year ruined the Christmas of a boy who yearned for a sports outfit.

The gift of useful articles like clothing is usually acceptable if the child's tastes have been considered. When Auntie wants to give her beloved niece a sweater, she should make certain that it is in style of the right color and pattern. When grandmother wants to give his favorite grandson a watch, he had better consult the parents as to the lad's wants or needs. The boy's heart may be set on a stop watch, and what a grief to open the box and find a wrist style when he already has one! Checking along this line can be a great help.

The gift for the soul, and how important that is, should be a book. The selection of the book should be given a thorough period of research. It ought to be a book that accents an ideal. It must be a book that the child will read without tiring effort. That means his tastes are noted, that the book itself is well made as to paper, binding and type; that the story itself has been done by a top writer, an authority in his field. Select one just a shade easier to read than the youngster's grade in school or college would indicate. This book is to be read easily rather than used as a text.

Now comes the gift for pure pleasure, a bit of a luxury for the child, something he would not have ordinarily. The gift doll for the little girl should be as unusual as possible, have something about it that is not common to dolls. The toy for the runabout should be gay, allow him to do things with it such as building, hauling, riding—not just to hold or to look at. And, of course, it must be a safe article, without cutting edges, or paint that might be harmful if a youngster licked it off.

Making their home in Long Beach following their wedding in St. Columban Catholic Church, Garden Grove, are Mr. and Mrs. John W. Flannery. She is the former Alphonsine Louise Troch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alphons Troch of Garden Grove; her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Flannery of 420 Plenty St. The bride is a graduate of St. Anthony's High School; the bridegroom received his education at Hammond, Ind.

The pleasure gift for a boy is usually a sports article—balls, bats, gloves, racquettes, golf clubs—something just for fun. Again the gift must be related to the tastes and the abilities of the child.

That's the whole idea of Christmas. This feature appears daily in the Independent.

Look Who's Dancing

(These articles will appear regularly in Sunday's Independent, Press-Telegram to announce meetings of invitational dance groups at Fine Arts Center.)

Dancers currently assembling at Fine Arts Center will be greeted with a holiday decor aglow with all the colorful brilliance of our merriest season set to the tempo of swing time. The results of hours of exciting preparations for special party features keyed to the yuletide mood will be revealed when 13 of the groups attend scheduled meetings this week.

Can a Future Messiah Better Jesus' Teachings?

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Case Q-318: Martin L. aged 34, is a very successful Chicago business executive.

"Dr. Crane, I am a Jew," he announced after my Bible class recently. We happen to live near this church and I saw on the bulletin board that you are the teacher.

"Since I follow your column regularly in the Chicago paper, I wanted to hear you in person. My wife and I are both Jews. But we don't go to church regularly anywhere.

"I like the way you teach a Bible class, so what would you suggest I read to gain a better understanding of the Christian religion?"

Please remember that Christianity is a Jewish religion. It was launched by the King of the Jews, namely, Christ. And all 12 of his Apostles were Jews. Even to this day, many of the best Christian leaders,

Sunday school teachers and clergymen are Jews.

Remember, too, that Isaiah predicted with remarkable accuracy the crucifixion of Jesus over 700 years before it happened. That may be why the Three Wise Men were so well informed of the expected event, for Isaiah's prophecy was undoubtedly known all through the civilized world.

During World War II, Dr. Cavert reports a convocation of Christians and Jews among the soldiers at an army camp. At the conclusion of the mass meeting, a thoughtful Jewish lad asked the Rabbi in the foyer: "Is this Jesus they've been talking about today, our expected Messiah, or must we look for another?"

The Rabbi replied that Christ was a great man but not the predicted Messiah.

Then the Jewish soldier asked this provocative query: "Rabbi, what would our expected Messiah have on Jesus? so what are we waiting for?"

"Read the four Gospels of Matthew, Mark, Luke and John," I thus suggested to Martin, "and see what you think. You are an educated man. See if you can suggest even one trait that a future Messiah should possess that hasn't already been demonstrated in the portrayal of Jesus by the four Gospel writers.

"Or try to find a fault attributed to Christ. Is there anything he did or said that doesn't fit into the concept of a Messiah?"

Don't you want your Messiah to abhor prejudice or bias, as Jesus so notably demonstrated and taught? Don't you wish your Messiah to heal the sick, feed the hungry, give hope to the downcast, and preach the unselfishness of the Golden Rule?

"By their fruits ye shall know them," said Jesus, so look at the "fruits" of Christ's appearance here on Earth. Don't they betit the Son of God?

Has Confucius or Buddha or the Shinto religion, Zoroastrianism or any other cult ever remotely compared with the social benefits of Christianity?

You be the jury: See if you can write a character sketch of any future Messiah who would be an improvement on Jesus. This feature appears daily in the Independent.

Child Care
Jealousy Cause of Trouble

By JEAN H. SELIGMANN and MILTON I. LEVINE, M.D.

(Q) "I hope you can help me straighten out my 6-year-old son. His teacher (1st grade) says she is at a loss as to how to handle him. He is a bright boy but will not pay attention or do his work unless someone is helping. When the teacher is instructing other children Paul sits with his books closed. I try to help him at home—but he wants to give up if I merely point out a mistake. When I found out a year ago that he was jealous of his younger sister I paid more attention to him. Could these problems be connected. What should I do?"—Mrs. H. M.

(A) We definitely feel your son's school problem is related to the jealousy problem at home. The child wants all the attention focused on him and refuses to do what the teacher wants him to do unless he's getting personal attention.

The teacher, for many children during their first few years at school, is a mother substitute. In this case, your son is shifting his home situation to his school situation. While he is in school he may be worrying about what you and his little sister are doing together at home.

Rather than trying to help him with his school work, you should try to build up his self-confidence and self-importance. Some jealousy is natural and to be expected, but simply paying more attention will not necessarily help.

Molly Mayfield

Roomer Oversteps Her Bounds

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD: We have a problem which, due to minor irritations, is assuming more importance than perhaps it should.

We rented a room to a business girl this winter. The room is large and beautifully furnished with easy chairs, desk, lamps, bookcase, etc. We assumed that she would spend her time in her room when she was not out with friends. But that is not the case.

She comes every night and on Sundays into our living room to look at TV. Now evenings and Sundays are the only times that husband and wife have any time together to discuss family problems or just to visit. We think she is imposing on our hospitality.

We would like to invite her occasionally to come in and look at the programs, but she doesn't wait for invitations. We are very hospitable people and invite her to dinner or "coffee," but she is building up a resentment in us.

WHAT TO DO?????
DEAR WHAT TO DO?????

Actually, that is a ticklish question. You don't want to seem inhospitable, or rude, or selfish, and yet you do want your privacy—and have every right to it.

Let's face it—there is only one answer. Since the girl isn't sensitive enough to see

Oswald Jacoby Greed for Tricks Slams Back at Him

Seven diamonds is the best contract in today's hand. At this contract, South can cash the top hearts, ruff a heart with one of dummy's diamonds, get to his hand by overtaking a trump, ruff another heart, and then draw four rounds of trumps. He is then ready to take the rest of the tricks with high cards.

When the hand was actually played, South was in the quite reasonable contract of six no-trump. Moreover, it is important to note, South was playing in a bridge tournament, where extra tricks are very important.

West opened the jack of hearts, and South won with the king. Since the problem was to win at least four spade tricks, South took the ace of spades and next led a low spade towards dummy.

West innocently played the seven of spades on the second round of the suit, and South hesitated. At rubber bridge, the correct play would be to cover with dummy's eight of spades. If this won the trick, the slam would be assured. If East were able to win the trick, the spades would break no worse than four-two, in which case dummy would be able to win the next three spade tricks. Either way, the slam would be safe.

Since the hand was being played in a tournament, South hated to give up the chance that the spades were actually three-three. In this case he would be able to win all five spade tricks and thus make his contract with an overtrick.

Lured by this prospect, South put up the king of spades from the dummy. East discarded a club, and now the spade suit could not be brought in. South couldn't find any way to win 12 tricks from this point on, and his greed for the extra trick thus cost him his vulnerable slam!

You know you'd done wrong with this boy, but there is no reason for everyone else to know. Just as there is no need to your submitting to blackmail.—M. M.

Thundering Parade of Bulldozers Crumbles Old World in Venezuela

(Editor's Note: A new viewpoint on the economic and social conditions in Venezuela is reported here by Robert E. Lee of the Independent Press-Telegram Washington Bureau. Correspondent Lee recently returned from a trip to Caracas.)

BY ROBERT E. LEE

CARACAS, Venezuela—In this rich country of contrasts, television aerials bristle from the roofs of slum shacks that lack running water and modern skyscrapers cast their shadows on ancient Spanish churches.

But when the old and the new worlds meet—particularly in this fast-growing capital city—the old gradually crumbles before the inexorable bite of the bulldozers.

The changing face of Venezuela is thrown into sharp outline this month as the country winds up another year of whirlwind public works construction in a flurry of ribbon-cutting ceremonies.

The energetic government of Gen. Marcos Perez Jimenez has transformed more city slums into model low-rent housing developments and more country roads into four-lane highways.

Electric power lines and dial telephone service extend farther out from the big cities; modern schools have opened their doors to thousands of children; new tourist attractions have burgeoned.

SO MUCH HAS BEEN BUILT this year that dedication ceremonies for the 1955 total of 1,083 individual projects lasted from Dec. 2 until Dec. 11.

This year's tab for public works construction comes to some $331 million, bringing to over $1 billion the total that Perez Jimenez' government has poured into such projects in the last three years.

The oil boom, resulting largely from the investments of United States companies, has financed Venezuela's face-lifting. It shows no signs of bursting and still another great windfall is on the way.

Rich iron ore deposits worked by other U. S. firms soon will show more royalties into Venezuela's treasury.

For seven years the government—which started out as a three-man junta until one of the trio, Perez Jimenez, became constitutional president in 1952—has followed a policy of "sowing the oil" in public works and other activities designed to modernize the country.

At the same time new foreign investments in industry and agriculture have been encouraged, while local industry has been protected by high tariff walls in commodity areas where Venezuela has a chance of becoming self-sufficient.

THEORETICALLY THE POLICY will pay off all the way around. Venezuela will have to depend less on imports for her basic necessities, government pump-priming will produce more fields for both foreign and domestic capital to develop, and new domestic markets will consume more of the world's goods.

This correspondent a few days ago watched Perez Jimenez, a doughty little man in a simple but beribboned uniform, stand proudly before a battery of TV cameras to report to the nation on 1955 public works activity.

The next day the general president went out and dedicated a new school in Caracas, hiked a half mile in a broiling tropical sun along a new highway, and inspected several buildings in the newest low-cost housing project.

He kept up the pace for several days as he cut ribbons to signalize the opening of other projects—a modern telephone exchange, a suspended cable car line that will lift tourists to an elegant hotel atop Mt. Avila, new buildings at the national university. Meanwhile, his lieutenants were doing more of the same in the provinces.

THE $14 MILLION housing project is perhaps the most ambitious in the whole public works program. Apartments for 2,316 families are contained in the 65 brightly-painted concrete buildings which dominate a man-made plateau in the center of Caracas. Thirteen are 15 stories high, the remainder, four,

Dye Injection Technique Aids Heart Artery X-Rays

A new dye-injection technique, which makes heart arteries visible in X-rays, has been reported from the School of Medicine of the University of California at Los Angeles.

The technique was developed in animal experiments by Dr. Jack Cannon and associates of the department of surgery. Results of the experiments were presented at the recent meeting of the American College of Surgeons in Chicago. It is hoped that continued research may develop the technique to a point that it will be of value in the study and diagnosis of human heart disease.

The dye procedure involves inserting a plastic tube through an artery into the heart. It is similar to heart catheterization, which is accomplished through a vein.

An opaque dye is injected through the tube into heart arteries. A small rubber bulb on the end of the tube is inflated to increase pressure in the arteries, thus insuring that the dye is forced throughout the heart arterial system.

In the animal experiments X-ray pictures clearly showed the dye-infiltrated heart arteries. Arteries were tied, creating an obstruction which simulated the human heart disease, coronary thrombosis (plugging of heart arteries.) This was also clearly visible in the X-ray pictures.

TAPS FOR MILITARY MEN

Traffic 'Battles' Take Heavy Toll

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Are men in uniform likely to be traffic problems? The following article presents sobering facts which might well be taken to heart by all drivers, particularly in the holiday season.)

By VERA WILLIAMS

Lucius Beebe's description of the roaring 20's included the observation that motor accidents were in fashion; colleges counted their dead and maimed on Monday mornings and it was considered a neat trick to reduce a car to such a tangle of debris that a community billed you for removing it from the highways.

The 20's, however, can't compare with the deadly 50's. Paraphrasing Lucius Beebe, it could be said that deadly motor accidents are much in evidence; military services count their dead and maimed on Monday morning, and it's considered a neat trick to travel 600 miles, spend a day and a half living it up, and arrive back at a military base ALIVE, all on a 72-hour pass.

A high percentage of shattering traffic crashes involve service men.

IN LONG BEACH, police say, three members of military personnel have been killed this year in traffic accidents. In 1954, one military man was killed and 67 were injured in traffic accidents. Records show that 11.5 per cent of all traffic accidents here in 1954 involved military personnel. This percentage is considered high in view of the fact that men in uniform are heavily outnumbered by civilians and have fewer chances to drive than non-military men.

Traffic records for 1953 followed the same pattern. Police said of the 275 persons injured in the 17-42 age bracket; 58 were service personnel—21 per cent. Of 570 drivers involved in accidents, 17-46 age bracket, 92 were service personnel—16.8 per cent. Of eight persons killed in traffic, 19-22 age bracket, five were service personnel—62.5 per cent.

The California Highway Patrol reveals that in the first nine months of this year 4 per cent of the drivers involved in accidents in the state were military men, but 6.7 per cent of the drivers in fatal accidents were military.

This corroborates the long-held conclusion that military men figure high in fatal accidents—when they are in an accident it is likely to be a bad one.

THE CHIP co-operates with the armed forces by mailing copies of all citations issued to members of the armed forces to a central military dispatch point for dissemination to the command concerned.

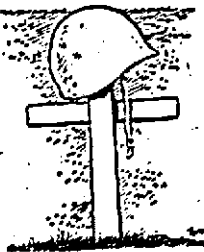

Periodically, insurance companies publish their risk ratings of automobile drivers by profession. In every instance, the low man on the totem pole is the enlisted serviceman. Why? In dollars and cents values the insurance companies often lose or break even on policies in this category.

The insurance company which insures the majority of officers and enlisted men in the armed forces was questioned about the problem. Company officials came up with the same answer: "The enlisted man travels too far in too short a time, and the end result is a higher percentage of accidents."

The big picture shows clearly why insurance companies are reluctant to insure service personnel. In one year a total of 1,288,000 persons were injured or killed in automobile accidents in the nation. Of this total, 18,000 were in the armed forces.

A HIGH PERCENTAGE of motor vehicle accidents for both civilian and military is the result of drinking. The civilian population has the advantage over the military. Nine times out of 10, the civilian does his drinking in familiar territory. His subconscious mind remembers stop lights and traffic hazards.

But when a serviceman makes a wet liberty he's likely to be in a strange city where, even under normal conditions, it requires every facility to drive within the law.

LEGEND OF 'LUNCHBOX HARRY'

Sea Boss 'Burns' Bridges Behind Him

(Editor's Note: The world's highest paid sailors are members of the AFL maritime unions run by 54-year-old Norwegian-born Harry Lundeberg—a man who has reached the top through tough talk and tough action. Here's a closeup of "Lunchbox Harry.")

By LEONARD MILLIMAN
SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Harry Lundeberg is the big tough boss of a big tough union.

The 190 pound, 6 foot 2½ head of the AFL sailors has been shot at, has had his jutting jaw splintered in an interunion fight, and had his nose "pushed around," as he puts it.

The 20-year rise of this Norwegian-born sailor to the top of AFL maritime unions has been marked by an abiding hatred of Communists. With Lundeberg, that's pretty sweeping. You're either for Lundeberg or you're a Commie—or Commie lover.

He has attacked, and been attacked by, almost every other maritime and waterfront leader. But his favorite and most consistent target is Harry Bridges, the man who started him on the rise to labor power and who now heads the Independent International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

As unvarying as his hatreds have been Lundeberg's broad Norwegian accent and his dress. He never wears a tie—except at funerals. He wears a cap, indoors and out.

His open shirt collar exposes a hairy, barrel chest. The sleeves are rolled up, revealing tattoo marks of his seafaring days. Lundeberg dresses the same, whether going out with his smartly tailored second wife, his first marriage ended in divorce in 1941, appearing before congressional committees in Washington, or sitting behind the huge mahogany desk in the two million dollar sailors hall here.

TO "LUNCHBOX HARRY" a name applied by his sailors, there's just one way of doing things—the sailor's way. And it can be rough—whether it's the bloody capture of another union or a strike that ties up the Pacific Coast waterfront.

But it has paid off. His West Coast sailors are the highest-paid seamen in the world.

At 54 Lundeberg, fiercely proud of the Americanism he acquired when he was naturalized in 1933, holds a handful of union titles. They range from secretary-treasurer of the Sailors Union of the Pacific (SUP), his key office, to head of the recently created AFL Maritime Department.

He first was skyrocketed to labor union prominence in 1935 with help from Harry Bridges. The job was president of the Maritime Federation of the Pacific, a now defunct amalgamation of unions that grew out of the bloody 1934 waterfront strike.

Lundeberg had his first differences with Bridges over how unions should operate and ditched the job after seven months of "running up and down the coast in box cars in dungarees doing the dirty work."

ALTHOUGH the accepted story is that Lundeberg was Bridges' hand-picked candidate for the job, Bridges, the Australian-born longshore leader, recalls today:

"I scarcely knew the man. He was the sailors' candidate. They picked him. We supported him

HARRY LUNDEBERG... Out Went the Commies

against our own man, a longshoreman from the Pacific Northwest, because the sailors had wrecked all previous maritime federations.

"The sailors said the longshoremen dominated the federations, a longshoreman was president and that a sailor couldn't get elected. I wanted to head that off."

Lundeberg said in another interview: "I was not personally pals with expeditions to the Antarctic continent since the year 1820 when Captain Nat Palmer of Stonington, Conn., first sighted the peninsula that bears his name. After Palmer, the next American was Lt. Charles Wilkes of the U.S. Navy who delineated the first parts of the Antarctic coastline in 1838-42. Then there was nothing for 90 years until our 1928-30 expedition—the first American expedition, incidentally, to set foot on the mainland. The four Antarctic expeditions it has been my privilege to lead since that year were instrumental in discovering over 1,000,000 square miles of the Antarctic continent—which is more than has been discovered by the expeditions of any other three nations combined. The expeditions under the leadership of Lincoln Ellsworth, Capt. Finn Ronne, and Capt. Gerald Ketchum also did good work and added to the total of American exploration.

Through expeditions such as our country and other nations are now planning, the great Antarctic continent will ultimately yield its secrets. It is my hope and belief that, in yielding them, it will bring manifold benefits to mankind. Let me list a few of these potential benefits from the project.

It has implications for the future of commercial aviation because, in many cases, the shortest route between two points in the Southern Hemisphere will lie across the polar regions.

It is essential to the progress of meteorological science because the wind and weather that are produced in the icy vastnesses of Antarctica play an important role in the modification of weather conditions in the more temperate regions. It is important, too, because it will increase our understanding of the long-range climatic changes that are taking place in the world.

Preliminary geological explorations have revealed deposits of coal and there are indications of other minerals. These deposits may take on increasing importance as the resources of the temperature climes are worn thin, and as the further development of packaged atomic energy makes possible the limited habitation of the polar regions.

ALTHOUGH THERE IS STILL very much to be learned about the ionosphere (a layer of ionized air, beyond the stratosphere, which reflects radio waves and other radiations) it has been estimated that the studies thus far carried out in both polar regions have already been worth billions of dollars to the development of radio. The knowledge of the upper atmosphere that will be gleaned by our scientists in the Antarctic will, it is believed, result in comparable benefits to the rocket and space satellite programs. The military implications of these programs have received much publicity—but their peaceful scientific implications are infinitely greater.

Developments of the postwar years have also borne out the prophecies of some of us, that, within our own lifetime, the polar regions would play an increasingly important strategic role in the world we live in.

It is my belief that, when the projected program terminates in 1959, a series of more or less permanent bases will have been established on the Antarctic mainland as a prelude to human habitation on a limited scale.

In this development the United States is bound to play a pre-eminent role.

Time to Take Care of Hospital Needs

LONG BEACH has been short on hospital facilities for a decade.

Our population has soared above 300,000. Unfortunately, our hospitals have not been expanded proportionately.

Impartial surveys show that this city has modern hospital facilities for a community of only 125,000. We have fewer than half the number of hospital beds needed to meet a decent standard. Thirty per cent of the existing beds were provided originally on an emergency basis and should be replaced with permanent facilities.

MEANWHILE, OUR CITY, owing to its tremendous growth in a short period of time, has developed pressing needs for other health facilities such as a school for registered nurses, a hospital wing for chronic and convalescent patients, quarters for contagious diseases, and general hospital beds for the mentally ill.

It was painfully apparent by 1953 that Long Beach had an emergency. Available hospital facilities were woefully inadequate for regular needs—and we shuddered to think what might happen in a disaster.

AGAINST THIS BACKGROUND, a hospital program was proposed in 1953 and approved by the people. The program was to be financed from tidelands oil money when and if such money became available for upland public improvement projects.

However, the money didn't become available. And our needs have become more urgent. So it obviously is most appropriate for the hospital program to be placed high on the list of bond issue proposals which will go before the people in February.

The Mayor and City Council's Advisory Public Improvements Committee has designated the hospital program as "most urgent."

A BOND ISSUE of $10,500,000 is proposed as of now, subject to a final decision of the Council. The program would provide enough hospital beds to meet the minimum critical needs of this community. It will cover the other important areas of public health mentioned above.

The question of need has been well established. The major remaining question is whether we can afford this and other proposed bond issues.

The answer is emphatically yes, for we have used up but a fraction of our bonding capacity and we are one of the most prosperous cities in the United States.

There's every reason why a hospital bond issue proposal, carrying reasonable safeguards as to administrative and ownership policy, should get the overwhelming approval of the citizens of this city.

Khrushchev Violating All Rules of Diplomacy

WHAT, we cannot help wondering, is Khrushchev up to in his tour of India and Burma? He is violating all the rules of diplomatic intercourse among governments. He is treating the governments of India and of Burma as if they did not exist, as if he, not they, had the right to lead their peoples in their relations with the rest of the world. There seems to be no bounds whatever to the insults, and to the downright lies, which he is directing at the Western governments with whom he has so recently been talking peace.

What then, is he up to? If the smiles of July were calculated, what is the calculation behind the venom now?

Or is there no calculation? Is Khrushchev, as Disraeli said of an opponent, "inhabited with the exuberance of his own verbosity"? If it is that, what has happened to Khrushchev who, so close observers at Geneva have been saying, was a restraining influence on Khrushchev's exuberance?

Or is it both calculation and intuition? It looks so to me——as if the Kremlin had reached a decision of high policy to take the initiative in resuming the offensive in the cold war and that Khrushchev, who is an uncouth and exuberant man, is following the new line in his uncouth and exuberant way.

WE CANNOT BE sure what were the reasons for the decision to take the offensive. It may well have been the display of the weakness of the Western governments, of the United States with a sick President and an election, of Germany with a sick and aging chancellor, of France paralyzed by its constitutional sickness.

But of one thing, which is of great practical importance, we can be sure. If the danger of the smiles in July was that we would "lower our guard," the danger of the Khrushchev agitation today is that it will provoke us to react unwisely. In fact, it has, I am afraid, provoked Mr. Dulles into making a serious mistake in regard to the dispute between India and Portugal over Goa. This territory is legally a province of Portugal. Geographically it is an enclave on the western shore of India. Khrushchev has been making inflammatory speeches about India's right to annex Goa.

Our position has been and, according to Mr. Dulles speaking on Tuesday our position still is, that we do not take "any position on the merits of the matter." Our interest, in other words, is to remain friends and both Portugal and India, not to be entangled in their dispute, and to do what we can to encourage a peaceable solution.

AFTER KHRUSHCHEV'S speech about Goa in which he backed India unreservedly, it might have been useful for Mr. Dulles, speaking for the United States, to re-state our position of disinterested friendship. Instead, he allowed himself to be provoked by Khrushchev's insults. Khrushchev having taken the Indian side, Mr. Dulles agreed to a joint communique which to all appearances placed him on the Portuguese side.

That will do Portugal no particular good and it has angered India. The net result, it would seem will be to disqualify Mr. Dulles as a conciliator in the Portuguese-Indian dispute.

THE INCIDENT—It should be no more than that—may be a useful little reminder that, like Prime Minister Nehru, we too have a policy of neutrality and non-alignment when it suits what we consider to be our interests.

'Think It'll Work, Ike?'

DAVID LAWRENCE

Ethics Sadly Lacking When 52 Nations Conspire to Violate Charter of U. N.

WASHINGTON—At a time when public morals are on the decline and when "expediency" is given as an excuse for condoning immorality in the behavior of aggressive governments, it is a shocking thing to see delegates from 52 governments voting to ignore a decision by the Court of International Justice which brands as illegal any "package deal" for the admission of members to the United Nations.

Only the United States, Belgium, France, Greece and Israel refused to participate in the voting on a resolution which asked the Security Council of the United Nations to "consider" the application of 18 nations as a package. Cuba and Nationalist China voted against the resolution itself. The position, however, of the five who abstained means that they refuse even to agree that such a proposal should be voted upon in the General Assembly.

It was on May 28, 1948, that the International Court of Justice, sitting at the Hague, handed down an advisory opinion—requested by the U.N. General Assembly—and ruled that it is illegal for a U.N. member to make its consent for the admission of one applicant dependent on the admission of another and that "considerations other than those prescribed by the terms and spirit of Article IV (of the U.N. Charter) could not prevent the admission of an applicant."

THE RULING SAID: "The provisions of Article IV necessarily imply that every application for admission should be examined and voted on separately and on its own merits. Otherwise it would be impossible to determine whether a particular applicant fulfills the necessary conditions. To subject an affirmative vote for the admission of an applicant to the condition that other states be admitted with that state would prevent members from exercising their judgment in each case with complete liberty. Within the scope of the prescribed conditions, such a demand is incompatible with the letter and spirit of Article IV of the charter."

HOW TO CARRY OUT this decision presents a problem in procedure. The United States has never used and will not use its veto power in the Security Council to bar any applications for membership. But the Soviet Union has threatened to use its veto power unless the entire group of 18 applicants are admitted. The position of the United States is that the matter of admission should be left to a majority vote of the Security Council. Since there is apparently an assured majority in the Security Council for the so-called "package deal," the United States will abstain from voting and will explain publicly its viewpoint, which is one of opposition to the admission of the five satellite countries—Albania, Rumania, Hungary, Bulgaria and Outer Mongolia.

None of these five countries possesses sovereignty, and each is under the yoke of the Soviet Union. The United States government feels, moreover, that Rumania, Bulgaria, and Hungary have been found guilty of violating their treaty obligations and that, therefore, none of them can be accepted as a "peace-loving" government under the definition laid down in the United Nations charter.

IT IS TRUE that almost all of the 52 nations feel kindly toward the 13 applicants who have hitherto been barred by the Soviet veto and that the "package deal" is the only chance to get them into the U.N., although it means paying the price of admitting the five Soviet satellites. Moscow has made it clear that, unless the five satellites are admitted, the other 13 non-Communist applicants would be vetoed.

The whole thing is an example of how the propaganda of "co-existence" has infiltrated the world to the point where the terms laid down by gangster governments unfortunately are accepted as a "practical" deal by supposedly idealistic and moral governments.

Knowland Expects Ike to Make Decision Known Before Jan. 15

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. William F. Knowland (R-Calif.) was reported this week to be considering entering the April 10 Illinois presidential primary if President Eisenhower does not indicate by mid-January whether he will seek a second term.

Knowland, the Senate Republican Leader, declined to discuss the matter with reporters. He stuck to his previous statement that he believes Eisenhower will make an early announcement of his intentions.

IT WAS LEARNED, HOWEVER, that the California Senator thinks Republicans who aspire to the presidency would be justified in becoming active candidates if the Eisenhower decision is delayed beyond the closing date for entry in any primary.

Jan. 23 is the final date on which petitions may be filed to place the name of candidates on the Illinois ballot. The state's preference vote for presidential candidates is merely advisory—not binding on the 60 delegates to be chosen for the 1956 presidential nominating convention.

THE CONSENT OF A CANDIDATE is not required in Illinois. Thus the President's name could be put on the ballot even if he had not indicated his plans.

Knowland was said by friends to believe that the weight of public pressure will bring some sort of announcement from Eisenhower before Jan. 15. Indications have been that his final physical checkup to determine the extent of recovery from his September heart attack will not be made until late that month or possibly in February.

WITH THIS PROSPECT IN MIND, Knowland was reported to feel that Republicans who want to go after the nomination if the President doesn't seek it would be justified in putting their names in the ring.

He was said to feel that any lengthy delay in the President's announcement would work against all party hopefuls with the possible exception of one who might be singled out for an Eisenhower endorsement.

Beyond that Knowland was represented as feeling that a delayed announcement would seriously limit the time in which potential candidates would have for campaigning, to the point where none of them might become sufficiently known to the voters.

Douglas Important to Every Citizen

TO THE EDITOR:

Every citizen in the Long Beach area is directly or indirectly dependent on big industry such as Douglas Aircraft.

Anybody who has seen the effects of removing a large business from an area certainly shouldn't want to do anything or fail to do anything that would jeopardize the existence of such industries in the community.

There are some people, of course, who think they have the right to try to deny their neighbors the right to live and work where they desire.

I live very close to the airport and like it. I know the wheels of industry are turning, and it gives me a good feeling. It spells peace, security and the ability of workers to buy the things they need.

DO THE OPPONENTS of airport expansion want to take that away?

They talk about safety. Well, how about automobiles that jump the curb and crash into houses? Automobiles that move down scores of people every year in this community. Should we therefore close down automobile assembly plants and automobile agencies?

There is only relative safety in this world. And the great benefits of the Douglas plant far outweigh any disadvantages.

Look, Listen, Write

TO THE EDITOR:

We Americans must get on our toes—look, listen, write. I would vote for a man with the platform of trying to settle the farm question, and not by handouts, a man who wouldn't surround himself with rich advisers and wouldn't think now of exchanging our secrets and security with the Russians or Reds.

I'm sure we all wish our President the best of luck and health, but out of the White House.

I enjoy your paper—editorials, Malcolm Epley, etc.

How Naive Can a Person Get?

TO THE EDITOR:

From an article from Grand Junction, Colo., I quote a remark to newsmen by James Roosevelt: "The United States is drifting toward peace at any price under the present administration."

Let us pause and consider. Russia was recognized as a world power, the beginning of the present situation, under his father, in another administration. Czechoslovakia, Poland and China were sold down the river to Russia by the other administration. Under another administration the Korean War started, and the military leaders were prohibited from bringing the war to a successful conclusion.

THE UNITED NATIONS, a misnomer if I ever heard of one, was organized under another administration, financed 90 per cent by the United States, and still is, under others, but, in the leadership was a man since convicted as a traitor to the United States.

Then we can remember when the plates for currency of the United States were turned over to Russia to print "occupancy money." This was with the full knowledge of the Secretary of the Treasury, and, as it has never been denied, also that of the President of the United States. This to the expense of American taxpayers.

And Mr. James Roosevelt talks of "peace at any price" by the present administration? How naive can you get?

WOULD IT NOT be worthwhile to conduct a campaign to keep our money in California; to bring back the sovereign rights and powers that have been taken over by a dictatorial federal bureaucracy? Let the people wake up to what Federal aid means, and let us regain our right to control the state's purse, subject to the will of the people of the state.

Federal aid is too expensive for the people of California or any other state.

What Can You Get, Besides Bills, for Father?

Father pays the Christmas bills—and what does he get out of Christmas? Maybe a handful of neckties, if he is lucky.

Men traditionally are hard to buy presents for, say their women-folks. With the idea of doing right by Father, many stores this year are featuring items for men.

If the man of the house goes in for sports, everything is easy. There always are fishing rods, reels, wheeled caddies to tote the golf clubs. You get one of these, wrap holly paper around it, say "Merry Christmas!" and you are done.

If Father hunts, he always can use another gun. And on the market now is a new shotgun, a double-barrelled affair with one barrel over the other, not beside it, and just one trigger.

There also is a putting ding-bat. You know how Father practices his swing on the living room rug? You set this up, and when the ball goes in, a mechanism trips and shoots it back. It's adjustable, so the ball will travel either a few inches or quite a few feet.

HOW ABOUT A CAMERA, or a projector for Father? Or how about a good pair of binoculars? The new binoculars have coated lens to eliminate reflections.

There are good campstoves on the market, sleeping bags, coolers; blankets that come in their own bag, and may be used as blankets, as foot warmers, as cushions. There is a preparation in a bag that can be boiled or frozen—the same stuff. It will keep hot things hot, cold things cold and it would be pretty good for warming hands or feet.

Wouldn't Father like a king-sized bath towel? Probably the poor man never yet has had one big enough. There are big ones, in mannish colors with mannish designs, and if even they aren't big enough, there are "bath sheets" of about the size of Man Mountain Dean.

The Italian influence is strong in men's clothing this year. Casual shirts are of Italian fabrics and design, many of them of striped, either definite stripes or a muted effect, and the materials look like something else. Cotton is woven so it looks and feels like silk, for instance. Dress shirts, also feeling the Italian influence, come with smaller French cuffs—about half the size of the old ones—and of course smaller cuffs call for smaller cuff buttons.

Colored shirts still are ok, but they come in softer tones. Blue is excellent, and there are pink, tan, gray, mint, maize.

NECKTIES ARE WIDE in the middle, taper at the ends. The average tie now is 2½ inches across. Ties are marked mostly by interesting weaves. Youngsters often buy bow ties for Daddy. Available are Tyrolean velvet hats, which come with a brush, a falcon's foot, a fleck of a partridge wing, a deer head.

There are wonderful Italian shoes, a cross between shoes and slippers, that are shaped and sewn under water.

Men's sweaters are interesting this year because of the blends. There is a combination of cashmere, mink, nylon and wool, for instance. There are many flecked tones. Coral and powder blue continue to be the favorites.

There are jackets, nylon on the outside, orlon on the inside, that can be tossed into the washing machine—really!

There are suede coats, Norfolk jackets, a "suburban" coat to be worn over regular clothes, as in a sportscar; a wonderful raincoat that can be worn in rain or good weather and that will last practically forever; less expensive raincoats that come in packages.

Quite a few suits are bought for men at Christmas time. Maybe they aren't just what Father wants and maybe they don't fit him, but he always can take them back and get what he wants. Some of the new suits are made of such crush-resistant material that they can be worn on a train for three days and come off unwrinkled, say the salesmen.

CHRISTMAS AND BIRTH-DAYS are practically the only time Father gets jewelry. Many of the new watches are self-winding; they are thicker than the other kind. There are handsome cuff buttons with tiger eyes, onyx, jade, lapis lazuli, turquoise, pearls, tourmaline, obsidian.

There are silver cuff buttons that point up a profession or a hobby—fish, golf clubs, comedy and tragedy faces, and even a pair of kitchen sinks for a plumber.

Father undoubtedly would like a typewriter and on the market is a dandy portable, with a carrying case which also has room for papers. It comes in maroon or sand. There are new ball point pens, and "liquid lead" pencils. Liquid lead is erasable. There is a cute "Cheerful Worry" book, in which Father may list his worries day by day. He might be interested to look back and see what it was he worried about last Feb. 23.

PUT THE CUFFS ON PAPA

There are plastic playing cards, and a new poker chip rack. You turn the rack and five chips of any designed color drop out.

There is a combination cigarette lighter and flashlight that throws quite a beam in the dark. There are lighters that flare up almost like forest fires. And here is a lighter—tch, Father! —shaped like an undressed woman.

ON THE MARKET is a fine combination brief case and overnight bag that will see Father through any short trip. There is a variety of luggage, including a suitcase which will let suit jackets hang straight without folding.

Every man needs a good tie rack and there are smart ones that swing out. There are suit hangers shaped the way clothes really are shaped. There are desk clocks, radios and record players that run on batteries and thus can be taken on camping trips, carving sets, fire extinguishers and road flares that may be carried in the car, men's manicure sets in handy carrying cases, a variety of toiletries for men. Father might like an easy chair, a hassock for his own feet, with getting Father a book? a reading light. He might like an atlas or a globe because the mind or a detective story that he shape of things has changed really will like?

Irene M. Chan. "The day I came to your office with my mother and brother I was about to give up hope of getting rid of my asthma attacks. I spent hundreds of dollars for shots and pills but yet found no results. After reading your advertisement, I tried your tea and lo! my asthma was cured. I was able to breathe normally and could sleep better for the first time in months. Now I am feeling fine and hoping others will benefit from my experience with Dr. Chan's Natural Method." Signed Mrs. Virginia Murray, 74 Whittier St., Los Angeles. "Five years ago I was badly stricken with neuritis in my shoulders and extremities. My hands and knees were so badly swollen that I could hardly use them. I wasn't able to raise my arms above the shoulders. I was told by several doctors that they had done all they could for me but that I no longer will be able to work again. Finally a friend referred me to Dr. Chan's Natural Method. After the first week I felt much improved and the fourth week found me walking more easily with the pain in my shoulders disappearing. My hands returned to normal and I had one of them now more. I cannot too highly recommend Dr. Chan to anyone who is ill." Signed E. H. Irving.

REAL "MAMA":
DELLA ANDERSON.

I'll always remember...

THE LAST FAN-LETTER

by KATHRYN FORBES

TV "MAMA," Peggy Wood (r.), poses with author Forbes — who modeled the role on her grandmother.

THE AUTHOR: Millions of Americans who see I Remember Mama on CBS-TV wonder what the real mother of writer Kathryn Forbes was like. Here is at least a partial answer.

Almost every author has at least one admirer; someone who believes whole-heartedly in one's particular talent; someone who takes time to write letters to say so.

I used to get some wonderful fan-letters.

They were from my mother.

Mother never let on about her letter-writing activity. She did not realize that, after perusal by editors and publicity departments, these letters would be delivered to me. And I never told her.

Mother, being Scandinavian, did not believe in spoiling her children with direct or frequent praise. We might become vain, she feared, or take to showing off.

But whenever a short story or a book of mine appeared, there would arrive, in time, a restrained and polite fan-letter from my mother, pointing out to the editor or publisher what a really fine story they had.

She was far too honest to write her letters anonymously. She might disguise her handwriting, but she always signed her own name.

In her quiet way, she was also quite a salesman of my wares. When Mama's Bank Account was published in 1943, my mother carried a copy of the book (title outward, so that people might see) everywhere she went. On trains, streetcars or buses, she would enter into conversation with strangers and talk about my book.

When fabulous and wonderful things happened to my book — when John van Druten made it into a play, I Remember Mama, and it became a resounding success on Broadway — my mother took it very quietly. Only I knew that the steady stream of fan-letters was still going on.

Her diligent efforts on my behalf did not cease. She even took to writing to the magazines where my stories did not appear.

When RKO made a movie of the book and play, she awaited eagerly the day I Remember Mama would premiere in San Francisco. And that was the day my mother's doctor called the family to say that she would have to go to the hospital soon. He gave us scant hope that her illness would be temporary.

I took Mother to the very first showing of the picture. I sat by her side, bereft with the secret knowledge, and tried to keep from crying.

Mother was first embarrassed by my public display of emotion, then impatient. "After all," she reminded me, "this is only a movie."

"There's talk of a television series some day," I whispered, trying to divert her attention.

But before Mama began its Friday-night stand on television, our mother had left us, as quietly and as gallantly as she had lived.

Lonely months later, in the usual batch of business mail and forwarded memos, I was to find this letter:

"Dear Sirs: I Remember Mama was a fine movie. I laughed a lot, but it made my daughter cry. I liked the book too. I like everything this author writes."

It was signed, firmly, with my mother's name.

A hat designer's analysis: she's a good-time Charlotte

Devil-may-care girl picks a red velvet brocaded winter sports hat with dangling tail, ermine trim. She hoots at convention, William J. says, is apt to wear this hat anywhere — even to the beach.

"HEAD HUNTER" type chooses hat that will shift attention from the gleam in her eye, according to analyzing designer. Above, the choice is an actual fox's head set on a plain brown velvet crown.

YOUR HAT IS YOU

So says this designer—who may know

NEW YORK.

On these pages is pictured the philosophy of hat designer William J. (that's his trade name): hats follow personality types. William, who runs a hat salon here, has long held that he can predict a woman's taste in millinery after a few minutes of conversation. Recently he brought in a group of models, allowed them to rummage through the shop and choose the hats they liked best. After each girl had chosen, she was told to reach inside the crown, read the slip of paper she found there. When each one read off her own name, William J. looked smug. "They can fool a psychoanalyst," he said, "but they can't fool me."

WOMAN OF THE WORLD prefers the bizarre, the strikingly dramatic or the offbeat. This sophisticated lady has picked a spray of beige vulture feathers. Other analyses by William J.: the shy female tends to select pillboxes; the hostile type, unsuitable hats.

SPENCER TRACY:

In 25 years he's made 59 pictures,

by LLOYD SHEARER
PARADE WEST COAST CORRESPONDENT

AT 55, AFTER a quarter of a century in motion pictures and top roles in some of the best films this town has ever made, Spencer Tracy remains Hollywood's least-known major star.

Currently he is beginning to slack off a bit. Having finished his 59th film, The Mountain — in which he plays the vigorous part of a French mountain climber — Tracy plans to star in one more vehicle next year, the movie version of Ernest Hemingway's The Old Man and the Sea. "And then," he says, "I'm gonna take it easy."

"Now, don't get me wrong," he quickly cautions. "I'm not retiring. The only time an actor really retires is when they don't want him any more. I don't think that's true in my case, although maybe it is. [It isn't, since Tracy recently was offered his standard fee of $250,000 per picture to star in two more, The Reminiscences of a Cowboy and Inherit the Wind]. But I don't see any point in making run-of-the-mill pictures. People can get as much of that stuff as they want on television."

"I'm not money-hungry, and what I'd like to do is make maybe one picture a year or even less. But I want the picture to be memorable, something substantial and worthwhile."

"When I get out of my Thunderbird these days, my back hurts. And it's not because of the driver's seat, either. It's because I'm not a kid any more. And if I'm going to do a picture, I want the story to be solid and meaningful and entertaining. When the public walks out of the theater where a picture of mine's been playing, I want to feel that the people have gotten their money's worth. I think they will in The Mountain."

For rugged-featured, deeply lined, white-haired Spencer Tracy to talk this extensively to a member of the press is unusual. For years screen reporters have considered him the most moody, unapproachable and uncommunicative actor in the business.

He is one player who has made a fetish of refusing to live his private life in public. How many times have you seen a photograph of Spencer Tracy and his family? How many times have you seen a photo of Spencer Tracy at home? How many times have you read a Spencer Tracy story in a movie magazine or a national magazine? What, in fact, do you know about Spencer Tracy, the man?

The chances are, very little. Proud, stubborn, changeable Irishman that he is, Tracy insists that acting is a dignified profession and steadfastly declines to lend himself to the schemes of studio publicists.

TRACY TODAY: Snapped by PARADE at Chamonix, in the French Alps, he looks every one of his 55 years. But time has not changed an essential ingredient of Tracy's great screen appeal: character.

Hollywood's least-known star

but even Hollywood calls him a mystery man. Here is a look at the man behind the mystery.

TRACY YESTERDAY: With Loretta Young in a scene from the 1933 film, Man's Castle (Columbia), his youthful looks match the romantic mood. Then — as now — Tracy stood 5'10½", weighed about 175.

As a result, for a star of his stature, he is regarded in Hollywood as pretty much of a mystery man.

Pat O'Brien, who grew up with Tracy in Milwaukee and roomed with him in New York when both were struggling young actors, says, "The only thing I can tell you about Spence is that he's a moody, talented, unpredictable Mick who's so sentimental that he hides his sentiment under a mask of gruffness."

"The reason nobody knows too much about Tracy," adds Jim Denton, of 20th Century-Fox, "is that for an actor he's incredibly modest. He doesn't like to talk about himself. When he came over here to do Broken Lance last year, all we got out of him was a single page of copy. When you look back over the record, however, you find that the guy has won two Oscars for Captains Courageous and Boys' Town. He's also been in the first-box-office 10 for years, and he gets more fan mail than most other actors."

Generally speaking, moviegoers find a definite classification for their favorite stars. Clark Gable, for example, long has been regarded as a lover, John Wayne as an adventurer, Greer Garson as a lady of the landed gentry.

Tracy's case defies classification. When Fox signed him 25 years ago, he was considered "too unhandsome" for Romeo roles. He also was regarded as a playboy offscreen. "I used to drink in those days," Tracy admits. "But never on a picture — always between. Anyway, the big shots were worried. They fired me, but at 8 o'clock that same night my agent took me over to MGM to have a talk with Louis B. Mayer, and he signed me to a contract. I stayed with Metro until this year."

At MGM during the 1930s it was decided that Tracy lacked feminine draw. He therefore was given a series of "good-natured goof" roles in which he consistently lost the girl to Clark Gable. He also ran a race with Paul Muni in depicting real-life characters on the screen. He played Father Flanagan in Boys' Town, Edison the Man, Stanley and Livingstone and others.

The result was that movie fans could not fix Tracy in their minds' eye with a simple, clear classification. Even more confusing, during World War II the studio suddenly altered its view concerning Tracy's sex appeal. He was given romantic leads, mostly opposite Katharine Hepburn (Adam's Rib, Keeper of the Flame, Without Love). Not too surprisingly, he soared to new popularity heights.

In the 1950s, however, Tracy returned to character

roles in such films as Father's Little Dividend, The Actress and Bad Day at Black Rock. So that as a movie star he still remains all things to all men.

Years ago, after discarding alcohol, Tracy took up polo. When a close friend of his, Adrian Roark, was killed playing the sport, he, too, abandoned it on the insistent advice of his studio. He next tried yachting, then gave that up also. The fact is that his prime interest in life has always been acting — he began on the New York stage in 1922 and came to Hollywood in 1930 — and he will let nothing interfere in his driving determination to give every role his best.

A few weeks ago when I walked into the bar of the Hotel del Alpes in Chamonix, a picturesque French village at the base of the Alps where the Mountain company was on location, Harry Mines, a Paramount press agent, was lecturing Tracy on the need for publicity cooperation.

"We have a still photographer," Mines stormed, "and his job is to take pictures. You won't let him, and I think that's pretty uncooperative."

"Now wait a minute," Tracy roared. "Wait one minute." He ran a hand across his weather-beaten face and downed a straight shot of — milk.

"Did you mention the word, 'job'?" he asked ominously. There was a dramatic pause, befitting a veteran actor. "Well, I've got a job, too. I've got a job to act in this picture, and I mean to do it as well as I can. I'm not going to let anyone interfere with that. I get up at 5:30 every morning, and we've got to hike up the mountain. It's 10, 12, 13 thousand feet up. How many times you been up, Harry, once?"

There's a Time for Everything

"Well, the air's pretty thin up there and after you trudge for two hours, it's a little tough to breathe. I stand in the snow with a pack on my back and I try to give the scene everything I've got. I'm concentrating on the lines and the mood and the take, and then in the middle I suddenly hear camera-shutters clicking. I'm sorry but it breaks my concentration. I know that stills have to be taken but let 'em shoot a little distance away." And with that he got to his feet, smiled good-naturedly and said, "Don't make me a heavy. Let's go in and eat."

Next day Tracy spent two hours posing in the snow on the treacherous, jagged edges of Mt. Blanc. (See cover.)

"Spence will rib and ride people," Mountain director Eddi: Dmytryk pointed out later. "And he'll fight like hell to maintain the quality of a picture. But I've never known him to hold a grudge against anyone. His capacity for compassion is infinite."

Their son's deafness taught the Tracys a lifelong understanding in Tracy's case his first sorrow occurred 30 years ago when his son John was born deaf. In turning this tragedy into a triumph, the young actor revealed a certain nobility, a grandeur of spirit that today is one of Tracy's outstanding traits. He may be moody, enigmatic, publicity-shy and seemingly far removed from reality—but let anyone around him get into trouble, and he's the first to help.

Bob Wagner, for example, the young actor who plays Tracy's kid brother in The Mountain, says: "Spence is one of the kindest guys in this business. The hints and tips he's given me, not only in this picture but in Broken Lance—it would've taken me 10 years to pick them up on my own. Why did he do it? Because I'm inexperienced and he happens to be a sweet human being."

Says Bob O'Donnell, Texas theater-circuit owner, "Tracy made a trailer for our crippled-children's fund a few years ago. Thanks to him we helped raise a million dollars. I know no other man more sensitive to the suffering of others."

At the time his son was born, Spencer Tracy was a 25-year-old actor working for the Wright Stock Company in Grand Rapids, Mich. He would commute each week between Grand Rapids and Milwaukee, where his wife was living with his parents. And he was blissfully happy.

He was married to Louise Treadwell, a strikingly beautiful actress who'd been a leading lady with the Leonard Wood Stock Company when Tracy was little more than a spear-carrier for the same outfit. The future of the young couple looked bright. When Tracy's weekly salary was raised to $125, he moved his family into an apartment hotel in Grand Rapids.

It was there one day that Louise Tracy discovered her baby was deaf. As she herself narrates the experience: "Our son Johnny was about 10 months old. He was taking his afternoon nap out on the sleeping porch, sleeping very late, when I decided to wake him. I remember that I let the screen door slam. (You remember things like that sometimes). Still Johnny didn't wake.

"I bent down beside his crib and called, 'Johnny, time to wake up.' There was no response. I moved closer and this time I fairly shouted in his ear. 'Johnny! Johnny! Wake up!' Then finally I touched him. His blue eyes opened, and he looked up at me, and I knew the truth. He was deaf.

"I had never known a deaf person, and I was scared stiff. I didn't know what

TRACY ON TRACY: "I'm not money-hungry..."

"... I'd like to make maybe one picture a year."

"When I get out of my car these days, I ache."

"... And that's because I'm not a kid any more."

Tracy prefers not to discuss his family and worries about just one thing: his work to do, and there is nothing in the world more frightening than ignorance. I didn't tell Spence, but I took Johnny to an ear specialist in Milwaukee. He asked me a few questions, then examined the baby. He rang bells, blew whistles and used a little tuning fork. Then he turned to me and said, 'Mrs. Tracy, your child is really too young to test. Take him home, keep him well and in a few years bring him back.'

"I told the doctor that I knew John was deaf. I was sure of it. What could we do about it? That's what I wanted to know. The doctor said it was nerve deafness and there wasn't anything we could do.

"Then I asked him the one question that I had been carrying around in my heart and mind for weeks. 'Will my baby ever talk?'"

The otologist looked at Louise Tracy sadly. He explained that children learned to talk through hearing, by imitation. If John couldn't hear any sounds, it could be assumed he couldn't imitate any. So he never would learn to talk.

"For weeks," Louise Tracy recalls, "I carried that secret around with me, tight and locked up. Somehow, I couldn't bring myself to tell Spence. I struggled on from day to day feeling helpless and lost.

"Finally, Spence came home one day. 'For goodness' sake,' he demanded. 'What's the matter with you, Louise? You've been acting so strange lately.' I told him Johnny was deaf.

"I'll never forget his reaction. He slumped into a chair. He buried his face in his hands. His body was racked with sobs. Watching him sit there in anguish, I felt my heart would break. I tried to get through to him, tried to tell him how much more we could mean to Johnny because of his deafness.

"After a while Spence got up. It was a Sunday. 'Louise,' he said. 'Get a baby-sitter. We're going out to the carnival tonight. We're not going to let this get us down ever.'"

And it never has — partly because that first doctor was wrong on one point.

When Johnny was 21 months old, Mrs. Tracy took him to a well-known New York otologist. The doctor tested the child and said, "Your boy is totally deaf and there's nothing I can do about it. But there's plenty you can do. Your child can learn to lip-read. He can learn to talk. He can do almost anything that a hearing person can do, but you and your husband have a job to do."

The Tracys accepted the challenge. It took time, money, patience, years of effort and experiment. But today their son John is a happily married man of 30. Having learned to lip-read, he was graduated from Pasadena Junior College and now talks, understands, works as a cartoonist and lives a normal life in suburban Westwood with his charming wife and 3-year-old boy, Joseph Spencer Tracy.

So that other parents of deaf children might learn from her experience in raising and training her son, Mrs. Tracy founded the John Tracy Clinic in Los Angeles 13 years ago. The first free clinic of its kind in the world, it has helped set thousands of deaf children on the path to speech. The funds to get started were donated by Spencer Tracy, who insists that he's had virtually nothing to do with the now world-famous institution.

'Keep Me Out of It'

"The whole thing," he claims, "was Louise's idea. She's the woman who's devoted her life to the project. If there's any credit coming, it's hers. Keep me out of it."

Three years ago, after Mrs. Tracy had been awarded honorary degrees by the University of Southern California and Northwestern University, her actor husband was called upon to say a few words at the opening of the clinic's new headquarters on Los Angeles' Adams Boulevard.

"Despite its great fame and following," Tracy began, "there is nothing Hollywood has done or ever will do which exceeds the contribution Louise has made to the welfare of so many children."

Then he stepped down, walked over to his wife and proudly kissed her.

The Tracys have another child, Susan, 22, who is taking vocal lessons and hopes to become a singer. But of Susie, like the other members of his immediate family, Tracy dislikes to talk.

"It's one of my peculiarities," he affirmed some time ago, "that I won't talk about my family. An actor gets little enough privacy as is. The life I live at home I try to keep entirely separate from my work. I think I'm entitled to do so. It's the only opportunity I have to forget shop completely. I don't think that's being snooty. It's a practical way of preserving something that I don't want spoiled."

According to newsmen, it's a practical way of becoming a male Greta Garbo. But Tracy never has concerned himself with the diatribes of reporters. "The only thing that worries him," declares his brother and business manager, Carroll, "is his work. About that he is Hollywood's No. 1 worry-wart. In fact, if he isn't worrying, he isn't happy. Twenty-five years ago his wife wrote her sister that Spence didn't photograph too well and there wasn't much of a chance that he'd ever become a success on the screen. Spence is still worried that Louise may have been right."

NEXT WEEK: The second part of Lloyd Shearer's article tells how a young New York piano salesman named Tracy became one of Hollywood's all-time top stars.

UP IN THE ALPS during filming of The Mountain, berated Tracy chats between "takes" with Robert Wagner (his screen brother), Barbara Darrow and Anna Kashfi.

▲ "I ACCEPT YOU"

Standing before the Ark and under the Eternal Light, Rabbi Zion of Denver's Temple Emanuel places hands on Mark Horwich's head in blessing. Gesture recalls Confirmation ceremony in other faiths.

▶ "TO BE WORTHY"

Addressing Congregation packed into Temple, Mark says: "I will try with all my heart and soul to be worthy." This climaxes his speech of thanks (which Mark wrote) to Rabbi, teacher, family and friends.

TORAH, the sacred parchment scroll, is handed to Mark by his father (not shown). This act symbolizes passing down of ancient Jewish laws — as set forth in the five books of Moses — from father to son.

A JEWISH BOY BECOMES A MAN

DENVER, COLO.

Judaism, oldest of the major faiths followed today in the U.S., is a religion of ceremonial rituals steeped in tradition and — to many Americans — somewhat enigmatic. It traces its beginnings back to Abraham, mentioned in Genesis, who is considered its founder. Through the ensuing centuries, Judaism has flourished as the fountainhead of faith that still inspires an estimated 5,500,000 Jews in the United States.

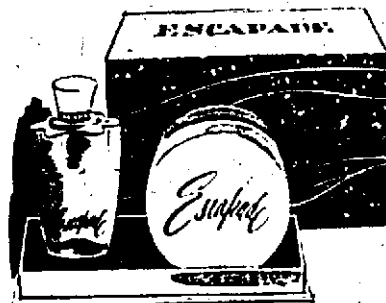

In modern times, two different forms of worship have evolved from the Orthodox: the Conservative and the Reform. Yet, whatever their differences, Jews today still hand down their ancient faith in the ancient way — from father to son. They accept each new generation into the Congregation when, in the time-honored tradition, it is ready to "come of age."

A book and a drop of honey were Mark's introduction to the faith of his ancestors when he was only 5 years old portant ceremonials held in the synagogue. It is a rite participated in only by males, and is usually on the first Saturday after a boy has reached the age of 13. Marking his entry into the Congregation as a full-fledged member, in essence it is another form of a dramatic experience common to children of all faiths: Confirmation. (Today the analogy is even closer: In some Reform synagogues boys may continue their religious training in post-Bar Mitzvah classes, which also include girls. On completion of Sunday School there at age 15 or 16, both boys and girls may be confirmed in the Temple.)

As we know it today, the Bar Mitzvah—literally, "Son of the Commandment"—can be traced back only about 700 years. But the age of 13 seems to have significance reaching into earliest Jewish history. Tradition declares, for example, that Abraham rejected the idolatry of his father, Terah, and became a worshiper of God at 13. Esau and Jacob went to school together until they were 13, then went their separate ways—Jacob to the "house of the law," Esau to the "house of idols." Levi, son of Jacob, was called a man at the age of 13.

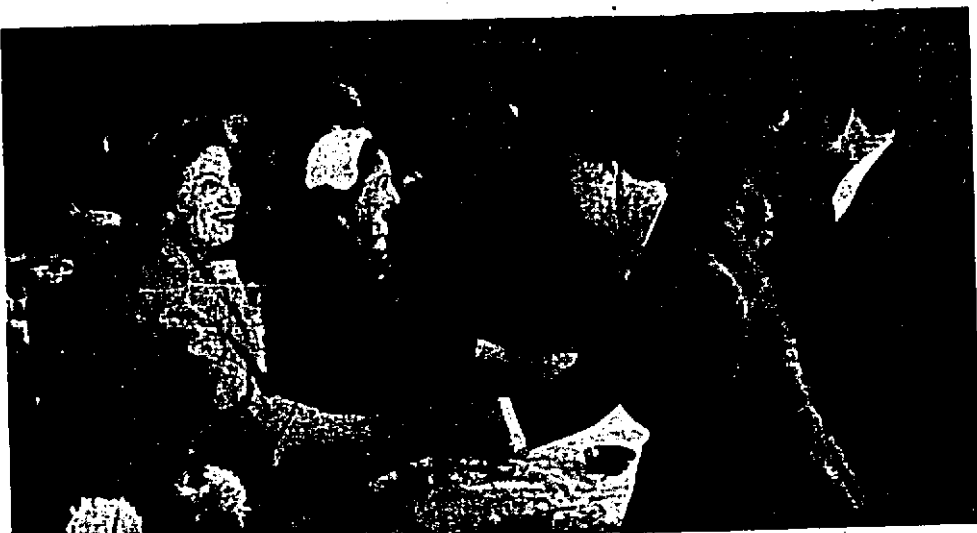

Such, briefly, is the background of the ceremony in which a Jewish boy becomes a man. Today PARADE records the Bar Mitzvah of Mark Horwich of Denver, held here recently in Temple Emanuel (a Reform synagogue).

Mark actually began preparing for the event when he was only 5 years old. The son of Herman Horwich, a business executive and civic leader, he received his first instruction when Manuel Breslaw, venerable Jewish scholar, came to Mark's home to start teaching him Hebrew.

Breslaw brought with him a Hebrew primer, placed a drop of honey on the first page and told Mark to kiss it. Then he said: "This pleasant association of the taste of honey with the learning of Hebrew should last you through life."

AT PARTY following his Bar Mitzvah, Mark is the center of attention. Some 225 guests attended traditional celebration.

FRIENDS congratulate Mr. and Mrs. Horwich (c.) at reception. This windup to Bar Mitzvah began in days when father called in his friends to hear his son read from the Torah.

Mark studied Hebrew for eight years. In weekly lessons Breslaw taught him not only the language but the customs and traditions of his people. Together they talked about the history of the Jews, the significance of Jewish holidays and — most important of all — the measure of responsibility Mark would some day assume as a Jew.

His years of preparation were climaxed with the study of the Torah, the ancient book of Hebrew law. The Torah, which contains the five books of Moses — the Pentateuch — includes the fundamental history and philosophy of Jewish life and the 613 laws governing religious Jews.

Revelation vs. Inspiration

Orthodox Judaism believes that the Torah is a revelation from God. Consequently, all its laws and precepts must be followed exactly. Reform Judaism believes that its faith is the sum of the religious experience of the Jewish people, and that the Torah was written by men inspired by God. Accordingly, even the traditional observance may be changed to reflect the modern world.

The service performed at Temple Emanuel was patterned after that of the Orthodox tradition, except that in the latter the men would wear the traditional skull cap, the tallith (white prayer shawl), and the tefillin or phylacteries (little black boxes strapped on the left arm and forehead) while reciting weekday morning prayers. The last may be considered symbolic of the way Jews are bound by the laws of their faith.

Temple Emanuel, oldest and largest Jewish Congregation in Colorado, was founded one year before Colorado became a state. It has a membership of 950 families and an enrollment of 750 children in its Sunday School. Its leader is Rabbi Joel Zion; one of more than 700 Reform rabbis in the U.S. There are also more than 1,000 Orthodox rabbis and about 600 Conservative.

But tradition held sway for the most part at Mark's Bar Mitzvah. This was the day when his father would stand up in the Synagogue before the Congregation and announce the Baruch Shepetarani, the Benediction: "Blessed be He Who has freed me from being responsible for this young man's conduct."

Henceforth, according to the ancient tradition, Mark's sins no longer were on his father's shoulders, and he no longer would benefit from his father's virtues. After the day of his Bar Mitzvah, Mark himself would be accountable for his own vows and, in the eyes of God, would participate fully in the Jewish community. He would be accepted as a member of the Congregation and counted in the Minyan (quorum) required for Congregational worship. He would be expected to obey the laws of the Jews, contribute to charity and accept the communal and personal responsibility of Judaism.

On the morning of the ceremony, Mark dressed in his new Bar Mitzvah suit, took his place at the altar at the beginning of the regular Sabbath service. With him were Rabbi Zion, an assistant rabbi and Mark's father.

The service opened traditionally with the Benediction and a hymn led by the boys' choir. Regular responsive readings followed; as Temple Emanuel is Reform, most of the service was in English. When the choir had finished another hymn, Mark moved into his rehearsed position between Rabbi Zion and his father, facing the sacred Ark in which the Torah rests.

Then the Bar Mitzvah (the term means the boy as well as the ceremony) listened as Rabbi Zion intoned the opening words:

"You are now ready to take your place in your responsibilities as a Jew. May you do so with dignity and honor... May the Lord bless thee and keep thee. May the Lord let His countenance shine upon thee and be gracious unto thee. May the Lord lift up His countenance to thee and grant thee peace."

Half-frightened, his knees shaking a bit, Mark tried hard to act as responsible and adult as the Congregation expected him to. All morning he had bucked up his courage by promising himself he wouldn't be nervous. After all, he had rehearsed his speech a thousand times, studied for two months the passage he was to read from the Torah.

Everything was very quiet. To his own surprise, Mark now felt confident and unafraid. As the Rabbi removed one of the three Torahs, Mark waited for his father to reach for the scroll and hand it on to him. This is the symbol of the passing of the law through generations from father to son.

PRESENTS, combined for Mark's birthday and Bar Mitzvah, included globe, radio, sporting equipment, cameras and books. There were several duplicates.

Reading of ancient law in the Torah is high point of ceremony

In the next moment, the Bar Mitzvah, holding the sacred object in both hands, was facing his Congregation. To the accompaniment of sonorous chords from the organ, Mark moved exactly as he had practiced so many times. Now he was standing next to the gowned Rabbi, waiting for him to open the scroll and indicate where Mark was to read.

As Rabbi Zion moved a pointer to guide his reading, Mark recited the portion of the Torah dealing with the kindling of the Eternal Light, which symbolizes the eternal Spirit of God. Then he read and translated a passage from the Haftarah (the Prophets), read during each service as a supplement to the Torah.

Then for Mark came another crowning moment—the Derashah, or address to the Congregation in which he formally accepted his responsibilities. In it he also thanked all who had helped him accomplish his Bar Mitzvah. Part of his oration ran: "My dear parents, relatives, friends and teachers. I shall try with all my heart and soul to be worthy of all and to live in the spirit of Scriptural admonition... and to apply the teachings of the Torah to my entire life. Amen."

And to Mother, Dad and Sister listening proudly before him, that was the finest speech ever made anywhere by anyone.

The hour-long service was concluded with a sermon by Rabbi Zion based on a portion of the Torah Mark had read. He told his audience that this particular scroll was more than 100 years old. It had been used in a synagogue in Germany and had been partially destroyed by the Nazis. Restored, it had been bought by Temple Emanuel and placed in the Ark with the other two Torahs. Said Rabbi Zion: "This restored Torah represents the immortality of learning. Let it be the symbol of the everlasting life of Judaism."

After the service, Mark's family, relatives and friends rushed up to congratulate him on his speech and wish him Shabbat Shalom (peaceful Sabbath) and Mazel Tov (good luck). Then 200 or more relatives and friends, some from more than 1,000 miles away, joined the family for the traditional feast and celebration—Se'udah.

Everyone, of course, brought Mark combination Bar Mitzvah and birthday presents, as is the custom. They included every kind of gift a boy could wish for. From Rabbi Zion came a beautiful gilt-edged Bible. And tucked away among the larger gifts was a small one with a significance all its own to a young man on the threshold of maturity: a shiny electric razor.

TEACHER Breslaw, in shawl and cap, shows Mark how to put on phylacteries, boxes containing prayers used at morning worship.

NEXT WEEK: The third and last story in PARADE'S "Coming of Age" series describes, in photos and text, a young Catholic girl's Confirmation.

Teen-age Topics

Jealousy is a normal emotion, but when it is excessive the result is unhappiness for all concerned. Here are some letters on the subject.

Q. Last summer I fell in love with a wonderful girl. After seeing each other constantly, we broke up because we argued so much. The reason is that I am jealous. How can I overcome it?
—G.W., Boston, Mass.

A. Try writing a letter to yourself about your behavior—and in it list the things in this girl's behavior that make you jealous. Perhaps when you look at the letter you will see that your complaints are very shallow.

Q. I am 13, and a boy I like who is 15 visits me often. When I am with him he always talks of other girls to make me jealous. He asks me to go to dances and football games, but in a joking way. I refuse because I think he might "stand me up."
—S.T., Bethlehem, Pa.

A. I would say that he had made you jealous. His teasing, which you probably enjoy, may be of the variety that brothers reserve for their kid sisters. His invitations probably are not sincere, but he may be telling you in his own way that when you are older he'd like to take you out.

Q. Each time my boy friend brings me home, he says, "I am sorry I ruined your evening." I really enjoy myself until he says this. He also thinks that, because he doesn't have the money to take me to expensive places, he doesn't do enough for me.
—A.R., Washington, D.C.

A. It's sad for a teenager to have the habit of self-pity. All I can suggest is that you build up his feeling of importance. Tell him politely and firmly that you did have a good time and let it go at that. If he persists in being a spoilsport, go out more with other boys. Some people are afraid to enjoy life—and therefore never do. ■

Whooping cranes: About 30 remain of once-large flocks. One reason: hunters

Vanishing Americans

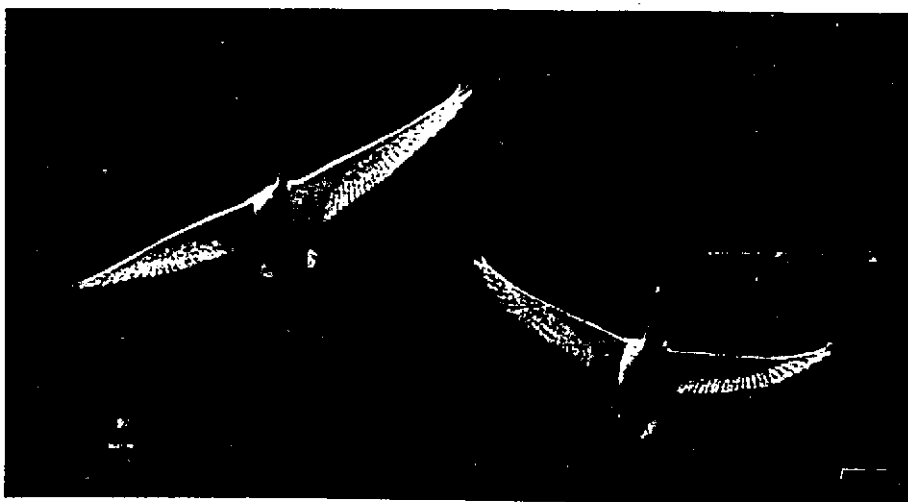

Like the passenger pigeon and heath hen, these animals may disappear — unless man helps them

DESERT FOX: Civilization's advance in the Southwest may well have doomed this shy, big-eared, largely nocturnal creature. But recent checkups hint that it is holding its ground.

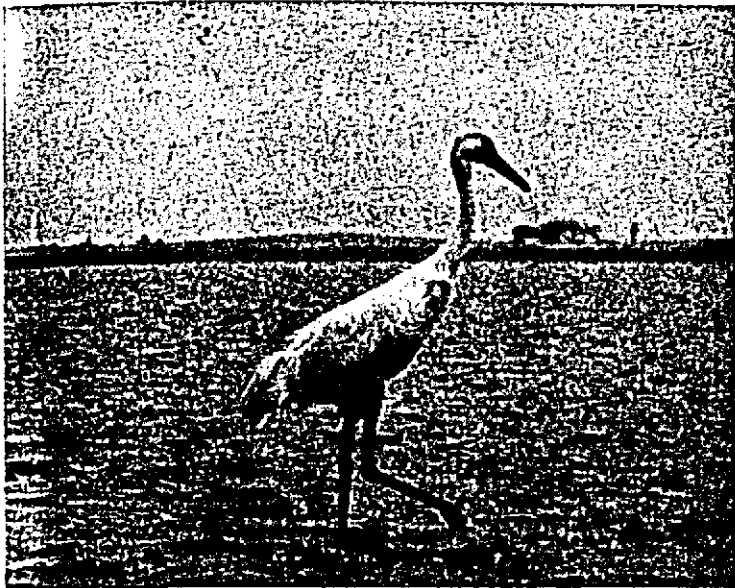

LONGHORN COW: Victim of man's insatiable appetite — and of breeding for better beef cattle — this animal has won a respite. From one herd of 30, longhorns have increased to 500.

TRUMPETER SWANS: Hunted without mercy, the species was thought extinct in the early 1900s. Then a few survivors were found in Montana. The chicks sold well to zoos, so local folk ruled out hunters. By now, with trapping and killing outlawed, U.S. has 650 trumpeters.

on their Arctic-to-Texas flyway mistake the 5' birds for geese.

One day soon you may pick up your newspaper and read that the last whooping crane (above) or key deer (right) is dead. If so, blame man. It was man who killed off the passenger pigeon, heath hen and ivory-billed woodpecker; who slaughtered the sea otter, gray whale, longhorn cow and trumpeter swan to the edge of extinction; who, unchecked, might well wipe the whole U. S. clean of wildlife.

Luckily, man also knows how to conserve if he must. Led by the Government's Fish and Wildlife Service, thoughtful sportsmen at last are protecting whole species and marking their breeding and feeding areas off-limits. Result: at least a partial comeback for the grizzly bear, moose, bison and bighorn sheep. But for most of the animals pictured here — along with the prairie chicken, condor and even the symbolic bald eagle — such efforts may prove too little and too late. ■

KEY DEER: Collie-sized, they live only on Florida keys; hunters have reduced them to about 90 individuals. Unless they increase to at least 200, species is doomed.

Brazil nut plum pudding

This new version of an old favorite is rich

with fruits and nuts — but easy to make

Fourteen days to Christmas! Two short weeks to wind up shopping, wrapping, mailing and planning the holiday feast. To help you with this last, but so important detail, here is the recipe for a superb dessert. It's traditional — yet so new! You can stretch the preparation over two days, if you like. On the first day cut up the fruits, combine with the orange juice, cover, store in the refrigerator; grind the Brazil nuts and suet; mix and sift the dry ingredients. On the second day, mix and steam. Rewarm to serve.

- | | |
|--|---------------------------------------|
| $\frac{1}{2}$ cup orange juice | 1 cup plus 2 tablespoons |
| $\frac{1}{2}$ cup seedless raisins | dry bread crumbs |
| $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. pitted dates, cut up | $\frac{1}{2}$ cup sifted, enriched |
| $\frac{1}{2}$ cup finely cut citron | flour |
| 2 apples, peeled and | $1\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoons baking |
| chopped | powder |
| $1\frac{1}{2}$ tablespoons grated | $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon baking soda |
| orange peel | 6 tablespoons sugar |
| 3 eggs, slightly beaten | $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon each, salt |
| $\frac{1}{4}$ cup molasses | and cinnamon |
| $1\frac{1}{2}$ cups ground Brazil nuts | $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon each, allspice |
| $\frac{1}{4}$ cup (3 oz.) ground suet | and ground cloves |

Pour orange juice over raisins, dates, citron, apple and orange peel; let stand 1 hour. Combine eggs and molasses; stir in Brazil nuts, suet and bread crumbs. Mix and sift remaining ingredients; sift into egg mixture; blend well. Add fruit mixture; mix well. Turn into a greased 2½-qt. pudding mold with tight-fitting cover (or cover with aluminum foil and tie securely). Place on rack in deep kettle; pour in boiling water to half the depth of the mold. Cover; steam 5 hours, adding more boiling water during steaming if necessary. Serve warm with whipped cream-in-a-can or hard sauce.

ROCKY MARCIANO'S MOTHER PRAYS...

"I think God was very good to us," she says, "and I always pray that Rocky will do the right thing."

The heavyweight champ's mother urges:

'QUIT NOW,

BROCKTON, MASS.

After my son Rocky beat Archie Moore in their fight this fall, lots of people asked me: "When is Rocky going to retire?" I don't know the answer, because I never ask Rocky what his plans are. But I wish Rocky would quit. I wish he would quit right now.

Sure I'm proud and happy that he is champion, and I thank God all the time. But I worry about him; now that he is champion, Rocky looks older than his 31 years. There is a great strain on him. Today he is here, then tomorrow he is in some place like California. Rocky never says anything, but I know he feels a big responsibility about being the champion, and he worries that he will do right.

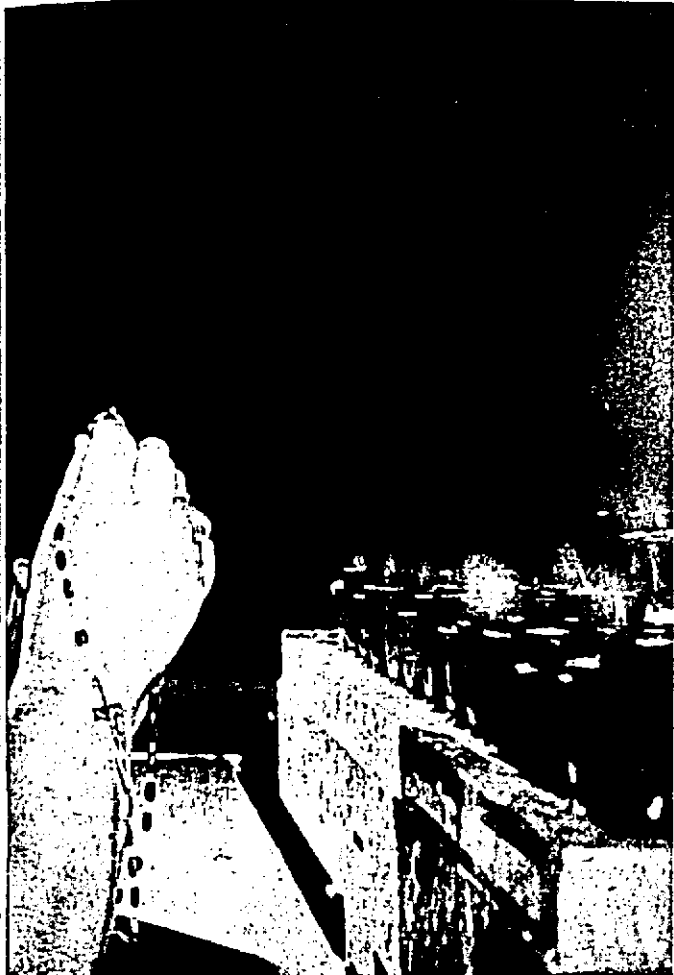

Also there is always a lot of people who bother him. He always has to do favors. He never can stay with his family. He can't lead his own life. He can't stay at home and see his baby growing up.

I want Rocky to quit because I worry about the people he meets in the fight business. I fear that all they do is just take money from my Rocky. They need him to make money and they might do bad things to get more money. I worry that they won't let him quit. I just hope they won't take advantage of my son.

Since Rocky has been the champion, there has been a great strain on our whole family. The door to my house is always open to anybody who comes to see him or ask about him. Some days I'm busy all day with people calling on the phone, ringing the bell, and always asking questions. I know that if I don't answer them, people will say bad things about Rocky and his family. We never turn anybody away from the door, but it's a big strain trying to be nice all day and all night. Even when the phone rings in the middle of the night, or early in the morning, you've got to be smiling and pleasant.

It's wonderful to meet nice people, but you must have your own life too. Some days I feel like my husband and I are in a window. It's the same thing for Rocky and his wife, Barbara.

Don't misunderstand. I don't want Rocky to quit because I'm worried about him getting hurt in the ring. Really, even deep down in my heart, I don't worry. I am confident that he can fight without getting seriously hurt. He has won so many fights that I am sure nothing will happen to him while he is fighting. But it is the terrible life he has to lead outside the ring — as long as he is champion — that makes me wish Rocky would quit.

A lot of people think Rocky keeps on fighting because we need the money. It's not true; from the day my husband came back from World War I, he always had a good job in the shoe factory here. We owned our own house on Brook Street, where all my children — Rocco, Louis, Alice, Connie, Betty and Peter — were born.

'I just hope I'll be able to help him learn how wonderful it is to raise a family'

TOGETHER for rare visit at training camp — Barbara is usually barred — Marcianos watch daughter Mary Ann, 2½, munch dad's birthday cake.

My first child died at birth; a year later I had Rocco. Then every two years like clockwork I had a baby, until Peter came 14 years ago.

I knew all the time in my heart that Rocky would be something. I love all my children the same, but Rocky is my first, and a mother has a certain feeling about the first boy.

Rocky could have been a success in almost anything because he always thought big. He was never satisfied with small things. He started fighting while he was in the Army during World War II, and of course I didn't know anything about it. If he had been home, he would never have started. I would have been after him to stay away from it, and he would have listened to me.

When he came home and started to fight in the amateurs, I saw that was what he wanted to do, so I didn't say anything. But I prayed: "God, if that is what he wants, please take care of him."

In the beginning, lots of people discouraged me. They told me that Rocky was no good — that he would get a bad beating. I wouldn't say anything to him — he had to live his own life — but I would pray. Of course I didn't know much about fighting, and never did I think my boy would become so big a fighter.

But now that he has done what he wanted — now that he is champion — I must say to him what is in my heart: Rocky, God has listened to my prayers, for He has been very good to us. But now I think you should retire. You have won enough.

Rocky knows how I feel and he is always telling me: "Ma, you just take it easy and be quiet." He always wants me not to be nervous.

On the day that he fights, though, I think he is the only member of our family who is not nervous. He never asks me to see him fight, and I never want to go. Other people in the family go, and though they don't tell Rocky, they are all nervous.

I always go to church with a friend of mine on the day Rocky fights. She's a lady I've known for a long time. After church we go back to her house — just the two of us. This lady is a good friend, but I never tell anybody who she is so that there won't be telephone calls and telegrams and everything.

When we get to her house, she turns the clock back so I don't know what time it is. I know that she turns the clock back, but I never say anything. I like this because when the clock shows that Rocky is stepping into the ring, the fight actually may be all over.

We usually sit and watch television — anything but the fight. My friend keeps sneaking in to her radio to find out what's happening. Then, when it's all over, I go home. Most of the time I don't even know what I saw on the television.

It's Hard on Brothers

A lot of people think I am foolish for wanting Rocky to retire. They say it will be easier for his brothers to become somebody. They are wrong; it will be harder. Everybody will expect them to become champions in whatever they do. But maybe they won't have the same luck that Rocky had. Also, they won't let Rocky do anything for them because he is the champion. But if he weren't, I think maybe then they would let him help.

Some of my friends tell me I should be happy that Rocky is champion, because I go to a lot of nice places and meet a lot of famous people. It is true that my husband and I do get to travel a lot, but what I enjoy best is going to Rocky's training camp at Grossinger, N. Y. — especially a few months before the fight, when Rocky has time to be with us. Up there I can enjoy the good food, the healthy air of the mountains. I read and write, and just take it easy.

That, and meeting wonderful people, is about the only real happiness I have gotten out of Rocky being champion. I will always be proud that I met Cardinal Spellman and the Pope. Charlie Goldman, who is Rocky's trainer, will always be one of my best friends; he has been a wonderful friend to my Rocky. And then there is Jennie Grossinger and Perry Como — he is a fine boy.

I love meeting new people, for this is the way I try to help Rocky. I like to meet all the people who are interested in him. Sometimes it's a little too much. I'm not too well any more, and people are always asking me to go here and go there.

Don't misunderstand: I love company and parties. But now there are so many.

Sometimes the house is filled with people I don't even know.

Some of these people are phony. (and I think some of the men who hang around Rocky's training camp are bad men), but most of them are very nice. Yet sometimes I wish I had met only a few of them, so I could keep them for friends. And now I almost wish I wouldn't meet any more people so I could get to know better the ones I've already met.

Old Friends Lost

But though Rocky's fighting has made many new friends for us, it has also lost us some of our very old and dear friends in Brockton. Unfortunately, I do not have as much time as before to see them, and they try not to bother me. This has made me very sad. I think that if Rocky were no longer the champion, we would have more time to be with these old friends.

But there are bigger reasons why I wish Rocky would not fight any more. There is my boy Connie, who's in the Army now. If Rocky were not fighting, I do not think Connie would take it up. I don't want him — or any of my other sons — to fight. I say to them: "If you do that to me, then you have no heart for your mother."

My youngest boy, Peter, is now on the football team at Brockton High School. Football is all right, but I like baseball best for my sons. Both Connie and Peter like baseball, and I am glad. But I want them to learn a lot of things, not just sports. It's nice to have a talent for sports, but when you reach 30 or 35 you must be able to do other things.

— If Rocky doesn't stop fighting soon, I'm afraid it will be harder for him to lead a natural life later on. He will sit home and say to himself: "I could be here or I could be there." I just hope he has not forgotten how to take it easy. I just hope I'll be able to help him learn how wonderful it is to stay home and raise a family.

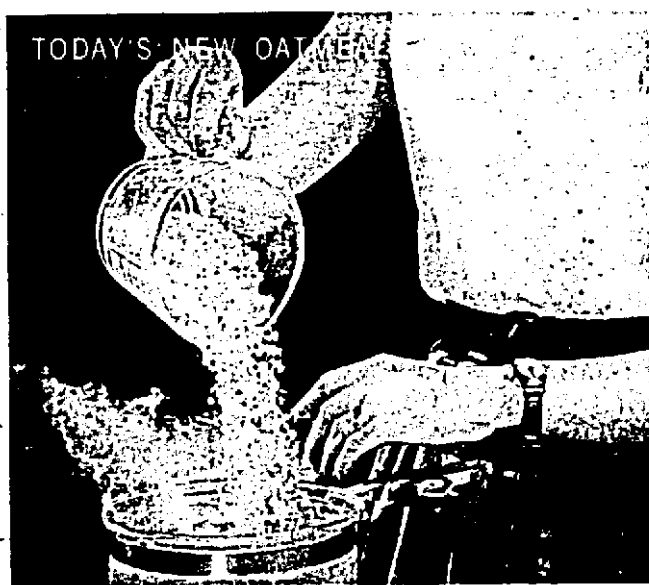

I would like him to go into business when he leaves the ring. But I don't care what he does, just as long as he stops fighting. That would make me the happiest woman in the world.

MARCHEGIANOS and famous son: He dropped "heg" from name after entering ring.

Quaker develops new oatmeal that cooks completely in just one minute

QUICK AS COFFEE—that's today's new oatmeal. Cooking time has been cut to just 50-60 seconds with the new Quick Quaker Oats. The pan cleans instantly, too . . . without scouring.

ESPECIALLY APPEALING TO CHILDREN is the extra creaminess and smoothness of the new oatmeal. The oat flakes have simply been rolled thinner for quicker cooking. All the nourishment of oatmeal, all the traditional oatmeal flavor, is there.

PROTEIN IS A KEY to weight control. Today's high-protein oatmeal has a very special significance for those who want to gain weight . . .

or lose it. It is the fundamental "must" for building up strong bodies, good red blood. At the same time, a diet high in protein is essential for those who need to lose weight. Protein raises the blood-sugar level, helps keep appetite inactive. It cuts down hunger—while supplying needed strength and energy.

YOUR WEIGHT-CONTROL PROBLEM—either kind—can be helped by the high-protein content of new Quick Quaker Oats.

For those who prefer the taste and the texture of old-style oatmeal, Old Fashioned Quaker Oats cooks in a mere 5 minutes.

ALL-MORNING ENERGY, for work or play is provided by a single bowl of hot, creamy oatmeal. Oatmeal supplies more stamina, more energy than any other whole-grain cereal . . . and a serving of Quaker Oats costs about 1¢.

PAN RINSES INSTANTLY when oatmeal is prepared properly. Just keep pan tightly covered, before and after serving, until ready to wash. It will rinse clean, without scouring.

WEIGHT-CONTROL SECRET is food high in protein to curb appetite, maintain stamina. And oatmeal supplies far more protein than any other leading cereal. Bowl of oatmeal, with sugar and milk included, contains only 210 calories . . . yet supplies 9 grams of protein.

PHENIX CITY, ALA. —one year later

The rackets are gone, and in their place is new-found pride

by ROBERT W. BROWN

Editor, The Columbus (Ga.) Ledger; 1954 Pulitzer Prize winner for his articles exposing vice and corruption in Phenix City.

1954: Reformers Hugh Bentley (l.) and son were beaten by gangland thugs at polling place.

EDITOR'S NOTE: A year ago, PARADE reported on Phenix City, Ala., just after the town's decent element had defied bombings and murders to shatter longtime gangster domination. Then the city's red-light district was shuttered, its gambling dens closed. But would the cleanup take? To find out, PARADE asked Robert W. Brown, author of last year's article, to check on the "new look."

PHENIX CITY, ALA.
Once it was one of the most notorious buildings in this notorious "Sin City of the South." The second floor housed a $1,000-a-day numbers racket; downstairs, a gambling den flourished and prostitutes congregated.

When you visit it today, you find a silent, deserted second floor. The first floor still rocks with merriment—of a different sort. Children sing and play youngsters' games. This is St. Patrick's Catholic Youth Center, symbol of the New Phenix City, 1955 model

—a cleaned-up city with recharged civic pride.

"There's a new spirit here now," explains Ed Seymour, a merchant and pre-cleanup member of the reform group. "In the past, a person from Phenix City registering in an out-of-town hotel would give Columbus, Ga., as his address. Now he puts it down like it is—Phenix City, Ala."

True, it took an unprecedented crime offensive by the State of Alabama to clean up the town and revive civic pride last year.

Gangsterism was broken up by martial rule and wholesale fines and imprisonments by outside enforcement and a special judiciary. But the townspeople have not only kept the community clean, they have made it sparkle. Their story teaches a lesson for all towns.

This fall Phenix City registered the largest vote ever cast in a single-seat election for the City Commission. In electing a reform commissioner, the voters endorsed higher taxes and a stricter policy on liquor licenses. To replace the revenue that formerly came from the dives, directly or indirectly, the new commission levied a $1-a-month garbage collection tax and a $5-a-year motor vehicle license fee.

There have been few complaints, and at least part of the citizenry has welcomed the new taxes. In the recent election campaign, a candidate reminded Negro voters that the two new levies added $17 a year to their tax bills. One man told him in reply, "We can remember when 'the law' would come around once or twice a year and we'd have to pay $50 or so whether we'd done anything or not. It's cheaper this way."

The new taxes and the air of reform that went with them have brought many changes to Phenix City. Here are some of the projects begun in the past year: a new $15,000 fire station; a $750,000 expansion of the water system; a new minimum housing code; a downtown slum-clearance and redevelopment program; a sanitary land-fill system of garbage disposal; an enlarged police force; a pay increase for sheriff's deputies; a $750,000 hospital addition; a refurbished municipal amusement park, and a new 79-acre recreation park.

Then there have been other changes. A Kiwanis club has been organized; a new weekly newspaper has been launched. A "Committee of 200," including some members from Columbus, has been organized to boost the area's potential. Retail sales are up; so is home building; so are church and Sunday School membership and attendance.

People Are Moving IN

But the biggest changes have been those of attitude. For the first time in years, people from surrounding towns in Georgia and Alabama are moving into Phenix City. An Alabamian who formerly commuted 56 miles a day rather than live in "Sin City" now owns a home overlooking the Chattahoochee River. So does Columbus newspaper cartoonist Marvin Zukerman, whose acid cartoons had helped to expose racket domination of the town. "It's cleaner than Columbus now, and the view I have of the valley is breathtaking," Zukerman says.

Phenix City is clean. "There is an occasional fight, and we go out and raid a still once in a while," says Sheriff Lamar Murphy. "But there is no bughouse [numbers headquarters] here and if there are any writers they are working the bug from Columbus." Besides the youth center, the old line of honky-tonks now houses, among other things, a medical-supply house and a feed store.

Recently, an investigative unit reporting on its surveillance on behalf of soldiers from nearby Fort Benning, Ga. (once the chief target of the vice operations) quoted a contact man:

"It's as dead as a graveyard. No women, no gambling, no nothing."

And just last month, a former belle of the red-light district, passing through town, stopped in to revisit some of her old haunts. Things had changed so that she had a few drinks for consolation and finally wound up in jail on a drunkenness charge. A few years ago, a drunken prostitute was commonplace, but this time it rated a story in a Columbus paper. Within a half hour after publication, a half-dozen Galahads were at the jail to bail her out. Her type had become so rare that she was a celebrity.

How long will Phenix City remain quiet and clean? The question still is asked by some cynics in Phenix City as well as observers from other points where the "new look" seems suspicious. An out-of-state writer concluded a few weeks ago that many gamblers and others of the gang element still were hanging around, waiting for the lid to blow off again.

"Yes, they're still around," says Hugh Bentley, an early reform leader whose home was blown up for his efforts in 1952. "But they are few, and they are identifiable. They would like to see a return to the old days."

"But now everyone is either on the right side or the wrong side, and the wrong side has been deprived of its strength. There are no middle-of-the-roads to confuse the right and encourage the wrong. There is no compromise."

The doubting evidently have not counted on three things. First, local law enforcement now is determined to crush any resurgence of crime. Second, John Patterson — son of Albert L. Patterson, whose murder touched off the cleanup last year — will be attorney general of Alabama, directing state law enforcement, for three more years.

And then there is a citizenry aroused by a new spirit. Citizen strength, when there is the will to use it, is well-nigh irresistible. It is being used now in Phenix City.

In at least one dentist's office, the old doorknob-and-string approach is outmoded

Lower lip pulled down, Thelma shows the dentist her loose tooth.

A 6-YEAR-OLD YANKS HER OWN TOOTH

NEW YORK.

For children like little Thelma Milliken, a local dentist who prefers to remain anonymous has turned his office into a "fun place." As pictured here, youngsters who want to may pull their own loose front teeth.

Says the dentist: "Most youngsters have more confidence in themselves than they have in me. When it's all over, they're elated, proud and perhaps less reluctant to come to the office in the future."

His technique: local anesthetic is applied; the child is given the forceps after the "guilty" tooth is singled out; a twist of the wrist does the trick.

Only problem so far: a 5-year-old boy who insisted that the dentist's office was a spaceship. He grabbed the mouth sprays to shoot down flying saucers before pulling an upper.

Forceps set,

she tugs gently. The tooth came out a moment later.

Proudly Thelma surveys the results of her handiwork.

Life Begins at 39

By Terry Vernon
Independent TV-Radio Columnist

THERE IS ONLY one man in show business who is 39 years old yet was born in 1894. He is, of course, Jack Benny. He has been riding on that 39-years-of-age gag for so long that most people have forgotten how many years have gone by since that Feb. 14 in Chicago when Benny Kubelsky was born.

Benny has won every signal honor that entertainment can bestow... except one. That one is the golden statuette of "Oscar," symbol of supremacy in the world of motion pictures. This despite the fact that he has done scores of films in Hollywood and also made "The Horn Blows at Midnight." He still hopes to capture an "Oscar" some day on his own merits.

Waukegan, Illinois, is duly recognized as Jack Benny's home town, but he actually resided there a comparatively few years. When Benny was 16, he and Cora Salisbury, pianist at the Barrison Theater where Jack worked after school, teamed and went on the road playing vaudeville dates in adjacent towns and cities. Later he teamed with a Chicago pianist, Lyman Woods, and this pair began to gain fame. They toured as far West as Seattle and even played an engagement at the famed London Palladium. But Benny, as such, was still just a fiddle player.

WORLD WAR I interrupted his theatrical career, so he made the most of it and joined the Navy. Stationed at Great Lakes Naval Training Station, he took part in the famed Great Lakes Revue to raise money for Navy relief.

This was the birthplace of the man who has become a legend in comedy on the vaudeville and Broadway stages, radio, movies and television. It was during one of the productions that Benny tucked his faithful fiddle under his arm and began to talk. This unusual procedure wowed the sailors and before long his talk was more important than his fiddling.

"It was actually Ben Bernie who caused me to change my theatrical name," says Jack. "I used Ben K. Benny as my stage name until Bernie became quite popular. Feeling that there was too much similarity and anyway (with a sly look and twinkle of the baby blue eyes) I didn't wish to, you know, make Ben look bad by overshadowing him... you know... I changed my name to Jack Benny."

THERE IS LITTLE doubt but that Ben K. Benny, Benny Kubelsky or Jack Benny would have overshadowed anyone regardless of name. He has no peers in his chosen field of comedy and because he keeps his shows flexible insofar as format is concerned, no other comic can copy him for any length of time.

After getting out of the Navy and starting out on his own in the vaudeville theaters he played a little fiddle, told some jokes and acted as emcee for the stage shows in whatever theater he was playing. This work gave him that wonderful sense of timing that no other comic possesses to such a degree. He learned that the spoken word can be important but that the unspoken word oftentimes carries more punch.

He headed for New York and wound up doing musicals for the Schuberts and Earl Carroll. This was his stepping-stone to

A famous pair of entertainment world: Jack Benny and Eddio (Rochester) Anderson. Rochester, hired for a one-shot bit, was a hit and stayed on.

Hollywood and a movie career that is remembered chiefly for his work in "The Hollywood Revue" for MGM.

BUT IN BETWEEN pictures he had nothing to do except draw a salary and Benny is not noted for inactivity.

This might account for the fact that he wandered around town and met Mary, who was Sadye Marks, salesgirl at The May Co. He and Sadye hit it off and in January 1927 were married in Waukegan at the apartment of an old friend of Jack.

Then back to Broadway and a role in an Earl Carroll musical where he was doing very well. Fact is, he turned down $1,500 per week (big money in those days) in the road show company in order to enter radio.

In the early 30s, some may recall, radio was coming into its own. Amos 'n' Andy were household words and movie houses stopped the film so patrons could hear the latest in the life-story of the two favorites; Stoopnagle and Bud were big-time comics; Eddie Cantor had taken the plunge and Burns and Allen, Fibber McGee and Molly and many other old vaudeville teams had turned to this new medium.

"If they can do it, I can," thought Benny, so in early 1932 he agreed to take a guest spot on "The Ed Sullivan Show." He had bumped into columnist Sullivan in a Broadway restaurant and Ed asked him to do the job.

"But I don't know anything about radio," stated Jack.

"Nobody does," said Ed.

BENNY DECIDED to take the flyer and that next night walked up to the microphone and said: "This is Jack Benny talking. Now there will be a brief pause for everyone to say 'Who cares?'"

Apparently a lot of people cared when he got through for shortly thereafter he was on the air with a sponsor and began to grow into the biggest comedian the world has ever known. His first bankroller was Canada Dry Ginger Ale but through the years he has been identified with many another sponsor. Probably his most famous sponsor was General Foods and Jack altered his usual opening by saying, "Jell-o again, this is Jack Benny talking" and to this day, twelve years later, many people still believe he is sponsored by Jell-o.

Benny developed his own material for those early shows, worked out the gags and gradually drifted into the format he now uses consistently. It is one that makes him the hapless boob, the man with human frailties who has the same faults shared by many others... and also the money lover and penny pincher.

IN ONE OF HIS EARLY shows he had Mary come on as a girl from Plainfield, N. J., who'd burst into his program and read "poems" and make wisecracks. This was to be a one-time shot but the public clamored for more and Mary Livingstone became a regular part of his shows.

When Jack gained popularity in radio it was natural that movies would again beckon him and he signed a contract. This meant moving his radio show to California so he planned to make the transition on the air. In one of these shows the Benny gang were aboard a train and the Pullman porter was portrayed by Eddie Anderson. This, too, was a one-time only shot but the public so loved "Rochester" that Benny hired him and made him a star in his own right. Don Wilson joined the Benny gang in 1931 as announcer and became so much a part of the show that he has been under contract to Benny ever since.

IN THE YEARS that have passed Benny has started many others out on careers. Frank

Parker, who has reappeared on the air with Arthur Godfrey, was one of the first of a series of tenors who were an integral part of the Benny format. Others have been Kenny Baker, Dennis Day and, while Dennis was in the service, Larry Stevens.

Benny always has music on his shows and the orchestra leader becomes a part of the act. This technique is now being copied by other comics and most noticeable is John Scott Trotter on the "George Gobel Show." The men who had led the bands on Benny's shows include Ted Weems, Frank Black, Don Destor, Johnny Green, Bob Crosby and probably the most famous, Phil Harris, who had bigger parts in the show than did the others and made more out of his roles.

Looking back through the years Benny still gets the biggest kick out of the "feud" he had with his good friend Fred Allen. There was a time when every set in the nation was tuned to Benny's show one night and then to Allen's to hear the interchange of insults between the two radio comics.

The feud started out when Fred Allen did a takeoff on an amateur show. He hired an eight-year-old violinist and the boy played "The Bee." Allen quipped "Only eight years old and you can play 'The Bee,' why Jack Benny ought to be ashamed of himself."

THE NEXT WEEK Benny came back on his own show to disclose indignantly that he could produce six persons who would verify that he could play "The Bee" at the age of four. This "feud" gained space in national magazines, front pages of newspapers, and other comics even joined the act.

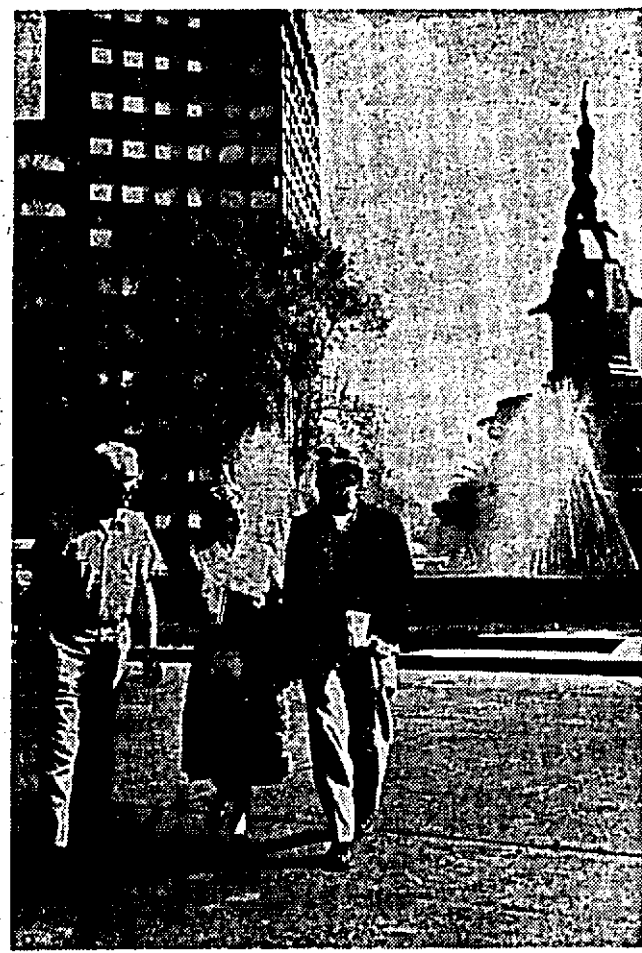

Back in Hollywood Benny began making movies again and included in this group were such

Many of world's top stars have "guested" Jack Benny shows. Here, Jack gets Marilyn Monroe glamour tips.

Tom Wynn, LaVonne Johnson and Phillips Barton on way to classes at Mexico City College pass U. S. Embassy (left background) and famed statue of Diana (right).

Enjoying the view atop one of Mexico's famed pyramids are Lois Minium of Long Beach and three fellow students.

FIFTEEN Long Beach area residents have joined the increasingly popular fall migration to Mexico City College, the only American liberal arts college south of the Rio Grande. This term there are 765 men enrolled and 199 women.

Looking out over Mexico City, site of the ancient Aztec empire, and across to the snowy slopes of the famous volcano Popocatepetl, the college is a combination of Mexican murals and American campus chatter.

Though cosmopolitan Mexico is no more than a few hours by plane from any part of North America, the perspective of distance allows students to realize fully their own national heritage and to appreciate the customs and living standards of their foreign neighbors. Organized groups make frequent trips to such well known spots as Acapulco on the Pacific Coast, Veracruz on the Gulf, the Pyramids of Teotihuacan and Desierto de los Leones, while historical sites such as the Castillo de Chapultepec and the Cuauhtemoc Statue on Avenida de la Reforma become everyday landmarks.

CONCERTS, plays, ballet performances and art exhibitions are available continuously. Sunday afternoon finds crowds at the Plaza de Toros, largest bull ring in the world, while jal alai offers a spectacular new thrill for the sports enthusiast. Because of the diversity of arts in Mexico City, well known scholars and artists visit every year, many of them available on campus as special lecturers and faculty members.

Although MCC's catalog lists some 20 specialized fields of study, because of its location, Spanish, anthropology, creative writing, art, foreign trade and international relations have proven to be the most popular with the Americans. The Spanish major finds himself in almost constant contact with the natives of a Spanish-speaking country. In Mexican homes — where students learn to enjoy such native dishes as tacos con guacamole and chili rellenos — the language becomes an idiomatic approach to international understanding. The anthropology student is able to take part in periodic field trips to various parts of the republic, where he can explore Indian civilizations which date back as far as 5,000 years.

ART AND CREATIVE writing students, in addition to having a colorful old world backdrop to influence their own efforts, are in a position to study the works and attend the lectures of some of the most famous artists and writers on both the contemporary Mexican and American scenes. The foreign trade and international relations majors have their classroom work augmented by visiting regularly the many export-import houses and diplomatic delegations situated in the capital.

Classes at Mexico City College are taught almost entirely in English. Founded some 15 years ago, the school offers the American BA, BFA, MA and MFA degrees and a two-year course leading to a certificate in foreign trade. It is listed as an approved senior college by the California State Department of Education.

THE LONG BEACH area residents, among a quarterly average of around 900 students from nearly every state in the Union, are studying for the same degree they could receive at home, but have the heightened advantage of living in a foreign atmosphere where the striking contrasts of Mexico range from prehistoric pyramids to some of the most advanced architectural structures in the world.

Clothes present no problem, cottons and woolsens being equally acceptable. Mexico City is at an altitude of close to 7,500 feet. Days are generally warm and clear, evenings pleasantly cool. During the summer rainy season showers wash the countryside every afternoon. Though the country is mildly seasonal, the contrast, beauty and friendliness of Mexico remains perennial.

A noted American educator has said that studying at MCC affords the American student the opportunity of taking part in a valuable experiment in international living, and several magazines have termed such students "individual 'ambassadors' of their country." But no matter what you call it, the north-of-the-border immigrants call it fun.

(John) David Arbuckle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Myron C. Arbuckle of 129 Syracuse Wk., received his BBA degree at Claremont Men's College and served two years in the U. S. Army in the Arctic theater of operations. At Mexico City College he is working toward his master's degree.

JOHN BAKER of 2723 E. 8th St. is majoring in business administration at MCC. He attended Long Beach City College and served in the U. S. Navy from 1945 to 1948 before coming to Mexico.

Phillips Ericson Barton, of 217 Argonne Ave., received his BS degree from the Virginia Military Institute in Lexington, Va. He served two years in the U. S. Air Force with service in the U. S. and England. He was previously employed as a test engineer at Douglas Aircraft in Long Beach. He is also majoring in business administration at MCC.

Phoebe Seward Bunce of 2402 E. 6th St. received her BA degree from Wellesley College and was a teacher in Los Angeles before coming to MCC. At MCC she is majoring in Spanish.

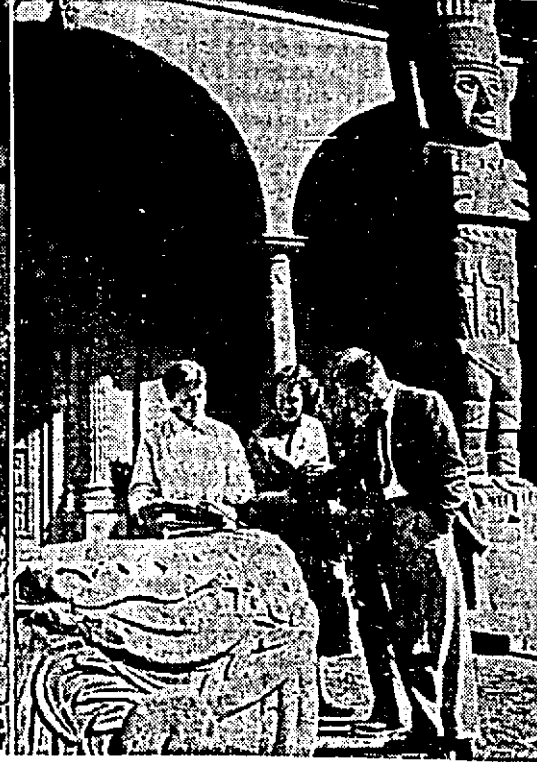

Collin Chester Chamberlain, of 4442 Palo Verde Ave., attended Long Beach City College and served two years in the U. S. Army in Korea and Japan. At MCC he is majoring in art.

WHY WOULD ANYONE have trouble with an armload of packages and an umbrella?

Remember, the ground is wet—and water soaks into packages quickly.

Go back into the house? Well, maybe so, but once the umbrella is open, how will you get through the door? Or, for that matter, how do you pick up the packages once you've opened the umbrella?

Quite a problem, isn't it? But it can be solved. If you don't think so, just watch . . .

Man With the One-Second Draw

"Sudden death" is more than just an expression in "Man With the Gun," in which Robert Mitchum plays a gunfighter who tames a lawless frontier town in the West. Bob had to learn to draw and fire so fast that the life expectancy of an adversary, from provocation to demise, should not exceed one second. Mitchum did better than that in this United Artists thriller. He did it in four-fifths of a second. Stop watch here shows fast draw.

Mitchum reaches for his holstered gun after first impulse to shoot. Elapsed time seen on watch: one-fifth second.

Only another fifth of a second needed for follow-through sweeping motion of whipping the gun from Bob's holster.

Without loss of motion, gun is leveled on target, trigger finger begins squeezing in another fifth of second.

Before adversary has a chance, bullet is on its lethal way. Elapsed time is 4/5 second, best yet in film capital.

First U. S. Navy submarine was the Holland (above), and at least one Long Beach man remembers her well. He is Edward J. Krec, who served aboard her.

Service record and chief petty officer's uniform are mementoes of Krec's 38 years with submarine service.

"The Admiral" moved into 4942 Fidler Ave. recently, and already everything is shipshape and policed up around the area — and surprisingly, he seems quite content to be a dry land sailor after a lifetime connected with submarines.

Undersea craft have been his main interest ever since Uncle Sam bought the first one, the USS Holland, back in 1904. I should know, I've heard it all my life. "The Admiral" is my dad.

Edward John Krec (everyone calls him either "The Admiral" or "E. J.") is 68, but you would not believe it — especially when he starts reeling off those animated narratives about the early days under the sea.

HE ENTERED the Navy on June 20, 1905, and in 1907 he volunteered for the infant submarine service. Assigned to the USS Holland, he became a member of the electrical crew — but he had to know every other job on the boat, too; you'll find out why a little later.

The Holland was classified as a submarine torpedo boat. She was 55 feet long, 10 1/4 feet in diameter, had a displacement of 75 tons and a hull made of steel. She was powered by a gas engine while running on the surface and a motor run by storage batteries while she was submerged.

What was she like inside? Well, there was only one compartment and one torpedo tube. She accommodated seven men — two in the electrical crew, two in the ordnance crew, two in the

WHAT'S YOUR HOBBY?

Tatting Is a Lot of Holes

MRS. MARY ALICE RAY, 112 Magnolia, has what she believes is the only pair of tatted gloves in town.

She is keeping them for the Hobby Show. If she gets around to it, she may tat herself a pair to wear to church.

"I've tatted for 60 years," says the sprightly Englishwoman. "I never even heard of tatted gloves until recently when a friend, Miss Ellen Norris of Chorley, England, sent me an English tatted book. It had a picture of tatted gloves and directions. Of course I made myself a pair."

Mrs. Ray has a tatted cape, which may be the only one of its kind in town. And she has a tatted American flag and Union Jack — probably the only ones, too.

IN HER APARTMENT also are tatted Afghans, tatted baskets (she stiffens them with an acacia gum solution), tatted purses, tatted place mats, dollies, handkerchiefs, collars, flowers, etc.

"It's a little funny making all those holes," she says. "That's what tatting is—holes."

Mrs. Ray, who was born and reared in Bolton, Lancashire, says her mother taught her to knit and sew when she was 4 years old, and taught her to weave and make netting when she was 10. She learned to tat when she was 18.

Then the electricians had to take over in the engine room and run things until they, too, were overcome and the engineers reciprocated.

There was no periscope — the Holland ran with her conning tower above water and targets were sighted through portholes. She had one distinction, however: She was the only American submarine ever to have a dynamite gun.

After the Holland, "E. J." served aboard the Octopus, the C-2, G-4, K-1 and R-19. But there was little glamour attached to the service in those days. The underwater pioneers were termed "pigboat men" by their brothers in blue — because the submariners were always smeared with oil and carbon from the engines.

In 1922 he joined civil service and was assigned to the Inspector of Naval Materials, Philadelphia, as a submarine battery and parts inspector.

While he was with the inspection service, a young lieutenant was assigned to be electrical officer of the department. This was some time in the '30s: Dad and the young lieutenant became good friends. The lieutenant's name was H. G. Rickover. He's a rear admiral now — and recently developed the atomic submarine!

COOKING

It's Candy-Making Time Again

By Mildred K. Flanary
Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

IT'S IMPORTANT — very important — to treat memories kindly, especially those of Christmas. In the sunny Southland the weather fails to conform to the usual conception of a "white Christmas" and Californians must build up the yule touch in ways other than depending upon snow, sleigh rides and a near blizzard chasing itself around the house. An afternoon of candy-making is one way of achieving a feeling that Christmas is at hand — and it's a happy way of making up most-welcome gift packages for family and friends.

Mrs. George Badenhausen, 2409 E. 2nd St., learned early in her career as a homemaker that everyone has a sweet tooth, and when that sweet tooth can be appeased and the body refueled with quick energy, protein and vitamins at the same time, that's really an efficient, yet happy operation. She says, too, that candy-making is a wonderful family custom, and many are the happy memories of the pre-holiday goodies in the making, each member doing his or her own bit.

The Badenhausens' favorite candy is fudge, so that is the featured recipe today. You'll note the addition of cornstarch is a unique feature. Here are some others:

Kitchen Tip:

A tip for making light, fluffy butter cakes and corn bread is to add one tablespoon of boiling water after all the ingredients have been added, then beat well.

Fudge is almost a universal favorite and the special recipe of Mrs. George Badenhausen is given today.

Cook gently to 235° F. or until a little of the mixture forms a soft ball in cold water. Add the butter, vanilla and raisins. Beat with a spoon or electric beater until nearly stiff. Add top milk and continue beating until the mixture is of the same consistency as before milk was added.

Divinity

- 3 squares bitter chocolate
- 1 large can evaporated milk
- ¾ cube butter

Mix cornstarch and sugar and add cream. Place on stove and heat. Then add chocolate and boil rapidly until soft ball is formed in ice water. Remove from stove, add butter and vanilla. Let mixture get cold, then beat.

Where Spanish Goes Polynesian

Color abounds in the huge living room of the home of Mrs. A. W. Horton Sr. Exotic furnishings and expressions of Mrs. Horton's artistry are evident.

Essentially Spanish in architecture, the house underwent a complete change of character in 1938. That was the year Mr. and Mrs. Horton visited Hawaii for a lengthy sojourn. So enamoured were they with the native arts and customs that they brought back boundless plans for redoing their house.

To this day, Hawaiian and Oriental themes most intrigue Mrs. Horton who has the artistic ability to create most of her "brainstorms" herself.

FOR INSTANCE, Mrs. Horton is an accomplished weaver. Her loom, which is set up in the hobby shop, produces, almost magically, beautiful wall hangings, table appointments, lamp shades and fabrics. Evidences of Mrs. Horton's prowess at the potter's wheel are in evidence throughout the house. The color schemes here are vibrant and startlingly different. In fact, the entire house mirrors to perfec-

IN AN AGE when the old "homestead" quality of living has all but died out and families move effortlessly—and endlessly—from one place to another with the regularity of swallows, it is rare that one finds a middle-aged house still comfortably accommodating the family that built it.

But that is the case with a fine old home at 100 Riva Alto Canal. This magnificent dwelling has been overlooking the tion the personality of its vital, vivacious and talented owner.

Entering the house through a lofty and rather austere hall, one finds the living room decorated with all the dramatic flare of a stage setting. Yet, despite the theatrics, there is something infinitely welcoming and comfortable about this high-ceilinged, 20x30-foot room.

Sharp and vivid contrast is afforded by the color scheme.

Against walls and ceiling of deep blue-green, draperies and carpet of saffron yellow offer brilliant accents.

Placed between two windows at the far end of the room is an enormous hiki-e (large Hawaiian-style divan of bed proportions), its bolster banked with many colored throw pillows.

AN OVERSIZED coffee table—composed simply of a long, thick slab of wood painted flat black and supported by cement blocks similarly camouflaged with black paint—spans the huge plate glass window that overlooks the waterway. Standing at one end of this simple but awe-inspiring table is a gigantic hand-blown wine vessel of clear pale turquoise glass. To deepen the blue-green hue of the glass (and more closely

Original Spanish styling in stately manner is kept by the exterior of home, but interior differs radically.

At the other end of the room is a conversational area composed of a taupe-gray sectional sofa intersected by a step table painted flat black. On its low, wide lower surface Mrs. Horton displays low exotic floral arrangements.

THE FIREPLACE opening is spanned by a heavy beam that forms the mantel. Highlighted on the mantel is a large hand-woven tray of reed and a gnarled, and twisted piece of driftwood at the base of which is placed a piece of Japanese sculpture representative of the sensitivity and delicacy of Oriental artisans.

The glassed lanai opens off the living room and is equally interesting in a much more casual and somehow humorous way.

Rush squares, sturdy and perfect for the role they play, cover the floor. A pair of punois (which can double nicely as guest beds) stand on their rattan bases on either side of a combination lamp and coffee table and provide for comfortable lounging.

A SECOND FIREPLACE opens to the lanai and devotes itself largely to barbecuing of steaks and Hawaiian pork. Within reach of the fireplace is a bamboo and wood paneled bar. Tall rattan stools face the bar and come in handy for outside use in the patio for summer snack times as well as standing by in the lanai.

The glass windows and doors opening to the completely enclosed patio-courtyard are hung with roller bamboo blinds painted rich blue-green, echoing the living room wall color. (Walls in the lanai are waxed knotty pine.) Outside the windows a profusion of tropical growth crowds close and gives guests the feeling of being outside, yet inside!

Three steps up from the lanai is the dining room which is located very advantageously for serving buffet dinners when guests are milling from living room-to-lanai-to-patio. Thus elevated, the rattan table can be set with all the effectiveness of a stage when exotic foods and a sizeable guest list are on the agenda.

Almost as much a part of the house as the actual structure itself is the closely integrated patio-courtyard. "Floored" with round disks sawed from redwood trunks set into concrete, the intimately private area is secluded with tall palms, sheltering rice paper trees and banana plants.

BOOK REVIEWS

The West That Is No More

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Independent, Press-Telegram Book Editor

THE WEST, and particularly California, is the setting of several new books which, because of their treatment and fine flavor, will make ideal gifts for almost everyone who likes to read.

A celebrated dancer, for whose love a king came off his throne, comes to life beautifully in "The Woman in Black: The Life of the Fabulous Lola Montez" (Putnam, $4.50). It was Lola Montez who, after sweeping all Europe off its feet with her uncommon beauty, and dancing, came finally to Grass Valley, Calif., to make her home. Helen Holdredge, the Sacramentan who has written two previous books about Californians, faithfully traces the life of Miss Montez, even through the dazzling courts of Europe; and her style of writing is as fascinating as her subject.

Southern Californians who love to roam the desert will want "Baja California" (Academy Publishers, Los Angeles, $5), in which Ralph Hancock tells of his travel, hunting and fishing adventures on the long peninsula with Ray Haller, Mike McMahan and Frank Alvarado. Now in a new edition, there is no more authoritative guide to the country south of Tijuana; and the fire-side adventurer will find it thoroughly enjoyable.

Much has been written about the Pony Express, but this great chapter in the development of the west was never told better or more completely — and with more enthusiasm — than by Raymond W. Settle and Mary Lund Settle in "Saddles and Spurs" (Stackpole, $3.75).

Somewhat wider in scope, but reeking with nostalgic stories of early western days, is "The American Cowboy: The Myth and the Reality" (University of Oklahoma Press, $3.75). Authors Joe B. Frantz and Julian Ernest Choate Jr. have remembered that the cowboy is a myth possessing a living and present reality in the American folk mind and have succeeded most effectively in depicting him as a part of the entire western panorama instead of looking at him, as most previous works have done, in isolation from his larger environment.

And finally, historian Oscar Lewis has authored a distinguished book for young people. "The Story of California" (Garden City Books, $2.50) is a glowing, easy-to-read history of the Golden State and when illustrated with handsome drawings by John N. Barron, becomes the perfect gift for the teenager.

NO HISTORY of the old west is complete without generous references to William F. Cody. For this man, known to the world as "Buffalo Bill," was a good rider and a crack shot at 11, when he joined his first Conestoga wagon train. When 12 he met the famous scouts, Kit Carson and Jim Bridger, at Fort Laramie; at 14, he was riding for the Pony Express and became acquainted with Wild Bill Hickok; while still a young man he was in the midst of savage Indian wars, became conspicuous as a great buffalo hunter. With this background he became the gentleman scout, Buffalo Bill, and for 40 years he exhibited tremendous showmanship by bringing the old west to the world on the stages of famous theaters and through his famous Wild West Show. His life story, omitting none of his daring exploits, unfolds like a fast-moving western thriller in "Buffalo Bill and the Wild West," a definitive biography by Henry Blackman Sell and Victor Weybright (Oxford University Press, $6.95). Between the colorful end papers, mingling with the adventures of Buffalo Bill, are almost 200 photographs.

ences to William F. Cody. For this man, known to the world as "Buffalo Bill," was a good rider and a crack shot at 11, when he joined his first Conestoga wagon train. When 12 he met the famous scouts, Kit Carson and Jim Bridger, at Fort Laramie; at 14, he was riding for the Pony Express and became acquainted with Wild Bill Hickok; while still a young man he was in the midst of savage Indian wars, became conspicuous as a great buffalo hunter. GIRBSVILLE, Pennsylvania, is a fictional town, laid out and peopled by John O'Hara, and "Ten North Fredrick" (Random House, $3.95) is the address where lay the body of Joseph Benjamin Chapin, mourned in various degrees of intensity by his family and his business and political associates. Through many flashbacks the history of the Chapin family and those families connected with it are detailed with great clarity. Too, there is a sense of intimacy which makes for full understanding and sympathy from the reader. If at times the intimacy is somewhat shocking, few will take offense at it.

The novel might well be summed up as a study in frustration. Joe Chapin became aware early of his limitations, but he was persuaded to ignore them. At first his mother dominated him, and then he married a woman who tried to possess him completely even though she herself was possessed in another fashion. Joe was persuaded to enter politics, but there he failed. Failing gracefully was a strong point in Joe Chapin. He grew used to it. It was in Joe's middle years when his son and daughter began to understand the man who had fathered them. Through his daughter, Joe met his single triumph and satisfaction. It is a whisper of happiness that comes to him in a short and tender love affair. It is all that Joseph Benjamin Chapin was ever to have, and it was to last him all his life.

When the novel comes full circle, the reader will realize that if this is not O'Hara's best it is certainly his most.—G. L.

WIDE-AWAKE boys and girls in their early teens will be royally entertained by "The Young Scientist's Reader" (Hart, $2), in which Gerald M. Straight compiles much material on things scientific for young, explorative minds. Some of the subjects covered are the rocket, tornado, astronomy, radio, and the story of evolution.

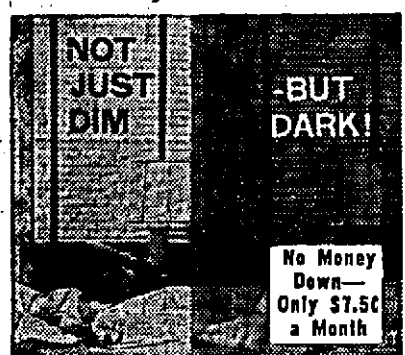

THE SAILING CROWES

TO LONG BEACH comes something a little bit special in a book written by Bill and Phyllis Crowe who built and sailed a 39-foot auxiliary schooner around the world. Their book is "Heaven, Hell and Salt Water," (De Graff, $3.95) and in it they tell of scores of narrow squeaks from storm and shoal, man and beasts of the sea. No saga of sailing is complete without shipwreck and Bill and Phyllis had theirs—in Zanzibar. Phyllis is an Iowa girl who went to school in Long Beach, where she met and married Bill. They now live in Honolulu, where they operate the Ala Wai Boat Works and where their doughty little schooner, the Lang Syne, tugs at her lines. Armchair adventurers will get a big kick out of their adventures, which are pleasingly illustrated with their own photographs taken around the world.

Here's a Christmas decoration idea: Affix your cards to a wall with cellophane tape in form of yule tree.

Show Off Your Cards

CHISTMAS CARDS that flood into your home during the Yule season are so colorful and attractive that their friendly beauty should be shared with everyone who enters your home. They should be displayed, and featured as a prominent part of your Christmas decorative scheme.

Each year clever homemakers devise new ways to show off these pretty cards. Here are a few suggestions; you can follow them exactly, or you can use them as a springboard for your own imagination, to help you think up new display methods of your own.

Attach cards to your living room curtains or drapes; line them up across the cornice boxes above venetian blinds; pin them to the tapes of venetian blinds. Use them to cover the backs and sides of an overstuffed chair or divan; paper your entry hall with them. Make a "Christmas tree" or a "Santa Claus" all of cards, fastened with cellophane tape to either an indoor or an outside wall. —NANCY VOGEL.

Neighborhood gatherings, such as a barbecue depicted here, is a good way to overcome "big-city blues" and get back the homey "small-town feeling."

Reviving that 'Small Town' Feeling

NEVER HEAR the newcomers to Long Beach (and once in a while the old-timers, too!) make the remark, "Long Beach is fine, but sometimes we sure miss living in a small town?" Frequently the reactions of people who move out here from back East follow a definite pattern. They come out and immediately fall in love with the climate; they are fascinated with our casual mode of living; they thrill to the fact that they are near the movie capital of the world; they are awed by the long, beautiful beach by the ocean; and to them the new, modern housing developments and shopping centers represent the ultimate in nice living.

They buy a home (or, in some instances, rent one) and the man of the house settles down to a new job that pays well. The children start to school in one of the most up-to-date school systems in the country and the wife starts keeping house with practically every modern convenience at her disposal. Everything is wonderful until small town nostalgia creeps into the picture and the family gets the big-city blues.

A typical family named Smith came from a little town in Ohio where everyone knew everyone else. With a good sales record in his background, Smith immediately got a top position with an automobile agency. The family acquired a new home in Lakewood, and the children started school. Life had never been so good before and the Smiths agreed that Southern California was the only place in the world to live.

ABOUT A WEEK after the Smiths were settled in their home, Mrs. Smith felt her first pang of homesickness. She had met her next-door neighbor once or twice, but she discovered that people in the block kept pretty much to themselves. She was lonesome for her former friends and neighbors in Ohio, but at the same time she was very busy getting her home in order and enjoying the luxury of the local supermarket.

When the first winter in Long Beach arrived according to the calendar, the Smiths were impressed with wonderment. No snow! No overcoats to worry about! No cold nights or frosty mornings! Christmas was almost

Seeing the Works'

"Seeing the works" is a favorite pastime with most tourists. And it's especially easy to do in the all-year resort of Phoenix and the Valley of the Sun.

Several commercial operators run regular tours to points of interest in and around the valley for those without transportation or for visitors who want to see and learn a lot about the famed vacationland as quickly as possible.

Among some of the commercial tours conducted regularly from Phoenix are:

Greyhound: Three-day tour to the Grand Canyon, $18.24; three-day tour to Hermosillo and Guaymas, Mexico, $24.75; one-day tour of the Apache Trail, $4.65; two-day tour to Las Vegas, $19.45; one-day tour to Nogales, $7.45, and three-day tour to the Petrified Forest and Painted Desert, $22.10.

Tanner Gray Lines Motor Tours: Grand tour of the Salt River Valley, $3.50; one-day tour of the Apache Trail, $10; three-day tour to the Grand Canyon and Northern Arizona, $35; one-day tour to the Wickenburg dude ranches and Vulture Gold Mine, $8, and two-day tour to Casa Grande National Monument, Tucson and Nogales, $22.50.

Arizona Tours, Inc.: One-day trip over the Apache Trail, $10; grand tour of the Salt River Valley, $3.50; two-day trip to Tucson and Nogales, $22.50; three-day trip to the Grand Canyon, $35; Valley of the Sun tour, $2.50; four-day grand circle tour to Las Vegas and the Grand Canyon, $57.95; four-day Chiricahua National Monument loop trip, $42.50; four-day tour to Los Vegas, Zion and Bryce National Parks and the Grand Canyon, $81.15, and a four-day grand circle tour to Las Vegas and the Grand Canyon, $48.75.

Frontier Airlines: Daily trips to the Grand Canyon, $24.42.

In addition, Continental Trailways and the Santa Fe Railroad operate regular service from Phoenix to the Grand Canyon.

Further information on commercial tours and other things to do and see in the Valley of the Sun may be obtained without charge by writing to Vacation Adviser, Phoenix Chamber of Commerce, Phoenix, Ariz.

releases as "George Washington Slept Here," "Buck Benny Rides Again," "Man About Town," "To Be or Not to Be" and "The Horn Blows at Midnight."

In 1950 Jack Benny began his career in television. "The Jack Benny Television Show" was seen Saturday, Nov. 11, on KTTV 11 at the time the station was a CBS affiliate. He was a sensation from the start and has handled TV very carefully without jeopardizing his popularity.

Grandfather Benny now lives quietly in Beverly Hills with Mary, and all he has to do is work out his television shows, rehearse, entertain and occasionally play some golf. His adopted daughter, Joan, and her husband come to visit whenever possible and then 39-year-old Jack Benny becomes 61-year-old Grandfather Jack.

So Everything Happens to You!

By Paul Jones

National Safety Council

SO EVERYTHING happens to you?

Maybe you just think it does.

For instance:

Have you obeyed a traffic light, only to have it (the light) fall in your lap?

Has your two-year-old son or daughter driven your automobile?

Have you proudly named your place Dew Drop Inn, only to have it do just that—into the lake?

All these odd little happenings and many others were uncovered by the National Safety Council in its annual roundup of freak accidents. Here's the rundown on the dizzy doings in 1953:

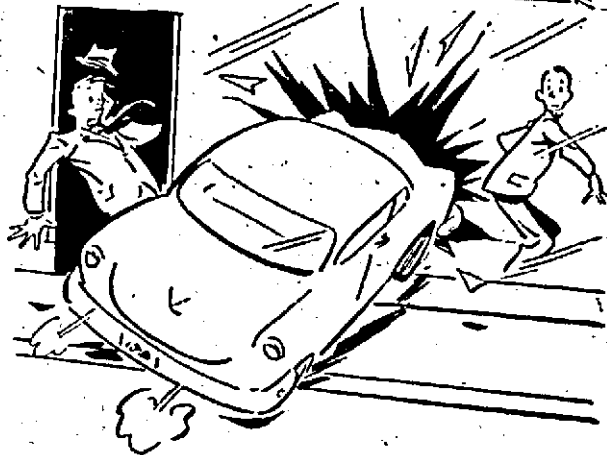

TIMOTHY DAVIS made headlines in Long Beach by taking his grandfather for a little spin in the family car. The trip was newsworthy for three reasons. One was that the car tore off the porch of a nearby house and came so near running down a neighbor that she fainted. The second was that Timothy propelled the car by sitting on the accelerator. The third was that Timmy was only two years old. Timmy's mother had left him in the car with his grandfather. Timmy turned on the ignition, sat on the gas pedal, and — swoosh!

Now, if a two-year-old boy can drive a car by sitting on the accelerator, a two-year-old girl can do it, too—and do it better. So Margaret Ann Kilby, of Indianapolis, did it. Margaret Ann wasn't content to crash into a mere house. She rammed into a fire plug, knocked out the neighborhood water supply for three hours, turned the street into a sheet of ice, and, of course, wrecked the car. Another woman driver, eh, fellas?

The Dew Drop Inn at Port Huron, Mich., lived up to its name during a wild wind and rain storm, and dropped into Anchor Bay. One drink too many!

TRAFFIC EXPERTS say it's safe to go on the green light. Try to tell that to motorist E. T. Drake Jr., of Atlanta! As Drake dutifully obeyed an overhead

WE NEED YOUR CAR DRIVE IN!

So everything happens to you? Don't you believe it. Look at the predicament this motorist in L. A. is in!

traffic light that flashed him a green go-ahead signal, the light fell on top of his car and sent him to the hospital. Drake saw red.

The sign over the door of a used car salesroom in Los Angeles said, "We need your car—drive in!" Lewis Jackson Jr. did — with his throttle stuck. The car crashed through a heavy wooden door, sideswiped two glistening cars on the showroom floor, ran head-on into a costly convertible, and bounced the convertible into another car. They took down the sign.

Stanton Sapp and his brother, Daniel, happened to run into each other on the street in their home town, Mount Vernon, Ohio. That would have been perfectly all right, of course, if each of the brothers hadn't been driving a car. Neither was injured in the head-on crash, but it did prove the need for the safety slogan, "Be Your Brother's Keeper — Stop Accidents!"

AND IN COPENHAGEN Mrs. Else Sorensen and Karen Kirk Lassen couldn't resist the dance music coming out of a radio in the Old Folks Home, and decided to try the mambo. They both landed in the hospital with broken legs. Both dancers were 80.

Every theatrical act strives for a knockout finish. The ballet "Streetcar Named Desire" literally achieved it. As tiny ballerina Nora Kaye whirled in the middle of a pirouette during a New York performance, her elbow caught her husky partner Igor Youskevitch smack in the face, and he went down for the count.

Ordinarily, a hung jury is one that fails to agree. But the jury that hung midway between the first and second floors of the courthouse in Reading, Pa. in a stalled elevator for almost an hour agreed perfectly. It wanted down!

In Hollywood, where even toys must be colossal or bigger, the Burns and Allen television show was using a 20-pound stuffed Teddy bear in a department store scene. The king-sized bear fell off the shelf, bopped Gracie Allen on the head and knocked her out cold.

WALTER BERGMAN, of Ashton, Idaho, was aware that his jalopy had served him long and well. But he didn't realize how faithful it was until he parked it in front of the post office and hurried in to get his mail. Somehow the car slipped into gear and followed him in, right through the post office window. Move over, old dog Tray!

And in Los Angeles there's a man who just can't stay out of accidents. He's had several traffic escapades that made news for the papers. And this year he fell through the floor of the laboratory where he works and landed 9 feet below with a bang that knocked him out. His name? No kidding, folks, It's Safety First!

Still think everything happens to you? Monotonous life you lead, isn't it?

And have you ever had this happen to you? Well, it's the artist's conception of what actually happened when big storm hit Port Huron, Mich.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH DELAPLANE

LONDON
"Would it be all right to travel by train in Europe this winter or is it too uncomfortable and cold?"

I LIKE THE TRAINS in Europe and they've always been well warmed in winter. I don't know where you are going but the crack trains like the Aarlsberg-Paris express (Tyrol to Paris), the Orient Express, the Train Bleu and the Mistral (Nice to Paris) are excellent.

Generally, figure second class is inexpensive and very good in Germany, Austria and Switzerland. Go first class in Italy, France and Spain. I haven't used anything but commute trains in Great Britain. But you should write first to the British Travel and Holiday Association, 61 St. James St., London, and ask about the British Railway tickets you can buy in advance in THIS country. This gives you a certain number of miles by rail at a reduced fare. But you have to buy it here.

You may want to know about tipping. Something for the sleeping car attendant just like in the States. In most dining cars, you'll find 12 to 15 per cent service on the bill. So don't over-tip. Something equivalent to a quarter extra is plenty and you don't have to do that.

"Would you recommend some good pocket guides. Where to eat and what to see and how to get along?"

BEST OVERALL is Pan American Airways' "Far Horizons" for $1 at any PAA office. For Europe, TWA puts out a pocket booklet that is very complete for some six countries. Any TWA office has them

EXPERIMENT for TRAVELER

By Isobel Joy Aronin

A new experiment is being inaugurated this year in Denmark, not by a travel agency, or an official sightseeing corporation, but by an enterprising manufacturer of agricultural machinery. The company is Gyro A/S in the little town of Skive, some 150 miles from Copenhagen, and the object of the plan is to show Americans how the average Dane lives and works.

Arne Christensen, vice president of Gyro, and promoter of the idea, believes that it is the first time in any country that a single industrial plant has taken it upon itself to make such a voluntary contribution to international understanding. He maintains that his tour will be a welcome change from the standard tourist fare of museums, castles and boat rides.

The tourists who take the free guided tour around the factory will see at first hand the production of agricultural machinery in all its phases, the new facilities for employees' recreation, the storage warehouse fitted with railroad tracks which connect to the main line, and the huge outdoor testing grounds. At the end, each will be treated to a cup of pure Danish coffee, freshly ground from a Gyro coffee mill.

Across the street from the factory is the Sans Souci Restaurant, where a dollar brings you a meal of Danish specialties like Smorrbrod (open-faced sandwiches) or pork chops and red cabbage, with the mild Danish beer, or the potent clear brandy for beverage. Sights in the vicinity are the beautiful flower-covered public gardens, the heath with its open-air museum, the little winding streets reminiscent of tales by Hans Christian Andersen, and the medieval castle of Spotttrup. The biggest and best hotel in Skive is the Skivehus, whose rates start at less than a dollar.

Transportation from Copenhagen may be by train and ferry (eight hours, $5), or by private car, rented in Copenhagen for about $5 a day.

at 25 cents apiece. Something I have found of great help is Pan American's pocket-size currency conversion table. I think they give these to you.

"Do you have trouble getting cigarettes and soap and toilet articles in Europe? What should I take?"

YOU DON'T HAVE TROUBLE getting cigarettes but they cost you from 40 to 80 cents a package—American cigarettes, that is. If you are going through Shannon, you can stock up duty free at $1.50 a carton. You'll notice that most custom regulations overseas say 400 cigarettes is all you can take in. But customs are apt to be easy on this.

Break a couple of cartons and throw the packages in loose and when he says, "Do you have cigarettes?" You say, "Just enough to get by." Be vague and don't make a problem for him.

You can get all the toilet articles you need in any European capital. Maybe not in the country. Most of the big hotels are giving soap again. But some are still charging for it. This give-away soap is so small and poor though that I still get along better carrying a good size bar in a plastic covered soap dish.

The only thing I had trouble getting was a small size thermos bottle. These are awfully handy if you are driving, since country water is doubtful and it's a nuisance to stop and buy a bottle whenever you're thirsty.

Your mailed questions will be answered (no phone calls). Send stamped and addressed envelope to: Stan Delaplane, Southland Magazine, Independent, Press-Telegram, Sixth and Pine, Long Beach 12, Calif.

When in Rome—

Newcomers to Rome this season are warned by Pan American to watch their signals. In the upside-down Roman system of hand waves, a pushing away gesture is a sign of welcome while a gesture in which the hand is pulled toward the head is a sign of farewell.

In Oldest City

Major sight in Damascus, Syria, oldest continuously inhabited city in the world, is the Omayed Mosque — originally the Church of St. John the Baptist, built by Theodosius in the fourth century.

Isle of Capri

CAREFREE, fun-loving Capri in the Bay of Naples has enchanted tourists since the day Ulysses identified it as the Siren's Isle.

Capri has close to 50 hotels and pensions, according to a Pan American World Airways' report. These Inns range from the de luxe Quisisana Hotel in Capri and the elegant Caesar Augustus in Anacapri to dozens of small boarding houses. The average expenditure for room and board runs $8.50 a day, but rates for students in private homes go as low as $1 a night. Meals in the small restaurants tucked in the side lanes of Capri are about $1. But even a superb repast on the terrace of the swank Augustus Caesar with wine, music and spectacular scenery costs no more than $4.50 a person.

TWO ROCK-HEWN ROADS in Capri zigzag skyward at dizzy angles along the cliffs where Emperor Tiberius used to push his enemies into the sea. Though the donkey is still the main means of transportation, there are taxis to carry visitors back and forth across the six square miles of the island. The rate is roughly 75 cents for a ride from the docks at Marina Grande, the Big Harbor, up to the tiny Piazza that is the heart of Capri.

The island is cut up into several tiny settlements, dominated by the village of Capri, and linked by footpaths, a winding road, sheer cliffs and arches. Everywhere there are pastel-shaded villas and terraced vineyards, deep grottos and Roman ruins. Towering above Capri is the town of Anacapri, famous for its vista and the near-by Villa San Michele, now a Swedish art colony.

Though Capri is another world for the majority of tourists, the trip from Rome takes no more than half a day. The Rapido fare to Naples from the Italian capital is about $5, and the short boat ride across the bay is a quarter. Air fare between New York and Rome is $648, tourist, or $877, first class, via Pan American World Airways, which can be financed for 10 per cent down with the remainder to be paid in as many as 20 monthly installments.

Shoot a Shower Picture

A LITTLE WHILE ago we found ourselves whistling the tune of "Singing in the Rain"—and that gave us an idea. Why not talk about "shooting in the rain?" To be sure, a shower can be inconvenient, but have you ever thought of taking a picture of one? Not only the rain itself but many other subjects

By the Shutterbug

can be photographed to good effect on a rainy day. If possible, choose a fairly bright rainy day for your picture taking. Then load your simple camera with some extra fast film and you can take bad weather in your stride. (There's a new one on the market this year. Your photo dealer will be glad to advise you on using it.) But be sure to do your shooting from a sheltered spot—a doorway or window will do nicely.

JUST REMEMBER to keep your camera dry—because raindrops on the lens interfere with its vision as much as they do with yours when they land in your eyes or on your glasses.

Naturally, your rainy-day picture won't be a sharply contrasted black-and-white—it'll have a grayish tone with a great deal of atmospheric quality. However, it will be a snapshot that you'll be glad to have in your album—one whose tone and mood give the imagination something to work on!

THREE EXCITING books for the photographer who wants to become more expert at his trade have just been published by Camera Craft of San Francisco.

In "How to Shoot for Glamour" ($2.95), Carl Bakal analyzes the techniques, studies the secrets, and collects the tricks of the world's top glamour photographers, models and beauty authorities. Accompanying the text are 270 photographs, comprising probably the finest collections of glamour pictures ever brought together in a single volume.

"Better Color Movies" ($4.95), by Fred Bond, is designed as a practical guide for the average snapshotter, giving detailed instruction in the techniques of getting uniformly good color quality throughout his films. The 16 excellent color plates are a valuable addition, permitting easy visualization and solution to color problems.

The new fourth edition of Fred Bond's "Kodachrome & Ektachrome: Color Photography from All Angles" ($9.75), offers the serious color worker a complete course in color photography. It has been considerably expanded and improved and is up to date, even including such recent developments as the new Kodak direct-color printing materials. The author has worked exclusively in color for 18 years.

TWO NEW EASTMAN books of interest to shutterbugs have been placed on the bookshelves of camera dealers. They are "Kodak Papers" (50c), which is out in a revised edition with a full section devoted to making prints on Kodak papers. It is perforated to fit the Kodak Reference Handbook. The other is "Kodak Ektachrome Film" (35c) and is devoted to the many phases of shooting in color under many light conditions. It is colorfully illustrated.

THEY COME FROM 'BACK HOME' AND REVIVE THAT 'SMALL TOWN' FEELING

around the corner and some days were nearly warm enough for swimming at the beach! The Smiths sent long letters home full of detailed weather reports.
It was spring when Mrs. Smith began to notice how much she missed her home town. The feeling spread to the rest of the family and they all agreed that living in a big city had its disadvantages. It seemed difficult to get acquainted, and their friends were few. They missed the feeling of belonging that their small community had offered in spite of the material luxuries they had never known before. They decided to leave California and return home.

SMITH FELT that he ought to be fair to his new employer and finish out the year with the company. He suggested that Mrs. Smith and the children go on ahead and stay with a close relative until he could join them in the future.
Mrs. Smith and the youngsters were warmly greeted by their relatives and friends in the little town. The children regaled their friends with stories about California — why they even saw Roy Rogers once at a big store opening! Mrs. Smith told about the supermarkets and the wonderful, sunny weather. But it was wonderful to be home.

Then as the weeks went by a strange thing happened. Mrs. Smith found herself thinking more and more about her California home. The small town began to seem dull and unglamorous even though she enjoyed being with her old friends. She felt a strong urge to return to her new home and her husband. To her surprise, the children, too, missed California, and wanted to get back to Roy Rogers and the big markets. Again, she and the children made a trip alone, this time home to California.

The outcome of this story is typical. The Smiths are finally sold on everything about Southern California except one thing: they miss the "small town feeling," a feeling of belonging. What they haven't realized is that it is possible to create a tiny town in a small community in a big city, with all of the advantages and none of the pettiness sometimes found in small towns.

IN ANY BLOCK of houses in Lakewood or Los Altos or any other section of Long Beach, the Smiths, the Browns, the Watsons, the Clarks and a dozen other families live side by side or across the street from one another. Most of them have children. Most of the men have good jobs. Most of the women are housewives and mothers. All of them have similar problems or experiences that beset an average family. If these people who live so close together and who have so much in common would get to know each other really well, they could create their own small town within the area.

Many people who move out here from little towns are shy and reluctant to get acquainted. It's very possible that a next-door neighbor who has lived in Long Beach for 10 years might also be reticent about becoming chummy with new neighbors. People often view one another with suspicion. "It pays to keep to yourself," they've heard. "You never know." What "you never know" is never quite certain.

Actually, the possibility that one's next door neighbor might be a dope addict or former bank robber is a remote one. What one might never know is that his neighbor loves a good game of pinochle and that his neighbor's wife makes the best apple pies in the world. These neighbors are missing a real enjoyment of life because they don't dare get acquainted.

"Sure, that sounds good in print, but how would you go about knowing all your neighbors?" someone might ask. "After all, I can't walk up to a door and say, 'I'm John Jones. I live across the street. Let's be friends.'"

FRIENDLINESS is contagious. A housewife can easily get to know the mothers of her children's friends. She can then ask the mothers she has met over for an informal coffee hour in the morning when the older children are at school. Idle chit-chat can pave the way for husbands to meet. If one woman mentions that her husband is about to put up a new fence on Saturday, another might say that her husband has been thinking of building a barbecue and the result could well be a mutual sharing of jobs.

The community spirit does exist in some local areas. Recently the people in one Lakewood street had a block party, even roping off the street for the evening festivities!
Long Beach does have everything: the unmatched climate, the lovely beaches, the excellent stores, the mountains with snow in the wintertime — only an hour's drive away — and the best living conditions in the world for average budgets. If the "small town feeling" is missing, it's up to each individual person to start a good neighbor policy of his own. The fact that the general store has become a supermarket doesn't change the people who shop there. After all, there was a time when all of Long Beach had one general store!

HOW TO

Make a "Ceppa," Italian Favorite for Christmas Season Decoration

1. IN ITALY, Christmas trees are scarce, so the average family builds a "ceppa," or tree-shaped wooden form with shelf space for all the things that mean Christmas.

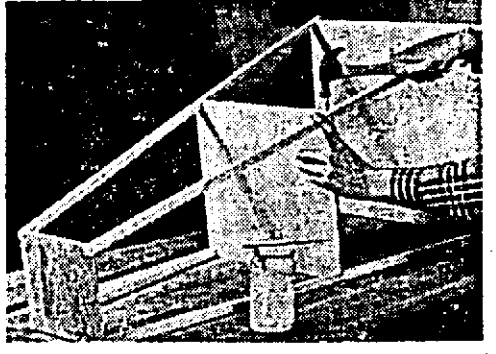

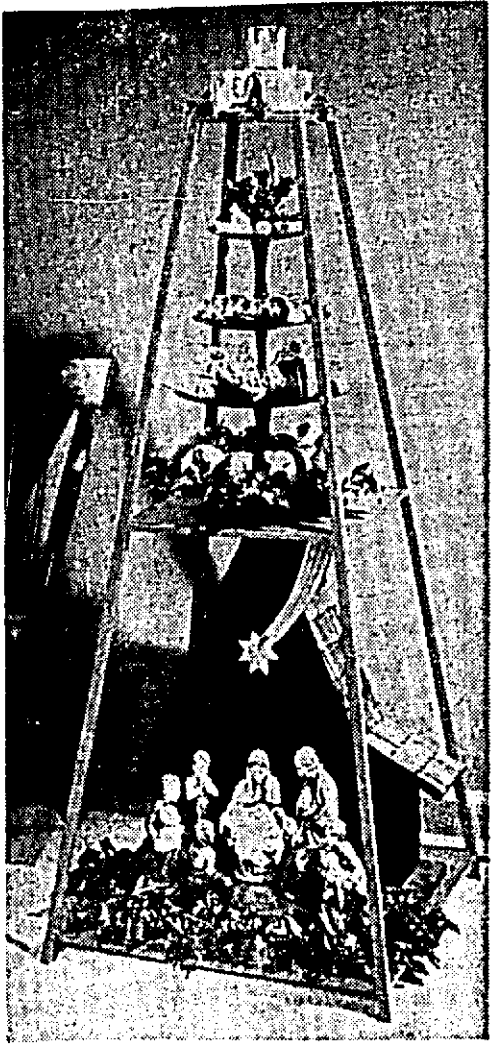

2. THE "CEPPA" is actually a four-legged pyramid of shelves. Begin by cutting three shelves out of plywood and notching the shelves as shown. Notch all four corners of the three shelves 1/2 by 1/2 inch to take 1/2-inch lumber you use for legs. Bottom shelf is 20 by 20 inches; middle one is 13 1/2 by 13 1/2 inches, and the top one, 7 by 7 inches.

3. THEN BRAD-AND-GLUE legs into the notches. Legs are 48 inches long. Set the shelves at 2 inches, 25 inches, and flush at top.

4. PUT ALL THE SHELVES in the same way you did the top one. Paint the "ceppa" a bright Christmas red. Two coats of enamel will give you the best-looking job.

ONE CHARACTERISTIC of the Pembroke Welsh Corgi stands out above all others—he is one of the most agreeable of small house dogs. Pleasant and affectionate he ever remains, but he does not force unwanted attention on anyone, not even his owner.

There is a story that he is so pleasant and unfawning that elves and fairies used him as their mount. And if you look closely at him, you can usually detect the shading of a saddle on his back.

His splendid, jolly nature, however, by no means prevents him from being an alert, vigilant watch dog.

MANY PEOPLE confuse the Pembroke Corgi with the Cardigan Corgi, and this is understandable since they have at times been crossed. Nevertheless, breeders of each are now striving to keep their dog individual and distinct from the other.

The Pembroke wears a docked tail, the Cardigan a long one. The Pembroke's body is less lengthy, his body a trifle higher. His dense coat is more finely textured and his disposition is usually more lively than that of the Cardigan.

Because of his short legs, the Corgi is often considered to be related to the dachshund. Actually, he is not. The Pembroke springs from the same family that includes the Keeshond, the Samoyed, the Norwegian elkhound, the chow chow, and the Finnish spitz.

ITS ORIGIN can be traced back to 1107 A. D. He was originally a small cattle dog brought across the channel by Flemish weavers who were encouraged by Henry I of England to make their home in Wales. Although weavers, their nature was also agrarian, and soon they and their dogs were happily adjusted. The dog is still a sturdy breed for farm work.

The award winning, bright eyed Pembroke Corgi pictured with this article is Gamble's First Lady, age 2½ years. She is owned by Mrs. Robert L. Petersen, 3096 Josie Ave.

IF YOU ARE scanning the want ads for puppies of various breeds for Christmas giving, consider the type of owner the dog will have as well as the type of dog the person would prefer. In fact, it might be a good idea to find out if the person wants any dog at all! Remember, puppy or dog owning is a two-way deal.

Look for the lively, friendly puppy, one with clear eyes, cool nose, firm stomach, clean, pink ears, firm gums, white teeth, coat clean and free of blotches. Choose preferably the medium sized pup of the litter.

If the pup is purebred, obtain a copy of the pup's pedigree and either a completed registration certificate or a registration blank filled in with everything but your signature and the name you plan to give the dog.

Gardens Get in the Holiday Mood

BEFORE YOU KNOW it the Christmas holiday will be here. So this is the time to start dressing up your garden in the holiday colors of red and green. The Christmas color ornaments will brighten up your garden during the winter season and many will continue at their best for a long time afterwards. When it comes to discussing Christmas plants you should first consider the berried shrubs. Many of these are very much at home in the Southland, enjoying high favor even with landscape architects. In addition, they may be utilized for a wide range of garden uses such as, for example, specimen plants, hedges and foundation subjects.

By Bob Gilmore

One of the best of our berried shrubs is the pyracantha possibly the most famous member of this class being variety Graberi. For Southern California gardens this one is hard to beat. The plant is certainly larger than any comparable type and the foliage appears more glossy. The bright crimson berries are enormous, being produced in clusters as large as a dinner plate.

THE BERRIES are at their best during the holiday season giving way in early spring to thousands of tiny white flowers. One plant of pyracantha graberi will prove an accent mark. The berries may be seen from a distance of blocks away.

Because of the beautiful two-tone effect . . . the bright red berries and glossy green foliage . . . this subject certainly qualifies as a specimen plant. It may also be trained against the side of a blank wall to break the monotonous effect.

Another excellent variety for this area is a California native that is certain to succeed in your garden. It is generally known as the toyon but botanists refer to it as Photinia arbutifolia. The berries are bright red in tone and contrast well with the attractive deep green foliage. When full grown the toyon will have a height of close to 10 feet. Excellent drainage must be provided and an open exposure out in the sun will serve admirably. The berries, like all of our berried shrubs, are excellent for indoor decoration.

CAMELLIAS SHOULD also be on your list of Christmas color plants. Generally speaking, the camellia season in this region gets going during the early spring months. But many of the early varieties will be in flower for the holiday season. The red flowers, so perfectly formed, and the fresh-appearing leaves are an excellent combination. The soil around the roots of camellias must not be allowed to dry out.

Stocks set out now, especially the Winter Nice types, will add color as well as fragrance to your holiday garden. The foliage of stocks is a very light green and the best red varieties are Lloyd George, blood red and Souvenir de Monaco, crimson.

Hollies are more or less synonymous with the Christmas season and perhaps more than any other plant are used as a decoration piece at this time of the year. Burford's holly, often listed in catalogs as Illex cornuta Burfordi is definitely the best selection for this area. The foliage is deep green, extremely glossy and of nice form. The plant will succeed in either sun or shade. At maturity it will attain a height of from six to 10 feet.

High Lights, Accents with Callas

Yellow callas offer variety in the garden. Pink, white, black callas are other color possibilities.

By Bob Gilmore

THERE WAS A TIME... just a few years ago, in fact... when the only well known calla was the white one. In those days the flowers were used more as florist pieces than for general gardening purposes. But this is no longer true. Today you have a choice of yellow, pink, black and white callas, the latter being a vastly improved type.

The yellow calla, perhaps the outstanding member of this family, has deep green leaves set off by hundreds of small white dots. The yellow calla may be grown in the outdoor garden, indoors as a pot plant and the blooms are splendid for indoor decoration. For brightening up a dark corner, either inside your home or outdoors, the yellow calla will prove an excellent choice.

The white calla acts as a high light on the general garden scene. The white spathes, often termed the flower section, are clear in tone and often 10 inches long. The yellow calla spathes are only four inches long. The foliage of the white calla is also quite large, growing to a length of 18 inches. The flowering segment of the white calla has a waxlike appearance and the foliage is glossy and deep green.

PERHAPS THE MOST sensitive member of the calla family is the pink sort which is adversely affected by temperatures lower than 55 degrees when the bulbs are started. The pink calla enjoys its widest usage as a pot plant. Like other members of the group it prefers semi-shade. However, the callas will tolerate full sun if sufficient moisture is supplied.

The black calla is actually a deep maroon but it is one of the plant kingdom's deepest shades. This ornamental is somewhat of a novelty but will provide something different in your garden. Its main use is for potting purposes. Formerly the black calla was found objectionable because of its strong pungent odor. However, the hybridists have now removed this undesirable trait and you will find the black calla a worthwhile addition to your garden.

For pot culture use a friable soil that contains liberal quantities of peat. Make certain that the bottom of the container is lined with a layer of drainage material. Broken bits of clay pots will suffice. Set a concave-section of this pottery over the drainage hole in the bottom of the pot. This will encourage adequate drainage and should aid in aerating the soil.

THE WHITE, yellow and pink callas are identified botanically as zantedeschias and are natives of Africa. The growing conditions of their homeland provide a clue to their culture in this area. The plants are found growing close to the Nile, flowering during the flood period. After the flowers die, the foliage ripens and falls on the ground, thus protecting the roots from the hot sun. Keep this in mind when growing these callas in your own garden.

During the growing season callas require lots of water. But after the flowering period, as in their native habitat where the Nile waters recede, a fairly dry period will prove desirable. Callas are quite effective when planted near a pool or other small body of water. Adding peat to the soil improves its moisture-retaining quality.

Unbeaten Fudge

Into a large bowl combine: 3 packages chocolate bits 30 marshmallows 2 cups nuts (chopped) ½ pound butter or margarine 2 tablespoons vanilla

Into a heavy pan place:

4½ cups sugar 1 can milk (large) Stir and put on heat, bring to rolling boil and boil 10 minutes. Pour mixture over contents in bowl. Mix thoroughly until dissolved. Chill 24 hours.

Peanut Brittle

1 cup dark syrup 1 cup beet or cane sugar ½ cup water ½ teaspoon soda 2 tablespoons margarine ½ cup shelled peanuts

Combine syrup, sugar, water and vinegar; mix well. Boil over low heat, without stirring, to 280° F., or until brittle when tried in cold water. Quickly add soda and margarine; stir, then add peanuts. Remove from heat. Mix well. Pour into a well greased shallow pan. Smooth out with a spatula; lift and pull out into a thin sheet with hands. When cold break into pieces.

Cinnamon Sugared Walnuts

1 cup beet or cane sugar 1 teaspoon cinnamon Dash of salt

6 tablespoons milk 1 teaspoon vanilla 2 to 3 cups walnut halves

Combine sugar, cinnamon, salt and milk in saucepan. Cook to soft ball stage (236° F.). Remove from heat and add vanilla and walnuts. Stir until creamy. Immediately, before it hardens, drop by spoonful on waxed paper and separate the nuts.

Coconut Peaks

½ cup butter 2 cups sifted confectioners sugar 4 tablespoons evaporated milk 3 cups moistened shredded coconut (2 4-ounce cans)

Melt butter and keep over heat until a deep golden brown. Blend in sugar and milk. Gradually work in the coconut, which has been cut fine. Drop from a teaspoon onto a pan that has been greased or covered with waxed paper. When cold, shape into cones with the fingers. If desired, the bottoms may be dipped. Melt ½ package of chocolate bits in a small container over hot water. Mix until smooth and free from lumps. When the temperature of the bits reaches 95-90° F. on a candy thermometer, swirl the bottoms of the coconut peaks in the chocolate and place on a cooling rack that has been covered with waxed paper. Let set until chocolate hardens. Makes about 36 pieces.

FRANCOIS RICHMOND
They Aren't Bells

OCCASIONALLY, during an evening of dining at Francois' Manhattan restaurant, a pleasant ringing sound will be heard.

Newcomers assume it is the sound of bells. But persons who have dined there previously know it's the tinkling of wine glasses in the clever hands of Francois James Richmond, owner of this exceptional restaurant at 1909 E. 4th St.

When Francois serves a bottle of wine (such as a wonderful Rossatello Vin Rose from Italy) he doesn't just walk up to the table and pour. No, sir, not Francois. First he strolls around the dining room, sending forth musical tones by clinking the wine glasses together. When he arrives at the table, he sets the bottle down with tender care, removes the cork with a grand, expert gesture and then fills the glasses with the expression of an artist at work on a masterpiece.

THE PREPARATION and serving of food and drink is a rare art at the Manhattan. Amazingly enough, the prices are very reasonable. For example, a complete dinner of the most delectable Chicken Cacciatore is only $2.50. A dinner of marvelous Swiss Steak au Vin Rouge, Jardiniere, is but $2, complete.

The dinners are lavish, to say the least, including a tray of chilled appetizers (stuffed celery, herring, olives, etc.), all the soup you can hold, tossed green salads with choice of dressing, vegetables, assorted breads, choice of beverage and choice of dessert.

Of course, if you really want to live, order Flaming Duckling, a dish originated by Francois. Costing $7 for two persons (and worth every cent), it consists of a whole beautiful Long Island duckling, served with yams and wild rice. It is brought to the table in a blaze of copper chafing dishes and after Francois applies certain liqueurs, the duckling erupts with a remarkable blue flame.

It is absolutely delicious.

The prairie fire rages through the night . . . and then the rains come.

At daybreak Lance, Blaze, and Fitzpatrick crawl from shelter, strike camp, move west over the scorched land . . .

Dusk. This is where the fire started.

One survivor . . . scarcely four years old . . . cold, wet, eyes glazed with shock. Over and over again she mumbles, "Bad mens with feathers . . . bad mens . . ."

Lance turns on Fitz. "Who?!"
"Injuns, likely. River pirates. Her folks was rollin' alone with jist a team man. It'll happen."

The men spot a camp upriver and spend two days nursing the child to health. Suddenly she is bright-eyed and eager. They hit the trail for Fort William.

The girl talks their heads off. "I sawed this many buff'lo. Did you ever sawed any buff'lo? Where's Mommy an' Daddy Sir? Will they meeted me at Fort Willum? I be glad to see Mommy an' Daddy Sir when we getted to Fort Willum. I sawed this many buff'lo . . ."

Fitz's thoughts are still with the tragedy. It was Injuns, likely. River pirates. But Fitz has never known such Injuns to leave survivors . . .
